LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Tom Kennedy, 10-year-old Hamilton aquatic swimmer, beat both the Ontario and Canadian records in his heat of the boys 10 and under 100 yards individual medley event during an Ontario swimming meet here Saturday.

Kennedy was clocked at 1:23.4 beating the Ontario record of 1:26 and the Canadian mark of 1:30.2. He won the final in 1:25.3.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Is time finally running out for ageless Archie Moore? Is the zesties'd 44 or is it 47-year-old patriarch of punch nearing the end of the golden rainbow? And is the sweet-song of the Solomon of Slug concluded in the pounding finis of a hard-punching young Italiano light-heavyweight?

Last November Ghali Rinaldi was suddenly focused in the international boxing spotlight when he pounded the pot-bellied champion into submission before 14,000 screaming Italians in the Palazzo dello Sport in Rome.

The two meet again in Madison Square Garden on June 19. The ever-age cooky Moore is the same old confidence-spilling Archie. "If he gets the decision over me I'll be the first to congratulate him. If I knock him out I will be the first to render first aid," he says.

Moore was disdainfully careless in the Roman bout with the young Italian. He came into the ring with three rolls of belly-fat artfully concealed by carefully tailored trunks. He weighed 190.4. 15 pounds-plus over the weight. Gliulo hit the scales at 181.

Over-age, over-weight, over-cocky and undertrained, Moore staggered through eight rounds and was all but stopped in the tenth. From then on it took all of Archie's wiles and trickiness to avoid a knockout. He did, although he claimed he deserved a draw.

Then he came up with his usual gem. The NBA has stripped him of his title, but Europe, New York and other state commissions still hold that Archie is the champion. "I would fight him again provided his manager can come up with a championship bout of 15 rounds which is better for me than 10 rounds.

In Canada not too long ago Archie went down three times in the first round against Yvon Durelle which guaranteed him one suit-case full of Canadian dollars, and paved the way for the second fight—and loaded suitcase, which saw Archie quit clowning and shorten the fight to his liking.

However, the New York oddsmakers favor Archie. At this writing he is 8-5 favorite over the swarthy thick-necked Italian. The odds change depends on how Rinaldi impresses the experts in workouts and how the "Rumpmoore," as Moore has dubbed himself, conducts himself in the battle with the calories.

Moore weighs 184 as of now and is battling desperately to make the 175-pound mark for the night of the fight. He gets up at four in the morning to get in his roadwork and is on his special diet of raw vegetables and lean meat.

Rinaldi is the winner of nine straight bouts in the last 24 months. He followed up his victory over Moore with decisions over three Americans in Rome this year. He defeated Sonny Ray of Chicago in January, Freddy Mack of New York in February and Sixto Rodriguez of San Francisco in March.

An expert who has seen Rinaldi fight several times says he is a boxer-puncher with fast hands. "He fights in spurts and moves in and out. If he can avoid being trapped by Archie he can take the title."

But wily crafty Jack (Doc) Kearns, Moore's manager thinks otherwise. Like Moore he treats challengers with cold disdain. Particularly Harold Johnson, who was crowned champion by the National Boxing Association after it stripped the crown from Moore's pate.

Some one asked Kearns the other night if there were any plans to have Johnson as a stand-bye for the fight if Moore does not make the weight. "They won't need any standbys," retorted Kearns.

Turning to a boxing director Kearns asked, "how much were you going to pay Johnson?" When he replied $15,000 Kearns said, "I tell you what I'll do. I'll pay Johnson $1,800 a night for ten nights to spar with Moore for the fight."

Giants Regain Game Lead

Cubs Snap Dodgers Six-Game String

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Disregard all the advance dope and the Dodgers.

Walt Alston's Los Angeles club is doing exactly the opposite of what all the experts, including the manager, had expected.

Sunday's 10-6 defeat by Chicago Cubs is typical, which means a six-game losing streak and dropped them a full game behind the National League-leading San Francisco Giants, is a case in point.

During spring training in Florida, Alston said:

"We've got great speed, strong pitching and a tight defence. But we have no power and we'll have to scramble for every run."

Dodger pitching has been sloppy. They lead the league in hitting and home runs but are last in fielding.

They hit five home runs Sunday but were beaten when their pitchers failed to hold a 5-0 lead. The Giants blew an early lead, too, but came back to nip Milwaukee Braves 5-4 on a run in the ninth. Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh 4-1 and Philadelphia downed St. Louis 6-4.

END LOSING STREAK

The Cubs snapped an eight-game losing streak, scoring two runs in each of the eighth, ninth and 11th innings to overcome an 8-4 deficit. Don Elston, in relief, picked up his fifth triumph. Dick Farrell was the loser in relief.

Norm Larker, Charlie Neal, Tommy Davis, Ron Fairly and Frank Howard homered for the Dodgers to give them 46 for the season. No other team is even close. The Dodgers made an error, their 42nd of the season. That's also the most.

After a homer by Milwaukee's Lee Maye in the top of the ninth had tied the score at 5-5, Braves Pitcher Ron Piche walked pinch hitter Matty Alou with the bases loaded in the bottom half of the inning to give the Giants the series, two games to one.

Rookie pitcher Ken Hunt gave up four hits and one run in seven innings and doubled home a run himself as he registered his initial victory in four decisions for Cincinnati. Bob Friend, a four-game winner, was the loser for Pittsburgh.

Ron-scoring singles by Clay Dalrymple and Ike Wells snapped a 4-4 tie and gave the Phillies their second straight victory over the Cardinals. St. Louis had scored twice on a two - run double by Charley James in the top of the eighth to tie the score. Chris Short, in relief, was the winner and Lindy McDaniel was charged with the loss.

In Saturday action, the Reds beat the Pittsburgh 13-6, San Francisco beat Milwaukee 9-5, the Phillies eased by St. Louis 3-2 and Los Angeles dumped Chicago 7-6.

San Juan May Move To Miami

SAN JUAN (AP) — The San Juan Star says manager Joe Ryan of the San Juan club in the International Baseball League will meet with Miami officials today to discuss rental of Miami Stadium for home games of the Marlins "probably beginning June 6."

The English - language daily paper adds that "huge crowds for the remaining home games could possibly change Ryan's plans. But it is extremely unlikely that such crowds will materialize."

Tommy Richardson, International League president said recently the Marlins might move either to Montreal or Charleston, W. Va., because of low attendance, but now Miami appears to be favored.

Sanders Wins Golf Prize

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Doug Sanders stole Arnold Palmer's thunder as a shaggy-haired Fisher Sunday when he fired birdies on the 18th and 11th holes to come from behind and win the $40,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

Sanders had a closing par 70 that gave him 281 for 72 holes and first money of $7,000. Gene Littler, who led the tournament going into the last nine holes, fell out of contention as did Palmer, failing to make the whirlwind close - out for which he has become noted.

Ken Nagle, the British Open champion, came from far back with a 67 to take second-place money with 282.

Hollywood in Its Prime Was Run by Directors

Movie Column
By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP).— A major reason for the film industry's recent ills is the fact that it refused to train new executive talent.

Hollywood is its prime was run by dictators who wanted no threats to their power around them They are dead or deposed now, and the greatest deterrent to full production, outside of the lack of stars, is the scarcity of creative talent behind the camera.

Two progressive film makers have done something about it, bu. they are the only ones. The two are William Perlberg and George Seaton, who have been partners for an amazing 26 years, in making films like Miracle on 34th St., Country Girl, The Bridges at Toko-Ri and the forthcoming Pleasure of His Company and Counterfeit Traitor.

For the last eight years, Perlberg - Seaton have allowed graduate students of the University of California at Los Angeles Cinema Arts School to observe all phases of film production.

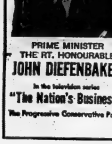
"Otherwise, these students would have no other experience than making 10 - minute documentaries to show to 10 other graduate students," said Seaton, the director - writer of the pair.

JAPANESE ADMIRES

"We've had some exchange students, too," remarked Perlberg, the producer. "One of them is now manager of Japan's largest Buick — the fact that his father owns it is coincidental. Instead of going back to Japan with scorn for Hollywood he is an admirer of what we do here."

Sixty students have so far gone through the on - the - job schooling.

"Every observer script conference, listen to all directors, costume designers, production managers, then watch shooting from day to day.



"Our biggest job is to get studios to use these people and to convince the studios of the need for hiring new talent," said Seaton.

Facts About Deer Casualties

Gradually the reports come in from deer states, giving types of casualties that reduce annually the national deer herd. Hunting — the harvesting of the crop, as the conservation boys put it — is by no means the only serious reducing agent. All sorts of things take their annual toll of deer.

For example, during last winter 4,362 deer died in Pennsylvania's woods and on the highways of that state from such causes as starvation, freezing, automobiles, illegal hunting, dogs etc. In Wisconsin, one of those deer states, there were 3,046 deer killed by automobiles alone. In Missouri, only recently an active deer state, there were 376 deer killed on the highways.

Casualties of this sort must, I suppose, be expected. Automobiles drive us, as a whole, are lamentably careless. Signs marking deer crossings along the highways are just about ignored. Thus, deer are killed on highways, a good many of them, which a little prudence would have saved.

There is one cause of loss which is a bit difficult in understand, much less to condone, the loss of deer killed by dogs. Last year the Pennsylvania Game Commission's annual reports from other states were just about as bad in proportion. Down through the years I have owned a great many dogs. Only one was a deer chaser. After repeated "lessons" in the attempt to cure him of deer chasing, he was, painlessly, but conclusively sent to join his ancestors.

As matters stand now, a deer-chasing dog in Pennsylvania can be shot by any enforcement officer, but there the matter ends — no penalty, so far as I know. It seems to me that the owner, also, should be penalized. Deer are far too valuable to be the playthings of unruly or ill-trained dogs.

Of course, it must be expected that always we will have losses among the national herd from the causes mentioned above. Illegal hunting, care'ess driving, unscrupulous dog owners, etc., no doubt will b e with us always. But the conservation agencies are becoming more efficient annually. Our deer herd, once in dangerous, by small population, now is in good hands.

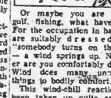
FISHING VS. BOATING

When the national boating craze was fairly young we did our best to persuade the powers-to-be to institute suitable and enforceable regulations to control the activities of pleasure boaters. It was only a matter of time until the ruckus kicked up by nut-board motors and power craft would put a stop to about ruin the fishing.

Well, the authorities did little about regulations. Personal inquiry and requests to take care of individual problems were met with emphatic statements that "their hands were tied." The outlook was as bad as the reality turned out to be.

During World War II gasoline was severely rationed. Unless a man had good, provable reasons for taking his car on the road, he was cut down to an absolute minimum of rationed gasoline. There was none left over for outboard motors. Thus, the long quiet "levels" (Pennsylvania for "pools") of the North Branch of the Susquehanna stayed quiet day after day. Never, in all of my travels to the far-away places, have I found as fine a bass-bug fishing for smallmouth as these placid North Branch Shore lines gave us during the dismal war years.

Then the war ended and gas once again was there for everybody. Outboard motor sales boomed. Pleasure boaters seemed to take a perverse joy in annoying fishermen. The best fishing went from wooderful to fair to bad to worse — much worse. These big bass simply would not hunt their food in the exposed shore-line shallows with all that commotion going on. They moved out quietly into deep water and there they stayed. Bass-bug fishing simply wasn't worth the effort.



The authorities did very little to alleviate this situation. Then, inevitably, it happened: sales of fishing licenses began to fall off. Camp owners complained bitterly as resort reservations declined. The latter complaints at long last were backed up by the stern reality of economic pressures. Declining sales hit them (the conservation boys): where it hurt — in the back account.

Now we find that the authorities are learning that the waterfowl use problem is completely logical. The rights of the majority — a very large majority — were being subordinated to the selfish pleasures of a comparatively small minority. They discovered that a waterskier uses 100 times as much room as does a fisherman. We — our boys and girls, that is. Yet the group of bass-bug fishermen — I'm one of them, after 25 years — but they wouldn't listen.

Well, nothing speaks in such audible terms as money, not even the almighty dollar. Loss of revenue is not a thing to be taken lightly. Thus, slowly, but a sure, year by new regulations and restrictions which are designed to keep the pleasure boaters-and waterskiers in line. Maybe, just maybe, before too much time has passed, a fellow can go fishing once more in comparatively peaceful surroundings. We most devoutly hope so.

VICTORY AND WIND

You have noticed it, often. You will be sitting on your verandah on a pleasant summer's evening, enjoying the relaxation which twilight brings with it. The air temperature is comfortable, just right. Then a little breeze springs up. Before long you will be cool, uncomfortably cool. That little breeze has completely ruined your evening.

Or maybe you are playing golf, fishing, what have you. For the occupation in hand you are suddenly f e s t e r e d "somebody turns on the fan" — a wind springs up. No longer are you comfortably dressed. Wind does many unpleasant things to clothing.

This wind-chill reaction has been taken quite seriously by the Army Medical Research. After much experimentation this department has developed a "wind-chill" chart. This I've distributed among Army commanders so that they can protect their men from cold injury. Of course, other factors than temperature and wind velocity are considered when making up this chart (relative humidity, for example) but the easy way to consider only temperature and wind velocity. Here it is:

WIND VELOCITY

T	10	20	30	40
50	41	34	24	10
40	31	24	15	1

Lassie Has Been Male Dog For Nearly Twenty Years

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A recent line in this column concerning the illusion-shattering news that Lassie, collie star of the program of the same name, was really four dogs and all of them male, brought a prompt explanation from the advertising agency which handles the show.

Irwin Swift of the agency states that Lassie has been a male since the eighth day of shooting, when the first pup, of Lassie Come Home, a movie from which the show was developed.

The very first Lassie was a female.

For the first six days of shooting—inside the studio—she was great. Then during the luncheon break on the second day of the location shots, a handsome male doberman turned up. The result was that Lassie broke her leash and returned. Shooting had to be cancelled for the rest of the day, at considerable cost.

Thus began a high - level decision that future Lassies would have to be less flighty males, and that there would have to be enough stand - ins and doubles to cope with emergencies.

At a time when all television is under heavy fire for its doses of violence, the National Broadcasting Company decided that the very thing the viewers needed was a short version of The Untouchables.

It's 30 - minute crime series, which bowed in Friday night, is called The Lawless Years.

The program started with the on - camera murder of three night club habitues, and the rest of the show was a long succession of tommy - gun fire and corpses.

Recommended Tonight: Whispering Smith, NBC, 9-9.30 EDT —Premiering suspended for last week, of a new western-police series starring Audie Murphy and Guy Mitchell.

NO DECISION MADE

NEW YORK (CP)—Muzz Patrick, general manager of New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, said Sunday night nothing has been decided yet in discussions with defenceman Doug Harvey of Montreal Canadiens, whom the Rangers are eyeing as a possible player-coach. Patrick said he met with Harvey here during the week-end but there was "no change" in Harvey's situation. The Canadiens have offered to trade him to New York on condition that he is used as a player-coach.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—New Providence, Canada's triple - crown winner in 1952, regained his peak form Old Woodbine Saturday as he scored a smashing victory in the $3,655 Ultimus Stakes.

New Providence rocketed through the homestretch to run the mile in 1:40 and be defeated the hotly favored Hidden Treasure by two lengths.

New Providence, owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Taylor, earned $19,077 in 1952 when he won the Queen's Plate, the Prince of Wales Stakes and the Breeders' Stakes.

A crowd of 21,266, largest of the new racing season in Canada soared in surprise as New Providence charged from ninth place in the final half-mile. The five-year-old paid $19.70, $3.70 and $3. His three wins only four-fifths of a second behind Grey Monarch's Canadian record for one mile.

Saturday's daily double paid $170.20 as Joni Shimone and Dusky Hour won the first two races. The quinella of Cyprian Cat and Hickory paid $21.

NEW YORK (CP)—Long-shot Hitting Away pulled a major upset by capturing the $59,000 Withers Mile at Aqueduct in stakes' record time Saturday and perhaps earning a trip to the Preakness next week at Baltimore.

Hitting Away was clocked in 1:35 1-5, clipping one-fifth of a second from the Withers record set by John William last year. The winner paid $35.60, $16.90 and $11.20.

At Baltimore, Dr. Miller had no more than a half-second lead in beating the two other starters in the prep for the Preakness. Dr. Miller finished 4½ lengths ahead of Might is Right.

At Camden, N.J., Might Fair, $35.40, had to pass every horse in the race in the last quarter-mile, but she did it to win the $29,700 Betsy Ross Stakes at Garden State by a nose.

level, Kennedy was confronted by one crisis after another.

Now, U.S. authorities say, the big issue centres on the future of the nuclear test ban talks at Geneva, bogged down by a sharp East-West split on how the ban is to be administered. Britain and the United States say Russia demands a veto power which would cripple any effective control.

Kennedy is described as wanting to meet with Khrushchev in a last hope of getting the Soviet leader to revise his position.

Machinists Pay Tribute To Jack Jones

TRENTON — J. H. (Jack) Jones, Carrying Place Road, Trenton was the guest of honor at a banquet in Montreal on Thursday. The banquet was sponsored by the International Association of Machinists, of which Mr. Jones has been a member for 50 years. He was presented with his 50-year lapel pin, a certificate and a life membership plaque, before hundred members of the association attended.

J. H. (Jack) JONES

For 36 years, Mr. Jones was a CNR employee, working out of Port Hope, Toronto and Montreal. Mr. Jones, who is 82, retired several years ago and has been living in Trenton since that time. His sons, Jack and Kitchener, are CNR employees.

In 1910, Mr. Jones was a member of Trenton council. His recalls that in that year, W. H. Ireland was mayor, P. J. Kirwan was town clerk and other council members were Silas Langdon, Bert Sprise, Mark Drigo and Bob Bonter.

Mr. Jones says that he and Sid Cottrell, Trenton's first chief at the time, arranged "the biggest parade Trenton ever had" on Labor Day, 1910. The parade marched through the streets from Riverside Park (now Hanna Park) where a mammoth field day was held.

Mr. Jones has been in ill health for a number of years but, as he is an avid coin collector, he says he "manages to get out in the car."

Mrs. Jones is a member of the Women's Auxiliary (Montreal) of the Machinists Association.

Coroner Dr. W. O. Elliott of Brighton said no inquest will be held.

Mr. Hoekstra's body was discovered by one of his nine children shortly after the accident occurred at about 8:45 a.m. He also leaves a wife.

Small Fire

TRENTON — In spite of the fact that traffic was heavy, there were no accidents in Trenton over the weekend.

On Sunday, at 11 a.m., the fire department was called out to the residence of Stan Vaneer, 104 Wall St., where fire had broken out in a pile of lumber at the rear of the house. Damage was slight.

Trading Stamp Supporters Said in Brief Opposite Views Are "Abusive Allegations"

AGREE

Agreement had been reached Sunday by the big powers on a formula to seat all three rival Laotian groups as observers.

They would have been designated as observers because of their own political factions but not as representatives of Laos. But the pro-Western Laotians and the Pathet Lao refused to take part on this basis.

In accepting the new British-French proposal, the Russians and their Communist allies also gave a point. They originally had demanded that the Pathet Lao be represented at the conference as a full governmental delegation. The West refused to agree to this.

Phouni Vorvichit of the Pathet Lao declared his forces were "the masters of the country" and would not be required to a subordinate role. He added that any decision the conference made without participation of the Pathet Lao would be invalid.

The Pathet Lao, the Soviet bloc, Red China and Southeast Phouma all contend that he heads the only legal Laotian government.

A royal government spokesman said his group could not accept the plan because the full delegation had not yet arrived in Geneva. He also said that cease-fire actually is not in effect in Laos because Pathet Lao artillery is attacking a village held by Meo tribesmen loyal to the Royal government.

Gromyko and Rusk finally agreed Sunday to Lord Home's compromise. External Affairs Minister Howard Green of Canada was also reported to have brought pressure on Rusk to accept it.

For a time the conference was scheduled to open this afternoon, but the Laotians balked. The various delegations in Geneva are making contact with their governments at home for new instructions.

The big powers conferred back and forth and the other delegations marked time, all were keeping an eye on negotiations going on in Laos that have as their ultimate goal formation of a coalition government representing the rival Laotian factions. Agreement there would permit appointment of one Laotian delegation, for the Geneva conference and thus solve the present problem.

However, the talks in the rebel - held Laotian village of Ban Namone, 20 miles north of Vientiane, bogged down in a dispute between the Pathet Lao and the royal government over what should be discussed first.

OTTAWA (CP)—In a brief to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, the supporters of trading stamps today challenged the "abusive allegations" the opposite view presented to the government in a brief by the Retail Merchants Association of Canada.

The stamps brief, presented by Gerald Trottier of Ottawa, supervisor of Loblaw Groceteria, Ottawa, and Lloyd Beaudry, president of Beaudry Groceterias, Montreal, and Jack Lippett, owner of the Rideau View I.G.A. Store of Ottawa, recommended that the government bring the 1905 stamp legislation "into step with modern merchandising methods."

The case for trading stamps was supported by a brief said, by 8,519 independent retailers who operate only one store each, 234 Canadian companies who supplied the goods redeemed with stamps, and the 1,656,000 consumer involvements that have resulted in redemption of premiums.

The brief recommended that a committee of economists and businessmen study the question.

If such a study supports the view that trading stamps are a legitimate form of sales promotion, the government should amend the present restrictions with respect to place of redemption, and property in redemption merchandise."

Under present legislation, stamps can only be redeemed for premiums in the store where they were issued.

IS BEST JUDGE

The brief argued that the consumer was the best judge of merchandise and merchandising methods and that free competition between the two principal methods of trading stamps was to the shoppers financial advantage.

It stated there was no proof that the use of stamps by retailers results in a proportionate rise in the cost of merchandise. Although trading stamps cost the retailer between two and three per cent of his sales volume, it brought an equal increase in volume of 27 per cent. They said a 27 per cent increase in volume is sufficient to cover the cost of stamps.

The brief also claimed the growth in stamp-related employment and industry in Canada to the tune of $6,500,000 in 1960. It said 234 firms and thousands of their employees benefited from the increased production.

FIVE WERE DROWNED

ADEL, Ga. (AP)—Four children and a man drowned Sunday while swimming a water-filled pit. Sheriff D. J. Connell identified them as Bob Talbert, 10; Willie C. Palmer, 15; Lavina Palmer, 11; Mary Lee Palmer, 10; and Annie Pearl Brown, 10.

Tommy Gorman Dies in Ottawa, Ill Long Time

OTTAWA (CP) — T. P. (Tommy) Gorman, long - time sports promoter and former National Hockey League president died in hospital today following a lengthy illness.

The Ottawa-born sports impresario, who managed seven NHL Stanley Cup teams, would have been 76 next June.

One of the founding fathers of the NHL, Gorman had long been removed from hockey's running for the last few years Connaught Park, a successful harness racing track.

"Even the bookers talk to me now," chuckled 12's a white-haired, quick-to-gamble Gorman during an interview on the success of the park.

WON GOLD MEDAL

Gorman, who began work be a parliamentary page at the age of nine, was—at the age of 22—the youngest member of the Canadian lacrosse team in the 1908 Olympics. The Canadians won and Gorman received a gold medal.

Gorman's father had been a prominent man and young Gorman followed his footsteps working at the Ottawa Citizen as a sports writer until he retired in 1921 to devote the rest of his life to managing and promoting.

Four years earlier he had been present representing the now defunct Ottawa Senators, at a meeting in a hotel room at Montreal when the NHL was formed.

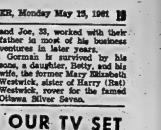
Gorman survived for many years of the young NHL. He greats in that room — George Kendall of Montreal Canadiens, Sam Lichtenhein of Montreal Wanderers, Michael J. Quinn of Quebec Bulldogs and NHL secretary Calder, who became NHL president.

Gorman was in the centre of every one of the first nearly years of the young NHL. He won championships at Ottawa in 1920, 1921 and 1923, Montreal Black Hawks in 1924, with Stanley Cup victories in 1925 and with the Canadiens in 1944 and 1946.

Gorman quit the NHL to take over the Ottawa Senators in 1946. He was president of the Ottawa Senators in the Quebec Senior Hockey League when they won the Allan Cup in 1949.

After the team folded, Gorman sold the auditorium and took over the operation of the race track, on the Quebec side of the Ottawa River from the capital.

The tall tempestuous Gorman was famed for his sense of humor and mischief as well as his "Midas" touch in sports.



"He always liked to be skating on thin ice, but the ice never cracked," said a friend of his up-and-down business career.

"I guess my lack of proper sense of reverence is one of the kindest reasons I'm not a multimillionaire today," v o ke steered Gorman.

Gorman's sons, Frank, 36, and Joe, 33, worked with their father in most of his business ventures in later years.

Gorman is survived by his sons, a daughter, Betty, and his wife, the former Mary Elizabeth Westwick, sister of Harry (Bat) Westwick, rower for the famed Ottawa Silver Seven.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

OLD SONG SPARROW

Considering all the hazards that must be faced by our song birds — hazards of food shortage, predators, and migration — the wonder is that some manage to survive for years. The toll on bird life is tremendous, but loss of nestlings is greatest and chances of survival increase with age.

How can we tell the age of an individual? Of late years banding has given us answers to many old questions, and this is one of them. A bird is caught, banded, released, and perhaps captured again after several years. We now know at least something about the life span of that species.

But few of us hold a license for banding. How can the rest of us judge the age of a bird? Careful observation in one locality over a number of years will yield much information for any one with good eyesight and hearing, especially if blessed with a good musical sense.

RECOGNIZED BY SONG

Of all birds, probably individual song sparrows can most easily be recognized by their songs. Each has its own particular melody. Indeed, a raw amateur bird watcher wonders how the old timer knows a song sparrow when he hears one. According to Peterson, the standard authority on identification, the song usually starts with three or four bright repetitious notes, "sweet, sweet, sweet". Though in his "Audubon Bird Guide" goes farther, adding, "These are usually followed by a trilled note plus a series of short notes differing widely in pitch."

Though many individuals follow the same pattern for the first notes, tune and time are quite unpredictable. Because of this variety in song, the approximate age of a song sparrow nesting each year in a certain locality (and these birds are given to returning to the old territory) may be told.

A WIDE VARIETY

One of our special friends had a hoarse voice, and his song ended with "chow, chow, chow." Another, with a complicated tune, ended with "brrr". A lengthy song was all on one tune until at last, high note. It ended in a trill. Our favorite song sparrow quite plainly sang "You-ou will know me when I sing a-gain."

This bird came for six successive years to nest in the ditch beside the highway, skipped a year, returned for a year, skipped two years, and then came once more. This may be that he spent eleven summers as an adult, able to nest and sing. He must have been a year old when we first heard his voice. What a long life for a small bunch of feathers!

ETNA STILL ACTIVE

CATANIA, Sicily (AP)—A red stream of lava has poured two miles down the west slope of Mount Etna since Friday in the great volcano's most violent eruption this year. The new flow of molten rock came from a breach in the huge central cone which has been inactive for several years.

Garden Notes

Fragrant Gardens Delightful

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

At one time a Hall's honeysuckle vine grew near our back door. During the hot months when canning and gardening took part of my day I often left my ironing until late evening when a cool breeze would make the chore bearable. The scent of the honeysuckle drifted in with the breeze and gave it lift to my spirits.

Many of our most fragrant flowers disguise their perfume during the dark hours. This is part of nature's plan for pollination. Moths, the night fliers, rather than the bees and butterflies, visit the blooms guided by the scent. These strongly perfumed flowers are often white which makes them visible in the dark and this too attracts moths.

Tree, shrub, vine, bulb herb, perennials and annuals you will find fragrant plants in each class.

SCENTED TREES

In trees other than the fruit trees you can choose linden, Russian olive which is really a shrub but given time will become the size of a tree. Goldenchain tree and catalpa are a few of the scented ones.

In shrubs we might pick a lilac, especially the French hybrids for early spring perfume. There is mock orange, viburnum carlesi, V. Burkwoodi and V. carlecephalum, or Daphne Cneorum and D. Somerset.

Several vines beside the afore mentioned honeysuckle have sweetness to the summer air. Two are clematis, C. Recta and C. crispa. White hydrangea petiolaris or Lonicera (honeysuckle) periclymenum and L. Winchester.

For an annual vine try fragrant moon flower (morning glory). White flowers five inches across stay open until noon, in all a cloudy day.

The herb garden is a symbol to scents. Play your own tunes by taste or eye appeal. Many are just as lovely to look at as they are fragrant. Make a hobby of collection mints. This is a big family, or choose scented geraniums. One catalogue lists 125. Old favorites are rose, lemon or nutmeg geranium.

In bulbs you can choose dozens of kinds of lilies, most of them fragrant. Ismene, Peruvian daffodil has three or four lily like blooms to each stem, very fragrant. Regale, Madonna and Speciosum are a few others.

Some of the old favorite perennials are the most fragrant. Bleeding heart, sweet rocket, Dictamus (gas plant) Lily-of-the-valley, (try the new pink clove pinks, Lavender, Avera, L. Hidcote, and L. munstead. Heliotrope comes in white (Lemoine) and purple and then there are the fragrant bowles such as Saraha Berhart, Jeannot and Philippe Rivoire to name just three.

Many cities have planted a scented garden for their blind citizens. A Dutch hybridizer once said "scent does not add beauty" and many of his fellow workers have come to believe this. In hybridizing many of the lovely new plants have lost their lovely perfume but there are still ways we may choose to delight and tantalize our olfactory nerves.

New Bauxite Plant Opened In Jungle

By BURCHELL O. WILLS
Canadian Press Correspondent

MACKENZIE, British Guiana (CP)—More than 2,000 people gathered here on land reclaimed from the jungle to witness the opening of a new $65,000,000 plant by the Demerara Bauxite Company Ltd., a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of Canada.

The new plant marked another phase in the company's steady development of its mining centre, 65 miles up the Demerara river from Georgetown, capital of British Guiana.

The Demerara company moved into the Guianese jungle in 1916 to develop huge deposits of bauxite, the major commercial source of aluminum. Mechanical equipment uprooted jungle growth and pushed topsoil into huge mounds to permit mining of ie reddish - colored bauxite. The bulk of the bauxite is shipped to the Aluminum Company of Canada smelter at Arvida, Que.

Through the years the company invested more than $200,000,000 in the Mackenzie development. The additional $65,000,000 invested in the new plant was described during the opening ceremonies March 28 as being more money than all the profits made by the company during its 45 - year existence here.

The new plant will refine bauxite into alumina—one stage closer to the manufacture of lightweight aluminum.

PRAISE CANADA'S ROLE

During the plant opening, Sir Ralph Grey, governor-general of British Guiana, praised those under whom "this great industrial complex has come to life."

Dr. Cheddi Jagan, leader of the majority party in the British Guiana Legislature, said he hopes soon to see the day when Guianese will hold all administrative and professional technical positions in the company.

Many of the administrative and technical posts now are filled by Canadians.

Dr. Jagan's statement later brought an angry blast from Peter S. D'Aguiar, leader of the newly - formed United Force Conservative Party.

Mr. D'Aguiar, head of British Guiana's largest brewery, said:

"How I wish there were six more companies like Demba (Demerara Bauxite Company). Imagine what would be their impact on unemployment and under - employment. Just think of how they would assist in burning this country open for the benefit of us all."

PREVENTS BROWNING

To prevent browning of cut-up pieces of apples, dip them in lemon, orange or pineapple juice.

NEW BAUXITE PLANT — Land reclaimed from the jungle at Mackenzie, British Guiana, is the site of a new $65,000,000 bauxite plant built by Demerara Bauxite Co., a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of Canada. Most of the bauxite chief commercial source of aluminum, will be shipped to the Alcan smelter at Arvida, Que. This is a view of opening ceremonies March 28. (CP Photo).

Mountain View

MOUNTAIN VIEW — The cemetery committee of Mountain View Women's Institute held a meeting one evening, recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Poste, to discuss the business for the coming year.

The Home Economics Dept. of Belleville Collegiate, held its fashion show in the auditorium, recently. The suits, dresses and sportswear were beautifully made and expertly modelled.

Some students made clothes for little children which were modelled by some of their friends. Miss Linda Clare of Belleville, made a white dress with red smocking, which was modelled by Miss Linda Hamilton, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hamilton, of Mountain View.

The ladies of Mt. View Institute motored to Picton on Wednesday afternoon and visited the County Home.

Kennedy To Ask Canada To Help Latin America

President and His Wife Arrive in Ottawa Today

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy will ask Canada to consider opening her doors for impoverished Latin American countries while he is on a two-day state visit.

It will be Kennedy's first visit outside the United States since he took office last January. While frowning in the past on personal diplomacy as a means of solving world problems, Kennedy will be on the move again May 31 for a state visit to France.

Following the Paris trip there may be a meeting between Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev in some European neutral site.

MAY INCREASE

Kennedy may reach a final decision on an informal summit meeting with the Soviet leader soon after he returns from Ottawa Thursday morning.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker visited Washington in February. The talks that began then will resume Wednesday in Canada's Parliament Buildings. The president and prime minister also have scheduled 95 hours of private conversation Wednesday morning.

One of the major subjects will be Latin America, Aside from the Cuban issue on which there apparently are sharp Canadian-American policy disagreements, Kennedy would like to see Canada give more to aid Latin American countries.

Informants said this doesn't necessarily mean that Kennedy would press Canada to join the 20-country Organization of American States—though Kennedy would welcome such a move.

What it means is that the United States feels it is entering a big economic load in the Latin American countries and would like to share it—even on a small share, on the general theme that if the Industrialized countries don't do the job, the Communists will.

MAY REVEAL PLAN

Kennedy has launched a $500,000,000 plan to provide loans and grants to Latin American countries help themselves.

Informants said they realize Canada is providing some economic aid, particularly through the Colombo Plan. The United States would like to see Canada increase her aid to India. Last year, India has been offered $1,000,000,000 from the U.S. to cover the first years of her third five-year plan. Canada is expected to have offered $36,000,000.

The president, in his talks and in an address to a joint session of Parliament, may also deal with rising speculation felt by Canadians over the treatment extended to them by the U.S.

The New York Times in an editorial today says the fact that U.S. investments in Canada now exceed $16,000,000,000 can be looked at in two ways:

Americans can say "what a great privilege it is to the friendliness co - operation and trust between our two countries" Many Canadians can say that their country has become an economic colony of the United States, and to them this

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: In the wake of a disturbance that brought severe thunderstorms to Southern Ontario late Monday, cooler air pushed into Southern Ontario today, but Ontario was generally cloudy with snow falling in most sections northeast of Lake Superior. A cold high pressure area pushing across Northern Saskatchewan and Northern Manitoba is heading towards the Great Lakes, promising clear skies for most of the provinces Wednesday.

The president and his attractive brunette wife, highly popular while among most Canadians, are expected to receive a public welcome second only to that accorded the Queen.

The RCAF base at Uplands, where the presidential plane is scheduled to land at 6.35 p.m., is being thrown open to the public.

Hundreds of flags—the Canadian Ensign and the Stars and Stripes—will be set out there at the air field and along the 17-mile motorcade route into the city.

President and Mrs. Kennedy will travel in open convertibles over a Ceremonial Way to the Governor General's and Parliament Buildings. The president and his party will be guests at a state dinner at Government House.

The heat, however, has forced the thousands of tulips into bloom and the peak of the Dominion spring tulip display this coming week-end, with the state visit.

SPEAK AT AIRPORT

This first day will be mostly formalities, starting with addresses of welcome at the airport by Governor-General Vanier and Prime Minister Diefenbaker. President Kennedy will reply, and also inspect an RCAF guard of honor.

Following their arrival at Government House, scheduled as the Governor - General where they will stay, the president and Mrs. Kennedy will take part in the traditional tree - planting ceremony on the lawn of the mansion House grounds.

Each will plant a red oak.

Tonight there will be a state dinner and reception at Government House, Canada's chief outdoor lamb on the menu.

Main events of the presidential visit come Wednesday. Mr. Kennedy will address members of the House of Commons and Senate in Commons chamber speech that will be broadcast and televised by radio and television.

In the morning he and Mr. Diefenbaker will begin their talk in the prime minister's office in the East Block of the Parliament Buildings.

EXPRESSES CONCERN

FRANKFURT (Reuters)—The Central Council of Jews in West Germany today expressed "deep concern" at the rejection of a former national leader of the Nazi Party's storm troops as deputy mayor of Giessen, a small town in Lower Saxony. It said Hermann Reinemann, 67, played an active part in the Nazi persecution of Jews.

Flying TV Classroom Is Greeted With Mixed Reaction in Mid-West

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The younger ones giggled and asked for more. Some teen-agers critized, and the teachers, for the most part, reserved judgment.

This was the varied reaction Monday when a DC-6 "flying classroom" jammed with electronic equipment circled over north-central Indiana and beamed educational instruction to a six-state Middle Western area via television.

It was the first demonstration lessons beamed by the Midwest Program on Airborne Television Instruction. The signal was sent to 32 demonstration schools. Results will evaluate the program, several participating schools, teachers and pupils to get a glimpse of what to expect and to test their equipment.

Officials reported reception good in most areas of Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Kentucky. But Milwaukee missed the premiere because of technical problems.

"It was fun," chorused fourth graders at the Stephen Foster school in Indianapolis, when asked how they liked the session. Teachers said the children concentrated as though they were watching a western at home.

"He quoted too much of what other people say," fretted one girl. "Instead of giving his own opinion."

David Heffernan, assistant superintendent of Chicago Programs in Radio-Television, said the signal was sent to 32 demonstration schools. Results will evaluate the program, several participating schools, teachers and pupils to get a glimpse of what to expect and to test their equipment.

Officials reported reception good in most areas of Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Kentucky. But Milwaukee missed the premiere because of technical problems.

Officials hope at least 500,000 pupils will participate in the program when it begins on a full-scale basis next fall.

RUSSIAN ENVOY GIVES KENNEDY REPLY FROM K.

Strengthens Reports Meeting Is Possible

WASHINGTON (CP) — Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov brought a message from Premier Khrushchev to President Kennedy today but declined to say what it is about.

Menshikov spent a little more than a half-hour at the White House, at his request. He told reporters afterward:

"I can only say that I have just handed over to the president Mr. Khrushchev's message which is a reply to the president's message of February."

Reports circulating here since the weekend have spoken of preliminary discussions and exchanges about the possibility of a meeting between the president and Khrushchev immediately after Kennedy completes his state visit to Ottawa from May 17.

SUGGESTIONS DISCOUNTED

Administration officials have been saying for days that no decisions have been going on but discount suggestions that firm agreement to have such a meeting has already been reached.

Menshikov delivered Monday's message a few hours before his scheduled departure from Washington for a two-day visit to Ottawa for talks with Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

At the same time, Kennedy was kept in close touch with developments in Laos, where the overthrow of the South Vietnam government added to the anxiety felt by the U.S. over general instability in Southeast Asia and the Far East.

Menshikov requested the appointment at the White House and was ushered in by a similar outbreak resulted in the deaths of six children.

Mrs. Lily Bubnov, superintendent of the home, said Monday everything possible had been done to save the children but the effects were hampered by the fact, that Sunday is by law a day of rest.

Mrs. Bubnov said the children were housed in Transcona Memorial Hall, a community 85 miles southeast of Montreal.

The children, residents of the Cecil Buttery Memorial Home for Aged Jews, died during a five-week period of encephalitis, an inflammation of the brain, which followed the measles epidemic.

The home, which cares for 70 aged and retarded children many of whom have been rejected by other institutions, has a good reputation and many children have been placed there by the Winnipeg child welfare department.

Mrs. Bubnov said other strickens children were still in isolation, but were expected to recover.

Eighteen months ago a similar outbreak resulted in the deaths of seven children.

Laos Parley Hits New Snag As Govt. Delegation Balks

BULLETIN

GENEVA (AP) — After four days' delay, the international conference on the future of Laos assembled today with the government of Laos boycotting the meeting.

GENEVA (Reuters)—The 14-country conference on Laos ran into a new snag today when the right-wing Laotian government delegation said it would not attend the conference's opening session unless it received fresh instructions from Vientiane.

The threatened right - wing boycott of the talks came six hours before the conference was due to begin.

Britain and Russia, co-chairmen of the talks that were supposed to have started last Friday, ordered the conference to begin today after the United States reluctantly agreed to a compromise formula permitting full participation by the neutralist and pro - Communist delegations.

But the leader of the right-wing Laotian group, Laun Insisitengsay, said today the government of Prince Boun Oum was the only legal one in Laos and that it could not agree to sit down at the conference table on an equal basis with the Pathet Laoand neutralist representatives.

He said the conference should not begin before the internal affairs of Laos were settled and the coalition government formed.

(The Associated Press reported Informants said the United States has decided to go to the conference table despite the boycott by the Laos group.

Outbreak of Measles Claims Lives of 20 Children in Que.

MAGOG, Que. (CP)—An outbreak of measles claimed the lives of some 20 children in a private institution for mentally-retarded children and the community 85 miles southeast of Montreal.

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker, obviously dissatisfied with the government's civil defence preparedness, Monday promised "urgent attention" to correct gaps in the country's readiness to meet a national emergency.

He told the Commons that in the event of attack "many gaps were revealed in our plans and preparations."

At another point in a statement to the House, the prime minister said:

"I would be less than frank if I failed to point out that the efficiency of this operation was less than is requisite."

The statement on the exercise was to see how well emergency government could be carried on under a make - believe bomber attack. Three cabinet ministers and some 200 officials went to underground centres at Petawawa military camp 100 miles northwest of Ottawa. Similar emergency centres were manned in the provinces.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the early stages of the exercise in Ottawa went as planned.

But communications went to the provinces and it took only 30 seconds for all the provinces to receive the message.

The operation at Petawawa, he said, "revealed that the emergency the basic elements

Better Relations Sought By Red China With Canada

GENEVA (AP)—Red Chinese diplomats here have made a carefully - timed approach to the Canadian team attending the Laos peace talks—possibly in the hope of better relations between China and Canada.

The move was disclosed today—and denied by Chinese and Mrs. John Kennedy's scheduled arrival in Canada on a brief social visit.

The Canadians have not accepted the Chinese overtures, but the Communist regime, External Affairs Minister Howard Green said in the House of Commons, will be given serious consideration.

Diplomatic reported that the Chinese Reds made the approach quietly during the weekend and based it on an old personal friendship between two ambassadors — Wang Ping-nan, who heads the Chinese mission to Poland, and Chester Ronning, Canada's envoy in India.

Ronning, deputy leader of the Canadian delegation at the Laos talks, was born in China. He went to school with Wang, who speaks fluent Chinese.

The unexpected purpose of Wang's visit to Ronning was described thus by Canadian sources:

1. To establish normal channels for the big Canadian grain sales deal at this time of acute food shortage.

2. To express thanks for the work done by Ronning as a member of the control commission supervising the Laotian truce.

3. To convey an assurance that China genuinely wants Laos to be a neutral country whose status would be internationally guaranteed.

The developing pattern of Canada's future relations with Red China underscored the certain subject of discussion when Mrs. John Kennedy meets with Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

While the Canadians may not recognize the Peking authorities, Diefenbaker at the same time is unlikely to vote against Red China's membership in the United Nations if that issue, as expected, comes to a head soon.

RAILWAY STRIKE SETTLEMENT BASIS OF DEBATE

Transport Minister Balcer on Griddle

OTTAWA (CP)—This was to have been the day the trains stopped running in Canada — strike day for some 111,000 railwaymen seeking higher wages and shorter hours.

Twelve days ago the railways obtained an order from cabinet for a 14-cent-hourly pay increase. They agreed to pay the package they expect to cost them $38,000,000 over a full year.

Why did they suddenly settle?

That was the crux of questions MPs tossed at Transport Minister Balcer in the Commons Monday during study of several items dealing with rail transportation.

DENIES THEY BARGAINED

In his replies, the minister insisted there was full and free bargaining, although he also indicated that both a stick and a carrot could have been involved.

The stick — possible compulsory arbitration measures; the carrot—hope of early action on subsidy proposals of the Macpherson royal commission on transportation.

Said the transport minister: that we did not have to impose by law any of the conciliation measures on one side or the other, because management and labor had come to an agreement."

Mr. Balcer also said he is "convinced" that the first report of the MacPherson royal commission had "quite a bearing" on the final discussions leading to the settlement.

WERE SATISFIED

He said the CPR and CNR, the railroads represented in negotiations with many aspects of the report, which proposed subsidies amounting at the outset to about $100,000,000 yearly to offset losses on unprofitable passenger trains, branch lines, and Prairie export grain traffic.

Mr. Balcer was pressed by Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) and Lionel Chevrier (Liberal Montreal Laurier) on whether the railways had some sort of assurance that the government would act on the MacPherson proposals to meet the wage settlement.

But the railways decide that our legislation of our action improves their position to the point where they can go ahead and get it easier for them to pay their wage bill," the minister told the railways," said the minister.

"But we have no intention of bringing in legislation to meet the wage bill of this last strike," he added.

Several times, Mr. Balcer insisted the railways settled freely as the result of collective bargaining.

GAVE NO SUBSIDY

The railways probably came to the conclusion that it was the best deal they could make and so did labor," Diefenbaker said. "It came to a settlement together, but there was no question of the government giving them a subsidy to meet their wage bills."

Mr. Balcer referred to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's statement in the House recently

Military Junta Seizes Power After Gun Battle

Issues Proclamation Suspending Assembly

SEOUL (Reuters)—A military coup today overthrew the South Korean government and American officials here immediately demanded that the lawful administration be restored to power.

The military junta, led by the army chief of staff, Lt.-Gen. Do Yung Chang, seized power after a gunbattle around the central government buildings.

Some 250 troops occupied the capital and the junta appeared in firm control late this afternoon. The 11 a.m. deadline claimed to have control over 10 important South Korean cities and over all airports and harbors in the country.

The junta issued a proclamation suspending the national assembly and saying that all cabinet ministers and vice-ministers—25 in all—would be arrested.

The Associated Press said all local governments and councils were to be dissolved also and that all government operations were to be taken over by 6 p.m.).

IT REJECTS BID

The junta said it was anti-Communist and wanted friendly relations with the United States. But the acting American ambassador in Seoul, Marshall Green, announced that he had wanded to make it "emphatically clear" that the United States supported the legal government headed by Dr. John M. Chang.

Gen. Carter Magruder, the American UN commander in South Korea, ordered all military personnel under his command to support Chang's government.

Green and Magruder called on President Po Sun Yun, being held under house arrest by the junta, and received his pledge of support for the legal government.

A United Nations spokesman denied, however, that it U.S. troops in South Korea were being mobilized to back up Magruder's statement.

Leaders of the coup moved Sherman tanks into Seoul this afternoon as they fought a pitched battle with the city from the headquarters of the 6th U.S. Eighth Army and of the South Korean army are about 10 miles south of where the tanks were posted.

JUNTA IN CONTROL

There was no clear picture of the number of casualties in the fighting. But the president's coup, Sporadic rifle fire echoed through several parts of Seoul after the battle, but by late this afternoon all was quiet and the junta appeared in firm control.

The leaders of the revolt proclaimed that martial law, imposed censorship on the press and clamped a night curfew on the city with the threat of death to anyone violating it.

Several hours after the coup the whereabouts of Dr. Chang, the America-educated premier,

Ottawa Chefs Going All Out To Tickle Palates of Kennedys

OTTAWA (CP)—The chefs at Government House and the United States Embassy are calling on all their skills this week.

At Government House residence of the Governor-General the task is to serve a state dinner tonight to tickle the palates of U.S. President Kennedy and his wife. Wednesday night it's the turn of the U.S. Embassy where President and Mrs. Kennedy entertain their Canadian hosts.

Government House chef Zonda Kenowood for his sugar baskets is preparing specialties still on the secret list for the 160 guests who will attend the state dinner.

For the dinner at the U.S. Embassy the chef is preparing turtle soup as one menu item chosen after consultation with the White House chef at Washington.

Among other main dinner items are cold salmon filet of beef and asparagus tips vinaigrette wines and champagne follow the soup and precede the dessert.

The dinner at the official residence of U.S. Ambassador Livingston T. Merchant in Ottawa will be an exclusive affair. There will only be 24 guests.

Yellow Korean chrysanthemums, massed in crystal bowls two silver candelabra holding green tapers and two jade bowls as a dinner table centrepieces.

The table will be set with point de Venise place mats and runners of the same delicate hand-made lace. A gold - bordered white dinner service bearing the U.S. seal will be used along with crystal also etched with the American eagle.

Service plates are cobalt blue.

Military Junta Seizes Power After Gun Battle

Issues Proclamation Suspending Assembly

John Randolph covered the Korean War at the height, and observed events in South Korea while with the U.S. Navy in Tokyo. He now is general executive coordinating AP operations in Asia and is home on leave.

By JOHN RANDOLPH

The military coup in South Korea confirms long - standing fears that little country's huge army might some day prove too strong for its feeble semblance of democracy.

It also underlines deposed President Syngman Rhee's ironclad subordination of the armed forces to his civilian control.

For seven years after the end of the Korean War Rhee kept his 500,000 troops eating peacefully out of his hand. It took only 24 hours after he fell from power in a student revolt last year for the soldiers to turn his well-intentioned but weak successors.

Begining with Rhee's flight, army dissidents have either swept away or transformed parliamentary regimes in Thailand, Iraq, Thailand, Burma, Pakistan, Turkey, Laos and The Congo.

The bulk of the army are from Rhee's home area, Korea's rice farmt, where poverty and depression have lingered for years. Their officers are drawn from the educated classes of the towns and cities, mainly business and country gentry.

DREAM OF NEW KOREA

Tried and tempered in the sufferings of the Korean War, passionately patriotic, terribly underpaid and unusually idealistic, many of the younger officers dreamed of remaking over their country. Egypt's Nasser and Pakistan's Ayub Khan have been their principal models.

Korean farmers' hopes for reforms and price supports—high before the 1960 revolution—have been dashed by bumper crops. Prime Minister John Chang's government, in banning the politicians in Seoul. It is said widely in Korea that the farmers' Democratic Party Caucus's 33,000,000 population, are worse off than under Rhee. When crops are bad they are in deep poverty when the crop is good the price falls.

Syngman Rhee, a power politician of the old school, had no illusions about the dangers latent in the army. As long as he was in control, he kept the military strictly out of politics and made sure no military clique he and his ever present national police agents could detect.

Commanders were constantly shifted. None was ever allowed to build up a following. Any officer who thought had too many "political" ideas found himself named ambassador to a distant post or sent to the U.S. command and general staff school in Kansas.

HAD ARMY'S LOYALTY

Rhee also commanded a genuine loyalty from the army. Age is venerated in Korea, and there was no question that Rhee was the father of his country. Up to the last day he held power, his army would probably have defended North Korea.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

2 BOYS REMANDED IN CUSTODY

Two teen-aged boys appeared in city magistrate's court today charged with breaking, entering and theft and were remanded in custody until next Tuesday.

Charged by city police following the discovery of a break-in Sunday morning at Mike's Fish and Chips Store on the arcade between Front St. and the Moira River were Ronald Whitmore, 16, and Thomas Albert Hill, 18, both of Belleville.

They were remanded at the request of Crown Attorney John Pringle, to give police a chance to complete their investigations before the trials

Water Fountain Being Placed On City Park

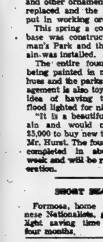
A century-old fountain which a few decades ago graced the lawn of one of Belleville's most imposing family residences, is being brought out of storage to add a bit of beauty to Fireman's Park at the south end of Front Street.

The big stone fountain at one time graced the lawn at 184 Dundas Street, which is where the Entomological laboratories on Dundas Street now are. The fountain was purchased by the parks board many years ago and has since been in storage in a building at the fair grounds.

Last year Parks Board chairman William Hurst got the idea of rejuvenating the old water fountain and Parks board employees set to work at repair. A few of the beaver and other ornaments had to be replaced and the whole thing put in working order.

This spring a concrete block base was constructed at Fireman's Park and the old fountain was installed.

The entire fountain is now being painted in multi-colored hues and the parks board management is also toying with the idea of having the fountain flood lighted for night viewing.



"It is a beautiful old fountain and would cost possibly $3,000 to buy new today," noted Mr. Hurst. The fountain will be completed in about another week and will be ready for operation.

CHARLES REDDICK
Rossmore

In failing health for some time, Charles Reddick, R.R. 7 Belleville, and lifelong resident of the Rossmore community, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Monday. He was born at Rossmore, 74 years ago, being the son of the late Captain and Mrs. Edward Reddick and he lived his entire life in the neighborhood, where he was highly respected by a wide circle of friends.

For years he was a painter and decorator and his services were much in demand. He retired from business life, 20 years ago and devoted his time to his garden and home. He was a life member of Rossmore United Church and at the time of his death he was an elder and trustee of the congregation. Board Accepts Resignations, Appointments, Long Session

Routine business was the order of the evening at Monday's regular meeting of the Belleville Public School Board, as no delegations or protests were heard from minutes regarding city council's questioning of the board's budget and the proposed construction of additional school accommodation.

The meeting was the longest in many months with members sitting from 7:00 o'clock through to the 11:00 o'clock limit.

Outcome of the lengthy discussion was a notice of motion from two members Dr. J. Russell Scott and Nelson McGibbon that at the next meeting of the board they would move for the setting up of public relations committee to see that council as well as the general public, is better informed on school board affairs.

ENROLMENT UP

Inspector of Schools Superintendent L. A. Kells showed that enrolment in the classrooms now totals 4,474 as compared with 4,267 for the same month in 1960, and that attendance efficiency stood at 94.75 percent.

Resignations were received from the following teachers: Mr. Robert Fairbairn at Queen Elizabeth School, Mrs. R. Richardson, Queen Mary School, Mrs. P. Garrison, Prince Charles School, Miss B. Thrasher, Harry J. Clarke School, Mr. G. Wallace, vice-principal at Sir Winston Churchill School, Miss Grace Brooks, Prince of Wales School, as well as from Mrs. June Reid and Miss Norma Hanes, nurses on leave.

The Board approved the following staff replacements: Miss Dianne Joel, Picton Public Schools, Miss Jacqueline Watson, To e ito Public Schools and nine student teachers from the Peterborough Teachers' College, Mr. W. Macc Bailey, Miss Wendy Fink, Miss Betty Gunn, Mr. Fred Kelly, Miss Catherine McGowan, Mr. Greer Muir, Miss Thelma Mitchell, Miss Judy Townson and Miss Beverley Urch. Beginning salaries were $3,300 for the two appointees with teaching experience and $3,100 for the teachers' college graduates.

The Board directed that its appreciation be extended to Mrs. R. D. MacLean, Mrs. Margaret Allison, Mrs. Margaret Badgley and Mrs. E. W. Donald, who had accepted temporary appointments in classrooms during the year.

Several letters were received from men in the employ of the Board seeking promotion to replace Mr. George Wallace as a vice-principal and the Board gave this promotion for the ensuing year to Mr. John Plumpton, a teacher at the Queen Alexandra School. Salary recognition will be from $250 to $400, depending upon the school assignment.

USING PLAYROOMS

The report of the superintendent stated that to the city public schools of two special inspectors from the Department of Education in the field of Physical Education. Their duties included: regret that playrooms in several of the schools had to be used as classrooms due to overcrowding and delay in securing hospital new classrooms, and suggestions for the provision of additional materials of instruction and the securing of more teachers with special training in Physical Education.

The report of the Attendance Officer, Mrs. I. Raney, indicated the necessity of nineteen home calls during the month, as well as various interviews with the Probation Officer and the Children's Aid Society.

One charge was necessary under the Juvenile Delinquent's Act to bring about a bench-ward stipend attended school.

Trustee Marilyn Lovelace, chairman of the Management Committee, brought in a report from the Teachers' Association for minor adjustments in the salary basis, calling for an upward revision of the maximum salary for a teacher with normal qualifications through to the $7,300 and for the highest qualified principals in the largest schools to $9,600. These adjustments from the present figures of $7,100 and $9,000 were refused for the present at least.

The board approved recommendations of the property committee regarding improvements to walks at King George, Prince Charles, Queen Mary and Queen Victoria School, and replacement of certain doors at the Queen Mary and Queen Victoria Schools.

EXPECT PETITION

Information was presented that the board could expect to be presented with a petition regarding change in the high view area, and the officers of the board were instructed to act on such a petition when it was presented.

Tenders for the season's fuel were received from Moira-Hastings Ltd., Small Oil Co., and Smith Fuels Ltd. The contract was awarded to Smith Fuels Ltd., at the following prices: Fuel Oil, $3.00 per 100 Imp. gal. and natural gas price at time of delivery; 1¼ inch stoker coal with fines at $15.50 per ton; 2¼ inch for the season, oil treated, at $15.65 and rice anthracite coal at $21.35.

Trustee W. A. Van Tassel reported for the Special Sites and Building Committee that purchase of two school properties had been completed; land in the northern part of the School for the Deaf property, and that for the Department of Public Works, for $7,000, and a site in the Parkdale district, south of the Belleville Park, from Mr. J. L. Farrell for $15,000.

Accounts for the month, totalling $72,213.33, were presented and approved for payment.

Trustee W. Townson, chairman of the finance committee, advised that the first instalment of the Provincial Legislative grant, $150,000, had been received.

ADJUSTMENT MADE

Trustee Townson also brought to the attention of the Board a request from Council, that, to conform with Bill No. 118 of the Ontario Legislature, the Board therefore revise its 1961 requisition for current funds to take into account expected revenue of $6,703, presumably from the Power Commission of Ontario, and on recommendation of the Finance Committee this adjustment was made.

At this point Trustee W. A. VanTassel asked to have a sentiment inserted Public School costs had been responsible for the reported five mill increase in the tax rate for 1961. The reply was given that the actual School costs were up, certainly, with increased electricity costs of $22,850 for 1961 for Harry J. Clarke School and the addition to King George and Prince Charles Schools, and with salary costs to provide teachers for the new school building for the half year, but that the actual mill rate for public school purposes had moved from 23.6 for 1960 to 23.8 mills for 1961. Additional assistance from the provincial grants had materialized in keeping the rate at almost the same figure.

The Public School Teachers' Association extended an invitation to all members of the Board, and their wives, to attend a banquet at the Masonic Temple Building, Monday, May 29th, at which two retiring teachers, former Principal W. Gordon Anderson, and Mr. George Wallace, now vice-principal at the Sir Winston Churchill School.

The Belleville Public Library Board advised that while it appreciated the cooperative attitude in offering space in the proposed addition to the Harry J. Clarke School for a regional branch library, the Library Board had decided to locate elsewhere in the interests of all readers.

A lengthy inquiry was received from the Belleville and District Humane and School Council regarding the introduction of Oral French as a subject of instruction in grades 5 to 8 of the Public Schools. After brief discussion, the Superintendent was instructed to reply to the Council in the following vein.

In Oakville with a public school attendance of 7,457 pupils the cost for two teachers teaching Oral French is $14,900 and in Belleville with three times the school population six French teachers would be required.

The cost of six teachers from September to December this year would be about $18,000.

Although the effect on the Board's budget and on the tax rate would depend on the type of program introduced, based on the public school assessment of $23,000,000 and if a program such as that at Oakville was introduced the tax costs could run over two mills on the tax rate.

A program in Oral French for Belleville public schools could be started in September of any year.

The board agreed a program in Oral French could be started in September of any year provided:

a. Approval of the School Board.

b. Approval of the Minister of Educatión.

c. Budget funds to carry the program.

d. Suitable, qualified, teaching staff.

Call Service Bureau Number Says Engineer

Night emergency calls in connection with the city public works department will receive more prompt attention if the proper number is called rather than calling departmental officials at their home numbers.

Last night when the heavy rain settled sewer excavations in the Sunnyside Park area, several residents called the city engineer at his home to report the trouble. Mr. Turnbull was away and did not learn of the trouble until his arrival home some time later.

Today Mr. Turnbull reminded residents the works department has a service bureau number, Woodland 8-5353, which should be called when reporting night emergencies.

"If that number is called the trouble will be looked after immediately," the city engineer said.

"Career Fair" at Belleville Most Successful Venture; Students Showed Interest

Demonstrating a keen interest in the many different types of hospital careers open to potential workers in the hospital field, approximately 400 persons attended the Belleville General Hospital "Career Fair" at Education Hall on Saturday.

The "Career Fair" was held in conjunction with the annual Hospital Day, the program starting in the morning with the attendance of about 50 high school students who were addressed by Dr. Alex Reis on the work of laboratory technicians and continuing throughout the afternoon with the career fair.

Also during the afternoon prizes for the recent Hospital Poster contest were handed out by board member Arthur Whitehead, chairman of the hospital poster committee.

"We were very pleased with the response to the Hospital Career Fair" said hospital administrator Werner Daeche. He expressed his appreciation to members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary for their efforts in helping to make the day a success.

TAKEN ON TOURS

Visitors to the hospital "career fair" were escorted by Mrs. Fred Beeby and others taken on guided tours of the various exhibits and booths by students nurses, Misses Helen Wright and Sharon Yinkess.

Handing out roses to the female visitors were junior volunteers Misses Diane Betchman and Sharon MacDonald and student nurses Elizabeth Musgrove, Shirley and Elizabeth Anne Crawford.

According to Mrs. Daechsel it was not only the younger people who showed an interest in hospital careers generally, but, a number of adults also took advantage of the opportunity to learn about possible careers in the hospital field.

All showed a keen interest in the various displays of hospital equipment such as the electrocardiograph, microscope, X-ray and hospital beds.

During the morning the 80 high school students from the Belleville area ranging from Picton on the south to Bancroft in the north, heard psychologist Dr. Alex Reis outline the duties of a laboratory technician and were later taken on a tour of the hospital laboratory.

GUESTS OF BOARD

The students later enjoyed luncheon as guests of the hospital board.

Hostesses at a hospital board luncheon were approximately 30 hospital volunteers who were presented with one year service pins. Volunteer Director Mrs. Fred Beeby presented with a lovely while the appreciation of the volunteers by Mrs. Fred Lyon of the hospital was extended to the volunteers.

The committee, which will hold its first meeting in Toronto, May 23, was formed by an order-in-council on the recommendation of Welfare Minister Louis P. Cecile.

The committee is to study Ontario's child welfare legislation, specifically the Child Welfare Act; study and review the administration of Ontario's child welfare program as established under the act, specifically in relation to the organization, structure, financing and administrative policies and practices of children's aid societies.

The committee will also study and review the child care practices and the services rendered by children's aid societies, in addition to reporting and making recommendations to the welfare minister concerning their studies and reviews of the Child Welfare Act.

The order-in-council, approved May 4, also instructs the committee to act in an advisory capacity to the minister or to his deputies or agents in the event further study or the views of any matters outlined in the terms of reference are necessary.

Mr. Whitman also learned Monday that he has been invited to be a member of a panel which Thursday will discuss the judicial and welfare aspects of the family court at the Canadian Congress on Corrections currently being held in Toronto.

Mr. Whitman, past president of the Ontario Welfare Officers Association, was invited to participate because Judge H. C. Arrell, QC, chairman of the panel, was impressed with his knowledge and broad concept of the whole field of welfare." Judge Arrell is the judge of the Wentworth County - Juvenile and Family Court.

Other members of the panel will be Mrs. C. L. Dafoe, QC, member of the advisory committee to the Metropolitan Toronto Juvenile and Family Court, Evelyne Choquette, director of the family service agency, Montreal and G. E. So Government Profits Are Wicked?

The Crown-owned Polymer Corporation, with head office at Sarnia and with plans for subsidiary plants overseas, is one Canadian business which is finding a ready market for its products, at home and abroad. The war-emergency synthetic rubber firm has captured a tenth of the world market.

Perhaps because of this fact, suggestions have been heard in the House of Commons public accounts committee that it should be sold to private investors.

If a good case can be made for such a contention, surely this case cannot be stated in words such as chosen by the Toronto Globe and Mail for this effort.

The Globe and Mail calls Polymer a $100 million enterprise and points out that the Commons committee heard last week that it netted a record $9,850,000 profit last year.

"The success of the Corporation raises anew the question of why an industry which can stand on its own feet should be owned by the Government."

Are we to take from this that only industries which cannot stand on their own feet should be Government-owned? And if so, how sound are the arguments so frequently heard when Government-owned enterprises get into financial difficulties that similar conditions would not arise if they were privately managed? Can one criticize the CNR, an amalgamation of bankrupt railways placed under Government ownership because it operates at a deficit, and also criticize the Government for failing to sell an enterprise which is, according to the Globe and Mail figures, making a 9.8 per cent profit on capital invested? Must the taxpayers meet the deficits of all necessary services which cannot operate profitably, but shun profits like the devil? Apparently they must, in the opinion of the Globe and Mail. Otherwise how explain the words "off its hands" in the following sentence: "It is indeed strange that a Government which deplores the lack of Canadian investment and control of the nation's economy, does not set an example by allowing Canadians to buy a successful industry off its hands, especially when Polymer plans to "build subsidiary plants overseas."

As we understand it the Government has been critical of the timidity of Canadian investors, of the lack of "venture capital." What price does the Globe and Mail propose the Government set for Polymer? Could it be the $100,000,000 invested? If so, could the purchase for $100,000,000 of a plant making $9,850,000 profit possibly be described as "venture capital?"

A Judge on Divorce

Mr. Justice L. A. Landreville told a meeting of the Brantford Traffic Club that most divorces in Ontario are the fault of the man.

He said he based this conclusion on figures he had compiled while Hearing divorce actions. One is tempted to let a snort of derision serve as adequate comment on such an obviously unreliable means of apportioning blame, since adultery is the only ground for divorce in Ontario, and since everybody knows that it is considered "good form" for the man to play the role of the "guilty party" no matter what may actually have occurred. A sentence later, though, we learn that Mr. Justice Landreville is not so naive as to base his judgment on any such flimsy evidence as adding up the number of male and female defendants in divorce actions. The men responsible for divorces, he says, are usually reliable and successful on the job, but starve their families for emotional and spiritual attention.

If it is this type of conduct which is really the cause of divorce, by do not legislators make it grounds for divorce? Man, or woman, shall not live by bread alone, nor even by inch-thick steaks broiled over charcoal on the patio of a ranch-style bungalow with a two-car garage complete with two Cadillacs. Adultery is more often the result, than the cause, of a shattered marriage.

Would it not be tragic if the United States won The Congo, secured Berlin, triumphed in Laos and the islands of Quemoy and Matsu, while in the end a victorious Communist thrust for power took place in the heart of its own hemisphere?—Prime Minister Pedro G. Beltran of Peru.

We shall try to make it clear (to the world) that we as a nation are not allergic to change and have no desire to sanctify the status quo. This nation not only has a birth certificate, it holds the patent rights on change and revolution by consent.—Edward R. Murrow, new head of U.S. Information Agency.

Teach in the 'Whys' Years

By Helen M. McMahan in the London Free Press

Ever since Soviet Russia hurled Sputnik I into space in 1957, educational leaders in Canada and the U.S.A., as well as other countries of the free world, have been tearing their hair in an effort to catch up. The recent Soviet astronautical feat of sending a man in space has accelerated the alarm, world into an accent on education, especially the sciences.

But while leaders and educationists are pressing for quicker, cracking down on segments of faulty education there continues to be a high percentage of failures, especially at the secondary levels of Grade 9 and 10, with continual dropouts because of student lack in understanding (of the subject) lack in basic elementary training, or just plain "don't give a damn" attitudes.

Is the school curriculum system to blame? The teachers? The Department of Education? The parents? Or the students themselves? Certainly some degree of responsibility must rest on all.

First of all how serious is the student about obtaining good grades? How interested are the parents in encouraging stick-to-it attitudes? How good is the instructor? And lastly, how interested are the educational leaders, in charge of the school curriculum, in presenting courses of common sense study without the frills?

A recent example of "frill" study comes to mind when 85 per cent of the questions on a secondary school health paper were devoted to basketball. A student's ability to remember basketball rules should not, in my opinion, rate 75 per cent of a paper that is supposedly based on health. That is a frill that can easily be done without.

Educational leaders are also alarmed about the apparent lack of motivation to continue with academic work. I wonder if they have ever considered what motivation is in mind when age level it begins.

Take a look at a small child. His eyes are bright, his intellect keen and his mind ready to pounce on answers to questions that parents are frequently unable or unwilling to answer. The "why" stage of every child's life should be encouraged and developed with every bit of originality at our command. Too often this child-like quality is suppressed. "Why" is left unanswered. We haven't time, or we can't be bothered. To make matters worse, neither can our educational system be bolstered—soon enough, that is.

In the first place, an arbitrary age limit is set up to prevent the child from entering kindergarten or first grade training at the motivation age. This is particularly unfortunate for those children who possess unusual keenness or ability for learning. Result? Often the years of precious desire is lost —for all time to come.

In vain, instructors try to capture this motivation at the high school or university level. But in most cases it has gone, never to return. So we wind up a nation of plodders, with mediocrity and social standing the primary objectives in living. Only a few have the courage to strive, to develop original ideas and opinions, to have a goal beyond the material concepts of a materially-minded nation. And these few we label "genius—maybe, but so queer."

What then is a contributory solution to the problems that educational leaders face? One is recognition of childhood latent and genius at an early age level and feeding it to the child's mind to capacity. Gradually—not with rich fitting fare. Promotion of talented children in half the school year when merited. Then a more hard look at the elementary level curriculum. Then ask why such a wide gap between Grade 8 and Grade 9 levels of instruction exists. That such a gap does exist is pointed up by the large number of Grade 9 failures, and repeaters.

It is not enough to merely tighten up the secondary level structure. Drill has its place, is carried down into elementary level then the secondary level curriculum—even with the frills thrown out — cannot be satisfactorily fulfilled. The purpose it is intended to, and can only result in more failures, more discouraged students in high school because they are unable to qualify for further academic training.

A current prevailing attitude in many elementary schools is the "slow-and-steady-wins-the-race" theory. Now this attitude may have been fine for the tortoise, but when a student reaches secondary school level he finds—to his despair—that the race is to the swift.

It may not be cricket to contend that the hare is inherently able; however, we dare not forget that the free world—if she expects to remain free—must work quickly.

Our problem at last is brain. There is no time to lose in practising good, hard, common-sense training.

THINKING IT OVER

Very often we dislike certain people because we do not understand them. Some people, to be sure, are unlovable, selfish fellows because they are mean, selfish, lazy, or dishonest. Others keeping themselves in wrong with their associates because they are long on criticism and the handing out of precious advice. But if you do dislike some person, you will probably discover that it is because he or she has personal characteristics which to you are objectionable. Maybe if you understood that person better you would see that these characteristics are part of a fine, helpful and sincere nature. Some of the most kindhearted people in the world are brusque and even rude in their personal contacts. What you take for hypocritical piety on the part of another may be real, genuine piety, and in quality and quantity of which you do not appreciate.

Mothering instinct has no bounds, and this fact was proven recently when a cat was found mothering 23 chicks in Shannonville. Early yesterday William Day, operator of a chicken hatchery on Wonder Street, delivered to Bernard Rock chicks to Ira Cook in Shannonville and continued to Deseronto to make another delivery. On his return journey, Mr. Day was stopped at Shannonville by Mr. Cook, where he was witness to one of the strangest sights of his lifetime. Mothering the 25 chicks was Mr. Cook's Persian cat, both the animal and the chicks being quite confident apparently with their new positions.

Boys Know How to Fish

Halifax Chronicle - Herald

Junior Izaak Waltons have been a part of our society from a long time before Izaak Walton came as popular as it is today. The picture is indelibly etched in most memories of the country lad, his dog at his side, laying beside a tree. From his hand a rough pole arches out over a pool from which he hopes to catch a fish.

This isn't quite like wringing out a sponge and then setting it on the shelf. It's more like a basement that floods. You install a pump and then you go to sleep. The adult plans a fishing trip as a recreation venture. He then burdens himself with extensive equipment and travels to the high lakes or perhaps the stream or to some distant lake. The number of pounds he lays is important and he seems oblivious to the fact that he works hard. For him it is generally enough to an extent beyond the bounds of good sense, in order to have a successful expedition.

A boy, on the other hand, goes fishing almost for the pleasure of the excursion. He does not bother with complicated and expensive accessories. A rod and line are enough and his pocket holds his lunch. He is happy to catch something but not unhappy if he comes home empty-handed. For if fish do not bite it is enough that the woods were companionable and the sun warm.

To Your Good Health

Children Will Adjust To the Rays of the Sun

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Once they get used to the sunshine I let my children run around in just their shorts. My husband says that an hour a day is enough for the arms and legs to get bare skin, and that too much sunshine is harmful. I grant that, but we have only about 2 months in which they can run around so scantily out." — H. B."

Gradual exposure and tanning prevent the harm that comes with excessive exposure and burning of the skin. See that your youngsters don't get a bad sunburn in the beginning. This is usually easy enough to guard against.

I see no reason other than to limit the amount of exposure to the sun. Remember this — and perhaps your husband will see the logic of it, too: The average young ster running around in shorts, is in and out of the house, he's in the sun and then in the shade, he's climbing fences, playing tag, sitting under a tree. Rarely is that all baseball enthusiasts will turn out.

He may be getting quite a bit of sun on his shoulders, but he's in so many positions,

Govt. Employs About Third Of Canada's Veterinarians

The important role which veterinarians play in maintaining both the health of animals and humans in Canada was stressed by Dr. George C. Fisher during an address to the Rotary Club yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Quinte.

Canada is the most disease-free nation in the world animal-wise, stated the immediate past president of the Canadian Veterinary's Association. This is largely due to the fact that the federal government, which employs about one-third of Canada's veterinarians, maintains an effective first line of defence against disease entering the country whilst other Department of Agriculture veterinarians and those in private practice maintain an effective safeguard against the local outbreak of animal diseases.

The speaker noted that a port veterinarian and his staff were assigned the tremendous task of inspecting every ship and shipment of goods entering Canada through his port to see that possible carriers of communicable diseases are either turned back or rendered safe. Immigrants' effects and recreation planes are also investigated under this plan which has been greatly expanded due to the opening of Seaway.

The inspection of dairy farms, canning factories and packing plants by veterinarians also serves to protect the population against possible animal diseases and insure good public health practices across the country.

SHORTAGE OF GRADUATES

—"One of the most serious problems in this facet of Canadian life is the shortage of veterinarians," Dr. Fisher said. He pointed out that in Western Canada, which now has the largest livestock population in the country, there is no school of veterinary science and medicine. There exists only two schools in the province: Ontario Veterinary College at Guelph and another college in St. Hyachinthe, Que., which is affiliated with McGill University.

There are a number of research laboratories, mostly governmental across the country engaged in long-term research problems of a basic nature, as well as some maintained by private industry, he said. Most of the latter are engaged in animal nutrition research, which field the speaker is engaged in with the Quaker Oats people.

The Mount Allison University graduate also related a number of humorous anecdotes involving various situations which some veterinarians had found themselves in, suchas one case which involved extracting a molar from a gorilla.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Harry Burns and thanked by Alderman Ben Corke, President Hall presided over the meeting. It was announced that the club's Easter Seal campaign had exceeded the $5,000 mark.

Strong Winds, Heavy Rain Hit District

Very little damage was reported in the city last evening as result of the rain and windstorm which swept through the district starting shortly after six o'clock.

Strong winds ripped a few branches of trees and a few catch basins were blocked by leaves and other debris flooded in during the heaviest part of the storm.

In the Bridge Street-Sidney Park area in the east end of the city where the city public works department having been installing sewer connections the excavations settled in causing muddy ruts across the roadway. The settled excavations were soon levelled out with rock fill.

But the black skies and heavy winds gave every indication of a bad storm in the offing.

However, the worst of the storm apparently missed the Belleville area. The rainfall measured .33 inch.

School Construction Sound Says P.S. Administrator

Street rumors that construction at the new Harry J. Clarke public school in east Belleville was faulty and that the entire structure would have to be rebuilt...were spiked today by public schools superintendent, L. A. Kelk.

Mr. Kelk said the board had been assured by their architects that the school construction was perfectly sound and that the structure would have the building completed in time for opening of the school term in September.

The schools superintendent noted that construction at the new school had been at a standstill in recent weeks. This was not the result of faulty construction, however, but because of water conditions in the area, which were making it impossible to carry on work satisfactorily.

Rumors that the school construction was faulty apparently arose as result of the work being brought to a standstill because of water conditions in the area.

Mr. Kelk said many citizens had inspected school board members on the street asking if it was true that construction at the Harry J. Clarke School was faulty.

Scheduled for completion by September, the Harry J. Clarke School will at that time be completely filled and a six-roomed addition for the still unexpended school is already planned.

Show Suggests Tweeds Will Be Popular

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Alexandra, who buys many of her clothes ready-made, insisted last night that there's a bargain when she opened London Fashion Week here Monday.

The 24-year-old Princess, cousin of the Queen, opened a lavish show of wholesale fashions attended by hundreds of overseas buyers.

The show suggested that Tweed, Scottish, English or Irish, will be the big cloth for autumn fabric for daytime wear, with chiffon an easy winner in the evening.

Fur trimming was lavishly used on coats and suits, as collars, cuffs and even banding the hems of swinging three-three-quarter-length coats.

Aubergine and black berry were autumn colors. Creamy white was seen in wool dresses and suits, while gold was popular for cocktail wear.

PRETTY APRONS

The apron table had many other nice articles besides the pretty aprons, these were baby things of many kinds, dolls, dolls' clothes, novelty dishcloths, aprons and soap, glasses, pillow slips, embroidered and hand crocheted; also African violets, primroses and other house plants and vegetables. The convenors of this table were: Mrs. W. Collyer, Mrs. Dobson and Mrs. H. Orlik.

The candy table was convened by Mrs. C. Parm. Everything looked so good, homemade fudges and hand-made chocolates and other delicious confections.

The miscellaneous table and fish pond were convened by Mrs. T. E. Loder and Miss Doctor, who had many interesting articles for sale.

She worn table is always a beautiful sight, laden down with every kind of baking: fruit rolls, meat pies, pastry with minced pork filling; bread, buns, pies, of all kinds: cakes, angel; fruit, chocolate, date loaves, raisin and banana cakes, cookies of all kinds, jams and pickles. The convenors were: Mrs. W. Rump, Mrs. J. Shorey and Mrs. D. Leeming.

A thank-you to everyone who in any way helped to make the bazaar a success.

Competition Between Sexes Wastes Human Resources

MONTREAL (CP)—A New York City social planner had some blunt criticism of what she called the competition between sexes.

Martha Selig, speaking in Montreal at the fifth Women's Community Conference, in a talk this sort of competitiveness, "is it conscious or unconscious, wastes human resources and creates for many women unnatural barriers to fulfilment.

"The fulfilled woman has no need to compete with her husband. She complements him, either in the home or outside it."

And she need have no fear of taking a place outside it, said Mrs. Selig.

"If a woman takes a job because she wants it, and has the training, let us not propagate the fiction that she is depriving her husband and her family."

By the same token, she said, it is not true that if a man participates in household activities, he is less of a man. "We have lived too long with that nonsense."

Fulfilment for a man or a woman is "a constant seeking and searching, a learning and changing, a continuous process of growth, adjustment and maturity."

It is not found in isolation, she said.

Every woman has an obligation to give something of her energies, her time, her capacity and her money to the community of which she is a part.

"Women just join men as full and equal, though different, partners and tremendously important job of learning to live together harmoniously."

CENTRE ST. W. A.

The W. A. ladies of Centre St. Church held their regular monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon in the parsonage, the guests of Mrs. Hoult.

The meeting opened in the usual manner with the president, Mrs. Longhurst presiding. Thanks were extended to Mrs. Hoult for her warm welcome in her home.

Scripture was read by Mrs. Vanderwater from Acts 2: 1-13.

Study book by Mrs. D. Hudgins, was "Jesus Christ the Light of the World." People think of themselves as disciples of Jesus"and try to follow Him, to learn from Him, and believe that He has called them to receive the gift of the Holy Spirit and to bear our witness to the saving power of His love.

"If we are to be good witnesses, we must understand the business of being a witness. If we were called in written in a courtroom, what should we have to do? First answer the call; there is no getting out of it; no excuses accepted; then we would have to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth." If we were bound with these words we can but utmost to stand firm in the face of every kind of trick that might be tried to shake our evidence.

CHRISTIAN WITNESS

"It is plain to see how this applies in our Christian witness. It has to be the whole truth and nothing but the truth. No amount of preaching will be any good unless it comes out of experience and conviction. The most effective witness is that given by men whose lives are their witness to the saving love of God. And that puts them in the company of "the three first apostles" who preached at Pentecost; for the language of action is understood in every tongue."

Mrs. Wood gave the financial report. The ladies are holding a rummage sale later this month and fall and tea bazaar early in October.

Mrs. Hoult favored with a solo accompanied by Mrs. Collins at the piano. "Happy Birthday" was sung to Mrs. G. Wood. There were four readings given one by Mrs. C. Morgan, by Mrs. Hoult, both entitled "Mother," one by Mrs. V. Hoag, something in the way of "Mother's Day," Mrs. Schermerhorn, entitled, "Young Canadian."

Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Hoult assisted by Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Lickfold, Mrs. Vanderwater and Mrs. Bridgman.

Mrs. H. Ferguson served a tea to Sunday by Mrs. Hoult for the organists and choir held in her home. A social time was had by all.

SPRINGBROOK W.A.

The regular meeting of the Springbrook Woman's Association was held May 4th in the church basement. Mrs. Charles Gordanier and Mrs. Bert McCoy acted as hostesses.

The meeting opened with prayer by vice-president Mrs. Ralph Wellman. Mrs. Ralph Thompson was in charge of the devotional period. The theme was, "The Personal Or Individual Life." Mrs. Thomas McKeown read the Scripture, Acts 2:1-13 and lesson thoughts were read by Mrs. Ralph Thompson. A prayer for the missionaries was given by Mrs. Carman Sine.

There were 27 members in attendance.

Members reported sending 9 cards, four letters, and making 39 calls on the sick and shutins. Mrs. Clayton Burkitt reported for the visiting volunteers with 28 calls made. Flower and fruit committee reported sending three cards and one box to sick members.

Mrs. Percy Smith thanked everyone for kindnesses shown her while in a Toronto hospital.

It was decided to accept Mr. Wesley Thompson's offer to donate a bookcase to be used in the church basement.

Mr. H. Seymour explained further regarding re-organization.

Mrs. Lorne Bailey and Mrs. Claude Reid were chosen to be delegates to the W.A. convention in Marmora, later this month.

Visiting volunteers for May are Mrs. Carman Sine and Mrs. Kenneth Thompson.

It was decided to send a donation of $10 to Quin-Mo-Lac Camp.

The June meeting has been postponed to June 8.

An interesting topic was given by Mrs. Sanford Meiklejohn and readings by Mrs. Percy Smith and Mrs. George Thompson, Mrs. Harry Haslett sang a lovely solo.

Lunch was served to all by the hostesses.

WEDDING INVITATIONS?

MODERN MANNERS

CAROLYN HAGNER SHAW

THOUGHTS ON PLANNING A WEDDING

When a family plans a wedding for the first time, confusion can reign unless the mother of the bride-to-be makes an effort to learn the traditions that should be followed.

A wedding is a time of celebration, and, after the religious ceremony it is customary for relatives and friends to gather to feast and dance and be merry. Depending upon how far the budget will stretch, the size of the reception is determined by the parents of the bride. How many people will the church hold? How many will fit into the place where the party is to be held?

When the number has been arrived at, the next step is making a list of those to be invited. Much grief can follow if this task is handled in a slipshod manner. Writing names on slips of paper, which prompted the bride, is not the way to do it! Some important person, usually a relative who never gets over the hurt, is left out. If you follow the procedure below, I'm sure the guest will be much easier!

First, have a conference with the parents of the bridegroom, proximate number of guests each wishes to invite, and what they may invite. Their co-operation is very necessary in this regard. If they invite too many, it will upset the number you have to be invited, and, also, in the division of how many can be accomodated. What you are trying to do is avoid having more people in the church than seats, or more at the reception.

Now that this point has been reached, purchase some 3 x 5 cards in two colors. Buy blue for the bride's family and white for the bridegroom's. Also get an alphabetical index of the same size. Now get started by placing the last name, followed by the first names and under this the address — each on a separate card. For example: Doe, Mr. and Mrs. John, 289 Eighth St. Place these cards in the alphabetical order. When the list is complete, the blue and white cards should be all put together. This does away with any chance of duplication.

Address the wedding invitations from these cards. No acknowledgement is expected when a person is asked to the reception alone. If asked to the reception also, a reply should be received. As these come in, mark "Regret" or "Accept" on the card that matches. This facilitates ascertaining just how many guests to expect.

Dirndl Skirts And Blouses For Guides

TORONTO (CP) — Dirndl skirts and blouses have been selected as a national dress for Canadian Girl Guides when not in uniform during trips abroad.

International Commissioner Mrs. J. W. Hamilton of Toronto said the costume was approved to identify the girls at events when not in uniform. Guides in many other countries have adopted the practice.

First to wear the new dress will be guides and rangers who will visit Finland, Ireland and the United States this summer.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Winifred P. — If Dad sells the car, we'll be stuck at home two months.

Mr. D. P. — What's wrong with spending more time at home together?

Winifred P. — I've just heard the awful news that Dad plans to get rid of our car. That means an end to the long Sunday afternoon drives he used to take us on, and a hard time getting around to places.

The worst part is that being 14, I was looking forward to getting my learner's licence and then, a junior driver's licence. Maybe that's one reason for Dad's decision. He's had enough arguments with my older brother over the car. Walter's 18 and kept it all he can.

There's nothing to do at home. And to get away, there's only a bus.

Mr. D. P. — We live near New York City in Westchester County. After a tussle with Manhattan traffic, plus detours and ripped up roads, I'm ready to turn in my licence, as well as my car!

Winnie shouldn't feel it's the end of the world. When Walter was a baby we got along fine without driving. That was during World War II when gasoline was rationed. Staying home wasn't bad at all. It should be still better now with Walter, Winnie and our 10-year-old on deck.

There are buses and cabs to take us to the subway. Going carless for a while is worth a try.

The Council — From "calamities" such as losing the car, being snowbound, breaking the TV - receiver come compensations, we hasten to assure Winifred P. The first being forced to "make do", to get acquainted to improvise, the members of a family can discover hidden resources for mutual enrichment.

During the big war, as Mr. D. P. recalls, there was a resurgence of family harmony. You couldn't go places, but you could do things at home. Now with the highways choked and juniors like Walter and Winifred rarin' to hasten the straggle-tailed, Mr. P.'s idea for exploring the virtues of home makes sense.

There's been enough "apartness," evidently, in the P. household to make "together-ness" a novelty, for a while. If it should pall painfully, there are buses to the subway and escape.

Next, meanwhile, there can be dabbles into family fun such as ensemble bike rides, picnics, hikes and sleigh rides. With a waiting car, one may not think of these possibilities. For many days there's popcorn popping, reading aloud by taking turns, even old-time patchwork quilting which is enjoying a renaissance! Try and do these in a traffic jam!

One of the most rewarding Sunday activities for a family is music making. If one of the P.'s plays a piano, another can try a recorder, and still another a harmonica; and lo! they have a combo for a private jam session.

Indian Paintings Sells Faster Than Woman Can Make Them

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Marge McDougall used eye, poke and bluing for her coiffure and her husband's shaving tackle for her brushes when she began painting.

Now, her work sells faster than she can turn it out.

Mrs. McDougall is the wife of a former trapper and most of her paintings are of Indians. She has been commissioned to paint a set of pictures for the provincial archives.

Marge — she was christened Marjorie Marsh — Margaret Maude May Matilda Minerva Romana after each of eight aunts—was born in Montana.

She became a dress designer and first moved here from Denver in 1936 on a visit to an uncle, Haywire Johnstone.

She met Roy McDougall on this trip but couldn't reconcile her city ways with the home life of a trapper. She returned to Denver.

During the depression she hitchhiked back to northern B.C. She married Roy in 1939 on the understanding that if she didn't take to the trapline life she would again return to the United States.

She was the only white woman in the area when they began painting.

Now, her work sells faster than she can turn it out.

Even if Mr. P. weakens and buys a car again, the family may well look back on this time together as the beginning of some treasured family rituals and customs. Then there'll be just as much interest in getting back home together as there is now, on Winifred's part, in getting away from each other.

Widow Wants a Man

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I am a widow of 8 year and a half. It have two teen-age daughters. I find it very lonesome at times, especially when the girls go to their clubs in the evening.

I work at the hospital all day. Most of the girls I know are married or have boy friends. I would like to meet a man who has the same interests I have. I like to dance, watch television, play bingo.

How would you go about meeting such a guy?—LONESOME.

DEAR LONESOME:—Loneliness can be devastating and demoralizing.

There is no sure fire way of meeting the man of your dreams, but it's basic to keep circulating. Look about you for a group with both men and women in it, who are doing things you would enjoy. This might be a camera club, hiking group, welfare organization. Does the hospital staff have a bowling league? Join it. Throw a party yourself.

Don't worry about turning up alone at any get-together. Take your nerve in your hands, look your best and put a big smile on your face.

DEAR DORIS:—My wife and I seem to be quarrelling constantly over our son of 12 years. She is too easy on him. I insist on obedience and she says I am too tough.

He neglects any small chores we ask of him. She lets him off when I am not there to insist. She says her mother used to scold her and make her cry and she is not going to let her son be unhappy. I say nonsense to this.—CHARLIE.

DEAR CHARLIE:—Get together or your son will fall apart.

Disciplines are first imposed from without. If they are constant and intelligent, the growing child gradually incorporates them into his personality and becomes a controlled, organized human being. Your wife does her son great harm, for life, when she removes your authority and fails to exercise her own.

For mental health your son needs loving parents who show their love in wise discipline as well as affection, and in a discipline of themselves which makes them stand together.

DEAR DORIS:—Our girls' club would like to take on a project which would help New Canadians. We haven't got much money but we could raise some if we knew what to do with it. We have a lot of members who could work on something during the day, like visiting newcomers or something. Any suggestions?—CANUCK.

DEAR CANUCK:—There is plenty to do to help, and what you do depends on your talents.

A group of nurses helped young mothers from other countries to take care of their babies. A club with Esperanto in it helped others learn our language. A church society met immigrants just arriving and helped them find a place to live. Service clubs provided receptions for persons receiving citizenship papers. Many a YWCA has given parties for newly settled folk which have been greatly enjoyed.

For ideas about the present need and how to help, write to the Director, Canadian Citizenship Branch, Department of Citizenship and Immigration, Ottawa.

Women's Institute

MARMORA W.I.

MARMORA — The first meeting of the 1961-62 season, of Marmora Branch Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. William Tinsdill, on Wednesday evening, May 10, with the incoming president, Mrs. George Empey in the chair. There were twelve members present.

The financial report showed that finances were low. The programs were received and paid for.

A letter was received from the Hastings Historical Society enclosed in Belleville with a request for the branch to join. It was moved by Mrs. R. E. Reid, seconded by Mrs. E. J. Belanger that the fee be sent. Miss Richards, branch convener of historical research was named as representative. A discussion on the summer course followed although the charts of courses had not yet arrived a tentative choice was "glove making" or "branch and district W.I. business procedure".

It was moved by Mrs. Percy Gordon and seconded by Mrs. W. Tinsdill that the W.I. have a booth at Marmora Fall Fair. Moved my Mrs. H. H. Sabine and seconded by Mrs. E'hel Nobes that a gift be sent to a member in hospital.

Ways and means to build finances were discussed.

An afternoon tea will be held before the branch recesses for July and August. During the summer months, travelling bake sales will be held in the tourist communities.

Mrs. Empey suggested that a budget be set and a fugure was set to be reached in the year.

Mrs. F. Sweet gave a paper on education which was most interesting, much of which she stressed was taken from Prof. Sam Laycock's writings. Mr. Laycock is a native of Marmora. As the business meeting was lengthy, Mrs. Sweet gave only part of her paper which will be continued (by request) at a labor meeting.

Mrs. George Empey brought in her report of the Presidents rally at Guelph, which had many new ideas several of which the W.I. will use. She also told of the humorous events.

The meeting closed and lunch was served by hostesses Mrs. D. Bailey, Mrs. H. Sabine and Mrs. Tinsdill.

BP MAXIMUM ENERGY GASOLINES give you maximum CLIMBING POWER

Useful Information

By Mary Moore

I have made three discoveries—some of them sensational but all of them useful.

1) I have been curious about a new product on the market: canned ready-to-serve rice pudding of all things! I kept seeing this can on my cupboard shelf so one one Friday night decided on the spur of the moment to serve it for dessert. It was wonderful. I heated it in the top of the double boiler for 30 minutes with 1-2 cup Sultanz raisins added. We served it with cream to three people. Excellent for the emergency shelf and for career women who have to prepare meals in a hurry.

2) Another canned product—mushroom gray — came in handy too. I had leftover roast beef which I reheated well wrapped in foil in the oven — but I had no gravy. I heated to boiling point one can of this new mushroom gravy and brought it to the table after the meat was carved so it would be as hot as possible. It was thick with mushrooms and real good.

3) A reader, Mrs. R. J., asked for "raisin squares like the kind we buy in the bake shops". I made some Raisin Squares because I could not be sure how the bakery makes the raisin filling. The general principle is to line a shallow pan 8 x 8" (or slightly larger) with plain pastry. Spread evenly with cooled Raisin Filling (below). Cover carefully with grated top crust. Brush with beaten egg yolk diluted with equal amount of water. Sprinkle top with sugar and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 15 minutes, reducing heat to 375 deg. for another 30 or 35 minutes.

RAISIN FILLING

1 1-2 cups seeded raisins,
1 1-2 cups boiling water, 1-3 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons grated lemon rind, 3 1-4 tablespoons lemon juice.

Cook raisins and boiling water together until tender about 5 minutes. Mix sugar and flour together and stir in. Cook over low heat stirring constantly until boiling. Boil 1 minute. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon rind and juice. Cool.

NOTES:

Amount of raisins may be increased if desired. This amount of raisin filling is sufficient for one 8" raisin pie.

Many Friends Honor Couple On Departure

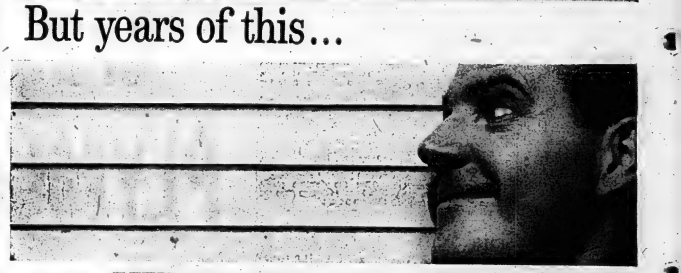
MARMORA—A large number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ray J. Frost met on Saturday evening in Marmora Town Hall to bid them farewell on their departure to reside in Carleton Place. They were presented with a purse of money. Dancing was enjoyed to the music of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Frost will be greatly missed in the community and in the Anglican Church as Mrs. Frost has been organist of St. Pauls' for a number of years and assisting in choral work in the Bocarlaw community.

She was presented with gifts from the choir and church.

Mrs. Frost organized the Girl Guides in Marmora and has been their leader up to the present time. Three girls of her company were rewarded with Gold Cords. The Guides presented Mrs. Frost with a token of remembrance at their farewell meeting.

Mrs. Grenville Meikle John was hostess to the I.O.D.E. when they also made a presentation to Mrs. Frost.



Mr. Frost had served on Marmora Public School Board and other committees. He was also interested in sports.

Counsellor Can Converse With All Classes of Trade

WINNIPEG (CP)—Catherine Macaulay's job brings her in frequent contact with cat-skinners and orange-peelers.

And when she asks a man if he knows "how to make a hot pass," she isn't interested either in football or romance.

Miss Macaulay is a counsellor with the special service division of the Unemployment Insurance Commission here. Part of her work is to find people jobs for which they are suited.

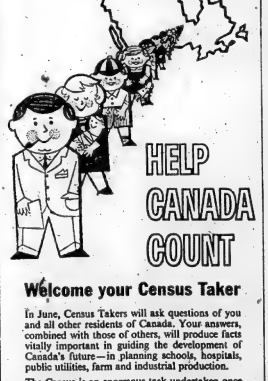
The orange-peelers and cat-skinners? They're nicknames of the trade for men who operate dredging cranes and bulldozers.

The hot pass is the term riveters use to describe the tossing of a red-hot rivet from the heater to the man who drives it into the steel.

While the job has amusing moments, it's serious business. Every day Miss Macaulay helps find jobs for people who are occupationally maladjusted, physically or mentally handicapped, aged persons and ex-convicts.

For the handicapped, she says, "it isn't what's lost that matters, it's what they have left in their skills and interests and the will to fit into a new way of life."

In discussing such a job-seeker with a prospective employer, she never uses a sympathetic approach. "We simply stress the skills and abilities they can offer in employment."



Drop — outs from school are urged to return and finish their education.

"We point out that today's schooling affects tomorrow's work, that automation and technological changes are putting a premium on higher levels of education and specialized training."

Miss Macaulay herself was a polio victim at 12. But it hasn't interfered with her interest in bowling, fishing and duck hunting. She also plays piano and loves music. Her current hobby is Manitoba history.

46,000 Trees Planted Along Roads Last Yr.

TORONTO — Along the King's Highways and Secondary Highways in Ontario the Department of Highways planted well over 46,000 trees in 1960.

Over the past decade the Highways Department has planted about 1,500,000 trees and shrubs of various species across Ontario.

During the same period the Department's tree saver silvicultivator removed and replanted nearly 1,800 trees, many of which were mature trees up to 6 feet in height. Had it got been for this tree saving device — the only one in Canada — these trees would have been destroyed during highway construction.

Almost 6,000 acres or 28,556,000 square feet — along highway rights-of-way were grass-seeded during 1960 using the new mechanical seeding method whereby the grass seed is sprayed over the area.

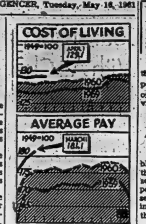
As in previous years, a great variety of trees and shrubs was planted and care taken to locate the correct species for a site, bearing in mind both suitably and eye appeal.

The sturdy and adaptable scotch pine leads the parade with a total of 8,765 young trees, followed by 8,198 studies of six well-tried varieties. Coniferous, other than scotch pine, totalled 11,738 spread over 23 species, some of which, like the Junipers belong in the shrubbery group.

In locations where they can be displayed to advantage more ornamental trees and shrubs were planted, such as flowering crab, barberry, lilac, honeysuckle, silver and weeping willow and other eye-catching varieties.

It is interesting to learn that of the 46,530 trees and bushes planted only 8,081 had to be purchased from the outside. The greater balance was produced by the Department of Lands and Forests or consisted of local material.

Mechanical grass seeding is carried out by teams of one hydraulic seeder with one or more mulch blowers. The former lays a mixture of grass seed and liquified fertilizer. The latter follows and covers the area with a mixture of straw and a thin asphalt emulsion which holds the seed until the grass has taken root and turf has been created.



The acreage thus seeded cost eight cents per square yard. Had the same area been grassed according to the old sodding method the cost per square yard would have been 30 cents.

Early creation of turf prevents costly soil erosion and is also used successfully as soil rehabilitation along our highways.

The sound economy in grassing is reflected in reduced maintenance cost, and here also new method has proved eminently efficient.

The material used in last year's seeding operation included 200 tons of grass seed, 2,971 tons of straw, 1,400 tons of fertilizer and 348,750 gallons of asphalt emulsion.

All this and much other interesting information about a little known operation carried out every year by the Department of Highways is contained in the annual report of the Department's Forestry and Landscape Section, recently released.

Upper graph traces living costs, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, for 1959 and 1960 and to date this year. It is based on a revised index of the bureau of statistics to which food plays a smaller role.

Income Tax Explained

(Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. Miller,
Former Supervising
Assessor, Income Tax Dept.

Many taxpayers get in trouble with the tax office when they consider themselves as separated for taxation purposes, but the income tax assessor treats them as only living apart from their wives on the assessing of their returns.

In last week's column we outlined the conditions which if complied with, will allow the taxpayer to class himself as legally separated. If the taxpayer is not legally separated and is only living apart from his wife, he cannot claim the equivalent to married status on any other person, if he is contributing to the support of his wife and family. For taxation purposes he is treated in the same manner as when they live together. His exemption for his wife will be determined by the amount of the wife's income. If she does not earn the $1,250 he has no claim at all for her, no matter how much he contributes towards her support. If there are children, he may claim the ordinary child's exemption, providing his contributions are sufficient. In no case such as this is the taxpayer allowed to deduct from his income any amount contributed to the support of his wife and family. He must either have the exemption as laid down on the return, or nothing at all.

When the wife from whom he is living apart makes out her tax return, she need not report any contribution she has received from the husband if there are children and the husband and wife cannot agree as to which one should claim them the claim may be denied to both, until such time as they reach a decision. In such case may they both claim the children.

Question — I am living apart from my wife, by mutual consent. I contribute $100 per month towards her support. What do I claim on my return: $1,000 exemption or deduct the $1,200? She has no other claim.

Answer — You are treated the same as if you were living together in the absence of a written separation agreement or court order. You claim the $1,000 exemption only.

Question — I am not legally separated, but do live apart from my wife. I pay her $100 per month. She has a full time position and keeps her own tax return. Can I claim as a deduction the amount of money I give her?

Answer — No. You are treated as a married couple living together and as her income exceeds $1,250 you have no claim of any kind.

Irish Process Food by New Freeze Method

CORK, Ireland — The first commercial scale plant in the world to exploit what has been described as "the latest breakthrough in food processing since the invention of the can" has just been opened at Mallow, Co. Cork, Ireland, Republic of Ireland.

The process, known as 'Accelerated Freeze Drying' was first discovered in Britain in 1945. Subsequently research engineers brought it to a point where, about eighteen months ago, it became commercially exploitable.

In accelerated dry freezing, vegetables, fruit, fish or meat are frozen and then, under an intense vacuum, gentle heat is applied to turn the ice into vapor without actually melting it. The resultant products can be stored indefinitely in cans, boxes or polythene bags. The food returns to its original state when re-exposed to water. The principal advantage of the process is that its cuts out refrigerated transport and is applied to turn the ice into vapor without actually melting it. Auto Industry Now Must Cater To the Public

KELOWNA, B.C. — It is a fallacy that manufacturers try to dictate the kind of cars people will drive, or refuse to produce what they want, John D. King, vice-president, marketing, Ford Motor Company of Canada said Saturday at a luncheon of the Motor Dealers Association of British Columbia.

"The truth is", he said, "that we are utterly dependent on public preference and the manufacturer will knowingly commit business suicide by choosing to ignore such fundamental truth".

Offering what he called "some useful gleanings of what we believe to be symptoms of the state of today's automobile market", Mr. King said that no other industry has a customer audience so well informed about its products or so discriminating in judgment.

"Let's face it", he said, "our present - day customers have their own ideas on how our products satisfy, or fail to satisfy their individual needs. In a sense they are experts — they know used car values as well as your salesmen know them. Never before have they demanded so many sizes so many models. Never before have their tastes been so varied and so difficult to anticipate".

KEEP UP

Failure to recognize this and failure to cater to customers' requirements could produce "mortality unlimited", stressed Mr. King. With "fly now, pay later" plans, swimming pools, boats, marine equipment and other attractions capturing their share of consumer spending, Mr. King urged his audience to make the automobile industry keep abreast of changing requirements by improving after-purchase service and weeding to it that the customer gets value for his money.

"We have a receptive market with definite indication that the Canadian consumer wants to increase his car ownership", Mr. King said. In 1960 new car sales in Canada were at a record high and in the past 30 years, car ownership in Canada increased from one car per eight persons to one car for each 3.5 persons.

"There is further indication that this trend will continue", he said, 'therefore we need not regard the Canadian automobile market to be approaching saturation. "With these things in our favor we can move forward to claim a share of Canada's purchasing power and, in doing so, provide transportation to Canadians and employment of Canadians".

Straight Fights Are Assured In Three of Four Byelections To Be Held Next Monday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two - way contests are assured for three of the four constituencies at stake in federal byelections Monday, May 29. In the fourth, there will be a four-man fight.

With the close of nominations Monday, only the Progressive Conservatives and Liberals had entered candidates in three Eastern ridings — Leeds in Ontario, Restigouche - Madawaska in New Brunswick, and Kings in Prince Edward Island.

In the Vancouver Island riding of Esquimalt - Saanich, however, New Party and Social Credit candidates plus one from the Socialist party of Canada joined representatives of the two major parties to make a five - man ballot.

The byelections will provide the first ballot - box test of political trends in seven months. All four seats were held by Progressive Conservatives.

Though the outcome, whichever way it goes, could have little effect on relative party strengths in the Commons, some heavy artillery is being thrown into the four contests.

Groups of ministers from the Progressive Conservative cabinet are being sent into each constituency, though Prime Minister Diefenbaker is following the tradition that prime ministers don't take part personally in byelection fights.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson plans a four-day swing through the three eastern ridings, ending Friday night in Brockville in Leeds.

CCF Leader Argue will appear in Esquimalt - Saanich May 24. Walter Pitman, who won a Peterborough byelection last Oct. 31 to become the first New Party member of the Commons, campaigns in the riding this week.

In Kings constituency, an MP's widow and a veteran politician will contest the seat vacated by the death of John A. Macdonald last Jan. 4. His widow, Mrs. Marjorie Macdonald, will carry the Conservative colors against Liberal Thomas J. Kickham, 80, who held the seat for eight years before his 1957 defeat by Mr. Macdonald.

In Restigouche - Madawaska, Conservative Edgar Fournier, 52, against Liberal J. E. Dube, Mr. Fournier formerly sat in the provincial cabinet as chairman of the New Brunswick Power Commission. Mr. Dube is a lawyer.

In Leeds, the candidates are Liberal John R. Matheson, 43-year - old lawyer, and Conservative Elwood Stewart, 63-year-old businessman. Both live in Brockville. The vacancy was caused by the death in December of Hollis Stanton.

Compared with those three constituencies, which are uncrowded in Esquimalt - Saanich, vacated last October by the appointment of Senator Hugh Savage minister Pearkes to become British Columbia's lieutenant-governor.

The candidates: Conservative George Pearkes; New Party Sam Sasnich; Liberal David Groos; Social Credit naval officer; New Party representative Glen Hamilton, 41 - year - old farmer, and Labor Worker Social Credit candidate George Hahn, 49, former Vancouver city councillor and an entry for the Socialist Party of Canada, Don Poirier.

Present party standings in the Commons: seats filled, 14; vacancies, 4 re: Progressive Conservatives 202, Liberals 50, CCF 8, New Party 1.

New Party Will Try to Halt Hidden Contributions to Political Parties if Elected

Liberal Member Accuses Govt. Of Being Afraid

TORONTO (CP)—Elmer Sopha, Liberal member of the legislature for Sudbury, said Monday the Ontario government is afraid to appoint a royal commission to investigate organized crime in the province because it would cause the government's downfall.

He made the allegation in an interview after a bid in the legislature the select committee on organization of government to conduct its own inquiry into law crime situation.

Mr. Sopha, backed by Farquhar Oliver, Liberal member for Grey South, and CCF Leader MacDonald, said the committee's terms of reference were wide enough to include a study of the administration of criminal law.

The Liberal backbencher accused Attorney-General Roberts of saying "nothing" and using "hysterical" in demanding establishment of a royal commission on gambling.

Turning to Mr. MacDonald, he said the CCF leader should be forced to submit to the committee any evidence that led to his saying there were increases in "high places" who connived with the province's criminal element.

"This committee is not the place for that," Mr. MacDonald replied.

Mr. Roberts, committee chairman, said he didn't propose to allow the committee to become a "sounding board" for political parties.

Later the attorney-general accused Mr. Sopha of discussing matters in the committee that were subjudice. The Liberal member had criticized as slow the prosecution of former provincial treasurer of the Ottawa suburb of Eastview and a provincial police officer facing bribery and conspiracy charges in Toronto.

Mr. Sopha said Mrs. Adrienne Larouche, the former treasurer, was not brought to trial on the charges involving $30,000 in town funds until the second session of the legislature had ended "for fear she would spill something."

The attorney-general shouted that Mr. Sopha's comments were a wonderful illustration of the irresponsibility of some members for the legislature.

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Party said Monday in a draft declaration on democracy that federal parties should be required to publish annual statements listing contributions to political parties.

The document — touted as the last in a series of manifestos on the party's proposed platforms —will come before the founding convention of the New Party in Ottawa this summer.

"To safeguard Parliament against the control of parties by special interests, it is essential that legislation requiring full publicity of contributions be enacted as soon as reasonably and effective limitations on campaign expenditures," said the policy declaration.

It also promised that greatly extended broadcasting facilities will be made available to members of the opposition parties, which they may become acquainted with information now at the disposal of the government.

The statement advocated a "new approach to the problem of federalism in which the provinces would play a greater role in foreign affairs."

Promising to revive a cabinet post for dealing with relations between the federal and provincial affairs, the document said:

"A New Party government will create a department of federal-provincial relations to maintain and extend co-operation with the provinces, to coordinate and act as a special secretariat for joint committees and conferences.

WOULD AMEND ACT

It also pledged the party's support to the principle of amending the British North America Act, a step now being considered by the Conservative government.

The economic groups the party endorsed a policy of protection for cultures and traditions.

It recognized the special economic needs and problems of the original inhabitants of Canada—the Indians and Eskimos, whose traditional modes of living "are threatened by modern civilization," the statement said. The New Party will accord them full political and social rights as Canadian citizens."

The statement said the New Party will adopt a distinctive Canadian flag and anthem "to give expression to Canadian nationhood."

The three earlier statements dealt with economic planning, social security and foreign affairs.

CCF Leader Says Winter Works Plan Failure

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario CCF Leader MacDonald said Monday night the province's winter works program, which ends May 31, has been a failure because it provided only 22,000 jobs.

He told a York Township Ratepayers' Association that the federal and provincial governments should have met at least 75 per cent of the material cost of approved winter works projects as well as 75 per cent of the labor costs.

'Most municipalities are already faced with such serious cost in the provincial cabinet as chairman of the New Brunswick Power Commission. Mr. Dube is a lawyer.

In Leeds, the candidates are Liberal John R. Matheson, 43-year - old lawyer, and Conservative Elwood Stewart, 63-year-old businessman. Both live in Brockville. The vacancy was caused by the death in December of Hollis Stanton.

Compared with those three constituencies, which are uncrowded in Esquimalt - Saanich, vacated last October by the appointment of Senator Hugh Savage minister Pearkes to become British Columbia's lieutenant-governor.

Body Recovered From Crashed Plane at Soo

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—The body of Dr. Robert F. Gunn, 54, of Bay City, Mich., was recovered from a crashed plane shortly after it sank in the St. Mary's River between Soo, Ont., and Soo, Mich., Monday night.

The U.S. coast guard and Michigan police were dragging the river for a second occupant of the plane, tentatively identified as R. J. Haines, 55, also of Bay City. They said Haines was seen in the water after a pontoon of the sinking craft. He disappeared while trying to swim to shore.

The plane, a single - engined Piper Cub with floats, was about to land when it hit power lines, flipped and struck the water upside down between the Michigan mainland and Sugar Island.

The two had been on a fishing trip in Thunder Bay, in the Lakehead area. They were landing to report to American customs en route home.

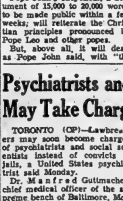
Pay for Ride With Cigarets, Just Stolen

LONDON (AP)—Two generous youths loaded with boxes and cartons offered to pay taxi man Julian Orlans $15 in packs of cigarets for a five-shilling (70-cent) ride.

At retail prices, 15 packs of cigarets would cost $6.58.), so Orlans happily accepted.

But his generosity vanished into the night, Orlans had a horrible thought.

He began excitedly back to where he had picked the two men up — in front of his uncle's tobacco shop.



Sure enough, the shop had been broken into and cigarets stolen.

"I feel like a fool about this," Orlans said. "I wasn't suspicious at first because all sorts of people carrying packets take taxis at night."

Uncle Hyman Rudinsky said the thieves made off with about £500 ($1,400) worth of stock.

Julian returned the 15 packs to Uncle Hyman, who paid his nephew the five shillings for the thieves' cab ride.

"Jest a Second"

"The party sure went with a swing. We lynched him."

RIGHT TO MARRY — Terry Whitfield, 28, an Australian engineer, plans to carry his fight to marry an Eskimo girl to the House of Commons. Whitfield was fired by his company at Great Whale River in northern Quebec because he wouldn't give up Anne Witaliuk, 23, a former airline hostess. He said he was fired because of a clause in the employment act forbidding fraternization with Eskimos and Indians "except in special circumstances." The two are shown in Ottawa looking over an Eskimo carving of a kayak. (CP Wirephoto).

No Over-All Parks Plan For Ontario Says Minister

TORONTO (CP)—Labor Minister Daley, chairman of the parks integration board, said Monday the board does not plan to have any over-all parks plan for Ontario.

But he told the select committee on the administrative and executive problems of government that the board has done much to integrate existing parks.

David Webster, executive secretary of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, said the board should do the actual planning for parks as part of a multiple Ontario plan looking 100 years ahead.

But Mr. Daley said he resented the implications of persons that the board had been "sitting on its hands." He said the board had been established to integrate, not initiate, an over-all parks policy.

Earlier, Frank MacDougall, deputy minister of lands and forests, told the board each of the department's 22 districts has a complete plan showing present and future parks in the district.

Mr. MacDougall said the district plans could form the basis of an over-all plan, but the parks integration board had not requested such information.

Board Secretary T. R. Till said that two years ago there was a plan to provide camping parks every 20 miles across Ontario. But subsequently it was found that this would likely be inadequate in areas of heavier population.

Mr. Till said he is making a study of all types of parks within a 30-mile radius of Toronto and Hamilton as a step toward an over - all provincial plan.

Elmer Sopha, Liberal member for Sudbury, said he thought the board was "nothing more than a committee of the cabinet to keep an eye on parks."

Pope's Encyclical Will Call For Defence of Christianity

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The new social encyclical that Pope John XXIII has failed to issue will call for the defence of the world's Christian heritage against the expanding challenge of communism, it was reported Monday.

The encyclical, a document of 15,000 to 20,000 words, is to be made public within a few weeks; will reiterate the Christian principles pronounced by Pope Leo and other popes.

Pope John, it is said, will deal, as Pope John said, with "the new, grave and at times perilous problems of our epoch."

There was no doubt here that atheistic communism will be at the top of the list.

Cardinal Cento, speaking to 15,000 members of the Italian Workers of Catholic Action and of the World Movement of Christian Workers, said:

"This, in fact, is the dilemma that is presently underlying the sign of the cross of Christ, or else dictatorship under the hammer and sickle of atheism."

The cardinal said that the way marked by the "Rerum Novarum" and subsequent papal documents, "even if it meant some sacrifice and the best but against the advance of materialistic Marxism."

The "Rerum Novarum" and subsequent papal documents defended the rights of private property and Pope John's encyclical is also expected to defend the rights of private property. But it is also possible that the Pope will emphasize the need for more equitable distribution of the world's wealth.

Psychiatrists and Social Scientists May Take Charge of Lawbreakers

TORONTO (CP)—Lawbreakers may soon become charges of psychiatrists and social scientists instead of convicts in jails, a United States psychiatrist said Monday.

Dr. Manfred Guttmacher, chief medical officer of the supreme bench of Baltimore, Md., predicted at the third biennial Canadian Conference of corrections that all sentencing may soon be done by rehabilitation agencies.

Courts would only be concerned with determining guilt or innocence, Dr. Guttmacher said. Court sentencing and treatment of offenders is often influenced by the general public; a burglar is more apt to receive leniency than a man guilty of incest, he said.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the High Court of Ontario argued in his speech that criminal law and its administration can never become a branch of social science.

"In our society . . . the law can never function as a social or medical clinic," Mr. Justice McRuer said.

HE AGREES

Professor Stuart Jaffary of the University of Toronto School of Social Work agreed with Dr. Guttmacher in stressing the external causes of a person's behavior.

"Sometimes I wish magistrates were free to convict the community that fails to provide the essentials of life for the prisoner in the court," the professor said.

Dr. Guttmacher said would-be convicts in the future should be given every help to equip themselves for useful lives in rehabilitation.

Mr. Justice McRuer conceded that judges must develop a new consciousness of the psychiatrences and psychiatry to make the administration of criminal law more efficient.

T. George Street, national parole board chairman, said the delinquent youngsters can receive far greater help from one social worker, than from "the combined influence of any community as - called character-building agencies."

Aussie Parents Would Welcome Eskimo Bride

SYDNEY (Reuters)—The parents of an Australian electrician who claims he was fired from his job in the Canadian Arctic for "fraternizing" with an Eskimo girl said today they would welcome her into the family.

The mother of 28-year-old Terence Whitfield said he had written that he wanted to marry the girl, Ann Witaliuk, 23.

"We've even written to his father to look out for a block of land," said Mrs. A. E. Whitfield at her home in the Sydney suburb of Merrylands. "We hope he'll be back with Ann this year."

Whitfield said Monday that he was fired from his $8,000-a-year job under a ruling forbidding fraternization with Eskimos "except in special circumstances."

WENT HUNTING

"He wrote saying he had gone hunting with about a dozen others, including Ann, on the ice near the coast," said Mrs. Whitfield.

"Later, Terry wrote to say he had fallen in love with her and wanted to marry her, but permission had been refused by those along the line. . . .

"He is the first serious girl he has ever had. He was always indifferent to girls."

Girls Wearing Nylon Panties In for Trouble

Dr. Howlett told a conference of the Royal Society of Health delegates and residents.

Howlett suggested women working in dangerous factories should wear "conducting footwear," shoes that would dissipate the electricity as fast as the undies generated it.

Eichmann Trial Evidence Shows Nazis' Difficulties In Enforcing Jewish Program

JERUSALEM (Reuters)—Nazi Germany tried to get backing from its allies and occupied countries to exterminate European Jewry but evidence at Adolf Eichmann's trial shows the Nazis ran into considerable opposition.

The picture emerging from the mass of documentary and living testimony shows the Germans used means ranging from diplomatic pressure to naked force to impose their "final solution to the Jewish problem."

Evidence covering the Balkans is still to come but testimony so far indicates that only in parts of Poland and the Baltic states were the Germans able to enlist active support from the population for pogroms.

The prosecution's spotlight has provided a country-by-country look as it moves from area to area.

FRANCE

Eichmann's Paris representative reported in July, 1942, that Vichy authorities agreed to deportation of all Jews living in occupied France — including children — but Nazi files disclosed the French government opposed any attempt to include French nationals in the deportations. There was evidence of mounting reluctance to persecute in the second half of the war.

BELGIUM

Evidence showed that in Belgium, which was under military government, anti - Jewish actions were carried out by German units. Many Belgians tried to aid the victims. For example, railroad Workers opened doors in deportation trains to enable Jews to escape.

THE NETHERLANDS

A general strike broke out in February, 1941, when the Nazis arrested 400 Jews, the first reported physical action against them! Arrests were carried out by German Police but in one camp where Jews were held Dutchmen as well as Germans were trained for the SS and they tortured Jews, testified Josef Melkman, a Dutch-born Israeli government official.

DENMARK

Werner David Melchior, son of Denmark's chief rabbi and now a Jerusalem journalist, described how Danish resistance — aided by civil authorities — warned most of Denmark's Jews of an impending Nazi action on October, 1943, so that only about 400 of the total Jewish community of 7,700 fell into Nazi hands.

NORWAY

Mrs. Henrietta Samuel, widow of the former chief rabbi of Norway, said that the arrest of all Jewish males in Norway, carried out in a lightning operation on Oct. 26, 1942, was implemented by the Norwegian police escorted by German police. But the Norwegian underground risked death to smuggle hundreds of Jews to nearly glazed border to neutral Sweden.

ITALY

As long as Benito Mussolini's Fascist government remained the real power in Italy—before the Allied landings in 1943—the Nazis were unable to impose anti-Jewish measures. Numerous documents identified to the Germans' anger at the attitude of their ally, Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister and father-in-law of Mussolini's son-in-law Count Emanuele Ciano.

POLAND

There was evidence of Polish police help in rounding up Jews, German supervision to arrest Jews and general anti - semitism among the population in Lvov, eastern Poland. Ukrainian militia rounded up Jews and carried out executions for the Nazis. Other evidence pointed to individual help to Jews.

BALTIC STATES

Abba Kovner, Jewish poet and leader of the Vilna Ghetto Jewish underground, said that in February, 1941, when the Nazis arrested 400 Jews, the first reported physical action against them! Arrests were carried out by German Police but in one camp where Jews were held Dutchmen as well as Germans were trained for the SS and they tortured Jews, testified Josef Melkman, a Dutch-born Israeli government official.

Not Red MiGs But Old Jets U.S. Once Gave to Batista Were Castro's Big Weapons

WASHINGTON (CP)—A few United States jet fighters that fell into Fidel Castro's hands after he crushed dictator Fulgencio Batista may have provided the basis of claims by the April 17 Cuban invasion attempt.

Contrary to reports by rebel fighters that Castro had "skillfully maintained" a number of MiG fighters as well as Russian tanks to smash the invasion, Senator Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) has found "not a bit of evidence" of a single Russian MiG in Cuba.

The Oregon Democrat, chairman of the senate committee now searching into the role the United States played in the abortive invasion, says he finds that the planes Castro used to thwart the invasion were American aircraft which the United States government had given former Batista regime some years ago.

SANK A SHIP

The Washington Post adds that of Castro's total aircraft inventory, only seven were Russian-built MiG fighters. The Castro forces used these with devastating effectiveness, the paper apparently said, as invasion ship that carried most of the rebel's ammunition and communications equipment.

The rebels lost their ammunition before they could be used, Senator George Aiken told The Canadian Press. The Vermont Republican is a member of Morse's investigating group.

Former president Eisenhower was reported to have been assounded on learning that instead of being spread among all available vessels, most of the rebels' heavy invasion equipment had been loaded on one old Liberty ship, the Houston, by the refreighter — that could hardly withstand shore battery fire or air attack.

HAD AGREED

It was Eisenhower's government which originally agreed to train the Cuban exiles and provide for the invasion. Kennedy gave the go-ahead on the reported advice of the Central Intelligence Agency, the chiefs of staff as well as state department and White House advisers.

Driver Unhappy Because His Car Damaged

BELLEVILLE, Mich. (AP)—Mrs. Ruth Ann Hall became enraged when he discovered someone had broken the window in his car at a park, police said, and:

1. Fired a 16-gauge shotgun into the air twice, panicking 200 persons in the area.

2. Then drove his car into five other autos in the parking area, causing $1,500 worth of damage.

Morse and other members of the Senate foreign relations committee will probe the invasion as a terrible bungle.

Catholic Bowling Tourney

KINGSTON — A total of 414 bowlers, making up 28 entries, competed in the seventh annual Kingston Archdiocesan Catholic Bowling Tournament, which came to an end last Wednesday evening, May 10th, at the Plaza Bowling Lanes, after three nights of bowling. There was an increase of 39 bowlers (five entries) over last year's total.

Spencerville entered the tournament for the first time, sending four teams, and Regiopolis College also made its initial entry.

Top plunage of the tournament went to the King Pins of Marmora with 4865, and they were awarded the Wright-Hassil Trophy, with individual trophies donated and presented by H. R. (Tim) Wight, plus the highest monetary award. Team members were Caroline McCredie, Mabel Brady, Patricia McNamara, John Shannon (capt.), Ron Doyle and Bill Phillips.

Second on the prize list was Kingston St. Joseph's Gaels with 4682, and they were presented with the Canadian Register Trophy by the tournament director John McGovern. They also received the second cash prize. This team comprised Frances Amodeo, Phyllis Garrah, Iva Burke, Herbert Keeler (capt.), Bill Lalonde and Herbert McBrien.

The Cliff Palmer Trophy was presented by Mr. Palmer to another team from St. Joseph's, Kingston, "The Rexes," which had an aggregate of 4381. They received the third cash award.

The big surprise of the tournament was a group of teenagers from Gananoque who called themselves "Gananoque No. 1." After the second night's bowling this team was in second place, beating 43 other teams from all over the diocese, and had the highest pinnage for any single game — 1163. A brilliant high single of 340 by Carol Conley, was still tops at the finish of the tournament. The team had a total of 4563, and ended with fourth-place prize money. The team consisted of Carol Conley, Juliann Fennell, Suzanne Vincent, Steve O'Meara, Brica Vincent and Jim McGlade.

Teams from St. Joseph's, Kingston, the Hawks and the Ramrods were fifth and sixth and another team of youngsters from Kingston, CYO, with 4441 finished seventh — just out of the money.

Individual prizes for high triples went to Marg Wizard (St. Joseph's 826, and Roy Sneddon (Calaraqui) 791. High singles winners were Carol Conley (Gananoque) 340 and Jack Burke (St. Joseph's) 332.

A consolation hidden team prize went to the Bombers of Marmora, whose members were Ada Brady, Pat Clairmont, Lillian O'Connor, Vincent Lynch, Mike Callery and Heath Brady.

Reverend W. Downey of St. Joseph's Parish, whose Bowling League sponsored the tournament, introduced the teams, and presented the individual prizes. Teams were entered from Smiths Falls, Brockville, Read, Gananoque, Spencerville, Athens, Marmora, Belleville, Tweed, Point Anne, Kingston Mills; Kingston City representatives were St. Joseph's, St. John's, K. of C., Regiopolis College, C. Y. O.

The tournament director wishes to thank all the teams which entered the competition and the out-of-town representatives — Tom Cassidy, Marmora; Howard Brockville; Chas. Dion, Tweed; Mrs. S. Nalon, Gananoque; Garth Bradshaw, Belleville; and J. J. Cordick, Smiths Falls, for their excellent co-operation.

Hemus Blasts Umpires

The two men revealed their feelings about each other Monday night over Pittsburgh and St. Louis radio stations before a listening audience of thousands.

Hemus said "Heck, you can't even talk to some of of them (umpires) any more. They just won't listen."

Dascoll said of the Cardinal manager: "Hemus was bush as a player and he certainly is bush as a manager—a real busher."

The rhubarb was touched off Sunday, in Philadelphia when Hemus was ejected for arguing a decision by Secory at third base. He first made his accusation at a sports luncheon here Monday.

In St. Louis, the Globe-Democrat said it learned Hemus was notified by telegram Monday night he was fined $150 by league president Warren Giles for his part in the Sunday runpus.

The telegram said, "kicking dirt on an umpire will not be tolerated and any future offence will be dealth with by our office more severely than the fine imposed in this case."

Hemus gets angry because he can't push us around, Dascoll said, "I got news for him he is not going to do it."

Dascoll, in his 14th year as an umpire, said he was thinking seriously of retiring at the end of the season. "Conditions for the umpires are the worst I have seen since I came into the league in 1948."

Sox Sale Failed to Materialize

CHICAGO (AP) — The proposed sale of the Chicago White Sox baseball club for "in excess of $6,000,000 has failed to materialize, Chuck Comiskey, former vice - president, said Monday.

Comiskey some months ago (transferred his 48 per cent of the club's stock to Chicago lawyer Lloyd Herold. He had it returned Monday.

"The deal never was consummated," he said. "I don't know why. It is my understanding that the proposed buyers had reached an agreement with Art Allyn Jr. (one of the Sox directors) or somebody associated with the Veeck group, for a deal in excess of $6,000,000."

Bill Veeck, club president and head of a syndicate that owns 54 per cent of the stock, said he had no knowledge of such a deal.

Canada Outdoors

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP) — In late spring, when the ice sinks into her hundreds of Laurentian lakes north of Quebec City and fishing for speckled trout starts, one of the first on the scene is Philippe Gagnon.

The man with the deeply lined, weather-tanned face and sharp blue eyes scans the fishing spots in bountiful Laurentide Park and chats with game and fisheries department employees about plans for the season.

For Mr. Gagnon, opening the season in Quebec's oldest and possibly finest Quebec game preserve — Laurentide was founded in 1894—has always been a pleasant task. He has been in the Quebec civil service 34 years, most of the time as superintendent of parks.

Early this year he was promoted to the rank of assistant deputy minister, recognition of the administrative contribution he has made to the game and fisheries department, for which he has earned wide respect.

EXPERT AT CASTING

But it is when Mr. Gagnon sets up his flyrod and starts to cast that review turns to admiration and amusement.

He casts a fly 100 feet with an ease and accuracy that have won him international acclaim. He admits, however, that the long-distance cast is little use in catching fish.

"The best cast is about 45 feet, delicate and almost effortless. The fly drops to the water like a real insect. There is too much power in the long-distance cast. The fly whips into the water like a stone."

Mr. Gagnon says the real angler goes through three stages: 1, Love of catching fish for the sake of catching fish; 2, Playing fish for the sport of it; 3, Going after fish no one else seems to be able to get.

That he quickly progressed to the third stage is evident. He caught his first speckled at 10 after buying a Parmacheene Belle and a Yellow Sally for a dime.

WAS MORE STUBBORN

He recalls once taking six days to catch an elusive trout. Every day he tried a new approach. He managed to attract its attention but it wouldn't bite.

"I got it because I was just more stubborn than that fish," he chuckled.

Of those who know Mr. Gagnon chiefly as an expert flycaster, the finest of fishing companions and guide to such famous men as Sir Winston Churchill, Sir Anthony Eden, the late Franklin Delano Roosevelt and well-known anglers including Earl Beech, John Alden Knight and Ray Berryman, his recent appointment came as something of a surprise.

But close friends recognize it as a well-earned promotion, perhaps the culmination of a career of service to conservation.

With L. A. Richard, the deputy minister, and the late Charles Fremont, Mr. Gagnon has been one of the moving spirits behind opening of the Gaspe Peninsula Park, Mont Tremblant Park, the Chibougamau and Mistassini preserves.

ORGANIZED CAMPS

Mount Orford in the Eastern Townships, with its facilities for art festivals and sports competitions, has been one of his pet projects.

Working with the parks services, he organized such fishing camps as Hell's Gates, Les Ecorces and Le Portage. He planned camping areas providing low-cost accommodation for families.

He has been working on the promotion of landlocked salmon as a game fish for all Quebec areas.

And he is also urging that the government establish conservation programs in primary schools.

"Children could learn about our native fish and reasons why some controls must be maintained. They would understand that good game management is just part of civilized life."

North Carolina Basketball

Scandal May Kill Game

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A gambling scandal that has reached into two major North Carolina colleges may spell the doom for big time college basketball in the state.

A plan of de-emphasis is expected to be presented next Monday when the trustees of the Consolidated University of North Carolina hold their regular quarterly meeting here.

Three North Carolina State players, including team captain Stan Miewierowal, have been charged with bribe-taking in the point - shaving scandal which earlier had reached the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The two institutions are under the control of the consolidated university's board.

Meanwhile, district solicitor (prosecutor) Lester Chalmers said new warrants have been issued charging Joseph Green of New York City with bribing two N.C. State players to fix N.C. State games at Duke and North Carolina.

MAY BE MORE

Chalmers indicated more warrants were still to come. He said it appeared they would involve gamblers rather than players.

Gov. Terry Sanford told a news conference Monday he feels a special consideration should be given to de-emphasis of big time basketball. Sanford, who is ex-officio chairman of the university board, said he understood a de - emphasis plan would be presented to the group next Monday.

The University of Chapel Hill and State College in Raleigh, along with Duke University at Durham and Wake Forest College at Winston-Salem — known as North Carolina's Big Four — are bitter rivals in all intercollegiate sports, especially basketball.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

Don't look now but a little cloak-and-dagger work has revealed that the Spanish hidalgo Walt Fraser of Picton, has combed the local Main and come up with a powerful array of softball "pirates."

And the "Pirates" as they are dubbed officially will soon be rearing across the Quinte straits to the mainland to give battle to such proud clubs as the Belleville Rebels, the Joyce Real Estaters, the flyboys from Trenton Air Station and the Cobourg contingent of marauders.

Fraser has ribbed his team with some veteran stalwarts of the diamond and has come up with a squad, on paper at least, that should give considerable trouble to the city slicker squads, Cobourg and the RCAF.

Incidentally the Belleville and District Softball League officially opens here on Monday, May 22, with those veteran crusaders, the Bobcats and Cobourg, squaring off at the Fair Grounds under the kleig's startlers at 8.15.

The Bobcats get their seasonal baptism of fire on Thursday night in Kingston where they take on the Smarts Brewers club of the Kingston Softball Association in the first game of their exhibition schedule with the Limestone City "Pros".

Back to Fraser's Firebalis, the Picton sports maestro has Lefboy Cole, son of an illustrious baseball forebear, Pete, and Mary Stacey doing the catching.

Roger Chapman, who made a hit with the Bobcats here last season will head the mound corps. Assisting Chapman will be a hurler named Lake and, what's health here, of all people, Ole Rubber Arm himself, Pat Marsolo.

The Old Warrior who hurled the Ox Potatoes to many a hard-earned victory, who still plays hockey between seasons and doesn't look a day older than he did ten years ago, will be the Fraser fireman and in addition will likely get more than one starting assignment.

Since any the chieftain is washed up but a dollar gets you a doughnut there is more than one good game left in that flexible, if ancient flipper.

Now let's look around the Fraser infield. Danny Hayden, who besides mentoring the squad, will covert around first base. The keystone of hockey, Keith MacDonald, is slated for second base. Holding down the hot corner is Wesse or Stacey, while McGuire and Hawker will take care of the shortstop chores.

L. Lockwood, R. Heffernan, R. Kennedy, said to be a speed merchant and the ole reliable Bob Mallhalland will look after the outfield duties, as will Hawker, a brother of the shortstop.

We expect to have some information on the rest of the clubs before opening night, but the underground has it Bobby Hull and Bert Pauloski have signed with Joyce Real Estate, as Bill Shaw is looking after the Joyce club, so the boss-man need have no worries in this respect.

"THOSE WEDDING BELLS"

The Billie Jay strode out of the news room Friday afternoon like a man going out to pick up a million-dollar cheque. He walked the last single mile with head held bold, a smile on his face and a "back-of-me-hand-to-you" to the news room benedicts who had ribbed him but plenty the last few weeks.

Previously the clan had called a halt to the workaday proceedings and presented the groom and his bride-to-be with a handsome electric kettle. There was nothing inferential in the gift. Like every other married Joe he will be in hot water some time or another but this gadget will answer a lot of early morning questions.

So if 'any of the sports clan want Gerry Alexander the next few days please lay off. The little man is homecrowning where honeymooner love to go, Niagara Falls, with his very attractive bride Sheila.

They had a lovely wedding and if the wedding car broke down enroute to the station don't blame host man Doug Murray or the very pretty bridesmaid Marjorie. Nothing serious happened and the happy couple got there on time.

We're sure sports fans everywhere wish Garry and his bride a long, happy and successful married life.

Johnny Podres Loses First

By ED WILEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Ed Mathews, who had begun to look like a slugger-turned-singles hitter, is back doing what comes naturally — homering home runs and giving the Milwaukee Braves that old power look once more.

Through the first 31 games of the season, Mathews, No. 6 on the all - time National League home run list, had hit just one. Now he's tagged five in four games while running second in the batting race with a .378 average and a 14-game hitting streak.

Mathews' sudden return to power has overcome even the hoodoo of the Los Angeles Coliseum, that badly balanced ballyard for lefthanded sluggers whose power is to right and right - centre. In three years, Mathews had hit only five home runs there, no more than two in one season.

SHOVES IN THREE

But he rifled a pair over the right and centrefield barriers Monday night, driving in three runs as the Braves defeated the Dodgers 7-5 handing southpaw Johnny Podres his first defeat.

That dropped the second place Dodgers three games behind San Francisco Giants, who bombed Pete Rose, rookie runnp over Chicago Cubs. The only other game scheduled in the NL, St. Louis at Pittsburgh, was rained out.

While Mathews was building his career home run total to 346, lefthander Lew Burdette won two in a row for the first time this season — and almost drove in three runs with a single and his first home run of the year.

It was the eighth straight win-ning season for Burdette, who gave up seven hits and now has sent five home runs over the right field screen in Los Angeles.

RETAINS LEAD

Wally Moon, retaining the NL batting lead at .364, tripled and scored the first run for the Dodgers by stealing home with two out in the second inning. The Dodgers had scored a pair of unearned runs before Charlie Neal hit a two-run homer in the ninth.

The Braves had it wrapped up in six innings, chasing Podres who had won seven in a row over two seasons, when Burdette broke a 1-1 tie with a two-run single in the fourth.

Frank Thomas ended Podres' shutout streak at 26 innings by hitting a home run in the second for the Braves. They had slugged 12 homers in the last four games.

San Francisco collected 18 hits and four of them were home runs — two by Orlando Cepeda who drove in five runs. His first followed a grand-slam by Felipe Alou in the first inning and chased starter Dick Ellsworth before he had retired a man. Matty Alou, Felipe's big brother, hit the other homer in the eighth, his first in the major.

Southpaw Mike McCormick was the winner. He allowed eight hits, issued a walkout in four singles in the fifth, but pulled his earned run average at 3.38 for 46 innings this season.

Fed. Govt. Does Well At Tracks

The minister, piloting through the Commons criminal code amendments on horse racing, said the government was paid $873,000 in 1959 — 60 for the RCMP's services at tracks where betting is legal. Other expenses, the balance in favor of the government was between $218,000 and $130,000.

The amendments allow associations sanctioning race-meeting meets flexibility in the 14 days of racing they are allowed each calendar year. The associations now are permitted one meeting of 14 consecutive days or two meetings of seven days each. Under the amendments, the two meetings can be of any duration provided they do not exceed 14 days together.

The number of races and starters in each race per racing day also is limited to 10. Combinations of heats and dashes now can reach 12 and one or running races are left unchanged at eight races a day.

The amendments were given second reading — approval in principle — and then cleared clause - by - clause committee study.

Pollock Draft Rule Unpopular

Curry to Coach Aces

Harvey Stays With Habs

TORONTO (CP) — Almost a month ago the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A council made a tentative agreement on drafting players under 16, and Monday night it was clear the agreement was really tentative.

The issue, a cloudy one to begin with, came up at a closed meeting of the club owners April 27. The proposed rule would prohibit drafting players under 16 for the purpose of avoiding the draft.

Two weeks later the council reviewed the rule behind closed doors, and Monday night, again behind closed doors, tried to come to grips with it again. From an astonish reporters deduced from shouts that agreement was something less than unanimous.

The original proposed rule would have come into effect for the 1962-63 season. For next season directors decided to leave the present rule as it was. It says a player must be 16 before he can be drafted by any Junior A team.

The fuss began when some teams moved a favored young player of pre-draft age to another league to avoid the possibility of his being drafted later by another team.

PENNY SUPPORT

The move was sponsored by Sam Pollock, Montreal Canadiens' general manager and registered owner of Peterborough Petes. Pete has been the static support and the meeting was finally opened to discuss the draft, but under old rules.

Before the agreement can be submitted to the OHA for approval it must receive sanction from the National Hockey League. Observers see little likelihood of this.

The proposed rule may be on the agenda of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association meeting at Port Arthur next week, but OHA officials were keeping quiet on this possibility.

Logart Loses To Shortts

NEW YORK (AP) — Cecil Shortts, 144¾, of Cleveland won a split decision over Isaac Logart, 146½, of New York in the 10-round feature bout at St. Nicholas Arena Monday night.

The decision brought a rebellious reaction from the spectators, who hurled cigar butts and other debris into the ring.

Shortts weighed 144½ and was the only other official who saw the bout, in Logart's corner, has called it 5-4-1. Judge Artie Aidala voted for Shorts, 6-4, and referee Harry Valgar scored it for Shorts, 5-3-3.

Giardello Defeats Greaves

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Joey Giardello, 162, stopped Willie Greaves 139½ of Edmonton and Detroit, in 1:39 of the ninth round of a scheduled 10-round feature boxing bout Monday night.

Giardello seemed to be saving it in his bout with Greaves. No hard punches were thrown until Giardello hit Greaves with the hard right that stopped the fight. Only in the third did Greaves do any damage, cutting Giardello's left eye slightly. Giardello had lost his previous three fights. He hopes the victory will lead to a match — perhaps with Boston's Paul Pender, world middleweight champion in Massachusetts, New York and Europe.

Makes Pro Debut

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Concordia makes its International Soccer League debut here May 23 when it takes on Everton, First Division team in the English Soccer League team.

Other clubs that will tangle with Concordia include Kilmarnock of Scotland, Shamrock, Ireland Rovers, Red Star of Belgrade and Rapidhot of Vienna.

PICK DERBY FAVORITE

LONDON (AP) — The American - owned Moulines became the favorite Monday night for the Epsom Derby after Britain's top jockey, Lester Piggott, came down with a stomach upset.

Leading bookmakers made Moulines an 8-to-1 shot at a call-over. Pinturischio discovered to be a temperature Monday, was second favorite at 9-1.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's failing hockey fortunes this past season had two standouts in the sport Monday considering a move to greener pastures.

Doug Harvey, Canadiens' durable defenceman, decided to stick with the team for his 13th season rather than accept an offer to act as playing coach of the New York Rangers.

Floyd (Busher) Curry, 10-year veteran with the Canadiens and coach of the Montreal Royals of the Eastern Professional Hockey League for the past three years, decided to move on. He has agreed to coach Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League.

Harvey's surprise decision, announced through Canadiens' president Ken Reardon, was brief and gave no clue to the reason for Harvey's decision.

"Doug Harvey was in to see Mr. Selke this afternoon and has elected to remain as a player with Canadiens. As a result, Doug will be back in the lineup as playing captain next season."

DID IT FOR FAMILY

Curry said he was not sure what players would be involved, "but I can say that Skippy Burchell was mentioned."

"All my friends are here," he reasoned. "I have business interests which need to be taken care of and I have to think of my family."

In New York, general manager Muzz Patrick said Harvey was offered "a substantial sum" to join the Rangers.

"I understand he just doesn't think he wants to start coaching yet," Patrick said.

Floyd Curry said he accepted the Quebec offer Monday after he had Aces' owner Gerald Martineau worked out "small details" by telephone.

HEAD COACHED ROYALS

The Busher coached the Royals from 1958-59 until the team folded last season because it was losing money in the EPHL.

Curry said in a telephone interview he plans to travel to New York May 17 to meet Martineau and the American League convention there.

He hopes to work out arrangements to strengthen the team for next season," he said. Aces' GM-coach Jack Marshall of the Canadiens, said earlier the NHL team was prepared to offer several players to bolster the Aces.

Curry said he was not sure what players would be involved, "but I can say that Skippy Burchell was mentioned."

Hockey Loop To Help Weak Teams

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—International Hockey League owners voted Monday to keep the same seven teams next season and to help out those cities having attendance troubles.

There had been reports that Indianapolis, Ind., and Toledo, Ohio, the two weakest money-making franchises, were ready to drop out. But the owners came up with a proposal for a pooling of funds up to 15 per cent of gate receipts.

Other teams: St. Paul, Minn.; Fort Wayne, Ind.; Muskegon, Mich.; Omaha, Neb; Minneapolis, Minn.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Management of San Juan Marlins of the International League was invited Monday to begin negotiating for the rental of Miami Stadium, a boy point in returning the baseball team to Miami from Puerto Rico. League directors recently asked the Marlins to pull out of San Juan because visiting clubs were taking a financial loss from low attendance and high traveling costs. The Marlins were switched from Miami to San Juan after last season.

Tigers Pad Lead

Minn-Twins Again Search For Top

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Camilo Pascual and Pedro Ramos are back in business and Minnesota Twins are battling for the American League lead again.

Who ashe two Cuban right handers each won their first two decisions, the Twins were on top. But when they slipped, losing five in a row between them, Minnesota tumbled to fifth.

Ramos (3-2) bounced back with a 5-4 decision over Los Angeles Angels last Friday. The win started a four-game streak, their longest of the season.

Pascual, after losing three straight, came back with a four-hitter at Chicago Monday night to beat the White Sox 5-0 and kept the now third-place Twins within four-games of front-running Detroit. It also pushed Minnesota within a single game of idle, second-place New York.

The Tigers padded their lead over the Yankees to three games by battering Baltimore 10-5. Cleveland clobbered Boston 13-2, behind the three-hit pitching of Jim Grant, and Kansas City dropped the Angels 5-3 in the only other games scheduled.

NOBODY WALKED

Pascual (3-2) gave up three doubles during the White Sox' four hits, but didn't walk a man. He fanned seven, taking over the AL strikeout lead with 41. It was his first shutout of the season.

Harmon Killebrew had two of the Twins' hits and drove in a run. That gave him a .371 average and replaced the idle of Baltimore's injured Jackie Brandt as the best in the league.

Two runs in the first inning gave it to the Twins and beat Cal McLish (2-3).

The Tigers tagged 15 hits at Baltimore and broke a tie in a five-run seventh inning, with Dick Brown driving in two runs. Dick Hall (1-2) was the loser. Right hander Paul Foytack allowed 11 hits, one a homer by Whitey Herzog, but gained his record at 2-3 with his first complete game.

Red Sox rookie Carl Yastrzemski hammered a two-run homer in the fourth inning. But Johnny Romano hit a two-run homer for the Injuns. Ted Wills (1-3) lost it after coming on in the 6th when starter Tom Brewer suffered a shoulder injury.

Kansas City manager Joe Gordon, sitting in the press box because a general manager Frank Lane believes it to be a better vantage point than the dugout, telephoned instructions for a pinch hitter when the As loaded the bases on walks in the eighth inning, and Lou Klimchock came through with a tie-breaking single. Lefty Bud Daley (4-4) was the winner with reliever Ted Bowsfield (0-1), a native of Penticton, B.C., the loser as the Angels dropped their 11th in a row on the road.

London Play, Film Delve Into Birth of Nazi Regime

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—As the Eichmann trial unfolds in Jerusalem, a play and a film in London are delving into the question: Why was the Nazi regime allowed to happen?

The play is a translation of Jean-Paul Sartre's Les Sequestres d'Altona." It explores the problem not only of German guilt, but of humanity's crime in standing by while crimes against humanity were being committed.

Critic Kenneth Tynan of The Observer calls the play "an act of judgment on the 20th century." He describes it as "one of the few indispensable plays of the past decade."

Sartre, a left-wing playwright who clashed with French authorities last year over the Algerian question, originally wanted to write a play about French atrocities in Algeria.

NO STAGE FOR IT

He abandoned the attempt because "one can't in Paris what would have produced it."

Altona is set in the home of a rich Hamburg industrialist, The elder son, Franz, is a war criminal who has escaped trial by barricading himself for 14 years in the attic.

By the end of Sartre's three-hour analysis, no member of the household is free from guilt.

To plead "I did nothing" is no defence.

Sartre wrote his play long before Adolf Eichmann, the former SS officer charged with crimes against the Jewish people, was arrested in Argentina. But it now has a strong topical angle.

Like Eichmann, the half-mad Franz dictates his defence into a tape-recorder—but he is doing it on an imaginary trial a thousand years hence.

The play tells Menlo Kampf is also drawing crowds in London. This is the story of Hitler's rise and fall, told in extracts from German newsreels.

It includes shots of concentration camps and the Warsaw ghetto when Nazi propaganda ists. They were suppressed when propaganda chief Goebbels "purified" the film industry to allow it a free field to plow. In a recent television play entitled the Executioner tells the story of British and American holidaymakers have to decide what to do after learning that a Nazi war criminal, now living peacefully as a Spanish hotel.

The conscience-probing playwrights are at work in West Germany, too. Rolf Hochhuth's Biedermann and the Arsonists, by Max Frisch, has been running there for two years. It is described by a British critic as "a play with high-speed electric responsibility for nazism — "a parable of appeasement."

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his cabinet get past the food and editorial pages the other day and peeked at the sports news, they might have collaped at a yarn from Paris. It predicted that an ambitious $280,000,000 five - year plan aimed at turning Frenchmen into better athletes.

Diefenbaker and his right-hand men, of course, are always somethling along the same lines. All they have to do is point to a paragraph in the speech from the throne last Nov. 17 that said:

"You will also be asked to consider, means of encouraging the youth of Canada in amateur athletics".

Good. That is they don't get around to this fairly soon, Canada is likely to drop right out of the bottom of the unofficial Olympic point standings.

In the Summer Games at Rome last year, for instance, Canada managed one second-place silver medal by the University of British Columbia eight-oared crew. This was the only time since 1956 that a Canadian team in Olympic history.

FRENCH ACTION

The throne speech was made six months ago and a few months after the unofficial word about the House of Commons and Senate since then. But amateur sports officials are waiting for MPs to sit down and brain out the problem of getting young guys and gals to participate in amateur sports.

Maybe the prime minister and his aides have already discovered the answer to the amateur ulation, but a hint of this was made a few weeks ago in Toronto when a group of amateur officials whispered to reporters that "watch for an announcement from Ottawa." They're still watching.

Political reporters say Parliament may be prorogued early in July. It's likely the question will be introduced before then and, in the event, MPs missed the Paris story and need some ammunition to fire at the government, here's what it said:

A bill was introduced for a total outlay of $280,000,000 over

New Western Series Makes Debut, Woman as Heavy

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Whispering Smith, NBC's new western series, made its debut Monday night with a switch: The heavy was a woman. Of course there was also the usual number of fast draws and barroom brawls, but the high spot came when Audie Murphy as Smith whipped the son she trained to be a killer.

There's been a real trend toward beating up women in westerns this season. Maybe now it's the ladies' turn at bat. Audie Murphy stars as the soft-voiced lawman of the title and singer Guy Mitchell plays his pal.

There was another novel twist in the inevitable shootout at the end. Smith neatly winged the son, but mama grabbed a gun and dispatched her own daughter. And right after Mother's Day, too.

CBS has signed up the production of Graham Greene's The Power and the Glory, with Sir Laurence Olivier and Julie Harris for a special next year. It goes into rehearsal immediately for taping in a couple of weeks.

The Valiant Years, based on Sir Winston Churchill's memoirs, winds up with June Allyson's program, having Churchill resigning as prime minister . . .

The older man he's had David Nelson of Ozzie and Harriet gets married May 20 to actress Lori Nelson. They'll spend the summer with a trapeze act — with Dave serving as the troupe's catcher.

Ernie Kovacs plans a spoof on Loretta Young's TV entrances Thursday night on his ABC program. He'll model her every comb'ation in the business and Bishop will act as the theme, which can now be retired.

London Meds School Seeks Canuck Help

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The Postgraduate Medical School of London is to launch an appeal in Canada later this month. The goal is $1,000,000.

Half of this sum is to provide bursaries for Canadian doctors wanting advanced or specialist training. The other $500,000 will help build a new "study at random floor" or department in the new laboratory block.

In Britain, the appeal organizers hope to add another $5,000,000 to this total.

The school was opened by King George V in 1935. Since then, it has provided post-graduate training for 1,386 doctors from Canada and some 13,000 from other countries.

SHORT OF SPACE

It has always been short of space. The new building planned in the late 1930s had to be scrapped when the Second World War broke out.

At the recent opening of a new wing added by Queen Elizabeth, Sir Lindor Brown, vice-chancellor of the University of London, said the school offers doctors from overseas the best training in their own specialties.

It is drawing ever-increasing numbers from all parts of the Commonwealth and foreign countries, he said.

The prime minister adds that the school in west London is "doing much to spread the world of its achievements in medical research.

Its pioneer work included the first successful experiments with the artificial kidney, artificial heart and lung machines.

During the Second World War it organized crash courses in the medicine and surgery of war for allied medical officers.

Remarks Greenwich Village Bohemian Tires of Hearing

By HAL BOYLE

"Algernon isn't really afraid of work. He can go down right by it and fall asleep."

"We regret our little magazine cannot publish your poetry. The Rosebud Dinosaur and the Purple Pterodactyl Dinner Party of its technical approaches were interesting, three of our four judges, unfortunately, could not understand it."

"He used to read his poetry at a coffee house until, after business began to fall off, the proprietor appointed Algernon was being subsidized by the State."

"Algernon believes in free love—as long as the girl buys the drinks."

"I know you are careless about what the world thinks, Algernon, but would you please quit scratching! It looks so plebeian."

A FAILURE

"Don't speak to him now. He's heartbroken. His first novel refused to prostitute his art by writing something people would read, and they turned it down. They said it was too commercial."

"Algernon was turned off by being a character. Now he's just a sick if charming bore."

"Herewith is returned your sonnet, Life is a Garbage Can, Endlessly Spilling. The poetry editor had a number of comments on the subordinate all of which we feel it politic to spare you."

"Why, I wouldn't call Algernon a beatnik. How could you? He never was beaten. He never put up a fight."

"You're really in dutch with the fashion police. Only two periods you wrote to help his son get into Princeton, and Algernon not only caused the kid to get thrown out of the class—the principal, by insisting he won't let him back until the boy has learned to spell."

POOR ALGERNON

"Algernon, you had the gall to say that Rembrandt's your turn to sleep on the floor."

In the interests of poetry, our publication is willing to offer you $15 for your 1,315-page thymeless novel, Ruts in the Colmoe, on two conditions: That you burn it, and (3) you forget you ever wrote it."

"Gee, I'd just love to stay and help you recite your poetry, Algernon, but I'm already late to another wake."

San Juan Blanks Vees, Jets Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The San Juan Marlins, whose financial blessings seem to be almost unlimited so far in the International Baseball League, are picking up some dandy additions what must be one of the richest players in the loop.

He's Art Washburn, a 22-year old pitcher who cost the St. Louis Cards $80,000 in bonus money last year — eight times more than any rookie ever collected so far in gate receipts.

Monday night, he picked up his second win, a seven - inning lone defeat with a five-hit, 3-0 shutout over Richmond Virginians in one of two games that survived a night of bad weather. Leaguewide, Columbus beat Jersey City 4-1 while Toronto's doubleheader at Buffalo and Syracuse at Rochester were rained out.

Washburn in handing Richmond its first shutout of the season, faced only 29 batters and didn't issue a walk. He struck out nine, twice as many as in previous appearances. His other victory was a shutout over Toronto in his first appearance.

COUNT IN THIRD

The Marlins scored all of their runs on four hits in a third-inning splurge against loser Art Ceccarini. Harry Watts homered in the inning while Julio Gotay singled home the second run and Johnny Orsini's triple scored the third.

Bob Veale ran his league-leading total of strikeouts to 49, fanning eight Jerseys in Columbus' victory. Home runs by Johnny Schaive and Ed Sadat, and Don Clendenon's two - run triple got Columbus its runs. Diomedes Olivo and Earl Francisco relieved Veale in the eighth and held a budding Jersey City rally to two runs. Mike Cuellar was the loser.

This time, instead of throwing the thing away, I have kept it. Today I have written a letter to the grown trout bed in it. I bought it, asking for instructions on how to make the thing work. Now we shall see what happens. If and when anything happens, I'll let you know.

As stated earlier, the buyers have a word for it. Caveat Emptor — let the buyer beware. When it comes to guaranteed, no-nonsense fishing lures, I might be well to consider that ancient warning.

"Let The Buyer Beware"

Every now and again there appears in the public print an advertisement extolling the merits of some fishing lure or other, publishing "Aunt Minnie's" photographs of pleased people hoofing up for dingay lucre-fish by lazy fishermen which have been brought to untimely ends by these amazing lures. Always these lures are offered with a "satisfaction or money refunded" guarantee.

I suppose that some folks do actually return these lures to their sources and ask for the refund of the purchase price. More often the buyers use the lures, find out the hard way that they are no better, than lures already on the market (at cheaper prices) and consign them to discard, chalking up the entire transaction to experience.

The lawyers have a word for it — Caveat Emptor — which, roughly translated, means "let the buyer beware." This is indeed an apt admonition.

You who read, this column know that I love and like them! I will pass along to you a tip on a good, serviceworthy piece of equipment. It may (this item be a new article of clothing, a new shotgun, a new fishing reel, or, sometimes but not often, a fishing lure. These tips are offered for what they are worth. Never do I form entangling alliances with any of the manufacturers. Thus, with no friend to please, I can speak my mind freely, letting (to mix metaphors) the chips fall where they may.

Quite some years ago there appeared in the pages of The Saturday Evening Post an article dealing with the activities of a young lady who lived, I believe, in Colorado. This gal manufactured and sold to hatrost fishermen a fly of sorts that she called "The Woolly Worm." I have heard that she was swamped with orders. In any event, her Woolly Worm is just about as devastating a trout lure as has ever been devised.

By the same token, back in the 1932 I wrote a magazine article introducing to a waiting world a lure called "The Minkey Finn." If you are an ardent fly fisherman you know that this is a bucktail streamer fly, with a ribbed silver body and a wing of red fox and yellow bucktail. Today it would be difficult to find a single tackle bin among the nation's fly fishers that does not include at least one Minkey Finn. One thing really does catch fish to beat the band. Moreover, the color scheme has been utilized in just about every type of fishing lure op the market today.

NO STRINGS ATTACHED

I mention these things merely to show that there actually are innovations in fishing lures which catch fish slightly better than the ones presently available at the time. You will note that these lures were not offered with high-speed electric reels and money-back guarantees. Instead, they were handed out gratis, with no strings attached. And that's the way this things should be handled.

Being in the business in which I happen to find myself, always I have it a point to order the "wonder" lures when they appear on the market. I like to keep abreast with what goes on in the fishing world. In so doing I have learned many amazing things. Not useful — just amazing.

Some years ago there appeared on the market a rather ominous bundle of high-speed advertising, advising me that the sender was in possession of a secret method for catching bass. The fellow offered to sell me this secret, plus a surefire, deadly fishing lure, for only fifteen dollars. One of the stipulations of the sale was that I, on my honor as a gentleman, would not reveal this secret to another angler.

Well, I sent in my order and fifteen dollars. In return I received a few mimeographed sheets of detailed and repetitious instructions and a thirty-five cent wooden spoon. Being a gentleman and a man of honor I have managed to keep it from another angler. Actually, there was no need to reveal anything in any event. The secret method had been known to me since I was a little boy. The method was just about as secret as the location of the information booth in Grand Central Station.

Last March my good wife received in her bonnet a letter from a shopping trip in Miami. There was a broad smile on her face and a package in hand which she presented to me with a flourish. His other ceremony thanked her and opened the package.

There was a "guaranteed" fishing lure; with it you catch fish or you can get your money back. Several times I have used this wonder lure when Capt. Bill Mann and I have been out on Florida Bay. I have yet to catch a fish on it, even while trolling next to Bill who is busy catching sea trout, one after another.

Last February there appeared in one of the New York newspapers an advertisement telling of a new, self-propelled fishing lure which operates entirely on its own luring. All you have to do is to cast it out and let it lure by itself. It is sold for only something under three dollars. I sent in my order and, naturally, the thing arrived, very pretty in its red and yellow finish.

One afternoon two of my fishing friends and I took the thing out to the proven trout bed in Florida Bay. We followed directions meticulously. We filled the magazine with proper amount of propellant and "printing" the head. Preparations complete we cast it out over the productive waters. There it sat sullenly on the surface. We watched it for 15 minutes. Nothing happened. We brought it in and reread the directions, and repeated the process. Still nothing hap-

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Kim Novak's Gowns by Kim Novak.

Something like that is scheduled to appear, among the creations of her new movie Notorious Landlady. This is the latest development in the burgeoning career of Kim Novak, artist-designer.

Don't scoff. At a current exhibition of Hollywood art, there was genuine excitement over two canvases by Miss Novak. Now she's adding a new dimension by designing her clothes in Landlady.

At a rehearsal for the film she said: "I just flunked my mother. I had been doing a painting of her, and I had wanted to finish it before I started the film. So I got up at 5 and worked all morning.

"I think it turned out well. It's a likeness: I'm not one of those who flatter. Anyway, you should look like anything but the subject. I get the features down and then I go from there in adding my own interpretation of the subject's life.

"I guess people are surprised by my art, but they shouldn't be. After all, I had a scholarship to the Chicago Art Institute. I studied for three years."

What about the dress designing?

"It happened by accident," she said. "I love Jean Louis' clothes and wished him for the picture, but he was unavailable. So I volunteered to do them myself.

"I didn't realize how much work was involved — going around to the stores and finding materials. But it has worked out well for both of us: I've had the satisfaction of meeting the challenge and the studio gets the designs without paying for them.

"Wouldn't it be funny if I got the Oscar for best costume design!"

SPECIAL TO ALL WOMEN, SPECIAL TO ALL WOMEN, SPECIAL TO ALL WOMEN, Confederation May Not Live To See Its 100th Birthday Says Quebec Secessionist

By ROGER TETREAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The leader of one of Quebec's three secessionist movements says Confederation may not live to celebrate its 100th birthday in 1967.

Andre D'Allemagne, president of le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale, (the National Independence Rally) says there is a good chance that Quebec will secede from Canada within the next few years.

"I feel our generation will either lead the province to independence or fall in its last chance to do so," he said in an interview.

Mr. D'Allemagne, a 31-year-old University of Montreal graduate, was elected president of the rally at its first meeting last September. Since then, the movement has attracted university students, intellectuals and radio and television artists in Montreal and Hull-Ottawa. It reports a paid membership of more than 500.

INDEPENDENCE SOLE AIM

The Rassemblement considers itself non-political.

"When people join our movement we don't care if they believe in socialism, capitalism, liberalism or conservatism," Mr. D'Allemagne said. "All we want is that they be firm supporters of the independence movement."

He also emphasized that the rally's approach is non-violent.

"We are all well versed in the benefits of democracy and we can easily achieve our goal through legislation."

Improved communications have enhanced Quebec's chances of independence by bringing the people closer together, Mr. D'Allemagne said, but they have also made the problem more urgent by extending Anglo-Saxon influence.

"This may be our last chance to obtain freedom. French-Canadians have reached a point where they are on the verge of being assimilated by the Anglo-Saxon element that surrounds them."

REACTIONS MIXED

He thought English-speaking Canadians would greet Quebec's departure with mixed feelings. Some of the richer provinces would oppose it because it would increase their financial burden. Other provinces might be more interested in joining the United States.

"Some may even want us to secede because they rightly feel we are a handicap to their development. When important matters are brought before the federal government, Quebec is often in a position to influence its decision against another province."

HEADS SECESSIONISTS

Andre D'Allemagne, 31, leader of Le Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale (National Independence Rally), is an advocate of Quebec's secession from Canada. A graduate of the University of Montreal, he says secession may come before the centenary of Confederation in 1967. Mr. D'Allemagne was elected president at the rally's first meeting last September and the group now claims a paid membership of 500. (CP Photo).

The rally invites the public to its monthly sessions and has set up committees to study a variety of subjects.

Secession would not necessarily mean isolation from the rest of Canada, Mr. D'Allemagne said.

"The only difference would be that we would be independent of Ottawa and would negotiate on an even basis.

"French - Canadians are a majority in Quebec and have their own way of life, culture and language. There is no reason why the rest of Canada should dictate to us on matters which we look on from different points of view."

TRAMPLED TO DEATH

TUXPAN, Mexico (AP)—Hundreds of moviegoers panicked and four persons were trampled to death when someone shouted a false fire alarm at a local movie theatre Sunday. Seven other persons were seriously injured. Police were unable to find the person who gave the false alarm.

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Hope for the yearning childless, a different viewpoint on the best treatment for tuberculosis and a new test for the blind.

HOPE

Can a childless couple still have hope after the woman passes her 30th birthday?

Medical statistics covering 29,000,000 live births in the United States in the 1948-1958 decade show the birth of a first child to a woman over 30 occurs more often than the birth of quadruplets to women of all childbearing ages. The figures also show:

Women 40-44 in New York City are three times as likely to give birth to a live child as they are to suffer death in an accident. The live birth to a woman 45-49 years old is more frequent than birth to triplets.

ELECTRONIC CANE

Two researchers have developed an electronic cane for the blind.

The device, which is being field tested, can be carried like a small brief case. It shoots out pulses of infra-red light. When the beam strikes an object up to 10 feet away, it is reflected back to a photo-electric cell in the cane and triggers a buzzer.

The user then can press a button, which cuts the range of the beam to five feet. This gives a rough estimate of the distance of the object.

BED REST FOR TB?

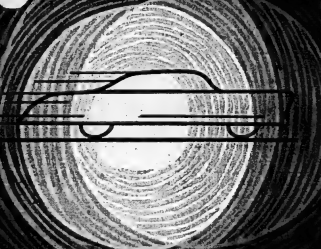
A report in 32 London TB patients treated with such drugs was carried in What's New, a publication of Abbott Laboratories.

Some of the patients were put in bed to start. The others remained in bed only if they felt ill. They were allowed to do what they wished, short of becoming breathless or fatigued.

The groups were assessed after six months and one year. No difference was found in the rate of recovery. Patients in the rest group were off work twice as long as those in the unrestricted group.

The doctors who conducted the tests said long periods of bed rest should not be prescribed until proof of its value in the treatment is shown.



NEW CITIZENS

Canada granted citizenship to 62,978 immigrants in 1960, compared with 91,369 the previous year.

BP
MAXIMUM ENERGY GASOLINES
give your car the full power you pay for

No matter what the octane rating of the gasoline you now use, other important factors in refining and blending determine whether that gasoline delivers its full power in every cylinder of your car. And because you want the full power you pay for, because you want the maximum mile-gaining benefits of gasolines with superior octane, processed and blended to release maximum energy, then power your car with BP Super or BP Regular . . . the world's most thoroughly tested motor fuels.

BP experience makes maximum energy fuels possible. More than half a century of knowledge and skill — gained in 42 countries and 16 refineries — go into every tankful of BP gasoline. Starting with superior petroleum components, BP refines them to meet the world's highest standards of quality, and season-by-season combines them in perfectly balanced blends that make every engine cylinder a maximum-power unit. Into these balanced blends go all the extra components that assure a clean engine, clean spark plugs and valves, instant starting, fast warm-up, knock-free performance. Each adds to better utilization of the maximum energy released by the gasolines.

To give you further assurance of maximum performance in every tankful of BP gasoline, its components are tested and re-tested 110 times.

Put BP maximum energy gasoline to the final test right in your car. You can feel the difference in acceleration and power. And it will be even greater when you give your engine the maximum protection of BP Visco-Static all weather motor oil.

NORTH BAY (CP) — A 150-foot section of the Alberta-Eastern Canada natural gas pipeline exploded near here today, sending a spray of rocks over nearby homes and shooting flames 500 feet in the air.

Four people were slightly injured as the 30-inch main line of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited detonated deafeningly.

The explosion rocked a lightly-populated area a few miles from North Bay, not far from the Ville Marie highway, and set off dozens of bush fires over a wide area. The flames were brought under control 90 minutes after the initial blast at 2:45 a.m.

There were some close escapes. Two boulders plunged through the roof of the one-storey home of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Weir, about 300 feet from the blast. Mrs. Weir and her two children, Bruce, 4, and Julia, 2, were taken to hospital for a check-up. A spokesman said they are in satisfactory condition. A spokesman for Trans-Canada Pipe Lines said he understood Mrs. Weir suffered slight burns as they left their home while surrounding grass was burning.

Another neighbor, Mrs. Rene Fex, was also injured by flying rock. She was not believed to be in serious condition.

HOUSE DAMAGED

The Weir home was badly damaged. One of the boulders that struck it went through the kitchen floor into the basement, and the kitchen stove was pulled six feet across the room. All electrical fixtures were ripped out.

The thundering explosion and the following fires resulted in bedlam and confusion. Some residents said it brought fears of a nuclear explosion. The more realistic base is being constructed nearby.

Boulders rained down 500 feet away, and one three-ton rock was hurled 50 feet.

Flames lighted the area for miles as a roar like thunder sounded like jet aircraft taking off. This led to early reports that RCAF aircraft were being evacuated.

Green States Parley Is Laos' Last Chance

GENEVA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Howard Green of Canada told the international conference on Laos today that the 14-power meeting may afford the last opportunity for a just and enduring settlement in Laos.

"Not only must Laos be free from domination from the outside but it must not be handed over to the control of any one of the parties to the present conflict," he said.

The conference would be most likely to succeed if it based itself on the 1954 Geneva agreement, the minister said.

Addressing this morning's session of the conference, Green said Canada expects the conference "to produce a settlement which will result in independent, unified and neutral Laos to live in peace with its neighbors and to preserve its internal difficulties."

He said Canada's interest is centred on the successful functioning of the International Control Commission, made up of Canada, India and Poland.

MUST HELP COMMISSION

"That commission has now returned to Laos and it is a responsibility of this conference and Canada expects the conference "to produce a settlement which will result in independent, unified and neutral Laos to live in peace with its neighbors and to preserve its internal difficulties."

He said Canada's interest is centred on the successful functioning of the International Control Commission, made up of Canada, India and Poland.

MUST HELP COMMISSION

"That commission has now returned to Laos and it is a responsibility of this conference and Canada expects the conference to define the terms under which the commission is to function in the future and to provide the conditions and give it the means to enable it to function effectively both now and in the future."

Green said that those conditions, most of which were immediately applicable, should include:

1. The full co-operation of all parties;

2. Prompt access to all areas and military installations at the discretion of the commission;

3. Independent and adequate means of land and air transport and the facilities for their maintenance. Helicopters were specially important;

4. An independent system of communications;

5. Guarantees for the physical safety of its personnel;

6. Full information as to the quantity, types and disposition of all military material and armed forces, at the time of the cease-fire and after;

7. Effective methods of supervising and controlling the entry of military personnel and war material into Laos;

8. A clear definition of the responsibilities of the commission with respect to all threats to the security of the Laotian state.

Military Junta Extends Hold On Government

Army Digging in Around Seoul

SEOUL (Reuters) — Revolutionary troops of the South Korean Army began digging themselves in around Seoul today amid growing uncertainty about the amount of support the rebel junta commands throughout the country.

The troops began digging anti-tank ditches, trenches and machine-gun nests on the road north of Seoul, which they occupied Tuesday in a bloodless coup.

Meanwhile, the United States put new pressure on the military dictatorship. It set up "unauthorized military body" meeting in defiance orders of the United Nations command."

A senior U.S. Embassy official said the junta believes that the United States continued to recognize the government of Dr. John Chang as the only legal and constitutional administration of the republic.

STAYS NEUTRAL

The commander of the South Korean 1st Field Army said the junta a blow by ordering his troops to remain neutral. The junta Tuesday claimed his support.

The junta nevertheless pushed ahead today with its takeover of government agencies.

It was reported to have arrested five South Korean cabinet ministers including foreign minister Ti Hung Chang. But the whereabouts of Dr. Chang were still unknown.

But the U.S. Embassy official, quoted by Reuter, also smoked by yesterday by Lord Home, British foreign secretary.

He said the United States does not wish to see any new cold-staging area or as a thoroughfare for agents of subversion, saboteurs or guerrilla bands to operate against Laos' neighbors."

A lawyer, he was born at Madoc, where he still lives.

Nuns, Priests Ousted From Cuba Greet Native Land With 'O Canada'

MONTREAL (CP) — All 61 passengers on a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane broke out spontaneously with O Canada as they touched down on terra firma for a landing here Tuesday night.

Most of the priests were back home for the first time in more than a decade.

But it was an involuntary return to their native country.

Nuns and priests, they were ousted by the Communist regime because the government took over their convents and colleges.

The following Premier Fidel Castro's announcement closing all religious schools.

Three of the 64 originally scheduled to return on the TCA flight elected to stay in Cuba at the last minute, and some 40 Canadian missionaries still remain there.

All those returning Tuesday night wouldn't answer any political questions because of the 60-odd who stayed behind.

U.S. Will Pull Military Men From Laos if Reds Do Too

GENEVA—U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk called today for withdrawal of all military forces from Laos and said the Communists are violating the cease-fire in the troubled Southeast Asian kingdom.

Rusk told the international conference that the United States is willing to pull out its military mission from Laos of Communist North Vietnam does the same.

He offered the conference a three-point plan that closely paralleled the one proposed yesterday by Lord Home, British foreign secretary.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green of Canada backed up this request. He asked that the commission be guaranteed the full cooperation of all parties in the Laotian crisis, prompt access to all areas of the country and full information on the arms held by both sides.

He also asked the conference to give a clear definition of the responsibilities of the commission in dealing with threats to the security of the Laotian state.

Lord Home told the meeting that a new report from the Canadian - Indian - Polish international control commission had been received. A British spokesman said it confirmed that "some sporadic fighting is continuing" but it was not immediately clear who was taking significant.

Two K's Likely to Meet In Vienna on June 3rd

VIENNA (Reuters) — The United States has informally asked the Austrian government whether a meeting between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev can be held in Vienna, authoritative sources said here today.

These sources said the proposed meeting date on June 3 or June 3. So far there was no approach yet from the Soviet Union, they added.

A senior Austrian official told a reporter: "I do not doubt that the two statesmen will meet in Vienna on June 3."

However, Soviet Embassy officials here maintained they had nothing about any such meeting.

But reliable sources said that several senior officials of the Russian Embassy had been called to Moscow in connection with the reported forthcoming visit.

An Austrian government spokesman told a correspondent that if the two statesmen decided to meet in Vienna, the Austrian government would restrict its activities to "purely protocol obligations."

The Washington correspondents of all Paris papers gave the same date and place for the first "K and K" session.

They added an official announcement of a meeting would be made in a few days.

Most Communist reports said the prospect of the Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting added increasing weight to the forthcoming talks between the U.S. leader and Prime Minister Charles de Gaulle. Kennedy will be in France May 31 - June 2.

The New York Times reported today that official sources in Washington said agreement has been reached on an informal conference between Kennedy and Khrushchev.

Castro Regime Attacked by Labor Congress

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Congress of Labor has made a strong condemnation of the part of the United States in the abortive invasion of Cuba as U.S. President Kennedy was visiting the Canadian capital.

At the same time, the 1,100,000-member congress, Canada's biggest labor body, attacked "the dictatorial nature of the Castro regime" in Cuba.

Govt. Proposes to Broaden Benefits to Some Servicemen

Veterans Affairs Minister Lucien Cardin outlined in general terms government proposals to broaden benefits under the War Veterans Allowance Act originally passed in 1930 to aid pensionable servicemen of the First World War—Canada's so-called "burned-out" veterans.

Cardin said the bill will be disclosed when the bill itself is given first reading in the wake of the industry resolution.

This mentions bigger monthly allowances, higher income ceilings for recipients, more exemptions on property and "income, modified conditions of eligibility and certain administrative changes.

Mr. Churchill said the All-wars Act and the Pensions Act for disabled pensions constitute the basic fabric of legislative enactments on veterans' welfare.

Since 1930, the act had aided 158,867 veterans and 28,075 widows and orphans. At present 47,284 veterans and 19,266 dependents were drawing assistance.

Numbers had increased steadily as veterans found themselves unable to find work due to war service debility not attributable to pensions.

Chesley W. Carter (L—Burin-Burgeo) said he hoped for a speedy passage of the legislation and also that it would be extended to cover classifications such as the merchant navy.

Today, the Commons was to sit only for two hours in the morning and another afternoon business to the address by President Kennedy to a joint sitting of Senate and Commons.

May Bring Unified Parley Delegation

BAN NAMONE, Laos (AP)—The royal Laotian government and rebel delegates reached a compromise agreement here today on principles of forming a coalition government and a joint military committee to help police the ceasefire.

It was the first important breakthrough since formal talks opened here Sunday. And it could pave the way for sending one unified delegate to the Geneva nation conference in Geneva.

The delegates are to meet in this jungle-ringed town north of Vientiane again Friday to start talks officials of Premier Boun Oum's government. Talks of a cease - fire policing group will follow.

Both sides today talked of a Laotian summit meeting between leaders of the right-wing royal government in Vientiane, the Pathet Lao rebels and Prince Souvanna Pouma's coalition neutrals. But there was no firm agreement to hold such a meeting.

The compromise agreement gave the Pathet Lao and neutralists the main demand—that quick formation of a coalition government to get priority in discussing matters at the talks.

But the rebel groups agreed to the royal government's proposal for a joint military group to work with the international control commission in checking the cease-fire, another major concern of the government.

At the close of today's meeting the two delegations met inside made statements saying the talks were friendly and for the first real progress had been made.

Engineer Waits Offer of Job In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Australian engineer Terry Whitfield was waiting for a job here a week today so he can marry the pretty Salmon girl he met on vacation in Canada.

Miss Whitfield, 26, was dismissed from a radar installation at Cape Dyer, Baffin Island, on the ground he violated an employment rule by "fraternizing" with an Eskimo, Elizabaird Anne Whitaluk, 25.

The couple arrived here Monday night from Ottawa, determined to go ahead with wedding plans. They set a date for their marriage.

"We'll go to Australia as a base of operations until something comes up," Mr. Whitfield said.

They will live "where ever Terry gets a job," he said. Former airline hostess, added.

Mr. Whitfield said he was dismissed from the service by the Employment Act forbidding fraternizing with Eskimos and Indians, "except in special circumstances." The rule was designed to protect the morals of northern Canadian natives.

He said there was no sex and does not prevent them from marrying.

"You can marry an Eskimo but you can't court her first," Mr. Whitfield said.

Mr. Whitfield came to Canada from Australia in 1957 and has worked as an electrical engineer and diesel mechanic in uranium mines and construction projects across Canada.

Expect Canada To Give Kennedy Polite Rebuff

Unable to Make Pledge To Aid Latin America

Mr. Kennedy drove in an open convertible to the memorial in Confederation Square in the heart of the capital after visiting the U.S. Embassy's chancery office nearby. He placed a wreath, white and blue ribbon, tied with a red, white and blue striped bow, at the war memorial.

The American national anthem was played by the 45-man regiment—of Canadian Guards band as a salute, and he inspected the guard's 100-man guard of honor drawn up in front of the monument.

The crowd was estimated as high as 10,000.

During the playing of the two countries' national anthems, Mr. Kennedy looked at the 11-foot-high bronze figures of peace and freedom atop the monument. The eight bronze figures of 23 representatives of Canada's armed forces, air force, medical corps and nursing service, commemorating Canada's dead in the World War.

Mr. Kennedy, wearing an Oxford grey suit and plain navy blue tie, and carrying his hat in his left hand, looked intently during the playing of the anthems.

Mr. Kennedy smiled and waved to the cheering crowds, mostly tourists and government office workers turned loose from their desks for the occasion.

As they turned to enter the East Block door, two women reached out.

Mr. Kennedy shook hands with them. They were Mrs. Mary Mrs. Glen Spallin, employees of the transport department's prices stabilization board.

"He's wonderful," said Mrs. Spallin. "He's a real man."

Mrs. Bolton said the president gave them "a great big smile," but said nothing to them.

Before his visit to the war memorial, the president spent 25 minutes at the U.S. Embassy chancery to meet staff and talk to Americans away from home. He told the staff they are carrying the torch of freedom in "hazardous and difficult days."

He voiced "our country's appreciation for the work you are doing in this responsible post."

He said Americans away from home may feel unappreciated at times.

"Presidents have that feeling also," he told the staff.

He met two Canadians with long service on the staff. They are Melburn Killeen, a general services assistant, and Frank T. Weber, a chief security assistance.

Short, bare, Irishmen sil, shook hands and chatted briefly.

At one point during the short drive, Mr. Kennedy chatted a small girl with a camera called out: "Smile, Jackie!" and the president obliged with a broad smile while she snapped his picture.

Young Mother, Two Companions Questioned in Children's Deaths

OAKLAND, Calif. (CP) — Police questioned a young mother and two woman companions today about the slaying of two small children whose bodies were found last Friday in a shallow grave. The bodies of the children had been sexually molested, officers said.

Police said Mrs. Gertrude Mae Jackson, 25, formerly of Eugene, Ore., and Mrs. Lena Freeman, 19, of Culver, Ore., told conflicting stories about the deaths of Mrs. Jackson's children, Marsha, 4, and Larry, 5.

Each accused the other of beating the youngsters with a wire three police said. Miss Freeman said the mother beat the children in the car, then forced her to wait on the high-way while she (Mrs. Jackson) drove across a bridge spanning Crooked River Canyon and dropped the bodies into the foot gorge.

Detective Ulloted Mrs. Jackson as saying both women agreed to get rid of the children and Miss Freeman bludgeoned them, that Mrs. Jackson then carried the bodies to the gorge and Miss Freeman threw the other.

The third woman was quoted as saying she knew nothing about the slayings. Letha June Little, 21, claimed she was a hitchhiker who had been picked up by the other two after the killings.

Neither Mrs. Jackson or Miss Freeman explained how the children were sexually molested, police said. They gave no reason for the slaying.

Industrial Body And Council Hold Meeting

Members of city council met Tuesday afternoon in an informal session with the Belleville Industrial Commission to discuss ways of working out some definite policy on how industry might be attracted to the city.

A week ago the Industrial Commission met in camera seeking direction on the matter and the joint informal session was arranged.

It was generally agreed that no definite policy could be adopted, it being felt that cooperation was needed in most instances rather than material assistance.

IN MEMORIAM

MATTER. In loving memory of Bertha Louise Matter, who was called to sleep suddenly May 17th, 1958.

Those sweet memories, dear, we treasure
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright
And joyful until we our shining light.

We miss that light, and ever will,
Her vacant chair, her home is still.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain
For we with heaven we will meet again.

—Lovingly remembered by Mom, Dad and Family.

HATTER. In loving memory of a dear friend, Barbara Hayter, who passed away May 17th, 1958.

Three years have passed since you to live with God on high;
Your memory we will remain,
With me until I die.
Sadly missed and always remembered by Mary Mayhew.

PASCOE. — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Charles Pascoe, who passed away May 17th, 1954.

We cannot know the sad days back
His hands we cannot touch;
But we have memories
Of the one we loved so much.
Sadly missed by Dad, brothers and sisters.

Council Supplied With Facts At Time Request For More School Rooms Made Says Bd.

The answer to a city council request as to why a six-roomed addition could be necessary for the Harry J. Clarke school in East Belleville even before the school is completed, was provided by public school board members at their monthly meeting Monday evening.

Trustees turned the meeting into a spirit discussion, following a letter last week following a city council request that additional questions wondered why an unbuilt school was already too small.

Council had been asked to give approval to an estimated $130,000 expenditure to provide a six-roomed addition to the school. Council granted the request but asked the public city manager to inquire into the details.

Council also wondered why a new school, costing an estimated $100,000, was required in the Parkdale area, when two two-roomed additions had been built in West Belleville last year, ostensibly to take care of Parkdale pupils.

But in discussing the city council query board members had the satisfaction of knowing that at the time of the request council had already been supplied with the facts.

LETTER WITH REQUEST

Chairman of the board's building committee, William A. VanTassel noted an accompanying letter from the city council request of January 7 asked for "a statement of the present need and cost of the additional classroom space, had gone to council along with the request for financial approval.

The letter also indicated the board would welcome the opportunity to meet with council informally in order to provide any further information which individual councillors may desire.

The information sheet had outlined under five headings the needs for additional school accommodation the size and locations of accommodation required; receipt of Ontario Department of Education approval and an estimate of the cost of the two additional structures

ALL SPACE IN USE

It was pointed out that a survey of the present school accommodation indicated all available school space was now in use and that the Harry J. Clarke school would open in September with all rooms filled and with classes of approximately 40 pupils for each teacher.

There had been a 200 pupil increase in enrolment at September, 1960, over September, 1959, with June and the same increase was expected for 1961. The Harry J. Clarke school was a functional school accommodation which was proposed to be built in the area where most needed. When completed, if possible, in September, 1961, the accommodation the two buildings provided, would be sufficient only for the estimated enrolment at that time.

BUILDING DELAYS

Members of the school board admitted planning procedures might seem lacking when proposals were made to add to a building as yet uncompleted, but it was pointed out, some of the factors limiting the delays had to be understood and taken into consideration.

The site for the Harry J. Clarke school was purchased in the fall of 1958 and proposals for the building were made to the Department of Education in the spring of 1959. Approval had been granted at that time.

However, local difficulties by municipal government and problems of servicing the site caused lengthy delays and although the children were ready to attend school in September, 1960, the building could not possibly be ready until January, 1961.

These children, it was pointed out, are now housed on the basement rooms and playrooms throughout the city. One room has only two small cellar type windows for lighting and ventilation and these are about eight feet above the floor level.

PROCEDURE DIFFICULT

The board admits it may appear desirable to plan ahead and have classrooms available as enrolments increase, but it was pointed out such a procedure is difficult.

The Department of Education deals with an unprecedented demand for grant funds and carefully scans each application to make sure that classroom space will not be idle even for a year.

In answer to a suggestion made at last week's council meeting by Mayor A. M. Haig that soon double shifts of school students may be necessary to obtain more effective and efficient use of school buildings, the board points out that the Department of Education regulates the hours which children are to attend school.

There seems little question that unless the board directs otherwise, pupils registered for the present small accommodation for study at 9 a.m. and be dismissed not later than 4 p.m.

Every pupil shall be allowed at least one hour for recreation in the forenoon and a recess of at least 10 minutes during the morning and afternoon sessions.

WOULD CUT GRANTS

The regulations also call for not less than five hours a day of instruction including morning and afternoon recesses, although the board may reduce the school day to a minimum of four-and-a-half hours for the pupils in kindergarten and grades 1, 2 and 3.

However, if primary classes operate for less than the time the provincial legislature grants for these classes the board may have the operation does not comply with the requirement of "5 hours a day."

Since the board request for financing approval of the additional classroom accommodation the city manager has been asked for additional information as council might require.

This information shows that the first survey for a modern building was completed and announced by the board in 1946.

Since that time, with two major exceptions, the board has never opened a new school building or an addition, which was not filled with a full load per classroom as soon as it was ready for use.

EXCEPTIONS NOTED

The exceptions noted were the opening of Queen Elizabeth Churchill School of seven classrooms which opened with only two classes and a library room at the Prince Charles School which was not available until January 1961 and there was no place where a kindergarten class could be organized, Other classrooms and teachers are awaiting the future until September, 1961 rather than disturb children in their schools.

It was pointed out that Bellefield public school was filled the highest enrolments of 33 small and cramped sized classes in Ontario. Also the costs per pupil in Belleville public schools compared favorably over other than in similar Ontario cities and towns. Also the two sexes can be separated from the general costs of education.

Also the cost per classroom are the lowest in some instances, considerably lower, than in the cities referred to above.

The average load per classroom in Ontario public schools is 30 children and the load in the past 13 years the load in Belleville has ranged between 31 and 33 per room per classroom with an even distribution of boys and girls.

WILL JUST HOLD LINE

But unfortunately school districts do not produce children in packages of 30 and with the present average of 34.5 pupils per room in Belleville, 10 per cent of the classrooms have 40 or more children enrolled.

If Belleville however enrolment in city public schools by one child per classroom it would, require five additional classrooms.

Thirty children per teacher in Belleville is only a hope" notes Mr. Kells "and the present prospects do not lower enrolments, but will just hold the line below 35 for September 1961."

He said the opening of the Queen Elizabeth School will give no relief whatever.

"Temporarily the windfall is full now; children are in basements and in playrooms in other school buildings."

Jack Armstrong Shoots Wolf At Glen Ross

A 50-lb. female brush wolf was shot this morning by Jack Armstrong on his farm four miles north of Frankford at Glen Ross.

Mr. Armstrong had finished the morning milking, at seven o'clock and was pouring the last of the milk into the can at the milk stand when he noticed the wolf in a 15-acre field next to the barn.

He ran to the house for his deer rifle and killed the wolf with two shots from a distance of about 150 yards.

"I was just lucky", Mr. Armstrong told the Ontario Intelligencer. "The wolf was limping with the first shot and killed it with the second shot."

Mr. Armstrong said he had no way of knowing whether the female wolf was a lone animal or whether there were others in the area. He said his neighbors reported seeing a wolf but he said there was a possibility it was the same animal he shot. There is a 300-acre woods next to the field where the wolf was shot.

Mr. Armstrong will forward the dead wolf to Toronto to collect his bounty.

West Lake Boy Hit in Abdomen By Rifle Bullet

A six-year-old Prince Edward County boy is in the county hospital at Picton suffering accidentally shot in the abdomen with a .22 rifle.

Police said that Steve McBlokon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McBlokon, West Lake, was shot in the lower abdomen when the rifle in the hands of a 12-year-old friend accidentally discharged.

The youth was said to have been using the rifle to shoot starlings and had a young friend on watch at the McBlokon boy to get out of range, when the rifle discharged. The bullet went through an outhouse and lodged in the small boy's abdomen.

The boy was in the operating table for over four hours last night.

George Norval New Foremen's Club President

George Norval of American Optical has been elected president for 1961-62 of the Y.M.C.A. affiliated Quinte District Foremen's Club. He succeeds Clarence Langdeer of Mead Johnson.

Mr. Norval and five other officers were elected last night as the club wound up its activities until this fall.

Others inducted by executive secretary DI Diamantides of the YMCA, were Ken Gander of Northern Electric, first vice-president; Glen Cormier of Rhodi Chemicals, Shipbide, second vice-president; Nick Danelick of Canada Cement, treasurer; William Paradis of Northern Electric, secretary; Frank Gradeness, of Northern Electric, Canadian Council representative and public relations officer.

Major John Carter of the Belleville Salvation Army corps delivered a sermonette about a "disease" he called "spectatoritis." He said there appeared to be a tendency among people these days to sit back and watch the world go by as if they were watching a football game on TV. While "spectatoritis" when applied to watching TV is not injurious, it is a term to use in relations when carried into everyday life. He suggested that people should not remove themselves and steadfastly try to live as good citizens with no one a tall order, but altogether impossible to fill.

Fish and Game Postpones Kiddies' Derby

The "Kiddies' Fish Derby" planned by the Belleville Fish and Game Association was postponed from last weekend because by meeting at the Club Canara last night.

It had been suggested to secure a "piece" of a creek in the district and then with trout to give the youngsters a day of catching their own fish.

Interested parties were asked to arrive, which it is hoped can be held later in the season, but not at the moment the plans are in the air.

Herbert Gord MaGee chaired the meeting which attracted some 250 members.

The application for the club's charter has been accepted, according to word from Ottawa. The charter will give the club additional weight and powers.

One showed how to get the most out of fishing tackle and retied the catching of a fierce fighter, the pet of the club.

Carl Silk, for the second time over a short period, won the deluxe prize, a two-day fishing trip with all his expenses paid. A short time ago Mr. Silk won a tent and sleeping bag.

Probation Director Critical Of Those Who Refuse Jobs To Ex-Convicts and Parolees

One of the best examples of "unintentional hypocrisy" at its worst is seen among persons who place ex-convicts in double jeopardy for the rest of their lives, Daniel W. F. Coughlan, director of probation services in Ontario, last night told the Rotary Club of Toronto at the Quinte District Foremen's Club.

"If you don't believe me," he said, "try to get one a job."

However, the picture is getting brighter.

He noted that the Rotary Club of Toronto has embarked on a project of acquainting industries with the slim risk involved in hiring ex-convicts and parolees. So far, the club has arranged some 200 industries which will hire ex-cons or parolees.

Mr. Coughlan, 47, one-time sailor, boxer and Anglican clergyman, said people illustrate "unintentional hypocrisy" when they say that an ex-convict has paid his debt to society by being incarcerated in a prison or penitentiary. But invariably these same people set themselves up as judge, jury and executioner when a person with a criminal past tries to adjust to a normal society. In law a person cannot be placed in double jeopardy for the same crime, but in human nature he invariably is.

TOO MANY IN PRISON

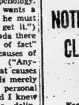
Mr. Coughlan suggested that too many people are behind bars who should not be there. Consequently, penal institutions are overcrowded and insufficient time can be given to rehabilitation efforts. He would like to see greater use of the suspended sentence for freeing the hands of trained workers in the penal institutions for helping prisoners prepare for their return to society.

Upwards of 75 per cent of Ontario's prison inmates have at one time or another during their lives been behind prison bars before, he said, and the figure is increasing every year.

Why? Partly because Canada is "so backward" in the study of criminology and pshology. "If a young person wants a career in criminology he must leave the country to study it. Partly because in Canada there is no "research body of fact" upon which to base a study of juvenile delinquency. ("Anyone who tells you what causes juvenile delinquency is merely giving you his own personal opinion, I wish to God I knew what causes juvenile delinquency.") Partly because of public apathy. Great strides are taken in penology when public opinion is aroused.") Partly because of lack of real progress, research, information and training in personnel. But you know that Canada uses prisons as a means of disposing of criminals more than they do in Holland?"

NEED MORE STUDY

While he thought many people are behind bars who should not be there, Mr. Coughlan admitted that he was not so-naive as to suggest that penal institutions should be abolished. But what is needed in Canada is a greater understanding of what makes a criminal tick.



"We will always have criminals who live by their wits," he said, "if only when we know enough about human nature to be able to identify this group, they should immediately be locked up in prison for the rest of their natural lives."

Mr. Coughlin suggested that perhaps people should devote a keener interest in the teachings of the New Testament. ("The greatest men in the Bible were the greatest sinners.") Perhaps a sound knowledge of the story of the woman caught in the act of adultery and Jesus' treatment of her and His handling of the crowd that cast her at His feet might clear the air of a lot of man's hypocrisy.

"Just remember," he said, "we are our brothers' keepers."

"The Cautious Twins"

"The Cautious Twins" is the title of a pamphlet being distributed by the Kiwanis Club of the city, as a public service.

The pamphlet was originally prepared by the Sheriff's Department of Los Angeles County Court. It was "specifically designed to prevent child molestation tragedies before they became headlines".

The book consists of a series of simple verses.

"Most people love a little child, some grown up though, are bad. The bad ones look like good ones like any Mom and Dad," the booklet warns children, who are asked to "read through these verses twice; you children will be safe if you will take our wise advice."

This "wise advice" includes: "you must not talk to strangers"; "if someone in a motor car should offer you a ride, scream loudly as you run away but do not get inside"; "it's never safe in alleys or empty buildings too"; "don't let a stranger put your hand"; "don't stray away from all your friends or bushes or trees."

It is a terrible world where advice such as this must be given to children. Is the world that terrible?

It is true, of course, that if every child followed the advice in this booklet, the number of cases of child molestation would be sharply reduced. But not eliminated. The molester is as likely to be a person the child knows as it is to be a stranger. "The bad ones not only look like good ones," as the booklet says, but they come from every class and occupation, though perhaps not equally from all. The difficulty is that, if there is any group in which the incidence of perverts is any greater, it should be a group most trusted by adults, and therefore, after instruction, by children.

The Kiwanis Club here is to be congratulated for its enterprise in providing Belleville parents with a scientifically-devised booklet of instruction aimed at equipping them to safeguard their children. At the same time, we suggest that it is the duty of parents, themselves, to decide whether this booklet should be used, whether the dangers here are so great that distrust of strangers must be sown in their children's minds. This is not a decision which ought to be taken lightly, nor reached on the spur of the moment. We have no training in psychology, but we suspect that teaching any child to distrust a person just because he does not know him, (with the almost inevitable corollary that everybody who is known and approved by one's parents or friends is to be trusted), will leave indelible impressions which will linger throughout all of manhood or womanhood.

Is the world so terrible that distrust must be taught a child at his mother's knee? That is the question, and the answer should not be the product of a community conference, but should be the individual decision of parents using their best judgment.

Statistics Reflect Troubled Times

The Department of Citizenship and Immigration has released statistics on immigration into Canada during the first three months of this year, compared with the same period in 1960. There has been a sharp decline, from 16,599 a year ago to 11,839 this year. This decline, though, has not been true with respect to immigration from all countries. Of the 46 countries of last permanent residence listed for immigrants, eleven sent us more immigrants this year than last. It is interesting to note that of these eleven countries, four are Communist, Russia, itself, China, the Communist satellite Latvia and the "independent Communist" Yugoslavia. Increased immigration from three other countries could be explained by troubled times in Africa. South Africa has sent us 119 new citizens, compared with 76 last year—one is tempted to twist an old saying and describe them as people leaving a sinking rat. Belgium and France slightly increased their number of immigrants when other Western European countries showed sharp declines. Could these increases be the result of troubles in the Congo and Algeria, with Belgians and Frenchmen formerly resident there seeking new homes overseas? This leaves explanations unsuggested for increases from only four countries, Lebanon (10 instead of 3), Ceylon (3 instead of none), Pakistan (14 instead of 5), and Australia (228 instead of 174). In three cases the numbers are so small as to have no real significance. But what can be the reason for so many Matildas and their jolly swagmen waltzing north to these climes?

Behavior which appears superficially correct, but is intrinsically corrupt always irritates those who see below the surface.—James Bryant

Letters To The Editor

Parking and School Questions Raised

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

To quote your pepe of last Thursday "the day of inflation is still with us." Indeed it is, all the way from nickels in parking to thousands of dollars being spent on new schools.

Several ideas for parking meters first. We are now told that the meter rate is to be doubled on Front Street, while at the same time, the Parking Authority has $18,804 on deposit in the bank.

I don't wish to be misunderstood. I am all in favor of civic bodies being able to balance their budgets, and even declare modest surpluses, but at the same time, I wonder if this increase in parking meters is just the opposite. The answer to any problem in civic and other affairs is to drive forward these days seems to be to constantly increase taxes. It is not to say that an additional nickel an hour will encourage people to move their cars any faster is wishful thinking to say the least, and I would suggest we should do nothing to solve the parking problem. It will rather, I feel, drive people away not from Front Street to locations where parking is more inexpensive nor virtually impossible.

If one wishes to do necessary family shopping on Front Street, which for the most part calls to make, it is a rare occasion when this can be accomplished in an hour. Even alone a half hour, allowing for waiting time, a drive, parking and the natural desire to-be able to shop carefully without fearing to rush, and a half hour must be presented with a ticket for overstaying the time limit, even an hour of time has become too expensive for the lowly nickel, but I firmly believe that there is no good reason for doubling the price, and it will certainly not do anything to reduce congestion on Front St. In my humble opinion, this is a foolish and ill-considered move and should be opposed by anyone who has a store in this area.

I am also rather shocked to discover that we are faced with a situation of having called upon to approve an addition to a school not yet in existence. What confounds me is that it should be thought a wise and business like method question this decision because the august and apparently infallible Department of Education agreed it was a good thing. It should may be, but our tax rate now is each year creeping a little closer to municipal bankruptcy and we are expected to hand out increasingly large sums of money each time the Board of Education presents a tab for the taxpayer to pick up.

All school boards annually spend more and more than any of the other civic bodies, and in most cases, with less questions asked. A family believe in good education, indeed it may well be the only answer to the problems of the world, but I wonder if it is necessary to dispense it in the manufacture of school buildings as they are today.

As a child, I believe we received at least as good an education as the children are receiving today, but in far less beautiful surroundings. It is not however, believe it lessened our capacity to think, perhaps quite the contrary.

Over in pen, windows were covered with Holland blinds, not a drapery to be seen and schools were constructed on the theory that sunny storey construction was more economical, that money and space than the large sprawling

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

May 17th, 1931.

The Rural Mail Courier (Toronto) says, "Every person enjoys spring time but perhaps there are no other people in Canada who can appreciate and enjoy the beauty of spring more than the rural mail carrier, for the past months he has faced sleet and storm, wind and cold, mud and drifts; appreciating to the limits the fine days when it was a pleasure to be out, but always with that apprehension and wonderment as to what the morrow would bring."

one-storey schools — schools which are apparently inadequate before they are constructed.

The bumper crop of war babies which were born in 1945 and 1946 and are causing such problems in school accommodation, will be in a few years be marrying and raising families of their own and our problems in this regard will soon increase many times, so that careful, long-range planning now is essential.

I deplore the trend to wait until costs become prohibitive and the necessary but heavy expense that follows by the constant adding to our school buildings. If a sixteen-room school is required before the ten-room school is even built, then surely our planning is somewhere wrong, and it should have been realized by the long run ,to construct the larger building in the first place and to plan for it.

I believe it would be a good move to be a little more concerned with what our children are being taught and whether we are being instructed than to have quite so much preoccupation in providing expensive luxuries in our school buildings. I am convinced we could invest the savings in better paid and more well qualified teachers.

Council is to be commended in carefully examining any request for such large sums of money as are spent on education in this city. It is only fair to each taxpayer who will pay the bill, that he have every right to expect our elected representatives on all levels of government to add up the charges, and who knows, maybe some in a while we might be treated to the unheard of possibility of a corresponding lowering reduced, instead of that adding another mill or tow to tax rate, or extending another nickel from the parking meter.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE CAN LAUGH

Some years ago a prominent baseball player started his career with everybody big boosting his every ability. He was good for a month or two or very time he stepped out on the diamond. It looked, for all his skill, that he would out-live and have to be replaced.

Then, the manager walked out to say something to the pitcher. As he came back the crowd met him with a big boo. He raised his hat cheerfully and as he did so a bird flew out. The bleachers went into hysterics. After that the manager's popularity began to rise and increased with the years.

It is amazing how often a big laugh has settled some of the most intricate and dangerous problems. Very often what we regard as problems are not problems at all. They are only judices. They are dislikes we have taken towards certain people because of personal characteristics. Grudges of long standing have sometimes been eliminated in a split second because some person who were feuding found something to laugh over together. If we only knew all the facts of every situation we should probably find many a murder has been averted by a laugh called forth at the right time.

Laughter has a therapeutic value. One of the great differences between man and the lower animals is that man has the capacity for laughter.

A Definition Of the Soul Without God

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend of mine, who prides himself on being a cold, analytical materialist, recently told me that he gets annoyed with my occasional references to his "soul."

"Since I don't believe in God or in any so-called 'spiritual' qualities," he said, "I'd like you to define for me what you mean by the 'soul' without mentioning God or going into religious matters that nobody can prove one way or the other."

I think it can be done so as to satisfy even my old-fashioned, materialistic friend. The English word "soul" corresponds to the Greek word "psyche," which means the inner self of a person. That each of us has inner self can be demonstrated without any reference to supernatural matters.

The brilliant French analyst, Alain, in his book, "Definitions," gave what I believe is the best description of what people in all centuries and cultures — whether religious or not — have meant by soul. I should like to quote it here and then paraphrase it to show how close "psyche" and "soul" corresponds to what we would call "neurosis" in modern parlance:

"The body is what imitates the body. What, for instance, reveals to me that the body trembles, what refuses to strike when the body is provoked, what refuses to caress when the body thirsts, what refuses to love when the body desires, what refuses to give up when the body recoils in horror. These refusals are the characteristics of man. Total refusal is sainthood; looking forces leaping is wisdom; and this refusal is the soul.

"The madman has no power of refusal; he no longer has a soul. They also say he has no awareness, and that is true. Whoever yields completely to his body, to the point of no return, to flee, be it merely to speak, to forget what he does or what he is saying. One acquires awareness only through resistance. The body in itself is so much thing as a base soul, only it has not the least beautiful word in no ways defines a being, but always an act."

The individual lives only for self; he cannot oppose "self to self." He does not have the freedom of will to refuse the body; he is a driven creature, a slave to his own fears and appetites. He suffers from what modern psychology calls "neurosis of psychic liberty," and what the ancients called a defect of soul. He is not free to be a human being should be — and what is proper to human being can only be summed up in the word "soul," in the act that refuses the body, in the higher good of the whole creature.

Seems Izes Eternalized

Christian Science' Monitor from time to time we attempt to note, with ill-concealed regret, the tendency of some dignified writers to turn nouns and verbs out of almost every noun in sight.

Thus we have in the past raised forlorn objections to such usage as "he was afflicted with a fur coat", which sounds like the work of a less than gifted writer.

Today's candidate is intransitive, and the verb is used by the Pentagon. Senator Glenn Beall of Maryland is awarded the use of a free advertising for the benefit of the senate for reporting it. He asserts that during a briefing of the armed services committee he heard a Pentagon spokesman propose to "permanentize" something.

In military terms, this must be something of a "second generation" verb. It apparently replaces "finalize", a verb which itself probably was coined to add glan to that limp old

Old Boiler No Health Hazard, Okay to Use It

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"He didn't cure it until 1951 when a man he worked with advised that he powder his feet every day with boric acid. It was a permanent cure. — A.P."

Above letter was interesting in several ways. The problem of odor can be extremely stubborn at times, no matter how clean the wearer is in the soap-and-water sense.

This is because trouble often stems in large part from the presence and activity of bacteria which, while they may be harmless enough, cling to the skin and keep lavishly at work. Soap and water may not be able to dislodge all of them — and these remaining quickly multiply again. Moisture encourages this.

I have some reservations about boric acid. There have been cases, largely with infants, I believe, but with adults, too, of a pet ic poisoning absorbed through the skin. Some medical people feel very strongly about this and have lodged a warning boric acid in dispensaries.

I'd decline to recommend its use. Other powders are available to serve the same purpose. For example, I suggest use of some of the prepared foot powders there are on the market. They combat moisture, and at the same time deodorize. Another thing — a part of the opinion that too many persons, simply through their problem, do not realize how important foot powder can be, in connection with fitting shoes, wearing fresh socks daily or twice a day, and changing shoes every day.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BE A LOVER!

Long ago an inspired poet wrote that "all the world loves a lover." He had in mind the love of one human for another.

This July writer loves not the lover of all things beautiful — human beings, the springtime, the trees, the flowers, the birds, the waterfall, the song of the bird, wind-swept hills, under the weather beaten rock, the deserted homestead.

Be a lover of everything that is beautiful — and then spread this love so that it will permeate into those things that are not beautiful and revive life in them!

Love should always soften our sentiments and make them so shine brilliantly. It should make of us very kind beings and bring and build within us a living fire of sympathy for all in need.

Be a lover and you not only will learn control to a larger degree in all ways, but your appreciation will broaden.

You will become more kinder and we automatically forget our discriminations in life and character and concentrate our feelings upon the higher and nobler things.

No one ever was turned away from Christ because of sickness in mind, soul or body immediately did He look into that person's heart and appreciate — and heal, as well as forgive. His attitude was not to condemn but to save.

He who gives out love, gives out life.

Be a lover!

Start each day with love in your heart. Put it into your work and into your associations, and into your appreciation of everything that is worthy and beautiful.

chains: and when he learned I was a newspaperman, all he wanted to talk about was Cuba and the encroachments of Communism. He was a violent and bitter opponent of all things, even Communism were McCarthyesque.

Thinking to needle him, I mentioned that the type of organization he served, the supermarkets, were certainly a wonderful setup for the Communists. It would obviously be easier, I pointed out, for a Communist operating in our midst to take over a few dozen of these highly organized and incorporated, institutions of modern big business than to convert one little individual and unassociated enterprises, such as small shops and stores. The more big business grows in itself, the handier it made itself for expropriation by an uprising of thugs. Instead of having to shoot a thousand owners, it would only have to shoot a couple of hundred executives and a few of the larger stockholders.

"The opposite of Communism," I suggest, "is not democracy but individualism. What we've got to do is break up all these big corporations, supermarkets and so forth, and get the world back on a good individual small business basis; and then we're safe."

If there were been another vacant seat on the plane, my seat mate would have taken it.

Building Fund For New 'Y' Now $57,130

Workers in the Y.M.C.A. new building campaign made their first report Monday night. Their results show subscriptions totalling $57,130, which is just over ten per cent of the goal of $550,000.

Leading production is Bryson Leslie's section with $2,545 in this section Mac Smith's division leads the way with $1,000, and Mrs. H. T. Floyd's team in this division is high producer with $600. Individual workers, who reached their quotas at this first report, are Mrs. W. Turner, R. N. Laughlen, H. T. Morton and Hugh Watson. Advance Gifts workers chaired by Don G. Williams, report $53,136 to date.

The campaign continues for three weeks, with the second report meeting at Dinner Hour Monday. Leaders are pleased with the friendly reception workers are receiving as they make their calls; and feel certain that the tempo of the effort will speed up as workers really get at their job.

William S. Wills, general chairman, presided over Monday's meeting, which was held in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium. W. Lorne McDougall, a former president of the Y.M.C.A., was guest speaker. He told his audience of the Y.M.C.A.'s philosophy of work with youth, designed to help them become strong, intelligent, friendly citizens of high ideals.

May Meeting Of Brotherhood Closes Season

On Tuesday evening the St. Thomas' Chapter of the B.A.C. held their final meeting before the summer recess. A dinner was tendered to the member's wives and their thirty-three couples sat down in the parish hall for a turkey dinner served by Mrs. McKenna's group. The Chapter president, Mr. F. H. Bellstedt, proposed the toast to the Queen after which Canon A. S. McConnell said grace. The toast to the ladies was proposed by Mr. R. G. W. Pressdee. Mrs. A. S. Lewis ably and graciously replied. Mr. Hal Floyd, a past president, on behalf of the Chapter presented a framed testimonial to Mr. A. E. Garrett, charter president, thanking him for his service to the Church and Chapter and expressed regret on his leaving the city.

Dr. J. M. McLean then introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. C. W. B. Sloan, head of the English Dept. of Quinte Secondary School. Mr. Sloan developed the broad principles of education and in particular showed the place of the parents in religious and moral teaching. If parents accepted their full responsibilities in these matters the youth of today would be better fitted for their duties of after years. The rapt attention given the speaker was indicative of the force of his remarks. Group appreciation was expressed to Mr. Sloan, by C. N. Nicholson. Canon McConnell, closed the meeting with the benediction after which an enjoyable hour was spent in fellowship and playing court whist. The Chapter will resume meetings in the fall.

Air Transportation in Jet Age Outlined to Kiwanians

Canada's reputation in air travel is on the threshold of surpassing the prestige Britain once enjoyed as mistress of the seven seas, Trans-Canada Airlines district passenger sales manager Murray Staynton of Toronto told Kiwanians here Tuesday.

And the arrival of the jet age is responsible for it.

Mr. Staynton said that a recent meeting of the International Air Transport Association, TCA had attempted to influence the world's major airlines in reducing fares to the Caribbean vacationland by 33 per cent.

"But the other airlines just built a fence around that figure," he said.

Consequently, Canadians can fly to the Caribbean aboard TCA jet aircraft much cheaper than nationals of any other country.

"A few years ago, when airlines in the U.S. were increasing long-distance plane fares, TCA was reducing them. TCA has had to increase some short and medium-distance fares because of the high cost of operating turbine-powered aircraft, but all long-distance flight fares have been drastically reduced by as much as 25 per cent. Mr. Staynton said that the cost of providing air transportation in the jet age is inversely proportional to the distance travelled. Fares can be pro-rated over long distances where it is uneconomical to do so over short and medium distances.

SOME OF REASONS

What are some of the reasons why the arrival of the jet age has made some operators smile and others weep?

The cost of jet aircraft is phenomenal. In TCA's case, each of its 10 127-passenger DC-8s cost $6,000,000. And the way of financing such a big purchase is "cash on the barrel head before the plane leaves the farm in California."

Every time a jet airliner takes off on a trip, the plane depreciates tremendously. Whether flying or sitting idle, an aircraft like the four-engined DC-8 depreciates at the rate of about $100 an hour, day and night. It costs roughly $300 every time a DC-8 lands or takes off. This means that the fares of 200 passengers flying from Toronto to Vancouver are theoretically used to pay for the take-off and landing.

The antiquity of most Canadian air terminals impedes the flow of traffic. A new, multi-million dollar terminal is expected to be opened next year at Toronto International Airport (Malton), while last year a multi - million dollar terminal was opened at Montreal's Dorval Airport. Many of the major cities across Canada have either embarked or are planning on building new terminals. At Montreal, TCA rents space in the new terminal for as much as $15 a square foot.

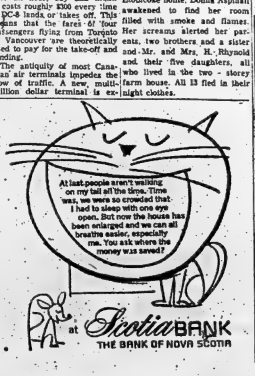
The cost of ground handling equipment is sky high. About $185,000 worth of it is used every time a DC-8 leads prior to take off.

TRAINING COSTS HIGH

The cost of training and maintaining air crews is high.

The arrival of the jet age has necessitated the reorganization of flight reservation processes. TCA had to move into a new building in Toronto because new electronic computing machines were too heavy for the floors of the old building.

Last year was the worst year financially ever experienced by the world's air carriers, and manufacturers also felt the pinch to the tune of about $100 million.



Mr. Staynton's biggest fear is that once the airlines re-equip their fleets with turbine-powered aircraft "some day will come along demanding a supersonic airliner and start the mess all over again".

"Two things", he said, "will spoil this exhibit the growth of travel by air. They are fear and fares. But, today's aircraft are so safe that it may only be a matter of time before the public is swung over. Meanwhile, the airlines are endeavoring to keep cutting fares.

The operators are optimistic because of the earning power of jet aircraft and because of the what they can do for the public. Incidentally, a jet like a DC-8 is considered to be paying its way if it earns the operator $7.5 million a year under normal conditions.

SCREAMS SAVE 12

TORONTO (CP)—An 11-year-old girl was credited Tuesday with saving the lives of 12 people in a fire in a suburban Etobicoke home. Donna Aspinall screamed and her room filled with smoke and flames. Her screams alerted her parents, two brothers and a sister and Mr. and Mrs. R. Rhynold and their five daughters, all who lived in the two - storey farm house. All 13 fled in their night clothes.

Fulton Plans To Unlock Doors Of Another 'Pen'

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates at the Canadian Congress of Corrections are spending much time discussing ways of punishing criminals. Instead they're searching for means of rehabilitation.

This has been evident during the first two days of the conference, and it's just as evident that juvenile offenders are coming in for a major share of attention.

Justice Minister Fulton said Tuesday the government planned to convert another penitentiary this year to a medium security prison in the continuing transformation from armed guards and endless locked doors that have faced prisoners.

He did not indicate which prison would be changed. By the end of the year, he said, 3,500 convicts would be housed in maximum security prisons, 2,000 in medium security and more than 1,000 in minimum security.

Mr. Fulton said the number of convicts kept in medium-security prisons had increased in the last year to almost 1,600 from 200.

HAD CONVERTED

This had been done through conversion of the Collins Bay, Ont., training centre and the federal training centre in Quebec, along with the opening of a new medium-security institution a St. Vincent de Paul near Montreal. The other such prison is at Joyceville, near Kingston.

Remaining maximum-security prisons are the British Columbia, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba penitentiaries and those at Kingston, St. Vincent de Paul and Dorchester, N.B.

Mr. Fulton said five correctional work camps, with about 80 convicts, will be set up this summer, at Agassiz, B.C., Petawawa and Farm bridge, Ont., Gatineau Park across the river from Ottawa in Quebec, and at one other Quebec site not yet selected.

In addition, farm camps—also with a work force of 80 convicts each—would be set up this year at Dorchester, St. Vincent de Paul, Collins Bay and the Manitoba and Saskatchewan penitentiaries. This would end the practice of convict gangs being escorted back and forth through the penitentiary walls to do farm work.

Variety Is the Keynote As Festival Time Arrives

By WILLIAM GLOVER
Associated Press Drama Writer

All the world's a stage once more—festival time is here.

From Alaska to the Adriatic, from Bach to bop, from Shakespeare to angry young men, variety is the keynote.

The opening of the Stratford-on-Avon and Paris fetes in April started an international extravaganza which won't simmer down until December.

In addition to major items, connoisseurs of diversion can indulge in more singular delights: Stuttgart's harmonica and accordion bash (May 21-23); an October truffles fair in Alba, Italy; and, also in the land of vino and pasta, a burst of hospitality at Rimini in June entitled World Rally of Hostesses. You name it, some town's got it.

The increase in size and type of festivals — a phenomenon mostly concentrated in the years since the Second World War—continues despite a seeming paradox. Rare is the spectacle that makes ends meet at the boxoffice.

AIDED BY STATE

Deficit distress, however, is eased by other factors. One is that programs are for the most part underwritten by national or local governments. More important is that fetes have become travel lures par excellence.

Although only one new festival was included on the overseas agenda (Cork, Ireland's international event, May 7-21), the programmers are alert to avoid triteness.

Significant this year is upbeat interest in jazz festivals. Three have been promoted to prime attraction — at Baden - Baden, Germany, in June; and at Antibes, France, and Comblain-la-Tour, Belgium, both in late July.

Developing also is an effort to spread attractions—and travel dollars—out of the big cities and into resorts.

Holland's month-long melange featuring June's three-week spirit and audiences) to Scheveningen, Utrecht, The Hague, Rotterdam and other points as well as Amsterdam.

WANT BIG NAMES

Characteristic of the assorted seminking, swing, symphonic and thespian-is the robust talent interchange that results from the competitive scramble for headliners.

At Vancouver, the New York City Ballet opens festivities on July 24. Montreal, from Canada's Expo City looks at Anchorage during the June 29 roundup. Puppet fans from Warsaw to Moscow's Teatr Lenigrad Symphony appears at Bergen, the Berlin Philharmonic at Edinburgh, Van Cliburn at Lucerne, and London's Old Vic in both Bergen and Vienna.

On this side of the Atlantic, major interest centres on the fiestas at the two Stratfords. The one in Connecticut opens June 13, continues to Sept. 10, with As You Like It, Macbeth and Troilus and Cressida. Three other Shakespeare offerings are under way Ontario's Avon. June 19-Sept. 23—Coriolanus, Henry VIII and Love's Labour's Lost—plus a new Canadian play, The Canvas Barricade.

TOUR OF EUROPE

Stratford — on — Avon—April 4-end of November: a sextet by the bard with Dames Edith Evans and Peggy Ashcroft, Sir John Gielgud and Montreal's Christopher Plummer. The plays, Much Ado About Nothing, Hamlet, Richard III, As You Like It, Romeo and Juliet and Othello.

Paris — April 8 - July 8: 34 major and experimental theatre companies from 23 nations perform. One new work, Schoenberg's Moses and Aaron, is being introduced by the West Berlin opera.

Wiesbaden, Germany — May 1-31: International May Festival of Opera, Ballet and Drama.

Bergen, Norway — May 25-June 11: Ninth annual festival. Thirty concerts and 16 theatre events by five companies; 17 chamber concerts at Grieg's home.

Vienna — May 27 - June 25: Drama and opera festival weeks, including appearance by the touring U.S. company headed by Helen Hayes, and the world premiere of Schoenberg's Die Jacobleiter.

Spoleto, Italy — June 15 - July 16: Festival of two worlds includes Warsaw's puppet theatre and production of Him by E. E. Cummings.

Dubrovnik and Split, Yugoslavia—July 10-Aug. 31: The twin resorts present guest stars in drama, ballet, opera and concerts.

Berlin — Sept. 24 - Oct. 10: International companies in all the performing arts.

H-S Council Can Make Check On Oral French

The Belleville Public School Board will consult with the Belleville and district Home and School Council to conduct a survey in city public schools to determine the interests of parents in the teaching of Oral French in Grades 5 to 8.

A lengthy inquiry from the Home and School council was received by the Board at its last meeting requesting the introduction of Oral French in local public schools with 'the desired goal being to allow a survey to determine the interest in it.

The board indicated, however, it could not commit itself to any grades 7 and 8 Legislative grants are not available for these classes in public schools and costs must be borne locally.

B.P.W. Club Installs 1961 Officers

Mrs. Irene Haig was installed Monday evening as the new president of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club for the year 1961-62, in an impressive ceremony conducted by Miss Hilda Collier at the Belmont Club Rooms.

Prior to handing over the gavel to her successor, outgoing president, Miss Mildred Hall presided at the annual meeting of the club, during which the various officers and committee chairmen presented their reports on activities of the past year.

As one of her last official acts, president Mildred welcomed a new member into the club in the person of Miss Sharon Way, who was installed by Miss Hilda Collier.

As club delegate to the regional conference, which was held in Tweed on May 6th, Miss Hall later presented her report of the conference to the club and extended congratulations to Mrs. Simone McFadden, on behalf of the members, on her election to the post of Regional Adviser for the coming year. It was a great honor to the club, and to Mrs. McFadden, who thanked the club for their good wishes for success in her new post.

Since Belleville club is to host the regional conference next year, it was deemed desirable to name a conference chairman as soon as possible, and Mrs. Shirley Woodcox was chosen to assume this duty.

1961-62 OFFICERS

Miss Hilda Collier conducted the impressive candlelight ceremony which saw the new slate of officers installed for the coming year. The 1961-62 executive will be composed of: Mrs. Irene Haig as president; Miss Mildred Hall, past president; vice-presidents — Dorothy Ellis and Florence Fitzgerald; recoring secretary — Mary Brownscombe; corresponding secretary — Rene Sternbach; treasurer — Ruth McMullen.

Committee chairmen: program — Arlene Ashbury; ways and means — Charlotte Sirothen; membership — Hilda Collier; bulletin — Shirley Woodcox; sick — Lee Lockyer; parliamentarian — Marjorie McCaw; emblem — Winnifred Donaldson; publicity — Marie Huffman, and pianist — Marie Buckley.

Official thanks of the club were extended to Mildred Hall for her hard and constant work during her term of office. She was presented with her past president's pin by Miss Hilda Collier.

Prior to the close of the meeting, at the request of Simone McFadden, a minute's silence was observed as a tribute to Mrs. Helen Lantz, who passed away recently. Mrs. Lantz was a former member of the club and her death was an occasion of deep personal sorrow to a number of the old-er members who had known her well.

It was decided that the June meeting will be held at the Maple Inn at Bloomfield, and Mrs. Georgina Rendell graciously offered to open her home to the club for a buffet supper in September.

Sincere good wishes of all members are extended to Irene Haig and Simone McFadden for a successful and rewarding term of office in their respective new positions during the coming year.

Mr., Mrs. C. D. Powell Feted On Coming 60th Anniversary

A happy evening was spent at the United Church Parsonage, Warkworth, on May 15, when the Rev. and Mrs. H. H. Lackey entertained at a dinner party in honor of the approaching 60th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Powell of Frankford.

Guests present included the Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Vaclavik St. George; the Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Lane, of Oakwood; and Mr and Mrs. G. A. Creaser, Wyvale, Ontario.

The dining room was tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers and bells. An anniversary cake and tall pink tapers centred the table.

The evening was spent in happy fellowship during which some reminiscing was done by those present and tribute paid to Mr. and Mrs. Powell for opening their hearts and home in past years.

A container of mums and carnations was presented to this fine couple.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Powell and best wishes for the years ahead for health and happiness.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Gifts at any time of year, for whatever occasion, are a problem more often than not. Something for Mother when you may watch for in the future might be a self supporting headrest which can be used in home or while travelling. It is a very new advance in car comfort as it actually extends modern lowback car seats so that you get perfect neck and head support. It is said to reduce road jars and to ease sudden stops and starts.

That terrible feeling of drowsiness when you can find no comfortable place to lay your head while in a car will be no more. There are reversible wings which either hook over the seat or turn about for additional head support. When used on a chair at home, these wings retreat. The headrest is adjustable for size and softness and folds compactly. The whole family will fight for it.

Something new in a gift for a bride is a berry basket in pure white bone china with flower decoration. This is not an article for picking berries, but for serving them. Designed like a shallow basket complete with handle, it has small compartments at either end of the handle which hold matching cream and sugar. The berries with their traditional accompaniments can be carried by one handle.

SOLAR COOKER

The solar barbecue cooker is something that will please the lazy outdoor people. It is very economical, too, since it is inal outlay and in upkeep. It is said to cook meat more and quicker than charcoal: it uses no fuel but the sun and eliminates the flue, mess, smoke and fumes of other fires. It decends 500 degrees heat in 20 minutes. But of course you have to have full sun — there is always a drawback.

However, with sun, it claims to be perfect for all sorts of outdoor cooking, doing a complete meal for four in 20 minutes.

It is lightweight and portable and can be carried anywhere as it folds compactly.

We may be very backward, but until this food was seen in an advertisement the other day we did not know that round beds existed. Thinking back about it we can imagine seeing them in some modern movie, but to have them actually on sale for ordinary folk to buy was something else again. It seems that the circular mattress is 90 inches in diameter, full of coils of course. The ad says it is built to defy wear and to invite repose. There is no footboard naturally but a headboard can be had if you like. The bed is quite expensive but added to this is the cost of circular sheets, blankets and bedspread.

We were wondering if it would be easy to make but decided against sending for what is called "a 12-page Beducation Booklet". The closing line in the ad says 'Our easy terms let you sleep nights'.

This and That of a week ago on a headline, "Huge Waste: Educated Womanpower" drew quite a few comments. One woman who was speaking of students getting married at an early age, said: "I would not mind the young people getting married while in college if they would only both finish their courses".

In the nature of things, it is often more difficult for the wife to do this, but it is interesting to note that more and more attention is being paid to wife-student facilities, with ways being found to allow the young wife and mother to complete her degree. These facilities are necessary for another reason, the present rapid changes and advances can only be kept up with by continual education.

Another follow-up on the subject is the fact that Mary Bunting, the author of the above-mentioned article, lost one of her four sons in the schooner tragedy in the Gulf of Mexico last week.

C.W.L. Plans Coming Events

The monthly meeting of the C.W.L. was held on May 8th in St. Michael's Junior School, with Monsignor Sullivan opening the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. Joseph Gallagher, president, presided.

In the absence of Mrs. G. O'Connor, recording secretary, the minutes were read and taken by Mrs. J. Farrell and the financial report given by Mrs. J. Whalen.

First vice-president, Mrs. A. McFadden expressed satisfaction with the drive for new members and the 2nd vice-president, Mrs. D. Jones, suggested that the C.W.L. give four concert tickets to four students from Nicholson College. This motion was carried.

Mrs. J. Kelley gave her correspondence report.

The various other committees reported as follows:

Mrs. A. Kelleher, that 14 new members were subscribing to the League magazine; Mrs. Finkle, in charge of social action and child welfare, named her committee; Mrs. Daley, treasurer; Mrs. Ackerman in charge of child welfare; Mrs. C. Fitzgibbon and Mrs. A. Clifford in care of clothing.

Mrs. G. O'Conner reported on Guides and Brownies and mentioned the mother and daughter banquet to be held this month in St. Michael's auditorium.

Mrs. Boyd gave her quarterly report on the altar and chancel society.

Mrs. J. Lumsden asked for volunteers to tag May 26th and 27th.

A rummage sale is to be held in June at the Moose hall, convened by Mrs. A. Donaldson and Mrs. Murphy.

Another coming event for the C.W.L. will be the Communion breakfast to be held Sunday, June 4th. Dr. E. Peterkin will be the guest speaker.

After the meeting was adjourned a social hour was enjoyed with refreshments served by Mrs. J. Lumsden and Mrs. L. Demers, assisting the hostesses were Mrs. D. Burvill and Mrs. A. Gooding.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. U. H. — He looks so out of place in school, he should transfer.

Kenneth H. — I don't find my height a hindrance, except at dances.

Mrs. U. H. — I attended a parents' assembly at Ken's high school last week and my heart ached for him. He's only 15 and in the fourth term, but, believe it or not, he's 6'5" already and still growing. Whenever he was standing in line or seated among his classmates, he stood out like a misfit.

With two more years to go, think it would be better for his morale to transfer to an evening high school and be among adults than to go along literally, "Looking down on people." He can work during the day. In college, he can return among young people. By then he won't be so conspicuous.

Kenneth H. — My mother must be putting herself in my place because she was the tallest in her one high school class, too. But maybe it's different for a boy, because I'm perfectly content about my size.

Outside of school dances, I participate in all activities. I play outfield on our sophomore baseball team, but I'm on our Varsity basketball team which is headed for a tournament championship. I play forward, natch.

I want to stay in this school. My marks are good, I study hard and I hope to go to college. Getting there and playing there are my only worries now, not my height. That's my mother's worry and I wish she'd lay off.

The Council — Where nonconformity was painful, evidently, for Mrs. H., it doesn't seem to bother Kenneth one green bit later. His position is sound since he's a normal 15-year-old at heart, even though that heart is about a foot further from the ground than his classmates'.

We agree with the boy further that his mother must not assume he is suffering because she, as a tall teener among petite dainty coeds, suffered in her day. The tall boy has many ego compensations to balance any feelings of gawkiness and awkwardness. And his contemporaries will grow up "overnight" to keep him company up there in the stratosphere of those halls of learning.

In the Sixties, according to statistics, about 40 per cent of the young men entering college will stand 6 feet or more. This is quite a contrast to the four per cent who measured that many inches in 1883. So tallness is becoming rather bothersome.

Both the very tall and the very short, it is admitted, may have special adjustment problems. These involve the temptation to expect special attention for (or blame special disappointments on) one's inadequacies. Once in a while, suspicion of such injustice may be valid. But usually, one must assume, the attitude of those who really "matter" hinges on considerations of personality, skill, intellect and other variables.

Perhaps the day will come when, thanks to current research with growth hormones extracted from the human pituitary gland, boys like Kenneth can have a say about how tall (or short) they want to be. But until then Kenneth is wise enough to want to be the size he is, when he is and where he is right now among his peers.

Mrs. H. must drop the issue. Her son must be packed away for two years like a skeleton in her closet. He's no freak. He's just another growing boy.

Kitchener Girl Signs Finnish Opera Contract

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Ive Patrason, 23-year-old Estonian-born Kitchener girl, will make her debut in Don Pasquale with the Finnish National Opera next season.

The contract to sing in Finland represents the realization of a dream Ive has had since she pleaded tearfully to be accepted nine years ago as a singing pupil by Kitchener teacher Hilda Teder.

Although Mrs. Teder thought Ive was too young at 14 to begin voice training, she was so impressed by the girl's intense interest that she gave in.

After five years Mrs. Teder suggested Ive continue her training in New York. She enrolled at the Juilliard School of Music, was a consistent scholarship winner for four years and graduated "with honors."

She went to Helsinki last August on a Sibelius scholarship, but began 10 months of study, concerts and radio and television appearances in Finland and Sweden that led to her chance with the Finnish company.

Demonstration of Weaving Is Staged at Foxboro W.I.

The Foxboro Women's Institute held its May meeting at the home of Mrs. Lyle Lewis with the new president presiding. After opening the meeting in the usual way, Mrs. Bamber called on Mrs. J. Ewing, the new home economics and health convener to take charge.

In her opening remarks, Mrs. Ewing said, "so often when we think of home economics it is something along the line of food, but many other things are also covered by that term". Mrs. Ewing had chosen the subject of linen as her topic and gave some of the terms used when speaking of linen: imported linen, Irish linen which comes from one of the two most famous linen countries, Belgium being the other country famous for its linen. Oyster linen which comes from Belgium is known by its trade mark of the blue and white shield of Belgium, pure linen and madeira which latter term usually means the type of stitching used in the embroidery.

WEAVING DEMONSTRATED

Mrs. Ewing introduced Miss Wallace a home economics teacher from Quinte Secondary School who demonstrated weaving using a hand loom. Miss Wallace said that basically weaving had not changed in the last (500) years, but the process has been speeded up considerably. She then showed some serviettes and place mat and had woven a skirt for which she had woven the material, some beautiful sarongs and a pretty blue and white cover.

Mrs. Earl Dafoe sang "It is No Secret", accompanied on the piano by Mrs. W. Hoxbough.

Correspondence was read; a thank you letter from Mrs. T. Hopkins, Institute, which is to be accepted by as many members as possible, to meet with them on May 19 to view Mrs. Wallis' nature slides, also a letter from the Salvation Army, but it was decided due to lack of funds to do nothing about the letter's appeal at this time.

To help raise funds it has been decided to make a cook book and each member is to bring three of four favorite recipes to the June meeting at the home of Mrs. R. Kilpatrick.

The motto "What's a fellow winds up with a nest or a goose egg depends on the chicks he marries", was given by Mrs. W. L. Johnston.

It decided to again be responsible for a fire works display on May 24 with the cents from each family to be turned in to the school teachers.

One new member joined and two members paid their dues.

Following the business, Mrs. Bamber turned the meeting over to Mrs. Ewing, Mrs. Roxbough read, "Drip and Hand Up To Dry", by Malcolm Bradbury; Mrs. Ewing read, "The Vanishing Woodpile", by Jonathan Logan.

A most interesting meetins was brought to a close by a social hour enjoyed over lunch served by the hostess and lunch committee.

Women's Institutes

W.I.

ELDORADO — The Eldorado and Bannockburn Women's Institute held the May meeting at the home of Mrs. Lavergne Carman. Mrs. Clayton Blackburn had charge of the meeting in the absence of the president.

Business was dealt with and it was decided that the Institute members would cater to the lunch at the sale barns at Hoards on June 8th. The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Roy Holgate.

Mrs. Clayton Blackburn had charge of the program after which a reading was given by Mrs. George Hurley. Mrs. H. Chambers gave a reading, "Not Growing Old"; Mrs. Lavergne Carman sang entitled, "The Definition of a Woman," and a reading, "Grandmothers Aloud" Mr. Ags Are Getting Gray".

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants and a social half-hour spent.

Long Cooking Recommended

The fad for speed in our modern life is sometimes carried too far, according to the home economist of the Poultry Products Institute of Canada. Too often cooking times for broiler-fryer chickens recommended in some recipes are 15 to 30 minutes too short she finds. As a result, the chicken may have a tough or rubbery texture. It is usually the chicken and not the recipe which is found fault with in these cases. The same applies to turkey.

Rubbery textured poultry meat is not necessarily tough chicken or turkey. Usually it is an indication that the poultry is under-cooked. The extra 15, 30 or 30 minutes required to completely cook it makes the difference between eating pleasure and disappointment.

Meals Geared to Children

By Mary Moore

Following Marianne's suggestion of gearing meals to the small children in a family, I put such a recipe in this column. So here goes with our family's name for it of

MUNCHA COLLOPS:

Three tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 large onion chopped, 1 pound minced shank or stewing beef (or hamburger), 2 tablespoons flour, 1 1-2 or 2 cups hot water, 1-2 teaspoon (or more) salt, shake of pepper, 1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce (optional). In large frying pan gently melt the butter or margarine and add the onion and beef and saute until onion is transparent and meat is golden brown. Sprinkle flour over and stir it in until blended, then stir in the hot water until the mixture is thickened. Add remaining ingredients and simmer gently until meat is cooked — about 10 or 15 minutes — stirring frequently. Serve on toast.

ELEANOR'S MACARONI AND CHEESE:

Three-quarters package elbow macaroni, 2 quarts water, 1 teaspoon salt, about 3-4 pound old Cheddar cheese, shredded on coarse shredder, 2 20-oz. tin tomatoes, salt and pepper, bread crumbs (from 2 slices white bread, 3 tablespoons butter. Boil macaroni in salted water 10 minutes and drain. Rinse with cold water. Drain again. In half in bottom of buttered large casserole. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, and half the grated cheese. Add about 2-4 of the can of tomatoes. Add remaining macaroni, sprinkle with salt and pepper, pour over remaining tomatoes. Sprinkle with remaining grated cheese. Distribute breadcrumbs evenly over top, dot generously and evenly with butter. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes or 1 hour. Eleanor says this amount makes too much for 4 people but she wants it left over for a treat for lunch the following day. This she does in a frying pan with a little margarine, stirring it constantly.

Ten-year-old Roddy can make this himself if Eleanor does the first step of draining the macaroni.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Daughter Worries Mother

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I wonder if you can help me? I have to tell someone. My husband doesn't even know this and I'm afraid it would break his heart as it has mine.

I have very good reason to believe my daughter is doing more than some heavy necking with her boy friend. She is 17—but I can't bring them as I know they would deny it. So what am I to do? Believe me, she has always been a good girl and intelligent. Church going too.

Do you think it would do any good to talk it over with the minister? Although, if she found out, I told him, she would never forgive me. They both work. I have to work as we need the money. We have trouble enough trying to make ends meet and now this.—HEART BROKEN MOTHER.

DEAR HEART BROKEN MOTHER:—Not with the minister—with your husband. This is his problem, too. Besides if she were in real trouble and he knew nothing about what had been going on, he would be justified in resenting being kept in ignorance.

Accusations and stern commands are not the way. You need to have a talk with your girl, perhaps presenting the idea that you have been negligent in not discussing boy-girl relationships. Suggesting, perhaps, that it is human to be attracted to the opposite sex and telling about some of your own temptations at her age. Then her father can help by getting across to her the male point of view.

Young people not only get into trouble because of their sex urges; they must also have the opportunity. If you leave them alone in your home for hours on end you are culpable.

Providing opportunities for mixing with others, and having parties under your roof. Doughnuts and coffee are good enough, with good fellowship. This way your daughter will develop an assurance which will make her better able to resist advances without fearing she will be out of things.

For help with your thinking, and hers, get Evelyn Millis Duvall's book on Facts of Life and Love for Teen Agers. What your daughter does now can color her whole life, and this book can help her to cope with present situations.

DEAR DORIS:—When I was 53 I married a man I had known for 25 years. His wife had died in a mental hospital. I thought it would be all bliss after waiting so long. But he is older than I am and he never wants to go anywhere. Worries about money and the future, as he has very little to retire on. Just wants to come home and be pampered and have someone to listen to his complaints.

I'm strongly tempted to get my job back.—MADELINE.

DEAR MADELINE:—Then he'd complain about you coming home tired. You'd really suffer from working in an office all day and doing housework all evening.

Marriage is for life. Perhaps you just got him to pamper you. You are acting too capable—try a little of the clinging vine technique. You need him so let him see that you do.

When he does take you out go all out with appreciation. When you both stay home make it relaxing and fun. You will be readier to meet the challenge of the future than by moping about it. You have a married life to live and you have been waiting for it a long time.

(Doris Clark will be glad to help you with your problems. Write to her care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Dinner Menus

Mary Moore

WEDNESDAY

CHICKEN VEGETABLE SOUP:

1 had 5 cups of broth (1 quart) and to this I added 2 tablespoons each rice and pot barley, 1-4 cup macaroni alphabets, 1 carrot finely diced, 2 stalks celery including tops, 1 finely chopped green onion, 1-2 cup tomato paste and some chopped chicken from the neck and back. I added salt and 2 chicken bouillon cubes and let it simmer 2 hours until it was somewhat thickened and rich in flavor.

Soup is a staple in this house when my grandchildren are here for it is the main course for lunch with whole wheat sandwiches and cottage cheese on lettuce.

When we were children my mother made what my English father called minced collops. What the Modern name of this is I do not know. Eleanor says

MORE ON "PET PEEVES"

A week or so ago I went into a few "pet peeves" received from my readers. They had to do with the thoughtless things that are done in our social contacts.

Today's "peeves" are those expressed by the people who serve us in our everyday activities. Some of them are quite interesting and should make us stop and think!

The laundry man: "When people know that I will pick up their laundry on a certain day, why do most of them wait until I arrive to get it together and count it? Every week I waste untold hours waiting around for this to be done."

The drug store clerk: "The person who hangs around the store reading magazines and poking into things, and finally walks out with a package of chewing gum. Meantime, I have neglected other customers while waiting for him to make up his mind.

The grocery store manager: "The customer who calls in four or five times a day to get things she forgot. This means that the delivery boy spends his time trotting back and forth to her house, while other customers' deliveries are delayed."

The newsboy: "The people who never have any change when I come around to collect. As I have to pay what they owe out of my own pocket, until they do pay, this makes quite a hardship. Not only that but sometimes I have to go back four or five times to make the collection."

The hairdresser: "The woman who takes the attitude of 'even if it is good, I don't like it!' No matter what you do, you can't please her. Also, there is the mother who brings little Peskie with her. He practically wrecks the shop, and other customers' peace of mind."

The taxi driver: "The passenger who slams the door so hard he nearly cracks the glass. The same kind of soul usually flips cigaret ashes all over the cab, and also leaves newspapers spread over the floor. Needless to say this type of customer will tip very little, if at all!"

The long distance operator: "The caller who wants to get Jim Smith in Tinsbucket, and who has only the vaguest idea of Jim Smith's full name or his address. After spending a half hour, you locate the man he wants, only to find that the line making the call has left for the day. The call is cancelled and your time has been wasted."

Obviously, these thoughtless things make the road rougher for those who are trying to serve us. What about mending our ways by doing a little thinking first!

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question — We are giving our manager and his wife a dinner in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Will you please let me know the proper toast my husband should propose to the couple? — Mrs. M. Der, Loch, N. J.

Answer — You husband should rise, holding his glass on high. His toast would be words to this effect: "All good wishes to Mary and Tom (or Mr. and Mrs. Brown). May the next twenty-five years be as happy for them as those in the past!" As soon as he starts the toast, all guests at the table should rise, with the exception of the couple who are being honored. They should remain seated.

Variety of Toe Shapes in Fall Shoe Styles

MONTREAL (CP) — The fall line of women's shoes likely will include a variety of toe shapes, says the Shoe Information Bureau.

The flies or pointed toes, will be retained but indications are that square, crescent or gently rounded toe shapes will also be available.

The flies toes would go with dress-up or party clothes, softly rounded or squared toes would complement daytime clothes. The slim, elongated line would be retained in most shoes.

The pump would remain an important wardrobe accessory with new greater variety of trims and treatments. More smooth leather is likely to be seen than in recent fall seasons.

Heels will be slimmer and stronger on dress shoes, slightly broader on shoes for daytime wear. Square heels would go with square toes.

Women's Institutes

BAY OF QUINTE W.I.

Ind. SIDNEY — The Bay of Quinte Institute held its May meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dickens.

Since the last meeting the president voted in for 1961, Mrs. F. White, has decided she would not be able to take the office so Mrs. Alva Dunn offered her services if some one else would take her office as secretary-treasurer. Mrs. H. Dickens accepted that position.

Plans for the district annual on the 31st May at White's Church were made, with Mrs. Clayton Curtis, Mrs. Frank White and Mrs. Donald Sandercock to be in charge of the music for the program. Mrs. W. Yeoman will give the address of welcome. Mrs. John Reid and Mrs. Palmer to look after registration. Mrs. C. Ketcheson is to make the tea and the other members will fill in wherever needed.

An invitation was received when the Bay of Quinte W.I. was requested to attend "4-H Achievement Days" on Saturday, May 20th, at Madoc, and May 27th at Stirling.

Donations of home cooking and aprons or any kind of sewing were asked for by the Trenton Memorial Hospital Auxiliary for their tea and sale in June. A fine lunch was served.

Young Birds Have More Delicate Flavor

The controversy still goes on as to the relative merits of frozen and fresh poultry.

Some people claim frozen poultry has no flavor. What is overlooked is the fact that much of the frozen poultry is very young. It is true that broiler - fryer chickens and small trukeys have a more delicate flavor than roasting chickens and large turkeys. This is only natural. Consumers do not expect veal and beef to taste alike and yet the same people often complain because broilers don't taste like roasters. The fact that there are two separate names to indicate meat from the young calf and full grown steer, veal and beef, is apparently an indication to consumers that the meat will not taste alike. To date, says the Poultry Products Institute, no one has come up with a similar type of name to attach to the broiler - fryer chicken or young turkey to point up the fact that they have a milder flavor than their full-grown brothers.

Club Activities

ENERGETIC CLUB

A meeting of the Energetic Club was held in Hollowgy St. Church on May 9th. Shirley and Jim Rapino's group were in charge of the evening.

The devotional period was opened by president Phyllis Lema who read the call to worship which was followed by a hymn. Cam Hitchon read a story about the changing year and Shirley Rapino closed the worship service with a prayer.

Shirley Rapino introduced Mr. George Henderson of the Bell Telephone Company who showed a film entitled "Rescue Breathing." It outlined in detail the simple but necessary steps which are required if rescue breathing is to save a life.

Cam Hitchon thanked Mr. Henderson.

Committees were appointed to organize the club's annual picnic to be held at the Outlet Park on July 1st.

The ladies were declared the winners, of a drawing contest which was followed by lunch.

Lyle Howes thanked the Rapino's and their group for a pleasant evening.

The Friendship Circle and Mizpah Benediction closed the meeting.

The Experts Say

Picnics Can Be Lots of Fun Without Costly Equipment

By DEIRDRE HUNGOVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — With both the cars thaw out, they act as a nature and the highways taking on signs of life, there's a growing urge to pack the family and a hamper into the car and drive off to enjoy the spring scenery.

Picnics can be fun even if you don't have elaborate equipment such as thermos jugs, insulated bags or portable coolers. With a bit of imagination and foresight, you can count on making the day a success.

The Poultry Products Institute of Canada suggests that you prepare most of the food beforehand and cook it over the camp fire.

Remember to cover all perishable foods with a newspaper or a cloth when traveling in a hot car.

Foods should be either hot or cold, never lukewarm.

Layers of newspaper wrapped around hot casserole dishes will protect them from spoiling. You can keep cold foods chilled by packing them around cans of frozen tomato or fruit juice. As refrigerant. Cover them with wax paper or plastic sheet to prevent any condensation from touching the food.

Before you set out, be sure that your cooked chicken, potato wishes have been chilled thoroughly.

CAMPFIRE CHICKEN

This picnic recipe calls for: Liquid Italian or French dressing, chicken pieces—legs, half breasts, wings — gregg pepper strips, onion slices, salt and pepper, barbecue sauce or butter and aluminum foil.

Clean damp cloth. Let chicken marinate in the dressing or a barbecue sauce containing vinegar for an hour or overnight. Turn at least once. Drain and place individual portions on large squares of heavy aluminum foil or two thicknesses of lightweight foil. Add green pepper, onion and seasonings. Top with a spoonful of barbecue sauce if desired. Bring foil around chicken to form a leak-proof packages. Chill thoroughly and keep cool in a picnic-hamper until ready to cook.

To cook, place over moderate heat of the campfire—an old oven rack makes a good grill supported on large stones. Turn packages occasionally and cook for 1 to 1½ hours depending on size of pieces. Serve with rolls, pickles.

CAMPFIRE SCRAMBLE

A lither recipe tested by the institute calls for: 2 tbsps. fat, 8 eggs, 1 15-ounce can cream style corn, 1 tsp. salt, dash of pepper and 1-cup cubed process cheese.

Melt fat in heavy frying pan over the campfire, then set aside to cool slightly. Meanwhile, beat eggs lightly with a fork only enough to blend the yolks and whites slightly. Stir in corn and seasoning and return to heat.

Cook, stirring occasionally until partially set. Add cheese cubes and continue cooking until set but still moist. Serve at once.

When the pan has cooled a bit—you don't want eggs cooking before they are served—break eggs into it and beat with a fork only enough to blend the yolks and whites slightly. Stir in corn and seasoning and return to heat.

Cook, stirring occasionally until partially set. Add cheese cubes and continue cooking until set but still moist. Serve at once.

AIDS HEARING

A transistor hearing aid weighing one-third of an ounce is, so small, that microscopes are used in assembling parts in Chicago.

Do not overstir as cheese should remain in cubes. Yields four-to-six servings, depending upon the size of the appetites.

How do I save?

If there's a fool-proof way to save I've yet to hear of it. But one thing I do know: the "Royal's" 2-Account Plan makes saving a whole lot easier.

It works. Because with two separate accounts you can curb that natural urge to dip into your savings; you can actually see your savings grow.

Operation of Station CJBQ Related to Albert College Guild

On Thursday the members of Albert College Guild met in the common room of the manor with the president, Mrs. E. Hickey, presiding.

After welcoming the group, and reminding all that it was Ascension Day, the meeting was opened with the hymn, "Crown Him With Many Crowns."

A letter from Dr. MacKenzie stated that the girls' common room in the college is being furnished, and the members were invited to visit it when the decoration was completed.

In a second letter, Dr. MacKenzie informed the group that in the fire of 1917 the records of the names of people whose final year at Albert was 1916-17 were destroyed, and a request was made to have anyone send in names of persons who graduated in or before 1917 so that Golden Anniversary certificates may be presented to them at the June convocation.

Mrs. Norhcott briefly outlined the history of Albert College medal, under the leadership of Mrs. Baker, first president of the Guild. It was started as a $25 scholarship, with the understanding that the student would be return the next year. Later, it was decided to present a medal, which is now given annually for proficiency and moral influence, to some girl in the graduating class.

LOOM OF LIFE

Miss Helen Sulman, who had charge of the devotional service, chose as her theme, "The Loom of Life," showing how all threads, a few bright ones, a few silken ones and many dark and coarse ones, make the perfect pattern. "We must weave into our lives joys and sorrows, accomplishments and failures, in order to create a beautiful design."

The guest speaker was Mr. T. Hookings, a member of the staff of radio station CJBQ, who told the group something of the operation of and personnel in the various departments.

FULL TIME STAFF

The station is now 16 years old, and employs a full time staff of 30 with five part-time employees, and is run along the lines of a much larger station.

Behind any successful station, there must be a driving force, and at CJBQ it is the manager, Mr. Murray Brown, born in Dublin, and first came to Canada with the Air Force. He is especially interested in community projects.

Mr. Hookings briefly acquainted his audience with the duties and responsibilities of other members of the staff.

Mr. MacDonald is assistant manager and commercial manager, and one of the original members of CJBQ. The commercials are the only source of income a radio station has.

Classed as salesmen are two active workers, Jack Devine, the sports' director and Phil Flagler, the farm director who is considered an expert.

Radio's strong department is the news, and Mr. Harry Moulah, another Irishman, carries this responsibility. He gathers the news and arranges it in order of importance, being especially concerned in the local aspect.

A most important man is Mr. John Buchanan, the technical engineer who is accountable for the operation of the station.

CONTINUITY DEPARTMENT.

The continuity department is in charge of Mrs. Margo Hall and Miss Margaret Bates, who write the local commercials. The bookkeeper is Miss McQuaid, who is a busy person.

Mrs. Cleary is in charge of the Traffic department, and allocates time to everything that goes on the air, sometimes having to deal with sudden changes.

Mr. Ted Snider operates the Trenton station and is mainly concerned with public relations there.

Mr. Hookings also referred to the duties of the receptionist, Mrs. Parks and the librarian Mrs. Myrna McKeown and Mr. L. MacDonald.

Mr. Al. Hall is responsible for programs for the teen-age groups and Mr. Bill MacKay, weekends.

A new member is Mr. Dave Sevaraign. Of interest to many are Mr. Eugene Lang's programs of classical music and Harriet Stevens is the efficient head of the women's department.

The announcing department is considered important as it is the contact between the station and the listening public. Men in this sphere of service must have varied interests and be able to project the message of the station and make it a part of the community.

The program director, Mr. Lee Jouraid is the connecting link between the announcing and manager and sometimes doubles in announcing duties.

There is a certain code of ethics for radio stations and C.J.B.Q. subscribes to this code. Thorough supervision assures the public that they are here.

After a short question period, Mr. Hookings was thanked for his interesting talk by Mrs. Smith.

Guides to Hold Annual Church Parade on 28th

Mothers, representing the various Girl Guide Companies and Brownie packs of the North East District of Belleville, met with Commissioner Hay and Captain Brennan at the School for Retarded Children Monday evening.

Guide Commissioner Hay explained those present and expressed her gratitude to convener Mrs. Lane and all those whose efforts had made the recent rummage sale, held in the Salvation Army hall on Station Street, so successful.

The treasurer, Mrs. R. Pringle, reported a satisfactory profit from the project and suggested that the mothers start saving articles for another sale in the fall.

A small donation to be made to the Salvation Army, in appreciation for the use of their hall, was approved. Also, the same feeling applied to the past use of the School for Retarded Children, as a meeting place, as a cheque will be forwarded to the organization.

CHURCH PARADE

The annual Belleville District Church Parade for Guides and Brownies will take place on the afternoon of May 28. Mrs. Hay urged everyone to do her part in making a fine appearance for the North East District.

The need for more leaders is urgent, and it was felt that, if assistance in purchasing the required uniforms was offered, more ladies would volunteer. The motion, by Mrs. Hume, that two hats be ordered, was seconded by Mrs. Pringle. In September a new Guide Company will be formed at Sir Winston Churchill School, Commissioner Hay stated, thus creating the need for extra help.

She was also pleased to inform the ladies that Guiding has made great advancements in the west ward through the [illegible] of the girls, their leaders and the auxiliaries. Mrs. Lillian Matthews, badge secretary, absent due to illness, was cited for not only testing the applicants but also for keeping a complete record of all badges earned.

LICENSED CAMPERS NEEDED

On being questioned in regard to camping at Wanoca for Guides, Mrs. Hay replied that regrettably there is a shortage of licensed campers in Belleville this summer, and it is impossible to send girls to the site unless they will be supervised properly. As three qualified leaders for the past year are not available, it will be necessary to train a commandant for the next season.

A pack holiday, or a weekend outing, requires: a Brown Owl, a Tawny Owl, and a nurse, with the Brownies staying in cabins.

It would be appreciated if any former Guides, interested in camping, would contact Mrs. T. Hay at WO 8-5926.

Mother's Day Observed at White's Church

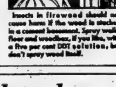
WHITE'S DISTRICT — A fine Mother's Day service was held at White's Church on Sunday morning as a combined service of the two schools of the Sunday School.

A baptismal service was conducted by the Rev. T. F. Townsend for Kari Ritchie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ketcheson and for Dale Cameron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Annesley.

Mrs. William Yeteman assistant superintendent, led in a prayer of adoration and confession; the responsive reading of Psalm 146:10-21 and Old Testament Scripture, Malachi 3:8-12.

The Beginners' choir, with Miss Andy Jones as pianist, sang "Jesus Loves Me".

The superintendent, Mrs. Albert Jones, read the New Testament Scripture, Matthew 25:14-28 and led in prayers of Thanksgiving, petition and intercession. In tribute to mothers, Mrs. Jones read, "Before it Is Too Late".



The offering will be used by the Ontario Council of Christian Education to train leaders for the youth work of the churches, camps for girls and boys and church vacation schools.

The junior choir rendered, "Jesus Loves the Children" with Mrs. Casey Ketcheson at the piano.

Mr. Townsend gave a fine address based on "Stewardship in the Family".

Women of Ontario and West Ahead of Sisters in East

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At the risk of initiating a controversy, it must be said that—in the sphere of politics at least—the women of Ontario and Western Canada have it all over their more easterly sisters.

The Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, in its seventh annual "authoritative list of women in public life in Canada," didn't set out to make that point but that's what the figures show.

The list, names 83 women holding high elective office in the four Western provinces, Ontario has another 52.

They include members of Parliament, members of legislative assemblies, mayors, reeves, aldermen and councillors.

But from the Eastern Ontario boundary to the Atlantic Ocean there are only seven such women.

Ontario has the only women MPs and it has four, including one cabinet minister, Mrs. Ellen Fairclough of Hamilton, minister of citizenship and immigration. The province has no women in its legislature but numbers six reeves, six mayors and 38 aldermen-councillors.

B.C. IS SECOND

British Columbia comes second with three MLAs, three mayors and 16 aldermen-councillors.

Saskatchewan has three MLAs and 15 aldermen-councillors and Alberta has three MLAs, one mayor and 12 women on municipal councils. Manitoba lists two members of the legislature and four in municipal councils.

There is only one woman MLA east of Manitoba, Mrs. Gladys N. Porter, MBE, of Kentville, elected last year as the first woman member of the Nova Scotia house. That province lists two town councillors.

New Brunswick has three aldermen - councillors, including Mrs. Jean Adams, deputy mayor of Fredericton. Prince Edward Island has only Mrs. J. E. Corrigan of Charlottetown.

Quebec and Newfoundland have no women MPs, MLAs, mayors or councillors.

There are seven women senators—two from Quebec and one each from B.C., Manitoba, Ontario, P.E.I., and New Brunswick.

The federation's list contains thousands of names and ranges across such other categories as school trustees, members of national, provincial and municipal boards and commissions, medical health officers, judges, justices of the peace, court registrars and clerks, notaries public and commissioners.

INDIAN CHIEFS

Chiefs and councillors of Indian bands are listed as members of university senates and boards of regents.

Among women chiefs are Louise Underwood, first unmarried woman to head B.C.'s Cowichan Indian band, Mrs. Mary Bernard of P.E.I.'s Lennoxville Island band, Mrs. Alphonsine Lafond of Petesquakey's band on Muskeg Lake reserve in Saskatchewan, and Mrs. Elsie Knott of the Mud Lake band in Ontario.

There is a special "honors and achievements" category and a miscellaneous listing that includes:

Mrs. G. A. Jorgenson of Alberta who in 1960 became the first woman to win the Driver of the Year Cup.

Susan Bolt of Victoria, Canadian ladies' singles tennis champion.

Ellen Fetterley of Chilliwack, B.C., first Canadian woman to win a Nuffield travelling scholarship.

Ruth Addison of Winnipeg and Ottawa, "first woman to achieve equivalent of deputy minister's rank in federal civil service."

Mrs. Hugh John Flemming, wife of New Brunswick's former premier, "founder of Kindness Clubs, to foster in children kindness to animals (as well as people)."

Mrs. Adele Ilves of Fredericton, "designer and weaver of prize-winning tweed for York county."

Mrs. J. M. Pratt of Halifax, "first woman juror in Nova Scotia."

Anne Heggtveit of Ottawa, Canada's athlete of the year in 1960 when she won a gold medal for skiing in the Olympics.

Barbara Wagner of Toronto, who teamed with Bob Paul to win the Olympic figure-skating pairs.

Odette Charron of Montreal, "first and only woman in Canada to serve as a federal prison psychologist."

Bernice Brent of Montreal, weather briefing officer at Dorval airport and only woman to hold such a position.

Prof. Georgia Goodspeed of Saskatoon, "first Canadian woman to be named Fellow Chartered Accountant, highest honor in accountancy profession in Canada."

Toronto, Montreal Rivals Even in Women's Fashions

By JANET WILSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The traditional rivalry between Montreal and Toronto was extended to the fashion field when two leading Canadian couturiers competed for plaudits at a private showing here.

But competition was casual and friendly. There seemed to be general agreement that the fashions by Toronto's Rudolph were "stunning," and of Montreal's Raoul Jean Foure, "pres chic."

Adding to the gay atmosphere of the show in the ballroom of a downtown hotel were the fringed parasols, singing waiters and a strolling violinist.

GARB FOR GAMES

Modelling and music were interspersed with rhymed witticisms from the pen of columnist Doyle Klyn. A sample, for hockey games at Montreal Forum: "The wise gal wears sneakers; she sees the game through — then makes a mad dash when the riot is due."

Raoul - Jean Foure did not, however, dress his model in sneakers. She wore needle-pointed high heels with a sleeveless dress and sweater ensemble of rayon and cotton in tones of turquoise, grey and brown.

Rudolphe's three-piece outfit for Maple Leaf Gardens was perhaps a little more practical — a black linen suit topped with a red and white polka - dotted scarf, and yellow kidskin leather coat.

For weekends in Muskoka, he designed an orange and yellow tunic - styled fringed top over apple-green slacks.

PARTY STYLES

Cocktails with Toronto's Mayor Nathan Phillips was the explanation for a gold, silk and green chiffon dress under a sheer, flowing, polka - dotted coat.

For a similar occasion with Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau there were bouquets of Parma violets against a white background on a decorous dress of cotton. The skirt was subtly bell-shaped, a trend repeated several times in both collections. An apple-green plaque outlined in white completed the outfit.

Modelled for an opening night at Toronto's new O'Keefe Centre was a dramatic gown of white silk zari embroidered in 14-carat gold. The blousoned top had a floating, full - length back panel.

A Montreuler's night out drew a gown of egg-shell Radzimir silk with a sleeveless, scalloped lace blouson.

Teenagers Do Too Much, Try Too Hard

MONTREAL (CP) — Teenagers are trying to do too much too well, says Mother Margaret Power, mistress-general of the Sacred Heart convent here.

Success is so important to them, she believes they all "have to be super-something," said Mother Margaret, who has been teaching teen - aged girls for a quarter of a century.

"They feel there won't be room for them in life if they aren't tops. They are pulled this way and that, with so many demands on their interest and time. And they are more exposed to deeper depression than teen-agers were 25 years ago, because they are trying to cope with so much more."

Previous generations had more security because their horizons were more limited, she said, citing as an example the desire of most of her students today to go away to college. "I see some other view of life" than the one they know.

This was rare earlier in the century, said the nun, herself an arts graduate of McGill University who majored in history and political philosophy at Fordham University in New York.

Despite greater incidence of nervous tension among children today, however, she feels there are many improvements.

They have "a much greater zest for, and interest in, life. They think more clearly and express themselves better. They are much more adult."

But they need more from their families than earlier generations, particularly "understanding, patience, appreciation and great love."

Schools, she said, should strive to be places where teen-agers can find security and a sense of belonging to a large group.

DON'T WANT WOMAN

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A protest at the placing of a female in charge of the male division of the Ontario Hospital here will be made to Health Minister Dymond by a delegation from the London branch of the Civil Servants Association. C. M. Laidlaw, past president, said, a male has a better understanding of the male than a female has.

Women's Activities

FOXBORO UNITED W.M.S.

The postponed meeting of the Foxboro United Church Missionary Society was held in the Sunday School room following a sumptuous and delicious dinner served and catered by members of the Sunday School in aid of the new lights for Sunday School, on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. LaRue opened the meeting with a reading and prayer. The corresponding secretary, Mrs. Shettler, read a "thank you" letter from Mrs. C. Holmes. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Earl Dafoe and Mrs. Johnston, assistant card secretary, read a "thank you" card from Mrs. C. Wilson.

Chapter four of the study book was given by Mrs. Johnston and this completed the business.

Mrs. F. Prindle took charge of the devotional, which was opened by Mrs. F. Dudley playing "In the Cross" on the piano.

Mrs. Lyle Lewis read the Scripture from Luke 10:25-37. A reading on the life of Dr. Gordon Seagrave was given by Mrs. Prindle.

Mrs. G. Meyers sang "What A Friend We Have In Mother," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. F. Dudley.

A reading by Mrs. H. Beatty, "A Sacred Trust from God," by Alma Mason, ended the worship.

ATTACKS GROUP

ACCRA (Reuters) — President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana Monday night attacked the recent Liberian conference of 20 African states and reaffirmed his view that African nations should be willing to surrender their sovereignty in the interests of unity.

Quinte W.I. Installs 1961-2 Officers

The May meeting of the Quinte Women's Institute was held at the Institute Memorial Hall with 32 members present. The president, Mrs. J. Parrott, opened the meeting.

The secretary read the slate of officers and as each name was called, they were asked to come forward. Mrs. C. Reid had charge of the installation service. Mrs. K. Vivian and Mrs. R. Atkins, the past presidents, expressed appreciation.

Mrs. Vivian presented Mrs. Atkins with a gift of two beautiful cups and saucers for which Mrs. Atkins thanked the givers.

The address of welcome was given by the new president, Mrs. Parrott, as it was her first meeting in the new year.

The delegates were chosen for the district annual on May 18th at Canniton. They are, Mrs. K. Vivian, Mrs. J. Parrott, Mrs. R. Atkins, Mrs. F. Bedell and Mrs. A. Cook.

Those members who had no badge will be asked to be sure to bring the hats, also their window drapes and curtains. Three girls of the 4-H Club are to send their skirts and sweaters for display at the district annual.

Mrs. D. Leeming was convener for the program on "Mothers and Grandmothers." A poem, "Old Age," was well given.

The topic, "Home is the Golden Setting in Which to Set the Brightest Jewel," was given by Mrs. Harry Grills, who chose the letters of the song "Mother," which expressed her true feelings as a "mother."

The president, Mrs. Parrott, was in charge of the remainder of the meeting.

Lunch was served by the lunch committee, Mrs. D. Atkins, Mrs. J. Garbutt, Mrs. F. Mitchell, Mrs. A. Maguire and Mrs. E. Bedell and a social hour was enjoyed by everyone.

Patient Mallard May Succeed To Raise Family

CHESTERTOWN, Md. (AP) Marilyn the patient mallard is back again, attempting to hatch eggs at the Remington Farms wildlife research centre—this time from a nest 14 feet up in a big oak tree.

The wacky duck, whose nesting habits baffle biologists, is guarding 12 eggs.

Farm personnel say the prospects look good for Marilyn to succeed this time after three previous similar efforts failed.

If so, the question then is what will happen next. Mallards don't belong in trees, and the young are supposed to learn to swim before they fly.

Three years ago Marilyn built a nest on the lawn of the main building at the research farm. A predator quickly shattered the nest and a dozen eggs.

Last spring, the duck tried twice again in the same oak tree, but something destroyed her 14 eggs within two weeks. A little later, she moved 12 feet up into the tree—but again a predator, possibly a racoon, destroyed the eggs.

This year she nested two feet above the tree level of her last attempt.

were open and last Monday "there were at least 10,000 people at an open-air mass in the heart of Havana."

"After we were forced out of our college," the 43 - year - old priest said, "I stayed in hiding in a private home in Havana. We were under house arrest throughout the invasion period last month, and even when it was over it was safer to remain in hiding."

He said some of the fighting during the abortive invasion attempt took place "about a miles" from the college at Colon.

"We heard explosions in the distance but we certainly were not aware of the progress on either side."

In all, 44 nuns and 17 priests arrived Tuesday night. They were members of the Foreign Mission Society of Montreal, the Brothers of Charity, the Sisters of the Immaculate Conception, the Sisters of Our Lady of Good Counsel and the Servantes du Sacre Coeur de Marie.

Most were from the Province of Quebec.

nical aid to Laos should be administered by "neutral nations from the area," meaning Cambodia and Burma, and that it should be supported "by contributions from many states and agencies."

endorsed Home's call for an embargo on arms shipment into Laos. He said:

"We have no military bases in Laos and want none. We have no military alliance with Laos and want none."

Rusk took only slight notice of the attack on American policy made Monday by the Communist Chinese foreign minister, Chen Yi, saying Chen's statements about the United States "were not true and not here—we have heard them often before."

Chen Yi had charged the United States was fomenting war in Southeast Asia and demanded the disbanding of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Rusk said the threats to Southeast Asia come from the north, not the south.

Rusk declared the conference was not properly constituted because of the absence of a delegation representing the American-backed right-wing Laotian government, which boycotted the talks again today.

He asked Britain and Russia to try to find some solution to this problem.

Rusk said the United States is anxious to test Russia's sincerity in proposing an Austrian-type neutrality for Laos and called on the Soviet Union and other nations to join in an economic development program for the country.

Rusk replied to Chen's charge that the United States was responsible for the situation in Laos by declaring that the real threat to the kingdom came from Communist North Viet Nam.

If the Communists had not entered the country from North Viet Nam, he said, there would have been no need to send American instructors to aid the right-wing Laotian army.

Rusk's plea for Laotian neutrality echoed statements made Tuesday by Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia, Lord Home of Britain and Chen.

Astronaut Shepard Was Not Afraid But Admits to Having Butterflies in His Stomach

NEW YORK (AP)—Astronaut Alan B. Shepard says he wasn't afraid before he made his historic flight—but that he had butterflies in his stomach a few times.

However, he said, he managed to conquer these quickly, and as blastoff time drew near he was impatient to get going.

Shepard describes his feelings and experiences in Life magazine, which has an exclusive contract with all seven American astronauts for their personal stories. By agreement they share the proceeds, reported to be a lump sum of $500,000.

Although there was tension before the flight, Shepard says, he was never at any time seized by actual fear.

After he was shut inside the capsule, cloudy weather and technical matters brought a delay. Shepard said this didn't bother him. He spent the time checking instruments. But this ally he felt a strong temptation to "urge everybody along."

GIVES IMPRESSIONS

Here are some of Shepard's impressions of the flight:

"I must admit that I braced myself too much for that marvelous liftoff. There was nobody around to tell me how it would actually feel and we hadn't heard about it from Moscow.

"When the bird lighted I could hear a rumble beneath me and feel the vibration but both were at a much lower level than I expected . . . I was really exhilarated and surprised. It was smooth, gradual and gentle . . .

"One minute after liftoff the bird rode a little rough . . . we had known that this was going to happen but it was a little heavier than I thought it would be. I never considered getting out."

At two minutes after launch, at an altitude of about 25 miles, forces of gravity built up quickly as the Redstone climbed at about 3,700 miles an hour.

"The ride was now fine," said Shepard. "just exactly as we had planned."

The booster engine cut off on schedule.

"Nothing abrupt happened . . . there was a gradual drop in the level of forward thrust, all very smooth."

Then came the separation of the capsule from the booster, verified by a light on the instrument panel.

"I don't recall thinking anything in the particular sequence, but there's good medical evidence that I was concerned about it at the time.

"My pulse reached its peak here, 152, and started down afterward."

ONE CIRCUIT FAILED

Shepard said the only circuit failure was when a panel light failed to signal the jettisoning of the retro rocket container.

The ten-entry G Gravity forces built up almost from a little before I was quite ready for them . . .

"I had a long plunge back to earth I was pushed back into the couch with a force about 11 times the pull of gravity."

At last the parachutes took over and worked functioned perfectly.

"There was a moment of high relief for me," said Shepard, "in fact I felt great."

When the capsule hit the ocean, "the landing was abrupt but not more upsetting than to happen but it was a little

Except for Commonwealth Members and U.S., Norway Is Canada's Best Friend

OSLO (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green and Green's many book here to sell 80,000 to 90,000 copies. A book becomes a bestseller in Canada when it has sold 5,000 copies.

Oslo, a city of 465,000 has eight newspapers. The newspaper Aftenposten, a city of 59,000, has a listed circulation of 50,000.

Despite the time Norwegians spend hiking and skiing — and eating—they still find a lot of time for literature.

At the NATO foreign ministers' meeting here Green and Lange took almost exactly similar views on disarmament, Canada and Norway unlikely to be tarnished by the fact that both countries are set on having the 1968 winter Olympic Games.

Norway has already built a new skiff breathtaking ski jump on the mountain which affords an equally breathtaking view of Oslo and its fjord. Even at this time of year, there are patches of snow on the high slopes and sheets of ice in the mountain pools.

TELL 'EM APART

It is sometimes difficult to distinguish between Norwegians and Canadians, two northern peoples, because they think alike on so many things. But it is made doubly difficult because nearly all Norwegians speak English, their second tongue.

Norway has welfare services similar to Canada's: unemployment insurance, family allowances (Norway has children's pension), old-age pensions and sickness insurance.

Though they have a labor government, the 3,500,000 Norwegians seem as conservative as Canadians. Oslo has its share of Communists, but they don't get much publicity.

Canada has never had a playwright as famous as Ibsen, a composer as famous as Grieg, a singer as famous as Flagstad, a novelist as famous as Hamsun or Undset nor an explorer as famous as Amundsen.

It is not at all unusual for a

Bill to Remove Divorces From House Lost

OTTAWA (CP) — Efforts to find a procedural solution to the parliamentary divorce tangle met defeat Tuesday — at least for the current session.

A bill designed to remove divorce bills from the Commons for the year was lost in the Senate.

It had been proposed by Douglas Morrill (PC—Toronto Davenport) and speedily given Commons approval — but no senator would sponsor it.

It proposed that the Commons drop bills on divorce bills and let the Senate act by itself.

Without a sponsor after several months, it was removed from the Senate order paper by Speaker Mark Drouin.

Ostensibly, Senate opposition to the bill was that it violated the constitutional principle that all legislation must be passed by both houses of Parliament.

This could have been overcome, however, by a Senate amendment under which Parliament would delegate authority in the upper house to dissolve marriages by decree, instead of through individual pieces of legislation for each divorce.

REASON POLITICAL?

Informants said recently the reason for the Senate hesitancy to deal with Mr. Morton's bill was political. There was a fear of repercussions on the hustings.

Meanwhile, Senator Arthur Roebuck (L — Ontario), chairman of the Senate divorce committee, told the Senate Tuesday that his committee now has about 325 divorce petitions from Quebec and Newfoundland—only provinces without their own divorce courts—and has 35 petitions left to handle.

"Those will be easily dealt with," he said.

All 325 cases have been reported to the Commons where, now that Mr. Morton's bill is dead, they must be dealt with. This also will be necessary for the remaining 35 petitions.

Last session the CCF group in the Commons staged a five-month filibuster against divorce bills in an effort to have them removed from the Commons' hands. The course they will follow on this year's group of bills is not known.

Three Members Of One Family Killed in Crash

SNEDDEN (CP)—Three members of one family were killed Tuesday evening in a level crossing accident in this tiny village 30 miles west of Ottawa.

They were Kenneth McPhail and his wife Georgette, both in their early 30's, and Mr. McPhail's father, Robert, in his 60s.

Mr. and Mrs. McPhail both work in the nearby village of Almonte and were being driven home by Mr. McPhail's father when their car collided with a CPR westbound freight from Smiths Falls.

91 U.S. Citizens to Start Repatriation Plan in Cuba

HAVANA (CP) — At least 91 United States citizens are expected to leave Cuba Friday, Friday, the start of a repatriation program that could mean the departure of 500 or more U.S. citizens from Cuba.

The Swiss Embassy announced Tuesday that agreement has been reached with the Cuban foreign ministry whereby U.S. citizens will fly to Miami on Friday and the American side of the repatriation flight.

The Swiss Embassy has been handling United States government affairs in Cuba since Washington broke off diplomatic relations with Cuba early this year.

The agreement marks the culmination of nearly two weeks of work by the Swiss Embassy. Embassy spokesman said negotiations went smoothly but complications developed in trying to process the list of repatriates than the Swiss had expected.

Many of the embassy sought exit permits on behalf of 98 United States citizens. Cuban authorities struck off four names, because the persons were without passports. The four included three dews correspondents — Harold Gallin of The Associated Press, Mrs. Ruby Hart Phillips of the New York Times and Martin Rosenman of United Press International.

The other person is a Roman Catholic priest who was expected to leave in the latter half of the estimated 1,200 Americans still in Cuba.

A second list of 82 names already has been submitted by the Cuban foreign authorities. Others are expected to follow as the repatriation program continues.

The Swiss Embassy ran advertisements in newspapers circulated throughout the island asking Americans who wished to go home to get in touch with the embassy. Replies were received from some 400 to 500 persons.

A embassy spokesman indicated later progress of the program may depend on whether the United States facilitates repatriation of Cubans who want to return to their homeland.

JACKIE WIELDS A SHOVEL — Jacqueline Kennedy finds that shovel handling is one of the official duties of the first lady as she plants a red oak tree on the grounds of Government House after arrival at Ottawa yesterday. Atomic E-Chief, Engineer Remain Miles Apart in Views On Nuclear Power Stations

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's atomic energy chief and pessimistic critic sat side by side Tuesday but remained miles apart in their views on nuclear power stations.

Montreal engineer Wunsch Gourd read a 30-page brief to the Commons research committee in which he was highly critical of the progress of the Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, headed by Dr. J. S. Foote.

Mr. Boyd described himself as "frankly concerned" about the safety aspects of the reactors.

At the night session Dr. Gray, president of the Crown corporation, gave the committee his answer.

HAS OWN IDEAS

"It must be obvious to all of you," he said, "that he (Mr. Boyd) is doing his best to peddle his own ideas on reactor designs."

The brief was inaccurate and misleading, "particularly in that aspect which concerns safety."

The two men have been engaged in a three-year controversy revolving around the atomic energy company's program of using natural uranium as a fuel in atomic plants.

Dr. Gray called on Dr. W. B. Lewis, vice - president of research and development of Atomic Energy of Canada, and Dr. G. C. Laurence, director of reactor research, to explain Dr. Boyd's statements on the safety of the corporation's reactors.

Dr. Lewis said that if everything possible went wrong with a reactor used by the corporation, "no radiation at all would escape to the outer world."

Dr. Gray also took issue with Mr. Boyd's statement that atomic Energy of Canada solely exists "that power reads a truly unbiased engineering review of the best type of reactor for Canada to have always required that the moderator be heavy water."

Such studies had been made but findings were that the heavy-water reactor was the only one that met the economic competition in Ontario.

Concluded Dr. Gray:

"So far as I am concerned we have the genuine and complete support of the United States Atomic Energy Commission and the United Kingdom Energy Authority for our position of developing water-moderated power reactors.

"We feel the weight of qualified opinion on our side far outweighs Mr. Boyd's opinion."

The Crown corporation has decided to use natural uranium as a fuel in power plants and heavy water to make the fission process possible.

TWO BEING BUILT

This process is being followed in an experimental atomic power plant now nearing completion at Rolphton, some 150 miles northwest of Ottawa, and in Canada's first full-scale nuclear plant at Douglas Point on the eastern shore of Lake Huron.

Mr. Boyd has repeatedly advocated the use of helium gas and graphite in place of heavy water. The fuel would be of enriched uranium and carbide.

Mr. Boyd said also that he was "frankly worried" about the safety of the Rolphton and Douglas Point stations.

Both the reactors used there was "a direct conflict between safety and economy of operation which doesn't exist in any other type of reactor."

SAFE FACTOR LOWERED

The reactors were of the pressure-tube type and the designer "had arranged with the boiler inspection branch of the Ontario labor department to lower the safety factor. . . .

"The safety problem would grow when power plants were located in the most heavily-populated areas of Canada."

Mr. Boyd suggested a redistribution of the functions of the atomic energy control board and private companies.

Kennedys Plant Red Oak Trees At Govt. House

OTTAWA (CP) — President Kennedy planted a red oak tree on the Government House grounds Tuesday with eight husky shovelfuls of soil.

Mrs. Kennedy planted a red oak sapling. The plantings took place in the first hour of the visitors' Ottawa stay.

Mr. Kennedy walked with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Governor - General Vanier about 500 yards down the main drive from the front door where the tree had already been put in place by landscape gardeners.

The president was handed a silver-plated shovel and tackled the pile of soil beside the hole in quick vigor. After three or four shovelfuls were thrown around the tree Mr. Kennedy looked up and said:

"This is only symbolic, you know."

The crowd laughed and Mr. Diefenbaker chuckled.

Then he handed the shovel to Mr. Diefenbaker and said:

"Now it's your turn, sir."

Mr. Diefenbaker took the shovel and put the last spadeful of the soil beside the tree.

The party then moved another dozen yards to the newly-made open space in the Government House grounds where Mrs. Kennedy planted her tree.

She threw three dainty balls of soil around the roots of the tree and put the shovel-aside. The crowd applauded.

The two trees, picked to fit the landscape surroundings, were planted a short distance from a hard maple former president Eisenhower planted in November, 1953.

Crowsnest Freight Rates Viewed in West as Politically Untouchable by West MPs

OTTAWA (CP)—The controversial Crowsnest Pass freight rates on Prairie export grain may be around for some time yet.

As far as MPs who spoke in the Commons Tuesday are concerned, no one wants to change them.

The Crowsnest rates — set in 1897 under an agreement between the CPR and the federal government and later confirmed by statute—are viewed in the West as politically untouchable the economic backbone of the Prairie farm economy.

MPs got into the Crowsnest rate issue, one of the most durable of Canadian political hotpotatoes over the years, during a debate on government legislation to extend the $20,000,000-a-year "roll - back" subsidy on freight rates.

The legislation was given second reading—approval in principle.

Adjourned until later was debate on a second reading of another government bill to increase the size of the CNR board of directors to 10 from seven. Liberal MPs opposed the bill, claiming it was a useless step.

CLAIMS TORY STEP

J. M. Pedersoli (L — Bonavista-Twillingate) said it was designed only to give jobs to Tory wheelhorses.

The references to the Crowsnest rate were made during a debate on the tendrop of a recommendation of the MacPherson royal commission on transportation to have the national treasury subsidize export grain traffic up to $22,300,000 a year.

The commission found that the railways were losing money on the statutory grain rates and that the subsidy did not offset the deficits.

Defending the rate levels, CCF Leader Argue, a Prairie farmer, put the case this way:

"Any government or any political party which embarked on a course of tampering with the Crowsnest rates so as to raise the rates on western grain would not have a chance to elect a single member from any one of the three Prairie provinces."

ASKS HOW

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) asked how "a group of free enterprisers" can keep supplying subsidies. He referred to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's statement that the next election will be a battle between private enterprise and socialism.

J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood) said Mr. Fisher wouldn't succeed in trying to embarrass the Conservative party by referring to Mr. Diefenbaker's statement that the party is in favor of free enterprise.

"So we are, but we are also in favor of common sense," Mr. Argue said.

"We have gone into certain aspects of public ownership because we thought it was practical, good business and common sense."

Liberal Leader Pearson said:

"Would it be fair to describe his position as this: That the Conservative party is moving left, the CCF is moving right, and somewhere in the hall meet, leaving the Liberal party as the party of common sense?"

Safety Measure Demands Could Harm Nuclear Industry

TORONTO (CP)—Two prominent Canadians today associated with Canada's nuclear industry warned Tuesday that the economic health of Canada's nuclear industry would be endangered by unwarranted public demands for safety measures.

The warning was sounded in speeches at the annual meeting of the newly - formed Canadian Nuclear Association by Robert W. Macaulay, Ontario minister of energy resources and Robert Lorne Dunlop, president of Rio Tinto Mining Company of Canada Limited.

Both Mr. Macaulay and Mr. Winters agreed that safety measures in the use of atomic energy must be stringent to protect workers and the public against radiation.

But they said it is not necessary that the kind of such precautions should reach unwarranted heights.

"It would be a shame," Mr. Macaulay said, "if ignorance and misunderstanding led to such unordinate requirements for safety that they would hamper development."

Mr. Winters said the success of the industry in large part would depend on its ability to balance the safety factor with the cost of production.

No unwarranted restrictions should be placed on the industry which would have the effect of preventing the application of safety precautions necessary and it was up to the industry to win the confidence of Canadians in accepting those precautions as adequate safety.

URGES CENTRIFUGE STUDY

P. E. Peterson, chief atomic physicist engineer in charge of engines Limited, Malton, urged Canada to study the establishment of a gas centrifuge process for enrichment of uranium as a fuel for atomic power plants.

He said he was proposing that Canada produce enriched uranium by diffusion plants costing hundreds of millions of dollars. However, he was suggesting that the cheaper centrifuge system be investigated.

Canada now is using natural uranium as a fuel, in atomic power plants now under construction but not proposing that a switch be made to enriched uranium. However, other countries were interested in buying enriched uranium and research on the use of it politic to provide them with this material.

Mr. Peterson said that Canada may end up as an also-ran in the race for world uranium markets unless it gets into the enriched uranium field.

I. F. McRae, association president and chairman of the board of Canadian General Electric, said the Canadian government through Atomic Energy of Canada Limited has done what has proved to be one of the most promising nuclear programs in existence in the world today."

Mr. McRae said it has been recognized that only the government could provide the large expenditures required for nuclear research and development before there was any commercial uses in Canada.

Appeal Is Lost

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Court of Appeal dismissed Mrs. Inga Santala's appeal against a conviction and sentence for an acid - throwing attack on the doctor she blamed for the death of her child.

Mrs. Santala, a 46-year - old Finnish housewife, was convicted in Port Arthur Feb. 21 on a charge of causing bodily harm to Dr. E. D. Somerleigh by throwing nitric acid at him in the left eye Nov. 1 meeting of Nipigon town council.

Mrs. Santala appealed on the ground that the trial judge erred in imposing a severe sentence in view of mitigating circumstances.

Macmillan Approves Meet Between President, Nikita

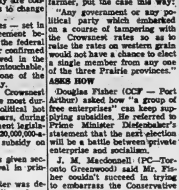
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Reaction to a possible meeting between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev has pointed up a number of obstacles in the path of such a conference.

Speculation that such a session will be held has been growing. It is believed plans hinge largely on what progress is made at Geneva in regard to a nuclear test ban and Laos.

Also, it is felt that President de Gaulle of France may not take kindly to the idea of consulting himself out of a high-level session.

Political sources in London say Prime Minister Macmillan, who is being kept informed on President Kennedy's thinking on the matter, has given his full approval.



It was Macmillan, himself, who started the fashion of two-party meetings in March, 1959, when he visited Moscow to talk with the Russian leader.

Some have speculated that the meeting would take place in early June but most observers feel that negotiations on a nuclear test ban will have advanced by then to the point where formal discussions at that meeting advisable.

Kennedy, no doubt, will take the matter up with de Gaulle when he visits Paris May 31.

Khrushchev will first confer briefly - Khrushchev meeting, if there comes to be one, with informal negotiations. It would be merely give both men a chance to take the measure of the other.

The fact there has been no firm denial of the possibility of a meeting lends weight to speculation that Kennedy may feel the time has come when a face-to-face session would be fruitful.

'Water Safety' Its Rules, Methods Explained in Detail at H-S Meet

"Water safety is the common sense utilization of our water resources for recreational purposes," stated Dr. G. H. Craig in his address to the Hems and Sidney Association of S.S. No. 2, Ameliasburg, at the recent meeting held at the school.

"The most important single rule for those participating in water activities, is to know their limitations, and observe them. What is safe for an experienced person is often dangerous for another. It depends on the individual skill and agility of each individual, and his judgment.

"Water safety is primarily to prevent accidental death through drowning. These fatalities occur when bathing, fishing, swimming, boating, water skiing, or falling off docks. By knowing methods of resuscitation, lives can be saved by all these people concerned and onlookers."

Dr. Craig stated some definite rules for water safety, as follows:

1 Never go swimming alone; 2 Never dive into strange waters; 3 Cool off before swimming; 4 Wait until a meal is digested before swimming; 5 When hunting or fishing, and wearing heavy clothing, always wear a life jacket; 6 Don't show off near the water; pushing, ducking, running around docks and rocking a boat is dangerous.

SAFETY PRECAUTIONS

"If you can't swim, stay out of small boats, or wear an approved type life jacket. Water filled excavations and open ditches are dangerous, and there are many old wells and cisterns that are not in use that could claim a life by not having protection around them. These should be fenced! Plastic wading pools should be emptied when not in use, and should be given strict supervision when children are playing in them." Doctor Craig stressed that a child in trouble often makes no noise, and drownings are possible in only two inches of water.

"The use of rubber inflatable toys is dangerous for poor swimmers. Sometimes these blow away from shore and beyond the poor swimmer's depth, panic often results, and then tragedy, in a desperate attempt to get back to shore. Giving a child an old inner tube is particularly dangerous, and does not result in the child learning to swim, but only risks another tragedy, involving a non-swimmer.

"To rescue a person in trouble", Dr. Craig's advice is: "Never swim to a drowning person or person in trouble if any other means is available to reach him — there may be two tragedies instead of one. Use a boat or reaching stand, and if these are not available use anything that will float and push it towards the struggling person. These could be, wood chair, gas can, an oar, or ring buoy. It is more important to be able to stay afloat than to swim a distance, and the use of the buoyancy of water to float or tread water can save your life. Be prepared mentally and properly equipped to save a life when the need arises! From ignorance stems panic, and from panic stems tragedy.

LIFE JACKETS SHOWN

Various types of life jackets were shown and the merits and faults of each were pointed out. The construction of the old style life jacket approved, in 1913, which still meets standard requirements is easily refuted by water, gasoline and oil, and would be useless in an emergency. The newer types approved are more reliable due to new techniques of construction, and materials for filler, it was advised when purchasing life jackets, to look for the most recent date of approval to be sure that it complies with the most recent government tests.

MOVIE FILM SHOWN

A movie entitled, "Rescue Breathing" was shown. The technique of mouth to mouth resuscitation was illustrated, and the types of near fatalities that could be revived by its use were shown. Mouth to mouth resuscitation is preformed by tipping the victim's head back to make sure that nothing is obstructing the passage of air into the lungs; often the victim's tongue seals off the air passage, and by pulling the lower jaw forward, the tongue will move forward with, and thereby open the passage. The victim's nose is held to keep air from escaping when mouth to mouth breathing is done. The rescuer breathes into the mouth of the victim, and chest expension becomes plainly visible in the victim. The air is expelled by the victim without assistance from the rescuer, and then again the rescuer breathes into the victim's mouth ,and this is continued until the victim is capable of breathing without assistance.

At the conclusion of the film, Dr. Craig gave a demonstration of mouth to mouth resuscitation using his daughter, Susan as the "victim".

THANKS TENDERED

Mrs. Jack H. Sills introduced Dr. Craig and a vote of thanks to Dr. Craig and his daughter, Susan, was extended by Mr. Ian Morch.

The pupils of grades 7-8 were special guests at this meeting conducted by the President, Mrs. Earl Brett. This was the closing meeting until October. A Bar-B-Q at the school is planned for June, around the date school closes, and will be announced later.

WELLINGTON

District Boy Scouts Plan Future Events

WELLINGTON — The last paper drive which was sponsored by the Prince Edward District Boy Scout Council was a huge success. The council also sponsored the apple drive which was held Saturday, May 6th. The boys worked hard and many apples were sold. However, the net proceeds were not too high as apples at this time of the year are quite expensive. The proceeds from these two drives go to set up district camps, district Cuborees and district sponsored events.

The Wellington 1st Troop will have a paper drive soon. The proceeds to be used for local Scout activities. Circulars magazines as well as the newspaper should be saved and the date will be announced later.

May 20-22, the holiday weekend will be the annual district Scout camporee. Through the kindness of Mr. Clinton Hamley it will be held on his property on the high shore road.

On Saturday, June 10th, Wellington school grounds will be the scene of the annual County Cuborees. This is the first time in many years this has been held in the village.

The Wellington town council gave a most generous donation towards sending three and possibly four Scouts to the 3rd Canadian Jamboree in Ottawa in July. Also thanks to the Hillier township council members who personally donated towards the cause, which the Troop appreciates.

Three Patrols (six in each) expect to attend the annual Scout Camporee under the leadership of Scoutmaster Everett Robinson, assisted by Wade Cleave and Dale Hicks, assistant Scoutmasters.

Sunday afternoon Rev. K. McAllaster preached from the Hebrew 12: 1-2. His subject was "The embarrassment of ancestors".

The music for the anniversary service was rendered by a choir composed of young ladies from St. Ola and Gilmour, under the direction of Mrs. Marion Ham, organist of the St. Ola Church.

On Sunday 21st the Rev. J. Ballantyne of Coe Hill, will administer the sacrament of the Lord's supper in the St. Ola Church. As Rev. Ballantyne is moving to Lakefield the end of June, this will be his last time to officiate in this manner in the St. Ola district.

EXPECT CANADA

2½ hours in private talks this morning following which the president will speak before a joint session of Parliament in the green - carpeted House of Commons at 3:15 p.m. EDT.

It will be a major address and likely will expand on the theme Mr. Kennedy emphasized on his arrival—that in the long twilight era that is neither peace nor war, "we must stand together even more firmly than ever before."

WANTS SEE IN OAS

Mr. Kennedy would like to see Canada become a member of the, 21-country Organization of American States. Canadian and American informants said membership would carry some responsibilities for Canada providing aid to the hard - pressed Latin countries.

The Canadian government is giving the subject of OAS membership new consideration. To the growing number of public eyes that is neither peace nor voices taking sides on the issue have been added those of former prime minister St. Laurent and the 1,000,000-member Canadian Labor Congress. Both said Tuesday that Canada should join.

Informants said, however, that the government is not planning any immediate decision. Mr. Kennedy may have to leave empty - handed. Canada's overall economic aid program is currently estimated at about $62,000,000 annually in grants, mostly to Colombo plan countries in Asia.

Informants said that if Mr. Kennedy should question whether this is adequate, the Canadian reply is that Canada is quite willing to stand on her record—a total of some $335,000,000 in grant aid during the last decade.

DEBATE CROWN SIZE

The Kennedys first day in Ottawa appeared to have been moderately successful. While local observers debated the size of the crowds, overcast skies and a stiff breeze may have kept many would-be spectators indoors.

The word was passed around that Mr. Kennedy felt the crowds were greater than he had expected.

Both the president and prime minister ventures into the French language in their airport speeches.

The prime minister lianted the French portion of his speech to a simple expression of welcome.

After listening to the prime minister, Mr. Kennedy said he was "somewhat encouraged" to say a few words in French, and observed that it was fitting that in his first trip as president outside the United States he should visit Canada, "the oldest of our neighbors and among the closest of our friends."

ROCKS

The searing heat kept everyone away from the explosion area. But after the valves were shut off, the flames gradually died down.

When it was over, the 150-foot section was twisted like spaghetti.

A Trans-Canada spokesman said the explosion was a case of "pipe failure," the first such accident since the pipeline was completed nearly four years ago.

Despite the break, the spokesman said the company would maintain normal service until repairs were completed later today.

The line in the area runs about 33 feet underground in heavy rock.

Inspector Jack Huntington of the Ontario fire marshal's office said his department does not plan an investigation but Widdifield Township fire department promised a complete one.

Precise cause of the fire was not immediately established.

Last week a pipeline official said a minor pinhole leak was repaired in the vicinity of the explosion but it was not immediately known whether that had anything to do with the blast.

Across Highway 11, about a quarter - mile from the explosion, the pipeline runs through a populated area.

Role of Private Business Key Topic at Conference

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The role of private business in raising the living standards in newly developing countries will be the key topic at the Congress of the International Chamber of Commerce in Copenhagen May 22-27.

Eighty - five Canadians are scheduled to attend, made up of 47 delegates and 38 accompanying wives and relatives, the largest representation Canada has sent to ICC meetings since the association was formed after the First World War.

They will be part of a gathering of about 2,500 people from 40 countries.

Commenting upon the Congress theme, Private Enterprise in Economic Development, advance literature on the meeting says:

"In public discussion of economic development emphasis has tended in the post-war years to be on governmental aid and loans and, within the developing nations, on the tasks of government. Perhaps this was unavoidable in the special circumstances of the time, but it has led to widespread failure to understand and appreciate the important contribution of private enterprise."

DISCUSS TRADE BLOCS

Heading the Canadian delegation will be Martin P. Murphy, president of the Canadian Council of the ICC and executive vice - president, Northern Electric Co. Ltd., Montreal.

While private enterprise in economic development is the meeting's theme, discussions will range over a number of other vital topics.

One will be Regional Groups and World Trade, at which C. Bruce Hill, president of E. T. F. Tools Ltd., St. Catharines, Ont., will speak.

Another will be Prices of Primary Products, with particular attention to ways of avoiding violent short - term fluctuations which hit hard at primary producing countries. W. E. Williams, president, Procter and Gamble Company of Canada Ltd., Toronto, will speak on Adjustment of Production to Consumption.

An examination of the international monetary system will include such topics as, Is There a Global Shortage of Monetary Reserves?

A meeting on taxation and international investment will hear a report from an ICC commission which has been studying the matter for two years with the aim of "formulating practical recommendations for realistic tax policies by countries desiring to attract foreign capital or to encourage its outward flow". Maurice Samson, executive vice-president of Samson, Belair, Cote, Lacroix and Associates, Quebec, will be a speaker.

BANKERS TO SPEAK

At another session, R. W. Shanson, honorary secretary of the Canadian Council and associate general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, Montreal, will take part in a discussion on The Benefits of Direct Private Foreign Investment.

John Denison, deputy general manager of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, Toronto, will speak at a meeting on banking techniques.

Mr. Murphy will be honorary chairman of a meeting on marketing and Paul Bienvenu, immediate past president of the Canadian Council and president, Catelli Food Products Ltd., Montreal, will make a statement on international marketing of a consumer product.

R. Ralph Porter, executive vice-president, Thomas J. Lipton Ltd., Toronto, will take part in an advertising discussion. Thomas Oakley, president, Canadian Housewares Ltd., Wesion, Ont., will be the Canadian member of the Congress resolutions committee, with J. G. Crean, president, Crean Hats of Canada, Toronto an alternate.

Capt. Joseph Jeffery, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and partner in Jeffery and Jeffery, London, Ont., will speak on the role of Chambers of Commerce in economic development at a special meeting of the ICC's international information bureau of Chambers of Commerce.

Other topics will include tourism, taxation, patent property, commercial arbitration and transport.

ROYALTY AT OPENING

King Frederik and Queen Ingrid of Denmark will be present at the opening plenary session May 23 which will be addressed by Prime Minister Vigo Kampmann.

Congresses are held every two years and activities in between are centred at Paris headquarters, with member countries carrying on their work through national councils. Headquarters of the Canadian Council are in Montreal where Carl Bergthon is general manager.

The Congress first met once in Canada, at Quebec in 1949. Last meeting was in Washington in 1959, where Carlos Mantero, of Portugal, was elected president for a two-year term.

Primary aim of the International Chamber is to smooth the path of world trade. In general it favors "freer trade," but takes cognizance of national aspirations in the development of home industry. In addition to broad aims it seeks by general agreement among world business men to remove various technical complexities in world commerce.

Based on its conclusions it makes representations to governments and to international agencies, such as those of the United Nations.

Boxer Dies After Bout

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Lightweight boxer Harry Campbell, 23-year-old former Olympic star who turned pro, died Tuesday night—24 hours after suffering a brain injury in a 10-round main event.

Campbell, who underwent surgery for a hemorrhage, never regained consciousness. An accumulation of hard, but not devastating punches was blamed for the injury.

The San Jose State sophomore and member of the 1960 Olympic team collapsed in the Kezar Pavilion ring Monday night after losing a 10-round decision to Al Medrano, Sacramento, Calif.

The circumstances recalled those in which Ed Sanders, Los Angeles, who won the Olympic heavyweight title in 1952, was injured fatally in a bout with Willie James of New York in Boston Dec. 12, 1954. Sanders died 18 hours after he was knocked out.

Doug Hayden, San Francisco member of the state athletic commission, said he would start an investigation to determine whether any negligence was involved in Campbell's fatal injury.

Referee Verne Bybee said he was surprised to learn that Campbell had collapsed.

"I didn't realize he was badly hurt until after I was in the dressing room and they came in to get a stretcher," said Bybee. "I don't think any referee in the country would have stopped the fight. When I cleaned off his gloves after the knockdown (in the 10th) his eyes looked clear." Dr. Don Lastreto, physician for the California athletic commission told reporters after the fight he recalled no "real hard" punches but believed the fight's injury came from an accumulation of blows.

"I didn't think I hit him very hard," Medrano said. "I didn't even hit him until the late rounds."

Campbell, who came to the west coast from Detroit, had won 185 of 112 amateur fights and his first five pro bouts before losing an upset decision to Medrano in March. The rematch was his first fight since.

His death was the sixth among northern California pro boxers since 1938.

Have 22-9 Record

Tigers Clutch Clouters

BALTIMORE (AP) — The clutch-hitting ability of the Detroit Tigers has sparked the team of red-hot opportunists to a 22-9 record and a four-game lead in the American League.

When a Tiger batter reaches base, the odds are almost even that he'll come all the way around to score.

In 31 games, Detroit has scored 197 runs of 6.3 per contest. The number of runners left on base during the span totals 227, or only 7.3 a game.

From top to bottom, the eight regulars have been tough to retire with runners in scoring position. The RBI totals of all eight are in double figures, ranging from the 11 of shortstop Chico Fernandez to the 26 of first baseman Norm Cash.

"The players have been picking each other up," manager Bob Scheffing said Tuesday night after the Tigers whipped the Baltimore Orioles 14-4 while stranding but six runners.

"Rocky (Colavito) is hot right now. He has made 10 hits in 25 at bats, including four homers and a triple, in the last six games."

Detroit has not lost a series this year, and its longest losing streak is two games. As is the case with most winning teams, the breaks are riding with the Tigers.

Outfield star Al Kaline has missed the last three games with a pulled leg muscle, but replacements have come through handsomely. Charley Maxwell drove in four runs in two of the games, and rookie Bubba Morton hit a two - run triple in his first start Tuesday night.

The Trots

MONTREAL (CP)—Carolwyn Gratian, nine-year - old brown mare owned and driven by Bert Macill of Leamington, won the featured $1,200 seventh race pare at Richelieu Park Tuesday night.

Carolwyn Gratian covered the mile in 2:06 1-5 and returned $3.60, and $2.80.

It marked the second win in succession for Mable Forbes, which paid $11 straight mutuel.

Ken Galbraith of Chesley, Ont., reined his own Eddiecan to a surprise $46 triumph in a C-3 pace on the card. It was the four-year-old gelding's first start of the year.

AUSTRALIAN COFFEE

Coffee production in Australia is expected to reach 3,000 tons in 1961, compared with 1,000 tons in 1956.

Lark Fans Still Like The Team

MONTREAL (CP) — If Montreal Alouettes are going to feel the loss of Sam Etcheverry and Hal Patterson, it appears it won't be at the gate.

The deadline for season-ticket renewals passed Tuesday, and while no official figures were immediately available, it was understood total subscriptions were almost equal to last year's 17,500.

The Big Four club's peak season was 1958 when there were 30,000 subscribers. Molson Stadium, its home field, has a capacity of about 36,000.

Quarterback Etcheverry and end Patterson, longtime stars with the club, were dealt off last winter. Etcheverry ended up with St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League after refusing to report to Hamilton Tiger - Cats of the Big Four. Patterson signed with Tiger-Cats.

The three-man gang is back, boards and all. The Kremlin Kids, who caused a near-riot here last Friday, are returning to continue their war against the good guys, only they'll run into a different brand of opposition.

Fristance, the gang-buster, handsome Tony Marino, who saved Man Mountain Campbell from a Russian massacre last week, will be the ring side-de-camp to the big boy when the pair tangles with Ivan and Nikita Kalmikoff.

Tony has become a popular giant-killer since he made his debut here a couple of weeks ago. The clever, agile athlete is a fine wrestler and fears none, particularly the Russian trio. He made Karol mumble "uncle" rather neatly in last week's semi-final.

But it says here that Karol may be in for a bunch of trouble. The "invader" loom up in the Hamilton Tiger Cat tackle, Tom (The Enforcer) Jones, a colored gentleman of massive build, a lot of ability, and a willingness to mix with anything that comes his way.

And Stan Stasiak, the rough tough from Arvida, Quebec, is back again after giving Lee Lyman the weekknown works last week. He tangles Friday night with Farmer Boy Townsend, who has recovered from the lambasting he received in last week's tag-team furore.

FIREWORKS

Next Monday is the "Twenty-Fourth" (21) of May, the Queen's Birthday, and there's going to be some high jinks down Point Anne way after the sun goes down.

You can take the family and spend a whale of a day or so afternoon at the Shannonville Speedway Parkland, where mine host, Dick Burrows, holds forth with his go-karts. You can have a lot of fun with those little mechanical gadgets and even mother and dad can get in on the act. It's a fine place for a picnic too, so take the family and have a good day.

But at night the Point Anne Volunteer Fire Department takes over. Chief A. M. Clarke says this year's giant display of fireworks will be the best in the history of Ox Point.

There will be crackers, rockets, pinwheels, cartwheels and firecrackers of every size, color and phase. The sky will be lit up in a beautiful fiery picture. The display will touch off after a program of topflight entertainment arranged by the fire-boys and said to be worth the price of admission alone.

The firemen have spent some $500 for the fireworks alone and that means a lot of gunpowder and whatnot. It will be the biggest display in the district. Children are allowed in free and there will be refreshment canteens available.

The entertainment starts at 8.30. Then the sky will be sprayed with crackling color and the big show begins. The chief and his men extend an invitation to all and sundry to attend the fun and fireworks.

Speaking of the holiday, baseball and softball officially ring up their respective curtains this weekend. The Belleville Senators play an exhibition game with the Merrition Junior "B" champions at the Fair Grounds on Sunday afternoon, then formally open the Lakeshore Intermediate Baseball League in Oronoo on Monday night.

The Kenmore's were defeated in Merriton last Sunday after blowing a 3-0 lead, and will be out to avenge the setback this weekend. They did not appear to be too strong with the hickory, either but, on the Merritton crew has a topflight bevy of young hurlers. In any event it should be an eye-opener for baseball fans and a large turnout is expected to see the curtain rise. Game at 2.30.

On Monday night the Belleville District Softball League gets under way at the Fair Grounds with the Belleville Bobcats entertaining their old foemen, the Cobourg Merchants. The game starts at 8.15 and it is said there will be colorful opening ceremonies. More about this later.

Tigers Up Lead, Senators Whip Yanks

Batter Birds In 10-4 Win

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

No one expected Detroit Tigers to be out front with a four-game bulge. But if there's really an unexpected twist in the expanded American League, it has to be Washington's surprising Senators.

The club debuted with only one established starter and reliever, Dick Donovan and Dave Sisler, respectively. However, in the last five games Washington has permitted just 13 hits and five runs tobppurt from 10th place to seventh, passing Boston and Chicago White Sox.

The Senators beat second place New York 3-2 Tuesday night as southpaw Hal Woodeshick and Sisler combined for a two-hit job on the Yankees.

That made it four in a row for Washington, and it pushed Detroit into the four-game lead when the Tigers battered Baltimore, 10-4. The White Sox ended Minnesota's winning string at four, beating the Twins 3-1; Boston broke loose for 18 hits and a 9-6 decision over Cleveland and Kansas City stopped Los Angeles Angels 6-4.

MANTLE HOMERED

The Yankees scored a run in the ninth inning on three walks, a wild pitch, and an infield out, but didn't get a hit off Woodeshick until Mickey Mantle cracked his 10th home run with one out in the sixth. Their only other hit was an eighth inning single by Bill Skowron off Sisler, who had come on in the seventh and fanned pinchhitter Yogi Berra with the bases loaded.

Woodeshick is 2-1, with both victories over the Yankees. He struck out six, but finally gave way after giving up seven walks and a second wild pitch.

The Senators had 10 hits and scored all their runs to the third on consecutive singles by Danny O'Connell, Chuck Hinion, Jim King and Willie Tasby and a clinching sacrifice fly by Dale Long. Bill Stafford (0-2) was the loser.

Detroit scored 10 runs for the second night in a row at Baltimore to give right hander Frank Lary his sixth win this season. He allowed all hits but walked just one and struck out five.

Steve Barber (4-3) was the loser, giving up a two - run homer by Rocky Colavito and a two-run triple by Bubba Morton in a decisive four-run fourth. Norm Cash also homered for Detroit.

WYNN WON

Early Wynn (4-1) nailed his 286th victory with a two-out, tie-breaking single for the White Sox in the eighth inning. Minnie Minoso's seventh inning home run for the Sox had tied it 4-4. Loser Pete Ramos (3-3) had three of the Twins' six hits, one a home run.

Frank Malzone and rookie Jim Pagliorani homered for the Red Sox as Jim Delock won his second with relief help in the Sox in the eighth inning. Minnie Minoso's seventh inning home run for the Sox had tied it 4-4. Loser Pete Ramos (3-3) had three of the Twins' six hits, one a home run.

Frank Malzone and rookie Jim Pagliorani homered for the Red Sox as Jim Delock won his second with relief help in the eighth. Wynn Hawkins (3-2) was the loser, despite a 15-hit attack by the Indians.

A single by Dick Howser gave the As the winning run in the sixth inning against Eli Grba (3-4) while rookie Norm Bass blanked the Angles on four hits for eight innings. Jim Archer relieved in a four-run ninth, and saved it for Bass (2-1).

Said on Upswing

Senior Lacrosse Opens Thursday

By JACK GATECLIFF

The Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series opens Thursday night amid predictions that the game in this province is on the upswing again.

Port Credi Sailors, who pulled one of the major upsets in Canadian sport last autumn when they won the Mann Cup over the heavily-favored defending champions from Nanaimo, B.C., open the season at home against Brampton Ramblers.

A sure sign of increased interest, says OLA president Carl Madgett of Brampton, is that last year the senior league has grown from four teams to five despite the withdrawal of Peterborough.

The Petes, who won the OLA title eight times in the last 10 years, pulled out for two reasons. Many of their players retired and the team drew barely enough at the gate the last two or three years to cover expenses.

BROOKLIN IS SENIOR

But Brooklin, OLA intermediate A champions last season, stepped up to senior ranks along with Niagara Falls which carried Brooklin to the seven-game limit before conceding the title in 1960. The other team is St. Catharines Athletics, runners-up to Port Credit in 1960.

Port Credit will start the season with a lineup practically unchanged from a year ago.

Coach Elmer Lee has 16 of his championship roster which includes one of the best goaltenders in the country, Porky Russell. Add heavy - checking, all-star defenceman George Kapesky.

The high-scoring Rose brothers, Larry and Peter, are returning along with Brian Aherne, Ron Hannah, Bill Allan and Brian Aherne's brother, Dunby, up from junior ranks.

WILL COACH

Bruce McClure, former Brampton senior star, will coach the Ramblers again this season. The big change in Brampton's the team name. It has been known as the Excelsiors since lacrosse started in Brampton in 1890.

Bob Savage, former Toronto St. Michael's Majors hockey goaltender, will return to the nets and will be backed up by Jim Thompson. On defence the Ramblers have Wayne and Gord Thompson, both with Port Credit on a lend-lease basis during the Mann Cup finals last September.

Chuck Ludlow has been added from Long Branch and Jack Madgett, brother of the OLA president, will get a starting assignment on the forward line.

Barry Ashbee, a member of Kingston Frontenacs of the Eastern Pro Hockey League, will also return. He turned down an offer to play on the west coast.

The Ramblers hope to sign Bobby Pulford of Toronto Maple Leafs who played several seasons with Brampton before joining the NHL team.

Sanders To Play in Tourney

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. AP— Doug Sanders will be on hand for the opening of the $20,000 Hot Springs open invitational golf tournament Thursday after all, tournament chairman Joe J. Miller said Tuesday.

Sanders left after his victory on the Colonial Open at Fort Worth, Tex., Sunday that he would go to Mexico for a rest rather than play in the Hot Springs event as he had been scheduled to do.

But Edwin Lanier, Professional Golfers Association tournament director, said he might seek action against Sanders and the PGA rules providing for fines or suspensions of pros who miss tournaments.

But Miller said he talked to Sanders Tuesday and that Sanders would go to Hot Springs.

Sanders had said he was taking a vacation because a doctor ordered his wife to rest.

The second section from June 25 to July 29. Winners of the two sections will meet in a two-game total-goal series for the American Challenge Cup Aug. 5 at Montreal and Aug. 6 at the Polo Grounds.

In addition to the team appearing tonight there will be players from the United States, Canada, Brazil, England, Scotland, Ireland, Romania, Israel, Spain, Austria, Monaco, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

Dodgers Skid to Fourth

Giants Climb To Three-Game Lead

By ED WILES
Associated Press Staff Writer

It was a long time coming, but Jack Sanford finally has shown the kind of pitching he was expected to produce as one of the principal aces of the San Francisco Giants' staff.

The Giants have been getting along without much help from Sanford, but with the right-handed lefthrman coming through for a six-hit, 3-1 victory over Chicago Cubs Tuesday night, they now have a three-game lead—their biggest bulge yet in the National League race.

While Sanford was putting away his first complete game and second victory in six starts, Los Angeles Dodgers skidded from second to fourth with a 2-3 defeat by Milwaukee; Pittsburgh jumped into second by beating St. Louis 3-1 and Cincinnati moved into third with a 4-2 victory at Philadelphia.

The Pirates, Reds and Dodgers are all three games back of the Giants.

Sanford, who had failed to last two innings in either of his last two starts, walked none and struck out five. He blanked the Cubs on three hits after the third inning when they scored on a triple by Dick Bertell and a two-out single by Don Zimmer.

Orlando Cepeda, with three of the Giants' hits off Moe Drabowsky, and Don Elston, tied it with a single in the fourth, then singled and scored the winning run on Bobie Landrith's single in the sixth.

The Braves beat Dodger southpaw Sandy Koufax on a three-run homer by Frank Bolling that made it 3-0 in the fourth inning. Don Nottebart and reliever Drabowsky held the Dodgers to four hits. Nottebart had a one-hit shutout until the sixth, when Los Angeles scored three runs, two on a homer by Willie Davis.

A sixth-inning home run by Dick Stuart broke a 1-1 tie for the Pirates against Cardinal lefty Curt Simmons, Vern Law, who closed April 29 because of shoulder trouble, gave way to a pinch-hitter after shutting out the Cards on four hits for five innings.

Elroy Face then came on and won it after giving up the St. Louis run in the sixth on singles by Bill White, Ken Boyer and Stan Musial.

Gene Freese, whose error helped the Phils get a 2-0 lead in the second inning, brought the Reds from behind with a three-run homer in the fourth at Philadelphia off Frank Sullivan. Frank Robinson also homered for the Reds, who have won 11 of 13. Joey Jay won his third in a row with a five-hitter, walking two and striking out seven.

Owners Must Approve Soccer Rule

LONDON (Reuters) — English soccer players took a step Tuesday toward breaking down the contract system that binds them to their teams.

Soccer league officials and the Professional Footballers Association reached an agreement stipulating that a player who does not want to sign again with his club when his contract expires must be put on the trading block.

If he is not sold by Aug. 31—just before the start of the English soccer season — he can appeal to a league management committe to settle his dispute with his club. Players will continue to be paid while negotiations for the sale of their contracts are going on.

The new agreement must gain the approval of the soccer league owners when they meet June 3.

Other gains by players earlier this year included two-year —instead of one - year — contracts, and an end to pay maximums.

MANAGERS PROTECTED

NEW YORK (AP) — Melvin Krulewitch, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, announced a rule change Tuesday that provides payments by promoters must be made by cheques payable to both the boxer and his manager. In the past he cheques were made payable only to the boxer, some of whom apparently spent the money without paying the manager his share. Now both parties must endorse a cheque.

Ratterman Trial Gets Under Way

NEWPORT, Ky. AP)—Newport night club operator Tilo Carinci testified Tuesday he saw George Ratterman, former pro football player and a reform candidate for sheriff, kissing a striptease dancer in a hotel room.

Shortly before that, Ratterman testified either Carinci or someone connected with Carinci drugged him before his arrest in a police raid a week ago.

Carinci said he would be willing to take a lie detector test on his testimony.

After Carinci testified he saw Ratterman and Juanita Jean Hodges, 26, together in a half-nude state, he told the court he had gone to a Jesuit priest Tuesday morning. "I knelt before the altar and swore that my testimony is true." Then he looked at Ratterman and said, "George could you do it?"

ON CLEAN-UP TICKET

Ratterman, who spent most of his football career with Cleveland Browns but played for Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four in 1951, is an independent candidate for sheriff. He has pledged to clean up vice and gambling in the area.

Ratterman was charged with breach of the peace, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. His trial begins today.

Miss Hodges, who dances under the name April Flowers, was charged with prostitution. At the end of her trial, which came up first, prosecution lawyer Thomas Hirschfeld moved that both the original charge and the amended one be dismissed. Municipal Judge Joseph Rolf indicated he would give a ruling today.

Newport police testified they made the raid on the hotel Carini managed after receiving an anonymous telephone call that there was prostitution there and that Ratterman was involved.

Ratterman, an investment counsellor, said after his arrest that he was the victim of a frameup.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Do not forsake me, oh my darlin'

On this our wedding day . . . I do not know what fate awaits me—

Never was the public image of Gary Cooper so strongly outlined as in High Noon, the 1952 western that won him a second academy award.

Cooper was in his 50s when he made High Noon. The lines had deepened in his long face. His deliberate manner, fashioned by a broken hip in his youth, was slower. He seemed almost too old for his unknown lady, Grace Kelly.

The film itself seemed unpromising. It was the age-old tale of the marshal trying to maintain law and order in a frontier town. Cooper had played it a dozen times.

But, as written by Carl Foreman and directed by Fred Zinnemann, the story a on e by came to life. Adding vitality was the humming ballad sung by Tex Ritter in place of a music score.

I only know I must be brave . . .

Most of all, it was the figure of Gary Cooper that made the tale live. That figure was known the world over—towering, with square, bony shoulders, and hips that seemed too slim to hold up his gun belt.

The final drama of Gary Cooper's life was agonizing. Two serious operations in 1960 saddened the town which had seen Humphrey Bogart lose his great vitality to operations, to cobalt treatment, to the wasting of cancer.

In High Noon and in his 86 other starring films, Cooper was essentially a figure of dignity. He remained upright and brave through every conceivable peril.

He removed himself from public gaze in his final illness. As the end was near, he made the simple statement:

"I know what is happening in God's will. I am unafraid of the future."

Red Czechs Film Socialist Cops and Robbers Picture

By JOHN FIEHN

PRAGUE (AP)—"Silence." It said in English outside one of the seven Barrandov studios where the films of Communist Czechoslovakia are produced.

Behind the wood-panel door Czech director Otokar Vavra was showing Guests in the Night, a socialist cops - and - robbers film on how vigilant police hunt Western smugglers who infiltrate spy.

The set just now is a small safe. Script girl, makeup men, cameramen and assistants wear dungarees, the girls are in leotards, the men have crewcuts.

Apart from the script, there isn't much difference between the inside of a Barranov and a Western studio.

Czechoslovakia claims to be the second biggest film producer behind the iron Curtain, and passed only by the Soviet Union. Barrandov is the country's equivalent to Hollywood. It was founded in 1933, and has been state-owned since 1945.

One of the most famous films made in pre-war Czechoslovakia was Ecstasy, starring Hedy Lamaar. Such productions as Ecstasy, whose plot love scene started a public furore some 30 years ago, have little chance to pass the Communist censor's desk today. Almost all East Bloc films now have a socialistic angle.

MANY IMPORTED

This country made 35 full-length features last year.

Last year 170 foreign features . . . 70 from non-Communist countries—were imported to satisfy the nearly 200,000,000 movie fans in the United States.

In a country where Communist propaganda is oppressive, non-political Western films are very popular.

From janitor to general manager, there are 2,300 persons working at Barrandov.

Jana Brejchova, a pretty blonde in her mid-30s, is about the only actress who is exclusively in the film business.

While director Vavra was in the middle of filming his feature, workmen in other halls were preparing the sets for the Nov. Death on a Sugar Island.

The film deals with what the Communists call exploitation of undeveloped countries by colonialists. The setting is "somewhere in the Far East," officials explained.

STUDIES ALCOHOLISM — Duncan McRae, executive director of the Alcoholism Foundation of British Columbia since 1954, reads up on the problems involved in helping the province's estimated 22,000 alcoholics. Working from his office in Vancouver he started a travelling clinic in the last summer to bring treatment facilities to residents of the province. (CP PHOTO)

A. A. Director Considers Himself Only a 27-Per-Cent Success on West Coast

By DUNCAN HOLMES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Duncan McRae's enthusiasm belies the fact that he considers himself only a 27-per-cent success.

Since 1954 Mr. McRae has been executive director of the Alcoholism Foundation of British Columbia, a government-supported organization that realistically aims at a target considerably short of perfection.

He reckons that 27 per cent is only a rough estimate of the number of cures the foundation has achieved in attempting to reshape the lives of 4,136 of the province's estimated 22,000 alcoholics since it first went into business.

"We have no way of checking what figure because we never see them again. However, we feel our results make it all worthwhile," the silky chick with a figure higher than that is doing remarkably well."

Working this year on a budget of $111,000, the foundation is carrying out only the heavily populated Vancouver and Lower Mainland area but has a travelling clinic for four cities in the Okanagan Valley.

MOST HAVE JOBS

The travelling service started last July, in a modest first visit, two foundation workers and a local doctor tended eight cases and answered eight inquiries in Penticton, Kelowna, Vernon and Kamloops area.

By this February the clinic had 97 new cases and 59 inquiries from the area. Many of the inquirers would some day be patients.

Most were male, married, employed, highly skilled and in the 30-to-40 age bracket.

The statistics, Mr. McRae said, support the growing belief that the alcoholic is not generally a transient unemployed person but "solid" old Joe Smith who lives next door."

With only one visit to the Okanagan each month, the foundation's success in the interior is dependent on local health units and Alcoholics Anonymous to tide patients over between visits.

Asked how and why a man or woman first seeks out the foundation, Mr. McRae said:

"His excuses for drinking no longer satisfy. He faces financial ruin, family decay or complete breakdown. His visit here is either voluntary, or he is guided by someone else."

HAS BOTTLE DISPLAY

Does he ever arrive drunk?

"Inebriated, he is turned away. We can't do a thing until he's sober."

What does an alcoholic drink?

Mr. McRae retired to a back room of his Vancouver office and reappeared, his arms full of bottles, many of them partly or filled.

"Take a look," he said, as he dumped bottles of spirits, beer, wine, rubbing alcohol, after - shave lotion and combinations of several on the table. "All this was surrendered in this office. I use this collection to illustrate my talks."

Outlining the foundation's treatment program, Mr. McRae mentioned medical examinations, group therapy, films, hospitals, psychology.

Sometimes the answer is simple. A man came here once, married for 20 years, saying he hadn't wanted such a union in the first place."

In discussion both the patient and his wife were later convinced that without really knowing it, each had come to rely very much on the other, "to love, if you like."

UNDER PRESSURE

Mr. McRae related the case of Gerry W., a 36-year-old insurance executive. He was separated from his wife and children, drinking a fifth a day and he was drinking 1½ bottles a day. The man was belligerent and on the verge of DTs.

After prolonged medical management, the foundation discovered in discussion that Gerry had an immature relationship with his father, an aggressive and egotistical man. Gerry had set high standards of financial success, partly because his father expected it, and could not face the fact that he did not quite have what it required. Alcohol was his escape.

Gerry now appears to have beaten his problem. He is well established again in his old job, even financially successful, Mr. McRae said.

The foundation does not preach total abstinence.

"A drink appears very much a part of Canadian—the want of a better word—culture. A great number of people can use alcohol without as adverse effect."

"And," he added, pouring a cup of coffee, "prohibition is unrealistic."

Herd Splits With Leafs, Wings Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim Coker's two - out double in the ninth inning scored Jim Frey with the winning run Tuesday night as Buffalo Bisons staged a four - run uprising to shade Toronto Maple Leafs 5-4 in the second game of a cold doubleheader at Buffalo.

The come - from - behind triumph earned a split for the pair after the Leafs won the opener, 12-5. With a 12-hit attack that included four home runs.

Meanwhile the San Juan Marlins are in a dilemma.

Despite a 4-2 loss at the hands of Richmond, they are only a game out of first place in the International League—but may suddenly find themselves deposed from their island home in Puerto Rico.

"We are not happy about the situation," general manager Joe Ryan said today after hearing that IL president Tommy Richardson said the team might be moved to Charleston, W. Va., if plans for a new baseball park in San Juan were not worked out.

TALKS AGAIN TODAY

He said he felt Jersey City, not San Juan, was the league's greatest problem, adding he was not understand why plane transportation could be considered so expensive. However, he refused to comment further until he talked later today with the club's owner William Macdonald, who is in Miami.

Jersey City's game with league - leading Columbus was postponed because of wet grounds while Rochester shut out Syracuse 8-0.

Steve Demeter clobbed two first - game homers for the Leafs and drove in five runs. Joe Hannah and Ellis Burton connected for the others.

Demeter socked his third homer of the evening and seventh of the league season in the second game of relief pitcher

Emmy Awards Show Neat, Lively and Amusing Program

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. television industry demonstrated Tuesday night that it is possible to turn out a lively and amusing awards program.

A total of 36 Emmy statues were handed out. The telecast switched back and forth between Hollywood and New York. There were seven or eight sketches — all kidding the medium, commercials, rating systems and surveys. Stars by the score were seen, but none was overdressed or overwordy. And it was neat, tidy and wrapped up in 90 minutes.

Concededly, the most recent season has not been the industry's most brilliant and some of the award categories were ridiculously all inclusive. Generally, however, members of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences used judgment and discretion in casting their votes.

NEW FACE

NBC's two-hour production of Macbeth received the largest number of awards, five. It received the top award—program of the year — and also was named as the best dramatic show. Its stars, Maurice Evans and Judith Anderson, won for the outstanding single performances and George Schaefer received the award for directing.

Fred Astaire and Leonard Bernstein tied for second place, with two awards each. Chet, a team of Huntley and Brinkley also received a news award, while CBC's Twentieth Century won in the public affairs category.

Neither NBC nor CBS can do much crowing over the show today: Each network won 11 statuettes. ABC ran far behind with four.

NBC has nailed down the slive and controversial Robert Welch for its May 31 Meet the Press program. Welch is founder and president of the John Birch Society.

Recommended tonight: Perry Como's show, CBET — 8:30; Frances Langford and Don Ameche.

Steel Hour, CBS, 10:41 — The Leonard Code, mystery with Sally Rowe.

Max Surhoest in the ninth to give the Leafs a 4-1 lead. Then the Bisons went to work.

Wally Shannon led off with a single and scored on a triple by Eddie Becquer. It was his first hit in 14 tries. Becquer scored on a wild pitch and Ted Savage walked. Jim Frey singled to score Savage.

Felix Torres, who socked his sixth homer in the opener, greeted Raoul Sanchez with a hard smash down the middle. Jack Davis filled to left for the second out before Coker hit a drive into the screen in right centre for the payoff blow.

Ted Wieand and Hal Smith held San Juan to only two hits, one a home run by Harry Watts, and the other a double, also by Watts.

Relief was by Joe Durham. Bob Johnson, Chuck Oertel, Fred Cook and Fred Valentine accounted for the Rochester runs, with Durham's contribution the first inning with two men on.

KENNEDY ASKS CANADA FOR MORE AID

JFK To Discuss Many Problems With Khrushchev

Nuclear Weapons Ban Will Be Chief Subject

WASHINGTON (AP) — An official announcement of a Kennedy - Khrushchev meeting in Vienna June 3 and 4 is expected before the end of the week, Khrushchev indicates the announcement will be made Friday.

Administration officials said President Kennedy wants to discuss informally with Soviet Premier Khrushchev a wide range of cold war problems with heavy emphasis on his belief in the urgent need for agreement on a treaty to ban nuclear weapons tests.

Returning today from visits to Canada, Kennedy has about 10 days in which to prepare for his meeting with Khrushchev and for a round of conferences with French President Charles de Gaulle and Britain's Macmillan June 31-June 2.

STILL UNOFFICIAL

The White House and state department were silent on complexities of arrangements for the Kennedy - Khrushchev meeting in Vienna. But developments indicated that Part 1 of the plan — what was being said privately and officially — was here and there abroad — that Kennedy and Khrushchev have substantially agreed to get together.

At Ottawa, White House news secretary Pierre Salinger disclosed that the President has discussed the prospective Khrushchev meeting with Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Press dispatches from Moscow quoted Soviet diplomats there as saying a meeting between the president and the Soviet Premier was certain and predicting that it would be held in Vienna early in June.

Khrushchev has just returned to the Soviet capital from a two week tour in Armenia and Georgia.

NOW NEGOTIATING

Diplomatic authorities here say Kennedy does not envision the Khrushchev conference as a negotiation nor does he contemplate trying to reach firm agreements with the Soviet premier on critical world issues.

That has apparently been left to do make a strong personal appeal to Khrushchev to modify Soviet opposition to the U.S., British - Soviet negotiations at Geneva looking toward agreement on a treaty prohibiting nuclear weapons tests under international inspection. Those talks are deadlocked and threatened with collapse.

The impression in official quarters here is that Kennedy wants to get to the crisis point clear to Khrushchev.

While the president hopes for an improvement in Soviet-West-ern relations, he is prepared to take strong action if necessary to protect from Communist control the independence of the world such as Southeast Asia.

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Havana radio said today the Fidel Castro government has requested the resignation of Transport Minister Julio Cascorro who will be replaced by Omar Gonzalez Canizares. The radio broadcast said Cascorro is designated for another unspecified post in the Cuban government.

Five Russian Officers Die In Plane Crash

LONDON (Reuters)—An air crash has killed four Russian generals and a colonel, the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

Tass did not say where or when the crash took place, but reported the five men died in the course of their "active duties."

Western reference books disclosed that the highest-ranking officer killed—army Gen. V. T. Kolpakchi—was a staff member of the Soviet defence ministry.

The others reported killed were Col.-Gen. S. N. Perevertkin, Lt.-Gen. of artillery V. K. Gotte, Maj.-Gen. F. P. Moroshkin and Col. V. V. Khikhlorsky.

Records showed that Gen. Kolpakchi, 62, was an old-time Bolshevik who fought from 1918 to 1920 in the civil war against White Russian counter-revolutionaries.

Sir Winston 'Indisposed', Not Seriously

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill is suffering from a "mild indisposition," the foreign office said today.

A spokesman said that as a result Churchill had been obliged to cancel a proposed visit to him this afternoon by Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba.

Churchill, 86, was at his usual place in the House of Commons Wednesday during the first day of a foreign affairs debate.

The foreign office spokesman told a press conference that it was believed the former prime minister's indisposition was "only slight."

At Churchill's home, his secretary described his condition as "not serious" but said Sir Winston would be confined "to bed for the present. She declined to describe his ailment.

SINGAPORE (AP)—A British warship on the lookout for pirates along the copra trade route between Celebes and Borneo, was, North Borneo, found a drifting motorboat Monday with a dead male six wounded and, it, a Royal Navy statement said today.

The wounded men said pirates armed with automatic weapons had attacked them.

Thirty-eight hours later the warship stopped a suspect boat and a boarding party found two automatic weapons and one rifle hidden under a pile of looted copra.

WEST STUDIES RED PROPOSALS ON LAOS CRISIS

'Hard Bargaining' On Commission

GENEVA (Reuters) — U.S. roving ambassador Averell Harriman met with the British and French foreign ministers today to consider Russia's velo-laden proposals for guaranteeing Laotian neutrality.

The morning meeting between Harriman, Britain's Lord Home and France's Maurice Couve de Murville preceded the start of the third session of the 14-nation conference on the Southeast Asian kingdom.

State Secretary Dean Rusk, chief American representative here, today flew to Bern to pay a courtesy call. He was to return for the afternoon session.

Indian Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon was the main scheduled speaker. He was expected to be the last leading delegate to speak.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Wednesday presented a draft declaration that Home said "appeared to contain some constructive elements."

A British Foreign spokesman welcomed Gromyko's "temperate language."

But Western sources said the West would find difficulty in accepting the Soviet draft plan and its implication that Laos be withdrawn from the protection of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

SEE HARD DEBATE

The sources predicted "hard bargaining" over the functions of the three - country Laotian control commission recalled by Britain and Russia as co-chairmen of the current meeting and the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina.

The commission, comprising India, Canada and Poland, now is attempting to verify a ceasefire in Laos.

Gromyko proposed that the commission supervise a ceasefire in Laos and the withdrawal of foreign military personnel, tasks the commission already has been given in 1954.

But Gromyko said the commission's investigative activities "on the instructions of the co - chairmen" and should function "only under the general guidance and supervision of the two co-chairmen."

In addition, he proposed that the commission should make all its decisions unanimously.

SEES DOUBLE VETO

Abraham Chayes, legal adviser to the American delegation, said Gromyko's proposals would be a "double - barrelled" veto—by Russia as a co-chairman and by Russia as a commission member.

Under the terms of the 1954 agreement — signed by Russia and Communist China in addition to the United States—the commission could investigate complaints "on its own initiative."

Commission decisions were to be by majority except two questions concerning violations, by threats of violations, which might lead to a resumption of hostilities.

Chang Resigns to Clinch Success of Military Coup

SEOUL (Reuters)—A military junta tightened its grip on this South Korean capital today after forcing the resignation of Premier John Chang and his government.

Chang came out of hiding and agreed to resign with his cabinet when it became apparent that the Korean armed services chiefs had thrown their support behind the leaders of Tuesday's coup against his government.

Their backing quashed American and United Nations attempts to have them oppose the coup and restore Chang's government to power.

The revolutionary council declared a division of the First Field Army around Seoul today "to ensure the successful fulfillment of the revolutionary tasks and to prevent the unforeseeable infiltration and activities of anti-revolutionary forces."

Another division was deployed across a new river ring Seoul-Yonju, where the First Field Army is based and Chunchon, near the eastern section of the South Korean front line.

After Chang had given himself up, the junta said it had won the support of all the Korean armed services—the army, navy, air force and marines—in a meeting of service chiefs Wednesday night.

The premier disclosed that he had been hiding with a friend in Seoul since the coup at dawn Tuesday and that the situation "

He said after a cabinet meeting his government had decided "to resign en bloc."

Chang's resignation was a setback to American officials here.

The struggle for control of the country swung in the junta's favor Wednesday night when Gen. Hang Kyu Sam, commander of 18 well-armed Korean frontline combat units, announced his men would support the revolutionary council.

American in Seoul were reported shocked by Lee's abrupt abandonee. Earlier in the day the general had issued a statement ordering his troops to remain neutral in the struggle.

By this morning, it was clear that the bulk of South Korea's military forces — numbering more than 500,000 — had thrown their support behind the revolutionary council headed by Lt.-Gen. Yong Chang.

Despite American opposition to his coup, Gen. Chang today issued a six-point program for the revolutionary council calling for the strengthening of South Korean ties with the United States.

Gen. Chang — no relation to the deposed premier — also called for:

- Anti-communism;
- Acceptance of the United Nations' charter and all international agreements;
- Elimination of corruption;
- Reunification of the country by rallying all anti-Communist forces in South Korea;
- The return to power of a gov-

Fidel Castro Offers to Swap Prisoners for Bulldozers

HAVANA (CP) — Premier Fidel Castro has offered to exchange prisoners captured in the April Cuban invasion for bulldozers or tractors.

He said Wednesday night he would exchange the prisoners for 500 bulldozers or a quantity of U.S. dollars.

If the offer is not accepted, the captives will be put to work "hard, hard" work — digging trenches and rebuilding what they destroyed, the premier said.

"We are going to make the invader prisoners work for their keep, so that they know what hard work is."

Castro warned, however, in a 2½-hour television speech to a small group of the 10 million residents of Havana, that "murderers" among those captured will be executed. "Only murderers," he declared, will face revolutionary justice.

Castro directed the offer at the United States government, which he said has intermingled last month's unsuccessful invasion attempt in Cochinos Bay-Bay of Pigs.

Castro said there was a historical precedent for what he proposed: At the time of the Napoleonic wars Spain exchanged French soldiers for pigs, Cuba was more refined; she would take tractors instead of pigs.

Besides, Kennedy is no Napoleon," he said of President Kennedy.

He emphasized he was not interested in tractors with rubber wheels, but wanted heavy construction tractors or caterpillars.

Rich people, he said, would be held for a ransom — a price for a son. But he added "We won't exchange them one by one, but all together."

More than 1,000 prisoners were captured in the abortive, invasion. It was not clear just how the exchange would be made. Castro's reference to "murderers" being exempted presumably referred to the captives charged with crimes under the Batista regime.

The farm machinery dealer said Castro's offer, viewed in strictly commercial terms, would total from $6,000,000 to $27,000,000. The dealer, Charles Clark of Key West, Fla., said his company's product ranges in price from $12,000 to $54,000 a unit depending on size.

Junta Arrests General Lee

TOKYO (Reuters)—The military junta in South Korea tonight was reported to have arrested Lt.-Gen. Ham Lim Lee, commander of the forces along the border dividing the south from Communist North Korea.

The "revolutionary council" arrested the general for his hesitation and reluctance supporting Tuesday's coup, the report said.

GOVT. CAUTIOUS ON OAS BID BY KENNEDY

No Decision Is in Sight

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government is cautiously weighing the question of whether to join the 21-country Organization of American States. But despite the appeal of President Kennedy for action, no final Canadian decision is in sight.

Mr. Kennedy brought up the OAS issue twice Wednesday—in private talks with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and in one of the strongest public appeals ever made by an American president addressing the Canadian Parliament.

"Your country and mine are partners in North American Affairs," Mr. Kennedy told attentive parliamentarians. "Can we now become partners in inter-American affairs?"

What Mr. Kennedy wants, it seems, is the addition of another non-Latin voice at the council of OAS, which includes all the Latin American countries and the United States.

WANT CANADA IN

Many Latin American countries have urged Canada to join —to provide a modifying force that might ease any U.S.-Latin clash and perhaps to provide a greater bridge of understanding between North and South America.

The differences inside the organization have sharpened with the Cuban dispute. The United States has tried to line up the Canadian Industry Is Challenged To Start Nuclear Power Research

TORONTO (CP)—A challenge has been placed before Canadian industry—particularly subsidiaries of American and British corporations—to risk money in nuclear research and development in Canada.

J. L. Gray, president of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, issued the challenge Wednesday at the final session of the first annual meeting of the Canadian Nuclear Association.

"It is to be regretted that the parent companies of some of our Canadian fabricators have decided to take all the economic risks they can afford in their home territory," he said.

Openly Pleads For Increased Military Effort

MPs Give Him Ovation But No Promises Made

OTTAWA (CP) — President Kennedy has openly pleaded with Canada to increase foreign aid and expand military commitments as part of an over-all North Atlantic plan to counter communism.

Informants said Prime Minister Diefenbaker listened with interest Wednesday to the plea of the visiting American leader, but made no commitments.

While emphasizing a need to increase NATO's conventional military forces and stressing Canada's responsibilities in the Western Hemisphere, the U.S. president also held out the hand of peace to Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Observing that all nations are part of the human family, he underlined in a major foreign speech to a joint session of Parliament that the United States will lose no chance to move forward toward stabilizement of a peaceful world.

Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Khrushchev may hold their first informal summit meeting at Vienna early next month. Mr. Kennedy disclosed he has discussed this possibility with Mr. Diefenbaker while in his arrival here Tuesday evening.

Ending a two - day state visit, the president came away with the satisfaction of having pleaded his case in a manner described by a Canadian diplomat as the most persuasive put forward by an American leader in the memory of many Canadian MPs and senators.

In his speech to Parliament, delivered without notes or emotions, Mr. Kennedy urged that Canada join the 21-country Organization of American States and called on this country to play a greater role in Latin affairs.

Canada's entry into OAS would, Canadian officials said, mean a Canadian commitment to economic assistance to the Latin countries. Informants suggested Canada cannot afford any significant contribution.

Mr. Kennedy urged Canada and other NATO members to

South African Police Uncover Protest Plans

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) Police have discovered "secret" plans for a non-white protest demonstration throughout South Africa becoming a republic May 31, it was reported today.

The report followed an overnight roundup of scores of Africans here and in Cape Town.

The Rand Daily Mail said according to the plans demonstrations of non-whites will converge on cities and towns for the demonstrations.

For the first time since last year's state of emergency, police Wednesday night stopped Negroes on the streets and asked for identity cards.

Cape Town police commissioner R. J. Dooyeweerd called the operations directed at the idler element."

Openly Pleads For Increased Military Effort

MPs Give Him Ovation But No Promises Made

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Kennedy issued a joint communique today reporting accord in the view that the "alignment of a regime in the western hemisphere with Communist leadership abroad was a matter for serious concern."

The communique ranged over subjects discussed in the Ottawa talks of the two leaders. The Cuban regime of Fidel Castro was not mentioned by name, but the communique said so dealing with Latin American affairs:

"The president and the prime minister discussed the need for the hemisphere to promote progress and social reform throughout the hemisphere, as well as the need to strengthen the strong hemispheric trend away from dictatorship and toward democracy.

"They recognized that these objectives are closely related.

SERIOUS CONCERN

"They were in accord that the alignment of a regime in the western hemisphere with Communist leadership abroad was a matter for serious concern, threatening as it did the peaceful and democratic evolution of the Latin American peoples. The prime minister assured the president of Canada's continued

It was fairly warm and clear, ideal for viewing the thousands of tulips in bloom along the route.

TORONTO (CP) — More than 300 Canadian ex - servicemen and women soon will be evening accounts with Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Brudle.

They'll be repaying the kindness they showed to the hospitality offered them during the Second World War, when Boncastle, the Brudenells' home in Bournemouth on the south coast of England, became their home away from home.

The down payment was made Wednesday night at a suburban Islington home, a three hours after six former soldiers greeted the Brudenells at Union Station. The home of William Baggs became the first of dozens where, for a change, the Brudenells will be the guests.

"I feel like the Queen," said Brudie, as the soldiers affectionately know Mrs. Brudenell. "I've never been more honored in my life."

Among those at the station Wednesday night was Kenneth Humphries of Port Hope, who was 19 in 1941 when he became the first of the more than 200 Canadian guests at Boncastle.

After their Toronto stay the Brudenells will move with the Humphries for a month - long trip to Florida. When they return, the couple intend to visit "their boys," one by one.

Bowling Notes

Another season of lawn bowling is fast approaching and the members have been shining up the bowls in preparation for a fine year. The season will officially open on Victoria Day with the game being with a mixed jitney in the afternoon. The play will start at 1:30 and the fee will be 50 cents a player; it is the intention of the committee to play just two games in the afternoon as the weather in the evening at this time of year is just a little too cool to enjoy the pastime. Everyone is invited out to play on the holiday and any new members will be gladly welcomed.

The greens are in marvelous condition due to the excellent work of the greenkeeper, Charles Matthews. There was considerable winter kill on the lower green but the grass has already grown in and the lawns are like velvet. The ends, which have been the cause of much worry in past years, are in excellent condition and with care by the bowlers should last out the summer. The lawns about the greens are in good green, well mowed and the clubhouse has been cleaned and readied for the season.

The first tournament of the season will be two weeks from Saturday when the Trenton Bowling Club will hold a trebles tournament for men. It is to be hoped that the tournaments will be better patronized than they were last year. It is great fun to get out to other clubs to mix with bowlers from the district.

Sales, Ad Club Ladies' Night Huge Success

Close to 300 persons enjoyed the dining, dancing and entertainment provided yesterday evening at the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club's annual Ladies' Night. Guests from the Peterborough and Brighton Sales and Advertising Clubs and the Peterborough Women's Ad and Sales Clubs were present to enjoy the singing of Kathie McBain, the amazing acts of legerdemain of Don Leonard and the show stopping performance of a comedian — pianist Alex Read.

It was announced that club member Irv Shulman had been nominated for the position of treasurer of the Canadian Federation of Sales and Advertising Clubs. The national body's election will be held in the near future.

Hydro Users Will Pay More For Electricity First of June

Commencing with billings effective June 1st, Belleville hydro users are going to pay more for their electricity.

The new rate structure, the first increase for Belleville since 1950, affects all classes of users. The only rates not increased will be those in connection with water heaters and for house heating.

Mr. O. H. Scott, manager of the Belleville Utilities Commission, said the hydro rate increase for the average domestic customer using 331 KW hours would be about $1.75 per two-month billing.

Mr. Scott noted the last rate adjustment made by Belleville was in 1950 and since then raw materials, labor, taxation and other items have continually increased in cost.

Also the cost of power to the commission since 1950 has varied from a low of $31.56 per K.W. year to a high of $34.90 per K.W. year in 1960.

LARGE EXPENDITURES

In addition to increased power costs, the population growth in Belleville has resulted in large expenditures to provide for new installations, distribution lines and transformers.

In all classes of power use the base figure for calculation of the initial rate as well as rates have been changed.

For domestic users the new rate will be 5 cents per K.W. Hr. for the first 50 K.W. Hrs. per month with the rate for the remaining consumption being 1 cent per K.W. Hr. The present rate of 1.5 cents was calculated on the first 60 K.W. Hrs.

The minimum bill under the new domestic rate will be $1.11 per month as compared with the previous $3 cents per month. There will be the same 10 per cent discount for prompt payment.

But flat rate water heater users are going to get a bit of a break if they have the larger type heater.

The base rate of 35 cents per 100 watts per month remains the same but a downward revision for the larger sized heaters is being introduced.

Mr. Scott said the rate reduction for the larger sized heaters was justified because of the off-peak power requirements.

Sydney C. Rose Again Heads H-S Assoc.

The closing meeting of the Sir Winston Churchill Home and School Association was held on Tuesday evening. Principal items on the agenda included election of officers for 1961-62, an annual report submitted by president Sydney C. Rose, a treasurer's report for the year past, and the showing of a film.

A slate of executive officers for the year 1961-62 was submitted to the general body by nominations chairman Joan Skinner, and was adopted unanimously by the meeting: president Dr. S. C. Rose; 1st vice-president, Robert Hendry; 2nd vice - president, Alan Green; treasurer, George Grant; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Margaret Bailey; recording secretary, Mrs. Ann Wilson; membership chairman, Mrs. Harry Gardiner Scott; Alan Green; publicity and bulletin, Mrs. S. Mandell; social convenor, Mrs. Alex Wood; publications, Mrs. Viola Greatrix; members at large, Mrs. Evelyn MacKillican, Mrs. Betty Fort, Mrs. Elsie Trafford and Mrs. Joan James.

Dr. Rose, in his annual report, summed up the past year's activities, and made several recommendations to the executive. Executive, he commented particularly on the principal project of the year, petition signed by parents sent to the Belleville Public School Board, requesting consideration of adding Oral French instruction to the present curriculum of the elementary schools in the city.

EVERY DAY OPEN HOUSE

Referring to open house as a formal part of the year's program, Principal Edgar Bateman pointed out that every day should be considered by parents to be "open house." They are welcome at school at any time to discuss problems with the principal and staff at any time, he stated.

The educational portion of the evening's program consisted of a showing of the hospital film, "The Sentinel," made locally several years ago. The film was a public spirited production on the part of a number of local talents, and had been shown across Canada.

Following the film, the viewers were addressed by Belleville General Hospital Administrator, Kerner Dorchel. The statistics mentioned by the film narrator, he stated, should be approximately increased by about 50 percent to be correct today. Mr. Dorchel said the need for an additional 60-bed wing to the present hospital facilities he pointed out that the present occupancy is in the neighborhood of 110 percent; normal operation should allow for an occupancy of only 85 percent. This was an indication of how badly crowded present facilities are, and how badly we are in need of an increased number of beds.

A lively question and answer period followed, Mr. Dorchel deftly "fielding" a large number of inquiries from the audience.

Following adjournment, a coffee hour was served by social convener Jean Riley, assisted by Mrs. Helen Loynes.

Quinte Loyalist Repair Work Being Rushed

Extra shifts are being worked at a Kingston dry dock to rush completion of repair work on the Department of Highways ferry, the "Quinte Loyalist," and get it back in service between Glenora and Adolphustown. Originally quickly as possible. This should be effected by the morning of Sunday, May 21, unless rough weather prevents the trip from Kingston to Glenora. The "Quinte Loyalist," the larger of two department ferries providing a free service on Highway 33 between Glenora, near Picton, and Adolphustown, on the Bay of Quinte, has been undergoing its regular overhaul since May 7.

During this time the second ferry, the "Quinte," has maintained service between the two points.

Motorists who fear a delay in the normal ferry service can, of course, travel to or from any point in Prince Edward County on two alternate King's Highway routes. One way is via Highway 14 which, just south of Belleville, crosses the Bay of Quinte over a causeway. The other is via Highway 33 which crosses Highway 2 at Trenton and then skirts the western end of the Bay of Quinte.

United Church Bay of Quinte Meet Planned

The Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada will meet at Queen's University, Kingston, from May 23 through June 2. Some 400 delegates are expected, with equal representation of clergy and lay delegates. They will represent 183,000 church members in an area bounded by Kingston, Brockville, Smith's Falls, Pembroke, Renfrew, Peterborough, Whitby and Lindsay.

Highlights of the Conference will include the annual Conversation and memorial service, presided over by the Rev. Gordon Maxwell, DD, of Peterborough; discussion on church extension; unity with other churches, and the sector plan of visitation evangelism (shared by other denominations); the devotional addresses by the Rev. E. C. Aldred, DD, of Hamilton; the ordination to the ministry of candidates with the conference president presiding and presenting, and the visit of a representative from the General Council of the church.

The Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith of Campobelford, president of the conference, will preside over the sessions, which will be held for the most part in Dundas Hall at the University. Delegates will be accommodated in the University residences.

It will be remembered that the United Church of Canada was among the first of great denominations in Canada to welcome women, on basis of equality with men, to all offices of the church, including the ministry. Presently the church is engaged in a forward movement to unify women's work in the church into one great organization.

Learn-to-Swim Program Starts

On June 1st the Belleville YMCA will begin its seventh consecutive annual June Learn-To Swim program for both boys and girls. Two classes will be held on Tuesday and Friday afternoons with five half-hour classes of 14 pupils each being held each afternoon. Girls' instruction will be on Monday and Thursday afternoons. Classes commence at 4.30 p.m.

The water in the pool at the "Y" is lowered to 3½' in normal depth to allow for more instruction area than is normally available for the youngsters.

Adult classes are also held with men's and women's classes being held on the same days as for boys and girls respectively but with the classes conducted in the evenings between the hours of 8.00 and 9.00 o'clock. All of the classes will be under the supervision of the local "Y's" physical director, Joe Ruddy.

Last year over 300 people took part in this program. Already eight full classes for boys and girls have been organized. There is still room available for more, however, and interested persons should contact the "Y".

Must Pay Fine Within Week For Spearing

William James (Sonny) Orr of Belleville was fined $25 in county magistrate's court today when he pleaded guilty to a charge of spearing a spear within 50 feet of the Moira River.

Conservation Officer George Warner testified that while patrolling the east bank of the Moira River below the CPR bridge at midnight, April 9, he saw two unidentified men standing in a row boat in the midst of ice floes in the middle of the river. He watched them for two hours but did not let them take any fish from the water. At about 2 a.m. the men climbed into the boat and rowed to the west side of the river. He then followed the men over to the west side in his car but by the time he got there the two men had disappeared. However, a search of the area revealed Orr standing within 30 feet of a boat covered with "fish eggs and slime." He had a spear in his possession.

Magistrate T. V. Wills fined Orr $25 and ordered him to pay $3.50 court costs within one week or spend 10 days in jail.

CHANG RESIGNS

ernment of "fresh, conscientious politicians" as soon as possible;

The improvement of living conditions.

The leaders of the coup staged a celebration ceremony today to mark the success of the revolt and thousands of Koreans jammed the streets to hear Gen. Chang speak.

Seoul newspapers — many of which stayed cautiously on the fence Wednesday — swung solidly behind the military junta in editorials today and commended the "unified position" of the army behind the revolutionary council.

South Koreans today were criticizing both the United States and Premier Chang for their behavior during the coup.

They noted that U.ok seven hours for the U.S. Embassy and the United Nations command to issue their first statements condemning the revolt and that even then Washington failed to back these statements up fully.

Five hundred parliament with fixed bayonets ringed the city hall this morning when Gen. Chang addressed the people and outlined the aims of the coup.

South Korean Air Force Sabre jets screamed overhead and students paraded through the streets to mark the victory.

Nine of the 15 Korean cabinet ministers attended the meeting at which Chang agreed to submit his government's resignation.

Cabinet ministers who had been under house arrest were allowed to leave the capitol building after the resignation, apparently with freedom of movement.

Chang came to power after Dr. Syngman Rhee was ousted in a students' revolt in April last year.

Chang, a Roman Catholic, had led the opposition to Rhee who now lives in Hawaii.

Three Break-in Suspects Elude Policeman

TRENTON — Constable David Cowling, while making a routine property check of commercial buildings on the south side of Dundas Street, East, Wednesday morning, heard a noise at the back door of Mc-Donald's store. When he reached the back yard area he saw two men running from a rear door. As a high board fence on one side of the yard and a snow fence on the other prevented Constable Camp from following them the men were able to reach a car parked on Bay St., near the rear of the hotel. The officer saw a third man run and get into the car before it sped away. However, Constable Camp was able to get a good look at the vehicle.

Checking the Ketcheson property, Constable Camp found that the rear sliding door had been damaged. The men had evidently been in the tempting to pry it open, when they were surprised.

Police are investigating the incident.

Health Board Approves Fluoridation of Water, Seeks Council's Support

TRENTON — At yesterday's meeting of the Board of Health health officer Dr. E. W. Dow moved that the board council be strongly urged to undertake action to instigate fluoridation of the town's water supply.

A telephone survey made recently by an Ontario Intelligencer reporter indicated that the town's dentists were solidly behind the health officer in this matter. Town officials and private citizens contacted were, for the most part, of the opinion that the dentists should be the final authority in the matter.

The motion was passed by other board members.

Board chairman H. S. Pane was instructed to sign an agreement with Douglas Campbell on behalf of the board for supplying ambulance service to the town until Dec. 31. The $3,600 annual subsidy to the ambulance operator will be paid out of board funds, town council having allowed for this payment in the allocation of funds to the board this year. It was recommended that the town sell no land to individuals until such time as the land is provided with adequate water supply and sewer connections.

Also recommended was that the manhole serving Gould St. sewers be capped out twice every 24 hours, until such time as the auxiliary pump motor in the area is repaired and reinstalled. Sewage, collecting at the west end of the street, is a menace to the health of area residents.

R. H. Smithrim, solicitor for the occupants of a house at 23 Quinte St., will be advised that the board wishes to have the house demolished not later than June 15, to eliminate present unsanitary conditions.

Also on the demolition list is a house at 39 College St., owned by the town.

Town solicitor Roderick Campbell will be asked to take action to remove the occupant of a town-owned house on Water St.

Present at the meeting were the chairman, H. S. Pane, Dr. E. W. Dow, E. D. Topping, Miss Marjorie Jolliffe, secretary O. W. Larry and Arie Hoornweg, technical assistant in the engineering department.

The Middle Path

The Federal Government has taken the middle path in the long-standing controversy as to whether the death penalty should be retained for murder.

A bill introduced into the House of Commons by Hon. Davie Fulton, Minister of Justice, provides for the division of murder cases into two categories, capital and non-capital. Again, "capital murder" is divided into two kinds, planned and deliberate killing and killings where death is the result of a crime of violence. Listed as included in such crimes of violence are kidnapping, robbery, arson, piracy and jailbreaking. All other classes of murder would be considered "non-capital" murder, with life imprisonment being the mandatory sentence. For capital murder the death penalty, by hanging, would be retained.

The Government's proposals may well represent the wisest course, but they are not likely to satisfy many, because in the controversy over capital punishment there have been comparatively few who have taken a middle ground.

Indeed, it may be argued by some that the new legislation makes no significant changes, for off-hand one would wonder whether many people are today convicted of murder in circumstances which, under the new legislation, would be considered "non-capital" murder. Are not murder charges in cases of this kind today pyramided, if not almost invariably, reduced to manslaughter charges? That is a question the answer to which can hardly be given until we have more specific information regarding the full category of crimes which will be considered crimes of violence. But it may prove that the net result of establishing a "non-capital murder" classification will be to increase, rather than to diminish, the penalty usually imposed for such crimes.

Of course, none of those people who have opposed capital punishment as a matter of principle, generally contending that the state has no right to terminate a life which God has given, will be satisfied by the restriction of the death penalty to certain kinds of murder.

Even among those who have supported the retention of the death penalty, there will be many who will be sorely disappointed to learn that the main body of executions is not to be altered. There seems to be little doubt, judging from evidence heard before a Senate committee, that hanging is frequently a brutal method of execution. Few amongst those who regard it expedient to retain the death penalty, because they believe it to the most effective deterrent to murder, would countenance unnecessary cruelty in carrying out such a sentence.

On one point, though, surely all will agree —a revision of the law is much to be preferred to the conditions which have existed since the present Government assumed office, involving as they did frequent commuting of the death sentences duly imposed by the courts of this land to sentences of life imprisonment. In all, there have been 48 cases of persons sentenced to death for murder and in 38 of these cases the sentences have been commuted to life imprisonment, while in ten cases the murderers have been hanged. How far the opposition of the cases agreed with the new proposal to divide murder into two categories we do not know. One would suppose there was some consistency between the cabinet's past acts and its present proposals. If there is, the proposed legislation has, in one sense, been in effect for almost four years. It is high time the House of Commons had an opportunity to consider it and to decide whether it is desirable.

Nazis Not Only Jew-Haters

The trial of Adolf Eichmann is serving a two-fold purpose. It is reminding the older generation—and informing the younger—of the diabolical cruelty of the Nazis. It is also reminding and informing us that anti-Semitism was not confined to Germany. In Vilna, in Lithuania, the Jews are said by Abba Kovner to have faced not one but three "walls of hatred" —with the Lithuanian militia and the populace of Vilna being added to the Nazis. Latvians, too, helped the Nazis kill Jews, as did some Poles, and even in Holland the Nazis got some assistance from the residents. Most of the Dutch, though, resisted like the Belgians, the Norwegians and the Danes, who risked their lives to help Jews escape the Nazis.

Evidence, perhaps surprising to those who are old enough to recall the war years, reveals that, bad as Mussolini was, his government standfastly resisted anti-Jewish measures which the Germans wished to institute. One can only ascribe this to the influence of the Catholic Church, for there is more than adequate evidence to show that Mussolini himself was not a soft-hearted man—it was the Fascists who invented the castor oil treatment.

Devon Man Bible Critic

Brantford Expositor

Humor is where you find it and Holy Scripture, quite properly, is neither above nor beneath it.

The Times of London, that utterly respectable and reliable yet by no means humorless newspaper recently illustrated this by printing a letter to the editor about a parson in Exeter, in Devonshire, whose > have come so many famous names, like Peter and Paul.

The writer relates the story of an Exmouth pilot listening to church for the first time to the story of the shipwreck of St. Paul. The reader of the Lesson ended dramatically at the verse, "Then tearing lest we should be driven ashore upon rocks, they cast four anchors out of the stern, and wished for the day". In utter amazement at such seamanship, we are told, the pilot's white beard was heard to mutter: "The dam fools, they'll ev the bedside ov 'er out."

The New English Bible translation doubtless has its critics, too, either. Its rendering of The Acts vii: 29, reads: "... and fearing that we might be driven ashore on a rugged coast they dropped four anchors from the stern and prayed for the day to come".

Secret anchors it undoubtedly is, and unless the anchors used in those days were much smaller than the one with which the nautical person from Exmouth is familiar, we're all at sea.

Adriatic City Slowly Sinks

St. Louis Post - Dispatch

It is all pretty long-range, but the gondoliers who have had a certain point. Mostly they objected to being required to step the wash from the power craft. But the wave produced by the passing-speedboat fled and lap at the buildings and contribute to the slow sinking of the city — and to the gondoliers' insurance eventually of gondoliers.

There is nothing to be done about the sinking city. It is already forecast that in a few decades St. Mark's Square will be as far awash at high tide and that within a few centuries the water will have invaded the ground floor of the Doge's Palace and St. Mark's Basilica. St. Mark's Square has dropped two feet eight inches since the 12th century.

The Islands on which Venice is built have sunk not as much as 20 feet since the Bronze Age, and five or six feet since the Roman Empire. Evidently they are now going down faster.

The principal cause of the accelerated sinking is believed to be about a fifth of an inch a year) is believed to be the withdrawal of water from the subsoil through artesian wells. Other causes are the wave-breaking effect of piers, the construction of large buildings on the mainland gardens and the dredging of canals.

Experts think the rate of downward movement can be slowed but not halted short of drastic measures which themselves would create grave problems. So descendants of the present gondoliers may be pulling up passengers out of second-story windows — that is if singing concessionaires are not by that time poling honeymooners along the canals of the moon.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS.

GOD STILL SPEAKS TO US

In what sense can we speak to God? The Bible tells us of many instances; we think irresistibly, of the boy Samuel in the house of the high priest Eli. There is no doubt that God spoke to David, unworthy as he often was. The prophets of Baal in the time of Elijah tried to learn the prophet's "secret," and many men have been deceived into trying to find a "method" of communication with God. But one has only to think of St. Augustine, Brother Lawrence, Thomas a Kempis, and Emanuel Swedenborg to have objective evidence that God can and does communicate directly with men, and does so continuously and effectively.

There is little we can do about it. He will speak to whom He pleases in His own good time; to His priests, ministers and teachers, by hymns, and to those who are truly his servants. Through long experience that anyone may have the confidence that this is so, and the Church is very conservative about the matter. It wants to be sure that the voice that comes is the genuine voice of God, and does not merely seem to be His voice. But when He speaks, as to little Samual, we shall never be mistaken. The Almighty-Who has know in His own good time, and in His own way.

Revelation has not ceased, nor will it cease as long as time lasts. Pray with the conviction that God hears prayer and always answers it.

Dutch Town's Witch Weigh

Netherlands Letter

For ten Dutch cents you can obtain a certificate testifying that you are not a witch! This bargain is obtained at the old Weigh House in the town of Oudewater, between Gouda and Utrecht in the Netherlands.

Oudewater dates back to the sixteenth century when Oudewater, then a flourishing city, stood as a beacon of enlightenment in an atmosphere fraught with superstition and witch hunting. In those days it was the custom for people to defend oneself against charges of being in league with the devil. Whoever could produce a piece of cast iron in his bare hands and walk up and down three steps, proved by the effect he did not hold on Sim. Or perhaps a suspected person had to plunge her arms into a barrel of boiling water to prove that the accusations made by her were unfounded. Worse still, suspects were thrown into the river; if they remained afloat it was the work of the devil; if they sank they were innocent, but not even having the satisfaction of being able to exclaim: "I told you so." Victims were burned alive.

The enlightened people of Oudewater, however, used more humane methods. The town's reputation for honesty in trade was known all over Europe. Its weigh house, where merchants came from all over to buy cheese and other products, boasted the most accurate weights found anywhere. So the Oudewater merchants contrived a plan to put a stop to the persecution of so many innocent people. They had at the same time putting in a plug for their own town. They announced that anyone accused of being a witch or sorcerer would be weighed accurately at the Weigh House of Oudewater.

It was quite a ceremony. The accused, in the presence of witnesses made of paper, was placed on the scales in the presence of the aldermen, the Weigh Master, all city officials and — nobody knows why — the midwife. After careful weighing, it was then officially established that the suspect was "far, too heavy to ride around on a broom-stick," and was given a certificate declaring him or her innocent.

Generals' War Still Raging

Brantford Expositor

The War of the Generals rages on — in print. Few of the main commanders of the Second World War have failed to produce, either by themselves (like Lord Montgomery) or with the aid of professional writers (like the case of Lord Alanbrooke) memoirs, and accounts of their campaigns in book form. Incidentally, most of them have taken chapters out to tell how other generals made a mess of it (the author's opinion) mismanaged theirs.

It is interesting, but tends to become somewhat bewildering to the uninitiated public. But whether one be a professional military person or a mere layman, it would seem to comes clear that even the greatest generals were and are human, subject, like the rest of us, to prejudices and bad judgments as well as good ones.

Now comes a book called "The Desperate Generals" by Correlli Barnett, about the campaigns in the Western Desert and the commanders, some still famous, some quickly forgotten already, who directed them.

Mr. Barnett, who reported on the European phase of the Second World War for the Times, is a controversial writer and some of the things he says are sure to provoke the most angry argument — which is good, if for no other point of view of objective history, at least from the point of view of interest and publicity.

His given high place — and it is a fairly high place — to Sir Claude Auchinleck, and Sir Richard O'Connor, who have been somewhat treated by many authors and ungratefully dealt with by statesmen.

But Rogerio Barnett damages his case by his vitriolic attacks on men he regards as having been unfair to his heroes. If he had been content to extol the merits of the generals he favors and remind us of crucial engagements we have forgotten or never know about, he would have done well by those he justifies. But when he makes mistakes of spelling at Montgomery as a second-rate blunderer, disparages Alexander and refers to Sir Harold Macmillan as that "plump, pink, politician who ran the war from a cellar in London," how much can we rely on his other appraisals?

One day soon, we hope, some genius of analysis, compilation and condensation will produce a book summarizing, judiciously and fairly, the views of the generals and of those who have written about the generals, and drawing a balanced conclusion. Then, and not until then, shall we gain a clear insight into what really happened and what it meant and means.

Strictly Personal
Conflict Makes People Lean To Extremes

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudice:

The only true test of the integrity of a politician is whether he says in private exactly what he said in opposition.

No fact seems clearer to me than that we live in a time when future civilizations will surely call the Dark Ages. Instead of manages survival or revival, we will be looked back upon with shock, horror and loathing, as some perverse growth in the history of our organism.

Men fear thought as they fear nothing else on earth — and all men, while in opposition, violence, mass hatred and bigotry, are a fearful flight from the necessity of taking thought.

If Jefferson were writing and talking now, he would most likely Un-American Activities Committee; as Charles Beard, the American historian, once said: "One of the best ways to get yourself into jail in these dangerous citizen these days is to go about repeating the very phrases used by your founding fathers used in the great struggle for democracy."

The moment someone challenges our views, we become more dogmatic, more fanatical, thus, all conflict tends to make us more extreme than we are normally.

The ancient saying that "only the brave deserve the fair" can be understood better if we rephrase it to "only the brave can woo the fair." For a man without character and conviction will not be attracted by woman, in or out of marriage.

Law is a bottomless pit; there is no limit to the number that some lawyer cannot dig under and push, if we have no "precedent" that will cover, or at least partially clothe, the issue.

Three things are necessary for the salvation of democracy, as Thomas Aquinas "To know what he ought to believe, to know what he ought to do," and to find them more palatable than the slack modern assumption that democracy is the "leaving faith" in some vague deity makes one religious.

Democracy is futile until humility is to give a person authority over those who have had authority over him; he will quickly learn in amazement, how much he resembles those whom he feels are reversed.

The minute we begin to think we're interesting, we're not.

"Duty" is what we expect from others in a situation in which we ask only "intelligent self-interest" from ourselves.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LEAVING THINGS BEHIND

Many a home has been made unhappy by the head of the house taking his business there instead of leaving it behind at his office where it rightfully belongs.

Mistakes are as inevitable as the night itself. But we should not carry them around. We should have a special place for our troubles — and no one should know where they are kept!

The freer you are in thought and action, the more power you accumulate as you go your way. I believe the stage to be a great educational force. Its power for good is limitless. How many times has it wiped the blackboard clean and sent me home to pleasant thoughts and a great inference for good lies in the fact that it helps folks to forget.

Associate with exhilarating, hopeful people and bring out the best that is within you.

Keep your mind at work with pleasant tasks. Keep filling it with beauty and inspiration.

You can do this if you eliminate worries and fears. Just keep you back, that irritates you or destroys your serenity.

We all carry much baggage. Life really calls for light baggage — and the journey is long and at times quite tedious, but interesting and thrilling if we travel light and our finished task.

Learn to leave things behind, and you will know the pleasure of growth.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

What are needed now are not traffic engineers but hydraulic engineers. Somebody must tell them, before it is too late, that a tub will hold just so much water, and the frenzied plumbing job our experts are doing, erecting a magnificent system of pipes, mains, conduits and aqueducts, without first measuring the capacity of the bathtub, sounds a little looney to an increasing number of us.

What happens when the bathtub overflows? What kind of an engineer is it that will turn off the taps? And have we got one of them?

A New Word

Letter to the Times of London

Most of us have become inured to the transatlantic "mortician," but it was with some surprise (and unmingled with admiration) that I saw two days ago over a London clothes-rendezvous the legend "Expert Valetician."

I'm aware that people aren't going to give up belief in such things as pre-cook-quick schemes the easy way to become authors or movie stars, check letters or the whole bankroll, services, or have no reason to think they will suddenly stop using the 900-calorie diets.

At least the odds are much better with these diets, but they'll work — as will any valid diet — if you follow the rules. That keep in mind that it is as easy to cheat with these diets as with any others if you decide to sneak a few candy bars.

There's one thing I do ask my readers to do, and that's read and obey the rules laid down in he first article. For example, the fine print happens to say (and in goods ones I've read, it does) that you should get your doctor's approval before embarking on one of these diets, do so.

If the fine print suggest getting some nonlily chewable vitamins every day, the celery, cabbage, endive, raw carrots, etc., do it — and chew it!

Don't forget, remember that these diets are abandoned after a few weeks because, frankly, they're boring. The idea was originally devised as a convalescent diet, and the idea behind convalescence was an effort, and the idea was to get the nitrogenous, necessary food values into the patient with the least effort. Then something promoted the idea of reducing diet. Well? It's a smart convalescing menu, and it works if you can tolerate it and if you follow the rules.

will have a nuclear power system to offer to the world market on commercial terms," Mr. Gray said.

The uranium industry was urged by two of its leaders to be patient for about a decade until uranium again is in demand as a fuel source for atomic power plants.

W. M. Gilchrist, president of Crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, and Robert Winters, president of Rio Tinto Mining Company of Canada Limited agreed that when uranium again is in demand the industry's future will be bright. But they said the industry cannot sit idly by.

Mr. Gilchrist said the industry must comb the world for new markets and use a vigorous program of research and development to find new uses for the product.

Henri Teekman, planning division engineer of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, said that by 1980 more Ontario electricity will probably be supplied by nuclear energy than by water power.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. L. M. — He's still our son; we should take him back.

Mr. L. H. — He's just no good; we must forget about him.

Mrs. L. M. — We have four children. Our two daughters married well, one to a doctor, the other to a lawyer. One son is a brilliant accountant. It's the other boy who's been giving us a lot of trouble.

He left school at 16, saying he had no idea what he wanted to be so there was no use staying in college. Instead, he stayed home and there were terrible arguments. Sometimes the neighbors came, and once even the police. But we patched things up each time.

Then, after a terrible blowup, he packed and left. We didn't hear from him for a year. Now we've learned he's broke and in trouble. I want to take him back and help him. My husband refuses.

Mr. L. H. — The boy is just no good. My wife says he left school because he didn't know what he wanted to be. He did know. He wanted to be a bum! How much torture are parents supposed to take? The neighbors can tell you the nights he gave us — hanging around, playing the radio and TV all night, sending home packages C.O.D. for himself. Now he wants us to go bail for him because he got caught trying to use a credit card he swiped from a locker room.

I say let's pretend we just had three kids. This one is better off for ruin anyway. But he's counting on my wife's soft heart.

The Council — As someone has put it, "There's only one thing softer than a mother's heart, and that's her head!" Which is why I, L. H. am afraid of, and his errant son is counting on, it appears.

Pretending this boy was never born, as Mr. H. suggests, is impossible. Giving him back out of pure sentiment, as Mrs. H. asks, postpones a real solution to the problem.

The entire family has a finger in this bitter fruit pie. In all probability this brother's anguish while growing up among sibling "hog shots," was ignored. He got used to being the one nobody asked about, talked about, bragged about. Somewhere along the line he typecast himself as the misfit, the oddball. And ever since he's been filling the role. As for now, the father is justified in not wanting him to live home. He'd be a disruptive force there. Now that he's in trouble, the best course would be for the H's to contact the authorities and let them know they are parents reading by eagar to take two steps to help their son for every step he takes to help himself. This aid can be augmented by rehabilitation workers.

With living quarters and a job arranged for, the son can visit his parents occasionally. A new relationship, based upon affection and respect, could be slowly built up to replace the old hysteria. After the boy has proven himself capable of standing alone, he can be invited to return to the family hearth with status and dignity.

His is a costly and roundabout way of gaining recognition. Perhaps, in his early 20s, perceptive adults and siblings could have eased the struggle.

Meanwhile, Mama's not beast can't be allowed free play. It must wait, encased in a coma steely common sense.

U.C. Women Praised for Their Work

TORONTO (CP) — Members of the Dominion council of the Woman's Association of the United Church of Canada, were told Wednesday night that their work has been "the very heart of life and work of the church."

Rev. A. B. Moore, president of Victoria University, Toronto, complimented the WA at its final annual meeting here this week. The group will go out of existence at the end of the year to join in a new women's group with the Women's Missionary Society. It will be known as the United Church Women.

"The church without volunteers has lost touch with its master," Dr. Moore said.

"In your faithfulness to your church you make a significant contribution to your community in the same time and sense as this comes within the arc of God's service," he added.

Weddings

LITTLE — YOUNG

The rectory of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene on Friday, May 12, at seven o'clock, of a pretty evening wedding, solemnized by the Reverend J. Boyle, when Nicolas Patricia Young of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Young, was united in marriage to Gary Allan Little, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Little, of Belleville. Tall white standards of yellow and white chrysanthemums adorned the spacious rectory.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a sheath gown of queen's blue over embroidered silk featuring a fitted bodice and rounded neckline and three - quarter sleeves accented by three tiny covered buttons. Her white hat with high crown was covered with bridal net. She wore white shoes and gloves, a three-strand necklace of tiny crystals, matching earrings, gift of her bridegroom, and carried a nosegay of deep pink roses.

Her only attendant was Miss Brenda Robitaille, who was gowned in pale pink organza over taffeta with embroidered bodice extending down the skirt back forming a wide panel. She wore a pink organza hat with tiny veil, white shoes and gloves and carried a nosegay of spring blue carnations. Three strands of white beads with matching earrings, the gift of the bride, completed her ensemble.

Mr. Robert Little, of Belleville, attended his brother as groomsman.

The reception was held at the bride's home, which was decorated with pink and white streamers, white wedding bells, roses and lily-of-the-valley.

The bridal table was appointed with white damask linen, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped with two white doves beneath an arch of lily-of-the-valley, and flanked by tall white candles in silver holders.

Mr. Laurence Amo proposed the toast to the bride, to which her bridegroom responded.

The bride's mother, wearing a sheath gown of corded silk featuring a bodice tone with silk ribbon matching hat, white gloves and corsage of a white gardenia, received guests.

She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a light navy crepe in sheath style with ice-blue embroidered flowers, softly draped at the side. A vivid blue flower hat and pink gardenia corsage, accented her costume.

For the wedding trip to Kingston and Watertown, N.Y., the bride travelled in a beige linen suit with pale mauve blouse, gloves and pillbox straw hat, with matching accessories, and orchid corsage.

Guests were present from Hamilton, Brampton, Toronto, Shannonville, Havelock, Corbyville, Bloomfield, Frankford and Belleville.

The bride was entertained previous to her marriage, by several showers: a miscellaneous shower held at Club Canada with Mrs. T. Hedges as hostess and Mrs. John Vinkle as co-hostess; a linen shower held at 16 Earl Street, Belleville, with Mrs. Harry Carbraint as hostess, and at another miscellaneous shower with Mrs. Brenda Robitaille as hostess, 245 Wright Avenue, and Mrs. Gary Gee and Miss Hilda Thompson, as co-hostesses; a personal shower at 10 Meyers Road, with Mrs. George Vande-Water as hostess.

The bride's gift to her bridegroom, a black leather pocketbook; the bridegroom's gifts to his groomsman, a silver tie bar and cuff links.

Mr. and Mrs. Little will reside at 132 Herchimer Avenue, Belleville.

JOAN LEGGAT of Holy Spirit parish, Agincourt, was presented with the Gold Cord by her captain, Mrs. John Fahey. The 10th Agincourt Boy Scout Troop formed a guard of honor. Chris Leggat, past president Belleville Boy Scouts, congratulates his niece on her achievement. Gifts were presented by the Brownies, Guides, Cubs, Scouts, Rev. T. Harding and the C.W.L., who also provided lunch. Joan was previously invested as Link Guide. Among the guests were: Rev. A. McIntosh of the Scarboro Foreign Missions; Divisional Commissioner Mrs. Madden; District Commissioner Mrs. Clifton; Captain Steenburg and Captain Brennon of Belleville; Captain Barker and Mrs. E. Gendron, all of whom were former officers of Joan Leggat's in different companies. Guides Helen Cleary, Phyllis Walsh and Nancy Richards from Belleville, also attended for the ceremony.

Women's Activities

FAIRDALE BAPTIST L.S.F.

Mrs. Stewart Hill, president of Fairdale Baptist Ladies Missionary Fellowship, presided at the regular monthly meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Jean Allen.

The meeting opened with choruses and prayer.

Mrs. Gordon Robinson, Mrs. Robert Snyder, Mrs. Angus Hannah and Mrs. Charles Hathaway, gave an interesting talk, based on what members contribute to the lives of their children.

Mrs. Beverley Foster led devotions. She said in part: "Did you ever think that when Christ died on the cross in His mede a will? If you are in the kingdom, Christ remembered you in His will. He willed His mother to John, the son of Zebedee; and He willed His spirit back to His Father. But to His disciples He willed His peace I leave with you"; that is His legacy, His joy, which He gave to you. "Peace I leave with you, My peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid".—John 14:27.

Prayer time, led by Mrs. G. Nicholls, was followed by a time of fellowship.

Mrs. Kennedy Captures Ottawa With Her Charm

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. John Fitzgerald Kennedy flies home to Washington today from a capital she captured with charm.

In 48½ hours "Jackie" Kennedy captivated Ottawa officialdom, set its social set into a new whirl and drew public crowds unmatched even in past visits by royalty.

Everyone who met or saw the president's wife praised her to the skies. Her wardrobe drew critical raves.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, welcoming President Kennedy to the House of Commons Wednesday, spoke of the capital's "special glow of warmth for Mrs. Kennedy."

And Jack Kingsbury, a 16-year-old messenger in the Parliamentary Press Gallery who watched the Kennedys arrive on Parliament Hill, could only come up with:

"Wow, is she nice!"

Mrs. Kennedy's schedule was gruelling but at no point did she show signs of fatigue. On two occasions, however, she begged off commitments because of weariness.

These were Tuesday night when she retired from a reception 30 minutes ahead of schedule and Wednesday afternoon when she asked that a hurriedly - arranged French-language television interview be cancelled.

STOLE THE SHOW

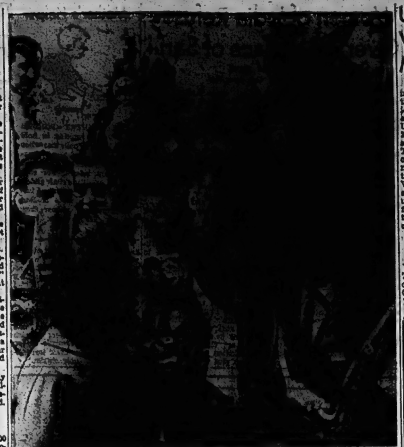
At Governor-General Vanier's state dinner Tuesday night she practically stole the show in a sheath dress of white silk that set off her thick chestnut hair and coppery tan.

Later, at the reception, she greeted 300 guests in a receiving line and then set out to mingle with them, flashing a wide smile that has become almost as well known as her husband's boyish grin.

"Her pictures don't do her justice at all," said the wife of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton after a chat with the 31-year - old "first lady."

"Photographs can't catch the shine in her eyes and that sweet air of reserve."

"Just adorable," echoed Mrs. Joseph Willard, wife of the deputy minister of health. "And she has the most terrific eyes."



The comments ran like that all evening.

She toured the National Gallery and the RCMP's Rockcliffe Barracks Wednesday where the members of the RCMP staged a shortened version of their musical ride. Mrs. Kennedy is a better-than - average amateur painter and an accomplished horseback rider.

Nearly 8,000 people — mostly women—massed outside the gallery to see her enter and depart. Traffic had to be diverted.

CAMP APPROVES

TORONTO (CP) — A $50,000 special warrant has been approved by the lieutenant governor-in-council for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind to build a summer camp on Lake Rosseau in Muskoka.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Boy Loves Older Woman

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I have what I consider a very serious problem concerning my 21-year-old son. He has been without a father for many years. He has been very easy to manage, even working and putting himself through two years of university.

He has fallen in love with a widow with four children. She is 10 years older than he is. I can sympathize with her having to support four children, but I feel she should look for someone older.

My son says he may fall in his studies this year. Now he plans to give up his studies and work steady so he can marry her. Am I wrong, Miss Clark, to disapprove of this relationship or should I say nothing more to him about it? I have never met her.—CONCERNED.

o

DEAR CONCERNED:—At say the odds are stacked against him. Many women are happily married to men younger than themselves—but the gap between 21 and 31 is a big one.

It is high time you met her. She may be that rare older mate who can make him happy, but it is far more likely that she will be like a stone about his neck, and more of a responsibility than a helpmate.

The fact that she is obviously not concerned about his studies or that he is quitting his course half way through shows a lack of judgment and just plain horse sense. At 31, and with an experience of marriage behind her, she should know that education counts.

My message to your son would be: For a lifetime of happiness, you must finish what you started when you enrolled at university. When you have graduated you will be in a much better position to take on a mate, with or without children. Don't ruin the fine start you have made by marrying in haste. You may have a long leisure to repent in.

DEAR DORIS:—My daughter coaxed until I gave in and let her go out with a boy 24. She is only 16. Then she stayed out until four in the morning after promising to be in at midnight.

I sat up worrying and waiting for her. Her only excuse was that she couldn't be the one to break up the party. I threatened to allow no more dates for a month, but she cried and I gave in. Now she stays out every night and nothing I say changes him. What can I do?—ANXIOUS.

o

DEAR ANXIOUS:—Don't fail for every teardrop. Girls and boys in their teens feel very positive about what they want and don't want. At the same time, by their very confidence, they may be asking you to put limits on them.

Your daughter has learned that no matter how firm you sound, you can be broken down. If she is mixing with an older crowd she is probably not any too sure of herself. She may be in real danger of being hurt.

Be firm, with kindness. Help her to have fun with girls and boys her own age. And be available when she wants to talk.

o

(Doris Clark will be glad to help you with your problems. Write to her care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Youth Rally Held on Saturday Eve

FRANKFORD — In Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle on Saturday evening, the Pentecostal Youth Rally of this area was held. The Rev. Fred Spring welcomed everyone.

The Rev. Bob Donnan of Stirling, led the song service, while the Rev. D. Mercer of Brighton, was in charge of the service.

The orchestra from Bellerville Calvary Temple was present and enjoyed by all. The Rev. Ron Hall of Calvary Temple, Trenton, conducted the Bible quiz with Trenton and Brighton teams tying 1-1.

Frankford Full Gospel choir sang "He Shall Reign." Choruses were sung. The choir rendered "How Great Thou Art."

On the evening of May 17th, the Rev. Patrick O'Reilly will be the special speaker in the Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle.

Mrs. Gordon Smith and Miss Connie Elliott rendered an accordion duet, "Oh How I Love Jesus."

Miss Beverley Wannamaker rendered a vocal solo, "The Love of God," after which the Rev. F. Spring introduced Mrs. Harold Williamson of Oshawa, special guest speaker of the evening. Her husband the Rev. Harold Williamson, their son, three years of age and baby daughter, 19 months, were killed in a car accident near Sudbury, in July 1960. God spared Mrs. Williamson's life. She took as her text, Philippians 1: 19-21, and Romans 14: 8-9, "For me to live is Christ and to die is gain." God's presence was much wonderfully real to Mrs. Williamson and she told how God spoke to her and said "This is My will, I will work it out." Her testimony was soul stirring and a challenge to hearts that God's keeping and sustaining power is real in this day and age.

Following the singing of a hymn, the service closed with a time of prayer.

Women of India Refuse Overalls in Place of Sari

By SUKHINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — One more battle has been won by the sari, the picturesque — but to Western eyes apparently cumbersome female costume of India.

Women workers in a factory near here were asked to turn up in blue overalls. They were told that the flowing five-yard saris they wrap around themselves tended to cause accidents, especially when operating machines.

The women refused. "We are definitely more at home in our saris," they told the factory manager. "Besides, let us not imitate the Chinese who have made their women sexless."

Earlier, an attempt to persuade them to tie up their kneelength hair plaits into compact buns also misfired. "Don't dehumanize us," they pleaded, making their plaits longer with artificial hair and decking them with jasmine and rose buches.

Short of exchanging their saris for Western dresses Indian women are prepared to go to great lengths to deserve the selective modern.

Today, more Indian women use lipstick, carry powder-boxes and even bob their hair, though this is mainly true of the big cities. But then most of India is unchanging, mystically timeless.

At the aristocratic Cricket Club of India in Bombay former maharanis and wives of wealthy Indians arrive in saris for a night-long session of swimming and dancing. Few change into swimming-suits and most prefer to plunge into the pool in their saris.

Foreigners visiting India are invariably intrigued by the sari. A Canadian or American visiting this country never fails to take back with him one of the exquisite, gold - embroidered saris for his lady back home. Soon their Indian friends start getting frantic letters. The problem is how to wear them.

Handloom House, the government organization which markets fine saris on a co-operative basis, has printed a pamphlet on the art of sari - draping. Pretty Indian girls are employed to give on-the-spot guidance to visiting foreign women.

One Canadian woman, wife of a diplomat in New Delhi, recently bought seven saris at a total cost of some $250. "But I may never wear them," she confided.

India now exports more saris to Europe and North America than ever before. Said one exporter: "Westerners cherish saris as exotic symbols of the mysterious East. Their impossibility adds to their charm."

A CARPENTRY - MINDED mopped attempting to hold and hammer nails may whop his fingers; and also he brushed by bent-over nails and frequent mixes. For such tyros, exhaustive chair gliders which can be hammered into soft wood without holding. And you can remove them easily for another nasty session.

QUESTION - BOX

Question — Since we enjoy your column and follow it religiously, I would appreciate your opinion on the following: Recently, during a party at the home of a friend, the hostess passed a "dip" (a gooey one) surrounded by bite-sized crackers. Several of the guests, including me, avoided this "dip" for fear it would drip. The hostess was quite put out when I took only a cracker. This made me wonder if I was rude in refusing the "dip" that she seemed so proud of. Was I wrong? — Mrs. P. C. Bergen, Field, N. J.

Answer — These gooey dips pose a problem at times. The thoughtful hostess will provide a small plate so that, if it does drip, it will land on the plate not you. You were not rude in politely refusing her offer. It's nice to be able to partake of everything that is passed to you, but sometimes there may be a reason that makes a refusal necessary. A hostess should not feel hurt. She should realize that there is a good reason behind your not taking everything she presents to you.

Question — I have trouble meeting Canadian girls, maybe because I am a newcomer (2½ years old and a resident here for nearly a year), I now speak English quite well, so I no longer have the language difficulty. Can you offer any suggestions to help me meet some unattached young girls about my age? All of my friends are married couples and they say they do not know any to introduce me to. — Mr. E. F., Edmonton, Alberta.

Answer — Have you explained your difficulties to the clergyman at your church? At church suppers or other activities there usually are many young people about your age. I'm sure he'd introduce you to some of them, and, through them, you would meet others. Also, perk up, you married friends! Undoubtedly they know some unattached young people, and just don't want to be bothered to make it possible for you to meet them!

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Most men who would like to appear adventurous are really cowards at heart. Observe the way they drive and you see what is meant.

In one of the towns in New York State on a winding drive through a part there is a road marker which reads:

"This road does not lead anywhere very rapidly. If you are in a hurry, you are on the wrong road."

Thereby hangs a tell-tale sign of our times.

We have increased our mechanical power, but instead of becoming masters we have become victims. We drive our cars gaily and carelessly as if we owned them; yet the reverse is true. We are often possessed by them, enslaved to their overwhelming strength. If we were really their masters, we wouldn't be slaughtering one another on the highways.

This happens because we live with the illusion that we can master our machines, since we have created them. It is this false sense of assessment of our real human situation which often contributes to our confusion and sometimes to our destruction. In point of fact, however, every invention man develops makes living more dangerous. Unless he learns to prize life more than he respects self defeating power, he shall conclude by being quite powerless in the end.

What is more: We drive our machines madly because we drive through life madly. At the wheel, as though life, we also confuse speed with direction, the tempo of our activity, with our real achievements. We are often "all dressed up," yet we are going nowhere. But we don't seem to be disturbed; it doesn't matter, so long as "we are go nowhere fast". As a result, we become powerless where we could be strong, arrogant where we should be humble.

The Jewish sages asked a question which we should be asking. "Who," they queried, "is the powerful hero?" And they answered, in words we should be using: "He who learns to conquer his own passions!"

The truth stands.

Suicide is frowned upon by all sensitive men as an immoral even cowardly act. Man proposes, but he may not finally dispose so he must learn to face up to life's demands.

Premeditated murder constitutes a religious as well as a capital crime in most human societies. This, too, is often an act of cowardice. Psychologists can trace many such terrible acts to feelings of inferiority which are deeply imbedded in the heart of the murderer.

What must be wrong with us then, when we drive our powerful automobiles at such speeds and in such foolhardy ways which must risk human life?

We are cowards, here, too!

We refuse to discipline ourselves to control our frantic urge for "adventure," because we fear that we will appear as "conformal," "too submissive to law" "too native". We must always look as if nothing really mattered, as if we were heroes and masters of every human situation.

The real hero understands when to submit. He surrenders to common sense and to good judgment, to lawful order. The coward fights reality by refusing to conquer his base passions and his confused values. He races his machine, as he runs amok through life, as if to prove that he is master. But this is the wrong road; it does not lead anywhere.

The mad, irresponsible driver is more than a menace; he is an immoral coward, drunk with the power which destroys.

Someone has aptly said that if there had been careless or impaired driving in the days of the Ten Commandments, there would have been 11 Commandments.

The next time you hold on to the wheel of your car, get a hold of yourself. Don't be a coward! Be a hero! Respect life!

Serve Chicken Cacciatore To Five

By Mary Moore

I had expected three for dinner. Five came. How could I make a three-pound chicken stretch? It turned out to be quite simple. I made

CHICKEN CACCIATORE:

1 3-lb. frying chicken cut in pieces, 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 3-4 cups water, half of 1 envelope Italian-style spaghetti sauce mix, half 6-oz. can tomato paste, 4 ounces sliced mushrooms.

Heat butter or margarine in heavy frying pan, add chicken pieces and brown until golden. Stir together water, tomato paste, spaghetti sauce mix and pour over. Cover and cook slowly about 30 minutes. Uncover and simmer slowly 30 minutes longer until chicken is tender. Add mushrooms 10 minutes longer until chicken just cook them through without shrinking them. If you have four big eaters this amount is just right but to serve five, I had cut the little 3-pound chicken up into 10 pieces and tipped the carver (Pete) to be sure to give each guest one choice piece plus one not so choice like the half of a back or a wing. It worked perfectly.

I served this chicken in the centre of the large platter surrounded with packages of hot cooked noodles. The Cacciatore sauce is lovely on the

EXPLODING SPECTACULAR — A dazzling fireworks display explodes over the outdoor bandshell at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. About 17,000,000 such fireworks are set off each year at various shows and exhibitions across Canada. Most of them are developed and made at the T. W. Hand Fireworks Company at Cookstville, Ont. (CP PHOTO)

Only Plant in Canada Making Fireworks Also Turns Out Mock-'A-Bomb'

By BRUCE LEVETT
'Canadian Press Staff Writer

COOKSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Some of the best seats in the country dwell in a sunlit glade on the eastern outskirts of this Peel County town.

They share their 100 acres—lumbering between a gravyard and an orchard—with the happy pyromaniacs of the T. W. Hand Fireworks Company.

For this is the birthplace of those spectacular displays that light the night sky over Halifax and Dartmouth, N.S., on Navy Day. Here are traced out and test-fired the effects that dazzle the paying customers in the Corral during Calgary's Stampede Week.

Those bright, showering stars cascading over Empire Stadium in Vancouver were developed here, as were the exploding spectaculars at the Ottawa Exhibition and the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

And most of the displays that will excite youngsters throughout much of Canada on Victoria Day, May 22, will bear the Hand label.

It's the only company in Canada manufacturing fireworks from the gunpowder to packaging stage.

The company's main production centre is in Papineauville, Que., but the research and difficult jobs are handled here.

The enterprise began in England when William Hand went to work at Woolwich Arsenal. In 1873 William moved the company to Canada.

An old poster in the firm's foyer reads:

"William Hand begs to announce to the public and secretaries of societies that he is prepared to supply fireworks and balloons of every description and brass and string bands on the shortest notice for garden parties, pic-nics, boat excursions and all public rejoicings on the most reasonable terms."

It has been a long time since a balloon has gone up at Hand's but supplying the noisy demands of Guy Fawkes' Day, Victoria Day and Hallowe'en has led to other products.

The firm began using plastic for fireworks casings and "now we produce a complete line of plastic cups and saucers, bowls, glasses, doorstops, games, clothespins and other items," said S. J. McPhee, general sales manager.

A trailing item produced for the armed forces is a simulated atomic bomb.

"The top of the mushroom is 800 feet high." President Hugh Hand said proudly.

NO MORE SKYROCKETS

Every exploding device developed must be spectacular enough to satisfy the critical hands at Hand's and safe enough to get past governmental inspectors.

Skyrockets with their flailing sticks are banned, their place taken by mortar bombs that disintegrate in the air.

Gone, too, are the old "slam-downs" or "torpedoes"—miniature sand-and - gunpowder-filled hand grenades.

"The trend today is toward family boxes of fireworks, from the $1 cellophane bag up to the $25 box. Several families get together on a large box of fireworks and set them off at one central point," Mr. McPhee said. "It keeps the fireworks off the street and that's as it should be."

Bylaws limiting the sale of fireworks to a few days before a holiday are "good bylaws," he says. "They are in the interest of merchants, giving them regulated selling periods."

Such production as is carried out here is performed in isolated two-man huts — more than 100 of them — scattered across the 100 acres.

"The mines and technical surveys department approves one building for one purpose only," says Mr. McPhee. Same as a safety measure, are fenced with steel or concrete - block barriers. The main magazine is surrounded by an earthen revetment.

The powder huts are swept out each day and the sweepings carried to a distant dump for burning. The chore becomes fraught with suspense for the janitor who never knows when some playful fellow employee has secreted a live "lighted pecock merry-go-round wheel—a whirling mass of silver crystalline fire" in the rubbish.

Canadians fire off 240,000,000 firecrackers on traditionally noisy holidays. Guy Fawke's Day, Nov. 5, is the occasion in Newfoundland. It's Hallowe'en in British Columbia and Victoria Day sees most of the rest of the country. Hand's imports most of the crackers from China—it's cheaper than manufacturing them.

There are 17,000,000 to 20,000,000 other fireworks touched off in Canada each year and Mr. Hand says his company makes most of them.

Each new effect undergoes extensive testing at Hand's, who supply a lot of free entertainment for the surrounding countryside.

"I guess we're about the most spectacular neighbors it would be possible to have," says Mr. McPhee, "but sometimes we just aren't appreciated."

Latin countries to impose a political and economic quarantine on Fidel Castro's regime. Many have refused to go along.

Mr. Kennedy, in his speech before a joint session of Parliament, said it is possible that the United States and Canada might not always see eye to eye on Latin policies.

Yet he believed Canadian skills, resources and judicious perception were needed at the conference table and throughout the inter-American community.

WOULD BE COSTLY

Some Canadian firms have investments in Latin countries and Canadian trade shows encouraging potentials. But, the Canadian government knows that should it join the U.S. would expect Canada to help provide economic aid for the impoverished southern countries. That was what Mr. Kennedy meant by providing Canadian "resources."

Informed Canadian sources suggest Canada cannot afford any significant contribution. Mr. Diefenbaker is reported to have told Mr. Kennedy that Canada is busy with its economic commitments under the Colombo plan for Southeast Asia. It also wants to extend aid for African projects.

External Affairs minister Green said a month ago a decision on whether to join OAS should be taken only when a majority of Canadians showed they favored the move. Since then the issue has been widely debated.

It is known some of Mr. Diefenbaker's advisers are split on the issue. There is no indication that the prime minister will make an early decision.

and increasing interest in inter-American affairs."

The two leaders were reported as reaffirming the objective of negotiating at Geneva a truly independent and neutral Laos.

Agreement was stated by Mr. Diefenbaker and the visiting president on their confidence in the United Nations, and they reaffirmed that the goal sought by both Canada and the United States is a secure world order in which there can be general disarmament under effective controls.

Said the communique, in conclusion:

"To banish the scourge of war, to improve the human lot, to defend and to enlarge the area of freedom, to assist peoples less privileged than our own—these are aims that bind together Canada and the United States and which, with other allies and friends, our two countries will, jointly and steadfastly, pursue."

STRENGTHEN NATO

Certain aspects of U.S.-Canadian defence arrangements were discussed, said the communique, without going into detail.

The two leaders "agreed that it is more than ever necessary that the strength and unity of NATO be reinforced."

On trade, the communique said:

"The president and prime minister noted the efforts which their two governments had been making in the tariff negotiations in Geneva to work out satisfactory trading relations with the European economic community and exchanged views on how this broad objective of importance to both countries can be achieved. They emphasized the interest of both countries in promoting employment and a general expansion of world trade."

They also examined the continuing responsibility of their countries to assist underdeveloped nations, the communique said.

Stagnation, Misery Confront The Congo 10 Months After Gaining Its Independence

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Unemployment, creeping inflation, stagnation and misery confront The Congo 10 months after independence.

Patrice Lumumba, the postal clerk turned premier, put the new nation on the road to economic disaster. And President Joseph Kasavubu and the ineffective government named to succeed Lumumba after his death three months ago have done little to reverse the dangerous course.

Potentially one of Africa's richest nations, The Congo bakes in the equatorial sun while her politicians squabble and government officials idle in their offices.

More than half the working population outside the secession-ist province of Katanga is unemployed. The central government operates at an average monthly deficit of $12,000,000. Exports have fallen nearly 30 per cent. Deterioration has cut the value of the Congolese franc almost in half.

In wide areas of the country, the bush is creeping over valuable plantations, interior roads, essential for movement of the country's cotton, rubber and palm kernels to the main transport arteries, are disappearing.

A United Nations economist said the Congo's present course, "if not checked in time, will end in complete catastrophe."

The Congolese army of 26,000 men is largely responsible for the country's impairment defies it. It costs about $60,000,000 a year, three times as much as it did under the Belgians.

An army private, who made $16 a month plus food and lodging under the Belgian colonial administration, now draws just under $100 a month, food, allowances included.

A major source of the difficulties was the refusal of the copper - rich Katanga province to recognize the central government. The expected revenue from Katanga for the first year of independence was estimated at slightly more than $100,000,000, nearly half of the budget.

President Moise Tshombe, who was under detention by the central government, may yet provide a solution. Some political observers here feel some deal may yet be arranged to bring Tshombe and his people around to co-operation with the Leopoldville regime.

The Congolese economy was not a difficult one to operate. It was a well-balanced one. Exports then were in the neighborhood of $600,000,000 annually.

In the central government's territory, exports recently have averaged about $8,000,000 a month.

Possibility of Province-Wide Municipal Voting Day Being Studied by Select Committee

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's select committee on municipal law decided Wednesday to study the possibility of a province-wide municipal election day.

Other topics discussed as the nine - member committee continued its study of the Municipal Act and related statutes were the poll tax, and end to the ward system in municipal elections and a four-year term for councils.

Alfred Cowling (PC—Toronto High Park) said one municipal election day would be an encouragement for people to get out and vote because all election machinery and publicity would be geared for the occasion.

Vernon Singer, Liberal member for Toronto York Centre, suggested municipal voting day be made a statutory holiday across the province.

He said also it would be a good idea if the municipal year corresponded with the provincial fiscal year so municipalities would know the size of provincial budget and know what grants they would get.

Municipalities now get the province funds to carry them over until the provincial budget is brought down.

The committee was divided on extension of the permissive two-year term for councils.

Mr. Singer suggested a two-year mandatory term, with provision for a four-year term at the discretion of the electors.

Hollis E. Beckett (PC—York East) said the ward system should be abolished and elections held on a municipal-wide basis as for mayor.

"You would have to bring in party politics," said Mr. Singer. "No 1 or 2 percent candidate could afford to run a campaign."

Mr. Beckett called the poll tax "archaic." Other members said it is a useful source of revenue. The poll tax, usually $10, is levied in a number of Ontario municipalities on everyone over 21 years of age.

Mr. Beckett said the last discriminates against males who fail to marry. He said a bachelor pays rent while helping the landlord pay his taxes.

W. K. Tate, property municipal counsel of the department of municipal affairs, said the committee should be more concerned with finding ways to increase taxes rather than finding ways to reduce it.

10-Year-Old Boy Shows Ability at Skeet-Shooting

TORONTO (CP)—A 10-year-old student in suburban Willowdale, examining for his grade V exams, is also practising for a more exacting test that is still three years away.

Billy Ayrhart is planning to represent Canada in the 1964 Olympic Games at Japan. His sport? The highly demanding skeet-shooting competition.

Billy fired a perfect round, the highest possible, in skeet shooting—in the Ontario championships, dropping all 25 clay pigeons in succession.

He missed only two of his last 50 for an overall score of 98 to take the sub-junior class at the meet.

"Considerable," said Barney Hartman, Ontario champion skeet shooter, of the boy's

Communist Flood at Crest, 'Let's Get It Over' View Of Frustrated Westerners

By SELMAN MORIN

VIENTIANE (AP) — The Communist flood in Southeast Asia, like the Mekong River, is cresting dangerously today. A critical date now may also already have crumbled beyond repair.

The Geneva conference on Laos meets against a backdrop of these facts:

The Communists have a military hammerlock on Laos. Negotiating at Geneva from this position of strength, they propose to demand a large share of whatever government emerges.

For anti-Communist nations adjoining Laos the outlook has never been blacker. The next big push is expected in South Viet Nam. Thailand already reports increased Red activity on its northeast frontier.

And the feeling of bitterness, frustration and impatience is prevalent among Westerners in Laos has hardened into a sort of "let's get it over with" attitude. By that some mean a shooting war.

SOME WANT TROOPS

"The only solution," says a seasoned military observer in a tone of finality, "is troops—and troops from abroad."

"Alternatives are frightening," says a diplomat.

"The cease-fire," says a Laotian-speaking priest, "is our confession of defeat."

The factors underlying the Laotian problem pivot around a few fundamental questions and answers:

Q. How did Laos come on to the world scene?

A. Prior to the Second World War it was part of the huge French colony of Indochina. Later it became an independent state. It is a landlocked country wedged in by China, Burma, Thailand, Cambodia, South Viet Nam and Communist North Viet Nam. Its square miles it is estimated at only 2,500,000. Hence it constitutes an open highway for Communist operations against South Viet Nam and Thailand. For the same reason it has been the object of gigantic American military economic programs.

UNAWARE OF EVENTS

Q. Is the man in the village aware of power plays going on around his country?

A. Only in a vague and confused sense. For him it becomes concrete in the form of actual fighting in and around his village. Communist seizures of young men and rice, and Red propaganda which is effective either in form of persuasion and promises or when the village headman is assassinated for "cooperating with the imperialists."

Q. Does he understand what the fighting and propagandizing are all about?

A. Almost never. He just wants to be let alone. He reminds you of the peasant in South Viet Nam today, caught between the Communist Viet-cong guerrillas and government, and the millions of Chinese peasants 13 years ago caught between the Reds and Nationalists.

Q. Doesn't he want to remain a free citizen under his own independent government?

A. Such terms carry little meaning in Laos. For example, the peasant three sides' factional struggle for power in government is regarded as a "battle of princes." The average man has seldom heard of the United States and Russia. He can visualize his village but not "Laos" he might have to fight for.

MOST ILLITERATE

It is estimated that 70 to 80 per cent of the Laotians are illiterate. The majority are undernourished. Western medical men estimate the life expectancy is only around 40. Moreover, for about 20 years they were under French rule. These charming, courteous, smiling people have not had much chance—or inclination — to become familiar with the 20th century.

Q. Is Laos going to be Communist?

A. That's the big question. The Communists have often demonstrated ability to take over a government once they got a foot in the door. Under a coalition government in Laos they would have several feet in the door.

CCF Leader Told to Leave Bookies Alone

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader received an anonymous note yesterday threatening hat life unless he stopped speaking about bookmaking operations in Ontario.

The typewritten note, mailed from Islington to Mr. MacDonald's office at Queen's Park, read

"You'll be the next one to get what Rhesteln got if you do not leave the bookies alone. There'll be another Donald MacDonald in the obitualy column if you don't watch yourself."

The note enclosed a clipping from a newspaper obituary column reporting the death of a Donald MacDonald, aged 87, on May 11. He was not related to the CCF leader.

Max Rhesteln, mentioned in the note, was beaten severely in a Toronto cocktail lounge a few weeks ago by a gang of men.

Mr. MacDonald's name was spelled incorrectly on the envelope, but his title was correct.

The CCF leader has urged Attorney-General Roberts to crack down on book-makers and any organized crime in Ontario.

Mr. MacDonald said the note could have been from a crackpot but added it might also indicate that book - makers had started to threaten elected representatives who were outspoken against crime.

Wuhan Steel Firm Plans Expansion Ease to Keep In Line With Red Orders

Clare McDermott, Edmonton - born newspaper man who now is Reuters correspondent in Peking, recently completed a 3,500-mile tour of eastern and southeastern China. In this story he reports on the development of a steel industry at Wuhan.

By CLARE McDERMOTT

WUHAN (Reuters) — The newly - developed Wuhan Iron and Steel Company is a striking example of China's policy of slowing down expansion of its heavy industry this year.

This huge, modern factory is one of the developments that convince even the most sceptical visitors of the extent of construction carried out in China's heavy industry since the "great leap forward" began in 1958.

But this year, the Chinese Communist party announced new policies after three years of major building effort and the recent natural calamities and other rural difficulties, which caused heavy agricultural losses, reduced raw material supplies and forced changes in use of available manpower.

A communique issued by the party central committee in January said "the whole nation must concentrate on strengthening the agricultural front."

Of heavy industry, it said: "The scope of capital construction in 1961 should be appropriately reduced, the rate of development should be readjusted and a policy of consolidating, filling out and raising standards should be adopted on the basis of the victories already won."

EXCESSIVE TARGET

The Communist planning expert, Fo I-po, a vice - premier and head of the state economic commission, said in a recent report that steel production in 1960 reached 18,620,000 tons—more than the target set for 1962, when the second five-year plan ends.

The Wuhan Iron and Steel Company's office manager, Hsiao Ming, told me how these policies would affect his firm as he showed me parts of the sprawling industrial base just outside Wuhan.

The Wuhan development is one of the "three big pillars" of the Chinese steel industry of the future. Biggest of the three is the long - established Japanese-built plant at Anshan in northeast China (Manchuria). The third, less advanced in construction and slightly smaller than Wuhan, is at Paotow, in Inner Mongolia.

Construction started on barren farming land about 20 miles down the Yangtze River from Wuhan in 1954.

"The original plan called for the first phase of our factory—to enable us to produce 1,500,000 tons of steel a year—to be completed in 1962," Hsiao said. Wuhan eventually will be able to produce 3,000,000 tons of steel a year. "Thanks to the great leap forward of the last three years, construction rushed ahead and the first phase was actually completed in 1960.

NEAR FULL OUTPUT

"If we had not embarked on the policy of consolidation, I think the final target of 3,000,000 tons capacity could have been reached this year—or at least next year."

Asked when large-scale building operations would be resumed, Hsiao replied: "That will be decided by the central government. If they give us the money and the materials needed, we can finish the work quickly."

The company employs about 100,000 workers — from engineers, expert technicians and miners to kindergarten teachers for schools on its housing estate. Of the workers, about 30,000 are in the building trade.

Hsiao estimated that when the steel mills are all completed, the permanent work force, including about 30,000 men at the iron mines away from the main site, will be between 40,000 and 50,000.

At present, Hsiao said, two big iron smelting blast furnaces are in production and a third is nearly completed. Six steel-making furnaces are completed, as are five coke ovens and a factory which makes refractory materials for the whole plant.

SOVIET EQUIPMENT

"We watched the highly-automatic operation of a Soviet-developed rough rolling mill, big enough to handle the factory's final capacity of 3,000,000 tons of steel, a heavy rolling mill, just completed, is undergoing trials while construction has just started on the plate rolling mill.

"At the end of 1960, the company had completed mills able to produce 1,500,000 tons of steel ingots, 1,600,000 tons of iron each year, Hsiao said. "But having the capacity to do this does not mean we are doing it. Our blast furnaces and smelters were not all completed at the same time, and they are not all in production at the same time.

"And, with the blast furnaces completed only during the past year, our workers have not yet gained the experience and technical skill to use them at maximum capacity."

When complete production figures for 1960 have not yet been made public, Hsiao estimated that the company turned out 900,000 tons of steel and 1,200,000 tons of iron during the year. At present, the company is not producing any special, hard steels. The output consists of just ordinary steels.

REFUSE UN REQUEST

CAPE TOWN (Reuters)—South Africa has declined to permit the United Nations committee on South - West Africa to visit the mandated territory. It was officially disclosed here Wednesday night. But as the mandatory power, South Africa expressed willingness to admit a person of international standing to be agreed on by it and the president of the UN assembly to inquire into the validity of UN charge that the situation in South - West Africa endangers international peace and security.

Everybody Wants Champs

What Price Golf Glory?

But a conflict in dates has caused much excitement among professionals as they prepare to tee off today in the 14th annual Sam Snead Festival.

Word reached here that the Memphis Open sponsors are trying to prevent Player and Palmer from participating in the Ninth International Cup matches in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Both tournaments are scheduled June 1-4.

The Memphis Open is co-sponsored by the Professional Golfers Association.

WILL REPRESENT U.S.

Palmer and Snead have accepted Puerto Rico's invitation to appear as the United States team in San Juan. Player also has accepted.

Under PGA rules golfers wishing to participate in non-PGA tournaments must get permission from the PGA or face a six - month suspension and a $500 fine.

Besides Player, Palmer, Snead and Kel Nagle, others in the 72 - hole Snead tournament who plan to compete in San Juan are Peter Thomson and Vancouver's Stan Leonard. Thomson and Nagle will represent Australia, Leonard and Toronto's Al Balding, not competing here, will team up for Canada.

ESKS SIGN TWO

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference announced Wednesday the signing of defensive end Ed Gray and Nat Dye, who plays either offensive tackle or defensive end. Signing of Dye will give Eskimos their first brother combination since Annis and Bill Stukus played with the squad a decade ago. Nat's younger brother Pat, an all-American guard from the University of Georgia, also will be in camp.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—For $5 or so, you may be able to buy a piece of a professional baseball club here next season.

A public stock issue is considered by some as the best way to get Montreal back into the International League.

Tommy Richardson, the IL's rookie president, is more than warm to the idea. The 65-year-old former vaudeville performer says something like that would have been tried this season. But when an alternative scheme blew up it was too late.

This was the situation:

Los Angeles Dodgers, balking at the prospect of dropping another $200,000 on the Royals, their IL farm team here, decided to pull up stakes.

They granted an option on the franchise to a Canadian syndicate represented by Lorenzo Cassina, a promoter from Arvo, Ont. Cassina's group ran into trouble negotiating a new rental agreement for Delormier Stadium.

BID REJECTED

The league was anything but satisfied with the syndicate's financial credentials. After several months of uncertainty, the syndicate's bid was rejected and precious time lost.

Richardson's predecessor, Frank (Bisq) Shaughnessy, moved in. Shag, 77, had pulled the league out of the hole on innumerable occasions in his 24 years as president.

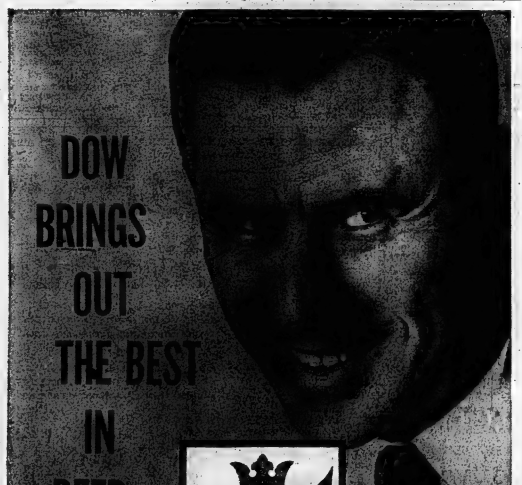
But even he couldn't carry it off this time. Shaughnessy set out to round up backers for a club among wealthy businessmen. He lined up a few such as industrialist Samuel Bronfman and his sons. But there wasn't time to get enough.

With opening day drawing near, the Montreal franchise was transferred to Syracuse, N.Y., marking the end of 71 years of association with the league.

"There was a flaw in the plan," said Richardson. "Each guy had to put up around $20,000 or $25,000. You're going to find it awful tough finding a guy with that kind of dough to spend. It would have been better to try to get a little from a lot of people."

Talk of giving Montreal a team was revived in the early weeks of the season when attendance at San Juan and Jersey City was so low the league began thinking of transferring the franchises. But the stadium situation here seemed to rule out a move to this city.

Looking to the future, community ownership with shares priced low enough for the average baseball fan seems to be the answer. Aside from the problems of financing an entry, proponents regard the plan as a means of providing a sense of identification between fans and team, perhaps leading to better attendance.



It has worked out reasonably well in four other IL centres: Buffalo, Rochester, Columbus and Syracuse.

Richardson's idea is that it wouldn't mean displacing a current IL member. He would like to go to 10 teams in 1962. In plumping for Montreal, he must recall 1946 when the Royals won the pennant by 12½ games and drew 500,000 fans.

A suitable stadium is still a problem. The city's plan to build a subway has taken some of the edge off the movement for a municipal stadium. But there is still Delormier, and Richardson said the owner would rent it for less than $40,000 in comparison with the $95,000 paid by the Dodgers during the last few years.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The passing of T. P. (Tay-Pay) Gorman, nationally famous sports personality, the other day recalled the time the flamboyant Irishman was here with Barbara Ann Scott, the Canadian figure skating beauty.

I interviewed T. P. in his room in the Hotel Quinte and later talked with Barbara Anne in her room down the corridor. "Tay-Pay" was shaving when I entered the his room. The phone jangled "long-distance" three times before the lather was off. Gorman swerved snappy and sharp. He knew what he wanted—and got it.

"Barbara Anne is down the hall" he told me. "Go down and see her and tell her I sent you. Reporters are not very popular with us these days but you have an honest look. Besides she has two dogs with her."

Five minutes later I was seated with the beautiful queen of the silver blades in her room. " Later T. P. said, "Remember, you're the first newspaperman I have trusted to be alone with Barbara Anne. You're lucky." I was. She was a wonderful girl, unaffected and sincere.

Gorman helped found the National Hockey League and managed seven clubs to Stanley Cup championships. He introduced pro hockey to New York City, owned and operated the Ottawa Forum and won the Allan Cup in 1948 with his Ottawa Senators.

He revived wrestling in Montreal and pro baseball in Ottawa. He switched the Connaught Park racetrack to harness racing and made the boom to a bankie of more than $4,400,000 last summer.

An Ottawa Journal writer calls him "an effervescent, irrepressible six-footer, whose mischievous nature sometimes nettled people in the high places."

Once a perverted N.H.L. manager moved at a league meeting that Gorman be fined $500 for conduct detrimental to hockey because in a most valuable player contest Gorman voted for the pal judge of the Montreal Canadiens.

Gorman handled many athletes in his day. In his book Lionel Conacher was the greatest athlete Canada ever produced.

He ruled Frank Nighbor tops among hockey forwards of all time with Maurice Richard second, and Gorman was the man who signed the Rocket to his first pro contract.

Eddie Powers was his best defenseman when George Boucher his best stickhandler. Roy Worters was his goalie choice and Jack Darragh the most versatile. Dick Irvin was his best coach.

The Ottawa story said Gorman once advertised a full-blooded Indian star from Canada in New York and the "Indian" skated out in full-dress. Only the Indian was a French-Canadian from Three Rivers.

Another time he hired every ambulance he could get to line up outside the rink in New York to underscore the type of mayhem that was about to begin inside.

He picked up Sprague Cleghorn for $7.50, the price of two train tickets to Ottawa from Montreal. Cleghorn was in Montreal with two broken legs and later went on to stardom and three Stanley Cup victories.

Gorman could always laugh when he was the victim of a hoax as he had to do when the famous "ringer" case at Connaught Park rocked the racing world shortly after World War One.

An outstanding horse named Westy Hogan was painted to look like another called Little Boy and Westy Hogan alias Little Boy blew home an easy winner and the gamblers cleaned up. The next day a hoax was brought on the suspected stand and the paint job ran off.

He always figured he "lost a million" when he imported the great Phar Lap from Australia to tour America only to have that great thoroughbred die mysteriously in San Francisco before the tour started.

He won National Hockey League championships in 1926, 1927 and 1928 with the Ottawa Senators, with the Chicago Black Hawks in 1934 and with the Montreal Maroons in 1935. And he won two more Stanley Cups with the Canadiens in 1944 and 1946.

He has many critics but twice as many boosters and legion among the latter were the men who played for him.

Right hander Phil Regan, whose future at the start of the season appeared to be as funny as Detroit Tigers' chances of leading the American League, has become an unbeatable specialist.

And the Tigers, once listed somewhere behind New York, Baltimore and Chicago, now have a five-game lead in the pennant race. Regan, 24, has a 4-0 record after earning his third straight win Wednesday night with a six-hit 9-1 victory over Baltimore.

That wrapped up a three-game sweep for the Tigers—in which they collected 41 hits and 29 runs—and gave them 10 victories in their last dozen games on the road.

Washington helped boost the Tigers along by sweeping a two-game stay in New York, defeating the Yankees 6-5 and 7-3 for their fourth

Giants Stay 3 Games Up'

Dodgers Whammy Evil Eyes Spahn

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

What's a whammy? That's the word you use to explain how Los Angeles Dodgers can give up a dozen walks and two errors, go scoreless for six innings and San Francisco Giants can add win on a bases - loaded walk.

That's just what they did Wednesday night as they once more earned their way all over Warren Spahn for a 3-1 victory in 11 innings against Milwaukee Braves.

It was their 31st victory in 46 decisions against Spahn, the 39-year-old southpaw who holds a lifetime edge over every other National League club and needs just eight victories to join the charmed 300 set.

Spahn's defeat Rio dropped the Braves back to .200 again while the Dodgers stayed in a virtual second place tie with Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, all still three games behind front-running San Francisco after a day of one-run decisions in the NL.

NARROW WINS

The Giants scored twice in the ninth for a 4-3 decision over Chicago Cubs. Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis 4-3 and Cincinnati beat Philadelphia 2-1.

Spahn, who hasn't beaten the Dodgers in their own park in 15 years, walked four, struck out seven and allowed nine hits. He had them shut out on five hits until Norm Sherry, playing his first game since April 20 because of injury, hit a home run leading off the seventh inning.

The Dodgers didn't get another hit until the 11th, but it was a leadoff triple by Frank Howard. It chased Spahn. Moe Drabowsky relieved and additionally walked two men, loading the bases.

Then enn Morehead came on for the Braves, and after striking out pinch-hitter Duke Snider, he walked pinch-hitter Bob Lillis on a 3-2 pitch, forcing in the go-ahead run.

HAD FOUR HITS

Milwaukee managed only four hits off right-hander Stan Williams who pitched his first complete game of the season, but left 12 men on base.

Williams struck out 11, and lost a shutout in the sixth on a triple by Frank Thomas and a groundout by pinch-hitter Frank Aaron, who failed to start because of a leg injury.

Boston Red Sox Good Samaritans

BOSTON (AP) — There will be baseball for the 300 little league players — eight to 16 years old — in the disaster-smitten coal-mining town of Springhill, N.S., this summer.

This was disclosed Wednesday as Boston Red Sox responded to a newspaper appeal.

Twin disasters in 1956 and 1958 took a total of 114 lives and ultimately closed the coal mines of Springhill.

There is almost no money left for children's recreation in the town after people buy bread and potatoes, explained Doug Bennett, 23, director of Springhill's little league program.

Bennett told his story while visiting an aunt and uncle in a Boston suburb. He had collected a dozen baseballs and a few bats from a one-time Springhill friend before the Boston Traveler printed his story.

He was walking on air Wednesday after a visit to Fenway Park where he saw the Red Sox hammer out an 8-7 victory over Cleveland Tuesday night. For the Boston club gave him 130 brand new baseballs and 26 bats. The club's executive vice-president, Richard O'Connell, also asked Red Sox players to gather extra equipment for the children in Springhill.

"Our league is saved; that's for sure," said Bennett, as he prepared to put the loot into his car for his return trip home Friday. "They'll go crazy when they see all these bats and balls."

OLD-TIME STAR DIES

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — F. Otto Knabe, 77, former second baseman with Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Phillies, died Wednesday. He started with the Pirates in 1905 and finished with the Cubs and Pirates in 1916.

San Juan Moves Charleston Gets Club

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Charleston is back in organized baseball and the city can give Cuban Premier Fidel Castro some of the credit.

International League President Tommy Richardson announced Wednesday night to confirm that the San Juan, Puerto Rico, club owned by millionaire William P. MacDonald will be transferred to Charleston.

Charleston, which three-game series Friday against Jersey City at Wm. Rand Field here, which seats about 5,500.

"We had an unusual economic situation down there," Richardson said in explaining why the club would be shifted from the island.

He said the Cubes crowds, and particularly the recent ill-fated invasion, had caused unrest and people fleeing from that island to Puerto Rico had created some economic hardships.

"The people just didn't have the money to go to the ball games," he said.

TRAVEL COSTS HIGH

The Marlins — it hasn't been decided whether they'll be renamed—were not attracting big crowds in San Juan. In addition, other International League clubs complained about the cost of travelling to and from the island.

"We're in Charleston to stay," Richardson told Charleston Mayor John Shanklin.

Charleston was in the American Association eight years but became of financial reverses and other factors was unable to continue in 1961.

Bruce Kidd Leads Team To Victory

TORONTO (CP)—Bruce Kidd, 17-year-old track star from Toronto's Malvern Collegiate, led his school to the Toronto secondary Schools Athletic Association track and field championship Wednesday and inscribed two more entries in his personal record book.

Kidd helped himself to meet records in the 880 - yard dash and the one-mile open and was another man in the one - mile medley relay as Malvern set a meet record in that event.

His time in the 800 of 1:57.2 bettered the mark of 2:01.3. He did the mile in 4:16.6 to best the previous meet record of 4:26.2 and to set a Canadian interscholastic record for that distance.

Malvern's intermediate medley relay mile time of 3:43 knocked out the previous time of 3:44.6, also held by Malvern.

Leafs Beat Bisons 4-2, Wings Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There must be a bit of the ham actor in those now-deposed Dan Marlins.

Their show closed in the Puerto Rican city Wednesday night as far as the International League is concerned, but the Marlins must put like broadway troupers, holding on for 14 innings before beating Richmond 4-3.

The victory kept the Marlins in second place as league-leading Columbus edged Jersey City 2-1, Toronto beat Buffalo 7-3 and Rochester won its fourth straight, 7-3, over last-place Syracuse.

Harry Watts belted two homers for the Marlins. A walk, a wild pitch by loser Hal Reniff and an error scored the winning Marlin run in the 14th. Dean Stone got the victory.

LEAFS CLIMB FENCES

Toronto hit two more homers in Buffalo's Memorial Stadium giving them seven in three games. Thompson and Chuck Tanner did the belting as Ron Negray won on a five-hitter. Thompson's was a three-run shot in the first inning off loser Humberto Robinson.

A neat relief job by Al McBean helped Columbus' Jim Umbricht to a victory. Orlando Pena was the loser.

Ralph Lumenella's wildness helped Rochester. The Wings scored their first five runs on only four hits, aided by two wild pitches, a walk, a hit batsman and two errors. Ron Sanford drove in three Rochester runs while Fred Valentine chipped in with a two - run homer. Johnny Kucks was the winner.

ITALY BEATS GLASGOW

Jim Mitchum, Son of Bob, Ready to Go on His Own

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Watch out—here comes another Mitchum!

This one is Jim, eldest son of Bob. One glance confirms the relationship. The same eyes. The same cleft chin. The same hulking frame. Even a mop of brown hair over hanging the forehead.

The resemblance goes deeper than skin. Both have the famous Mitchum independence.

Jim is 20, lives in his own house here. The family lives in Maryland. He has been in and around movie sets all his life, but never has travelled with the young Hollywood crowd. His has made four films—Beat Generation and Girls' Town, which he admits were dreadful, and two with his father, Thunder Road and the unreleased The Last Time I Saw Archie.

Jim has been signed to a long-term contract at 20th Century-Fox. The Fox deal came up when Jim and Bob was discussing a picture deal with studio head Bob Goldstein. The latter asked Mitchum about his boy and said, "send him around." Jim came around and the contract was offered and accepted.

WANTS WORK NOW

Now he wants to get to work. "I'd like to do a western—something that calls for a big masculine kind of guy," he said. "I don't think I'll be hard to cast; I can play opposite any of the young girls on the lot. I can look anywhere from 20 to 30—not with makeup added; I can just look that old on the screen."

What about the resemblance to his pa?

"Everybody asks me that. It doesn't bother me a bit. I'm an individual. Sure, I may have picked up some traits of my father by association, but I also got some of my own. I'm an actor in my own right."

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, May 18, 1961.

General Tendencies: This is a day when you would be wise to handle whatever business or emotional matters that arise in a most tactful and diplomatic fashion. Other persons as well as conditions from the past, can be very difficult to work out if you try to force anything. Look to new systems for attaining more efficient performance of chores awaiting your attention.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) If you are not the soul of diplomacy now, you will get into serious trouble with a close tie. Treat clan with same courtesy you do strangers, be sure to stock the larder, bring home little gifts and keep everyone happy.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Important you drive most carefully or there can be a serious accident today. Also, use diplomacy in all of your dealings for best results. Send out blessings and good thoughts to trusted friends who are distressed. Retire early.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) If you think you can gloss over all mistakes simply by the expenditure of some money, you had better change your ways instead. Live the Golden Rule and avoid trouble hereafter. Go over your bank statement and know what your balance is.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Purget about being sensitive and look kindly upon that associate who is trustworthy and not an ogre, as you seem to think. Try to understand what it is you have done wrong and which would explain recent tirade. Be cheerful, gal.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you are courteous to those about you, it will alleviate the pain of some private anxieties you may have. Be philanthropic. P.M. Get the weeks that you make the most of time and energies expended.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Take time to assist a good friend who is in dire trouble. Let the motto of your sign "I Serve" be your guidepost. Don't turn a deaf ear to others who may also be in need of affection, spiritual uplifting. Be happy, thankful.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Act in such a way today that you do not incur the anger of higher-ups. By being very careful of what you say and do, you safeguard your reputation and get credit higher.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) You are tempted to break up existing conditions in order to drive into what is unknown and unexplored. This could only result disastrously. Reach greater rapport with associates instead by being more cooperative, kind.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Drive out that feeling of discontent or depression by taking care of your obligations or doing necessary work that is required of you. Follow the voice of your conscience and all worth out well now and in the future.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you give vent to that irritable. Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) You can have a wonderful time today if you do not feel that you have to be extravagant and cause others to spend money unwisely, too. Get together with friends and let your combined talents be sufficient for hilarity, fun.

If your child is born today . . there is apt to be an extraordinary amount of emotionalism and hyper-sensitivity in this nature, which must early be combatted by early teaching to act objectively and think constructively. The chart then becomes fine for any New Thought activities and for big business. Give fine spiritual training as well as a good formal education in the arts and sciences. Be patient, understanding.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you give vent to that Capricorn ire today, you will certainly get into serious trouble with some good friend or associate. Courtesy is the best policy, especially now when others are troubled and having difficult sledding.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) While you welcome the many challenges that face you at this time, be sure you do not get so involved that you hurt others. Labor diligently and in an orderly fashion so that you do not become overworked and

PICTON

Novel Decoration Ideas Seen at Rebekah Bazaar

PICTON — "South Seas Siesta" was the theme chosen by Macphelah Rebekah Lodge for their social tea, held Wednesday afternoon in the Oddfellows hall. Nearly three hundred guests enjoyed the event held in a beautiful setting which saw many features of the south used in novel decorative ideas.

Entering the winding stairs, guests were greeted by an artistic arrangement of net, flying fish, sea-gulls and sea shells.

A palm tree, complete with monkey and cocoanuts towered over a pool which was banked with ferns and colorful flowers, along with a great variety of sea shells from miniatures to giant star-fish. Lotus blossoms floated on the water with shells from marine life on the bottom. Pink flamingos were also used.

In both large rooms, large circular balls entwined with colorful flower blossoms, and butterflies beneath each, were suspended from the ceiling and turned in the soft breeze to add to the tropical setting. Window sills were a riot of color with plants, tropical flowers and shells adorning each. Two palms, grown from plants brought from the south, were among many floral decorations. Lamps made from rhells cast a warm glow at many points.

Each table was centred with miniature palm trees, with a variety of sea shells and napkins which featured palms, sea horses and other marine life. Place cards were decorated with tiny shells.

There were huge palm trees at both ends of the lodge hall and everywhere could be found souvenirs of the "south seas" which members had collected on their travels. One had brought a box of Spanish moss and this was used with artistic effect.

Each year, the lodge chooses a different theme and always amazes guests with the ideas carried out.

PECAN PIE SERVED

Also carrying out the theme were the refreshments which included pecan pie — the recipe for which was available on printed cards, and Mapleapples, sliced down the centre and cut in tiny squares with red and green cherries on the toothpicks.

Adding much to the festive scene were the summer costumes of the guests whose visiting was interspersed with the playing of guitar music.

Candy, from a booth decorated with pink azaleas, was offered the guests by Misses Elaine Hicks, Margo Higginson, Bonnie Reid and Joanne Seeley who wore grass skirts and leis.

All Rebekahs assisting were pretty pink flowers in their hair.

Guests were received by the Noble Grand, Mrs. Edyth Hubbard, and the Vice Grand, Mrs. Ruby Whitney. Mrs. Edith Bryant received the fees; Mrs. Edith McGinis, Mrs. Ezra Hicks and Mrs. Katherine Bowers showed the guests to their tables.

BAZAAR TABLES

Bazaar tables were set up in the hallways and featured home baking, aprons, fancy work, plants, novelties. These were very popular with a large variety of articles being offered.

Mrs. Coral Gardiner convened the decorating and Mrs. Janet Jeffery was convener of this delightful and successful event which is anticipated each year.

19th BELLEVILLE CUB PACK

On Tuesday evening the 9th of May the 19th Belleville Cub Pack, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, entertained their mothers.

Under the guidance of Akela Mrs. V. Tryan, Mr. Ron Buskard — A.C.M. and Bill Tryan, assistant, three humorous skits were performed by the Cubs which were a delight to the mothers as well as the boys.

Each mother was most pleased and surprised when presented with a "Mother's Day" gift form her son.

Delicious cake, cookies and tea were served to all—thanks to Mrs. Tryan.

All the mothers join in saying, 'Thank You", to the leaders of 19th Belleville and to the sons for a most enjoyable evening.

Thank you Mrs. Ruth Cook for this report.

OPENLY PLEADS

crease their conventional military forces as a matter of urgent priority.

Realizing the split inside the alliance on the question of extending control over nuclear warheads, the U.S. president said that eventually the United States may consider the possibility of developing a NATO seaborne missile force "with single multilateral ownership and control."

But that wouldn't come until the NATO powers had met their conventional arms commitments, still far short of their pledged goals.

OFFER POLARIS SUBS

Meanwhile, the United States was committing five Polaris atomic - missile submarines to the alliance, subject to "mutually agreed NATO guidelines on their control and use." More would be committed later.

American spokesmen said Mr. Kennedy is to get no change in the American law that is at the centre of the NATO controversy. This bars the U.S. government from yielding sole custody and control over nuclear warheads.

Canada has stated that it would not allow such warheads for Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles or other weapons on Canadian soil until joint control had been achieved.

Generally, the diplomatic venture by the U.S. president and his party is being received in an outstanding success. Differences have not been resolved but Mr. Kennedy felt that by his open approach he had helped clear the air.

Canada and the United States are allies, Mr. Kennedy said in his parliamentary speech.

But they were bound to experience differences and disappointments. These had to be brought into the open — settled where they could be settled while respecting each other's views when they cannot be settled."

WON'T OFFER MEDIATION

While Mr. Diefenbaker declined to make any pledges, he appeared to have made one concession in a sensitive area. Informants said he made clear in private talks with Mr. Kennedy that Canada would not offer to mediate the dispute between Cuba and the United States.

External Affairs Minister Green was reported to have stated last week in Geneva that Canada was prepared to offer its good offices in mediation. This made Americans angry as they view the Castro regime as posing a Communist menace in Latin America.

The two leaders held private talks lasting two hours and 35 minutes. They met in the prime minister's office and Mr. Diefenbaker thoughtfully provided a rocker for Mr. Kennedy, who finds such seating easier on his tall, lanky frame.

They talked of the need for more foreign aid to help impoverished countries; of the Berlin crisis; of NATO defences; the future of Europe's two rival trade blocs and their impact on North American exports; the sticky question of whether Red China should be admitted to the United Nations; farm surpluses; Laos and other issues.

LARGE CROWDS FOLLOW

All through Wednesday large crowds followed the American visitor.

Women seemed dazzled by his good looks. He shook hands with some; won new friends when he obligingly turned for a camera shot.

Jacqueline Kennedy seemed at times to even be a step ahead of her husband in the popularity sweepstakes. Large crowds followed her as she browsed in the National Art Gallery and

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wednesday, May 17, 1961

The Senate and Commons met in joint session for an address by U.S. President Kennedy who urged Canada to increase its role in NATO defence and foreign aid.

Conservative and CCF MPs would participate in reflecting Liberal opposition to second reading of a bill to increase membership of the CNR board of directors.

J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista-Twillingate) said the government is afraid to bring forth contentious business until after four federal byelections May 29.

For her evening appearance, at a salmon-and - steak dinner for 16 guests at the U.S. ambassador's residence, she wore a long gown of pink ribbed silk. Guests included Mr. Diefenbaker, Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin and Opposition Leader Pearson.

SPEECH TO PARLIAMENT

In his parliamentary speech, Mr. Kennedy pledged to maintain American forces in Europe and to increase their conventional arms—adding:

"We look to our NATO allies to assign a very high priority to this same essential task."

The NATO alliance still was the greatest bulwark of freedom. But the military balance of power was changing. The West could stand still "only at our peril."

Both conventional and nuclear strength had to be increased to show the West's determination to respond instantly to attack.

Green Obtains Offer Of Help For Truce Team

Britain, Russia, U.S. Will Supply 'Copters

GENEVA (Reuters) — Britain and Russia today agreed to ask the International Control Commission in Laos what it needs to perform its job effectively.

An official of the 14-country Laotian conference here said Foreign Ministers Lord Home of Britain and Andrei Gromyko of Russia agreed on the text of a message they will send to the commission.

The message asks the Indian-Canadian-Polish team to inform Britain and Russia what it needs to work more effectively supervising the cease-fire in the Indochina kingdom.

Britain and Russia are acting as co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference which ended the Indochina War.

The agreement was reached in a 20-minute meeting between Home and Gromyko before they joined other delegates for a morning conference session that lasted only half an hour.

The conference agreed to the Anglo - Soviet message to the control commission asking it "Please inform us whether the commission has any technical requirements to facilitate the exercise of its functions in relation to the cease-fire."

CANADA URGES AGREEM

The initiative for the conference's progress to buiress the commission came from Canadian External Affairs Minister Howard Green, who urged speed and said the commission could not properly check the truce without its own fully self-contained system of transportation, communications and maintenance.

Green stressed to the morning session that Canada regarded the question of providing the commission with the necessary facilities to operate effectively as vitally important.

He said the commission's request for $300,000 had been granted, but its request about two weeks ago for planes and helicopters had not yet been met.

India's delegate, V. K. Krishna Menon, told reporters he understood the United States, Britain and Russia were ready

34 Cars Leave Rails, Four Fall To Canal Below

Will Take 2 Weeks To Restore Mainline

By EULA BONTER

TRENTON — Thirty-four cars of a fast CNR freight train plunged off the tracks here Thursday night. Four of the cars dropped into the Trent Canal.

Nobody was injured.

The train, travelling from Toronto to St. Albans, Vt., was crossing the 500-foot bridge over the Trent River and canal when one car jumped the tracks, dragging 33 others with it. The cars were crushed together in a shower of sparks.

CNR spokesmen said it will take about two weeks to get the main Toronto-Montreal line in operation again. Meanwhile, passengers are being transferred over the CPR line between Belleville and Brighton.

The engine, containing engineer Norman Meldrum and fireman John Knott of Belleville, did not leave the tracks.

Witnesses said they saw what appeared to be a hotbox on fire just before the derailment. However, railway officials said the cause of the accident was not known.

Gordon Carr of Trenton today recounted what he saw of the accident: "I was sitting around shooting the gaff with some of the boys in Bert Glovers service station . . . I heard the train in the distance and saw the freight rattling across the bridge. I said, "That train went go far. I could see that one of the middle cars had a hot-box. In a minute, the train buckled and the cars started piling up.

Mrs. C. E. Bull, of Trenton, said she and her husband were fishing in the river when the derailment occurred. She said that she and her husband usually fish off the cement abutment on which the four freight cars landed.

"That last night we left the kids at home and decided to fish in the river instead of at our usual place," she said. "I'm glad we decided not to fish there. A man and a boy fishing from there shortly before the accident. But when the cars started spilling off the bridge, the man and the boy had gone."

Lockmaster Jim Howard said he saw one car jump the tracks and the other follow.

He said the cars were crushed like accordions and he saw some of them lying on an island between the canal and the river.

"Their cargo was grain, oil and a white substance. The white substance could be sulphur and is running into the river."

More than 1,000 feet of track were twisted and torn.

The Trent Canal, normally used by small pleasure craft, will be blocked until the four cars are hoisted out of it. Wrecking crews will have to lay new tracks before main line trains can get it.

No survivor has been made to the bridge, but spokesmen said it had been badly damaged.

Two cars landed across the slippery cat-walk over the canal and clung there by their points on the bridge. The derailment scene looked as if a giant child had tired of playing with his train and swept the lot from the track.

CNR police and salvage crews worked throughout the night in pouring rain.

TCA IS PAYING TOO HIGH PRICE SAY MEMBERS

First All-Turbine Fleet of Carriers

OTTAWA (CP)—Government supporters in the Commons sharply questioned the operations of the publicly - owned Trans-Canada Air Lines Thursday.

A steep price appears to have been paid by TCA — the world's seventh-largest airline — becoming the first all - turbine fleet, said Ernest Broome —Peace—Vancouver South).

William Payne (PC — Coast-Capilano) contended that public funds are being used to provide services that private airliners are ready and capable of providing while contributing to tax revenues at the same time.

Mr. Broome said a deficit of $2,600,000 has been guaranteed for TCA while the 80,000,000 surplus of last year appeared to have vanished to cover losses on pistonairiron craft retired before their time to make way for jets.

South African Meetings Banned Until June 26

CAPE TOWN (CP) — The South African government today banned for six weeks all political meetings except church services and some other specially permitted gatherings throughout South Africa and South-West Africa.

The period—May 19 to June 26—covers the time lapse of May when South Africa's non-whites have been called by their leaders to stage mass strikes and country-wide protest demonstrations against proclamation of a new South African republic May 31.

The Rand Daily Mail said Thursday that the All - African Action Council had ordered non-whites to stockpile food and said the council was considering prolonging the "strike" to 14 days.

Nelson Mandela, secretary of the council, said Thursday that Negroes would not gather or hold processions which would be

Sir Winston Said Making Swift Recovery

"He's getting along all right," said a spokesman at his London home. "He had a good night."

His doctor has not given any details of the 86-year-old Churchill's illness publicly, but a close friend said it was a minor throat ailment.

Two K's to Meet in Vienna June 3-4

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev will meet in Vienna June 3 and 4 for a "general exchange of views" on major world issues, the White House announced today.

The announcement ruled out any effort to reach agreement on Berlin or other critical problems that involve the interest of many other countries.

The meeting will, however, afford a timely and convenient opportunity for the first personal contact between them and a general exchange of views on the major issues which affect the relationship between the two countries," said the announcement, made simultaneously in Washington, Moscow and London.

It disclosed officially what had been rumored for some time—that after a meeting with President de Gaulle in Paris May 31 to June 2, the president will go directly to Vienna.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Kennedy will make the trip on the morning of June 3.

On June 4 the president will have a meeting with Khrushchev, to be followed by a visit with Mrs. Kennedy's sister and her husband, Prince Stanislas Radziwill.

This London stopover gives the president an opportunity to meet with Prime Minister Macmillan after the talk with Khrushchev. The White House statement disclosed that there will occur at a luncheon June 5.

Buckingham Palace in London announced that President and Mrs. Kennedy will dine with the Queen that day.

The announcement said the agreement between Kennedy and Khrushchev to meet in Vienna followed "discussions through diplomatic channels which began last March and an exchange of communications."

Diplomatic officials say privately Kennedy's primary interest in having a talk with Khrushchev at this time is to try through direct personal diplomacy to save the Geneva negotiations on a nuclear weapons test ban. The talks among the United States, Britain and Russia have been deadlocked for many weeks.

In addition, the president is said to feel that it would be useful for him at this time to make clear to Khrushchev that despite the reverses to U.S. interests in the Cuban and Laotian crises the United States is determined to stand by various commitments to prevent free nations from being taken over by international communism.

Salinger said Thursday that Kennedy does not plan to stop off at Bonn, West Germany. There had been speculation that he might meet Adenauer.

Science Fiction Magazine Source Of Criticism of A-Power Program

OTTAWA (CP)—A prominent Canadian physicist said Thursday night that the source of a statement by a Montreal engineer sharply critical of Canada's atomic power program was a science fiction magazine entitled Astounding Science Fiction.

Dr. C. G. Laurence, director of the reactor research and development division of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, made the statement to the Commons research committee discounting warnings by Wilnett Boyd of Montreal about the safety aspects of Canadian - designed atomic power plants.

Mr. Boyd, in a brief to the committee Tuesday, referred to an accident in 1958 in the NRX reactor at Canada's Chalk River atomic establishment. A surge in the power of the reactor released radioactive contamination throughout the reactor building and the reactor had to be rebuilt.

In his brief Mr. Boyd said "the building of the building was badly contaminated and measurable amounts of radioiodine escaped outside which were reported to have been detected as far away as upper New York State."

After the accident officials of Atomic Energy of Canada said the contamination released was

CNR President Is Facing Rough Ride Before Critics

OTTAWA (CP)—CNR President Donald Gordon comes to the capital soon to confront his parliamentary critics.

For the 12th time, the fighting Scot will step before the sessional Commons committee on railways, air lines and shipping —probably some time in the next two weeks.

But this time—perhaps more than ever before—the 58-year-old ruler of a $5,000,000,000 rail empire faces a rough ride from MPs.

There will almost certainly be a strong 'Gordon must go' group among the 26 MPs on the committee.

Some of them have been arming themselves with information for a real slugfest. Many will come from the government side of the Commons.

But in the public mind, it seems to be shaping up as a battle of the heavyweights — Donald Gordon, six-foot, four inches, 240 pounds, versus Douglas Fisher, (CCF—Port Arthur) six-foot, five inches, 265 pounds.

Mr. Gordon enters the ring with a $67,300,000 deficit for 1960 around his neck—a loss he blames on a continent - wide drop in surface shipments last year.

He also may face his critics as a man whose job has not been formally renewed by government. When the Progressive

PRIME MINISTER ASKS CONTROL OF SPACE

Receives Degree At Dalhousie

HALIFAX (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker called Thursday, for international controls on space to ban armed satellites and restrict space exploration to scientific and peaceful purposes. He made these three main points:

An international space agency comprising representatives of science, law and educational institutions should be set up to "bring about safeguards" by nations, all of which would have free and equal access to space exploration.

An international space year should be designated so "a full study could be made of the demilitarization and neutralization of outer space."

The United Nations committee on peaceful uses of outer space, set up nearly two years ago, should resume its work without further delay. The current delay results from Russian unwillingness to begin committee work.

Mr. Diefenbaker, in a convocation address at Dalhousie University where he received his 30th honorary degree, described the importance of preserving space for peaceful purposes as "the paramount problem of our time."

"This is a problem that will become more pressing unless we meet it now — unanswerable within a period of two to three years," he said. It would not be long before international control would be impossible.

Eddy Foy Proves Himself Charming in 'Donnybrook'

NEW YORK (AP)—At one point in Donnybrook!, the new musical at the 46th Street Theatre, Eddy Foy pulls his hat down over his ears, knots his boneless arms around his preposterous head and burbles:

"I'm quite an everything, I'm a charming man."

And by the good St. Patrick, he is a charming man and has been for 30 years. He proved it again Thursday night.

Donnybrook!, based on the movie, The Quiet Man, is everywhere dependent on Foy's infectious charm to make a go of his lovely Irish love story.

It has a warm and witty score by Academy Award winner Johnny Burke, who in both his words and music magically captures the grace and garrulity of the back country Irish.

It has a brash and breezy lady publican in Susan Johnson, who positively slops the show with skill in the Day, a rollicking parody of an Irish wake that now must rank as the best dirge heard on Broadway since Oklahoma! gave us Poor Jud is Dead.

It has a charming spitfire of a heroine in saucy Joan Fagan, a handsome, homespun hero in Art Lund, a lovable lout of a villain in Philip Bosco, and a

47 New and 12 Prospective Members Secured in Drive

Thanks to a recent membership drive, there are now slightly over 400 paid up members in the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, directors of the Chamber were told at their May luncheon meeting held Thursday at the Queen's Hotel.

Chamber secretary - manager Earl Dickenson told the meeting that 47 new members had been recruited as result of the drive with all additional 12 prospective members having been contacted.

He said membership fees now paid were almost equal that of the entire year in 1960.

The appreciation of the Chamber was extended to Ben Corke, chairman of the membership committee, and members of his committee, on the success of the membership drive.

The meeting was highlighted by a brief report from Chamber president Gerry Wishart on the annual meeting of the Ontario Chamber held recently at Windsor.

He said the annual conclave has been a lively affair with spirited discussion on policy statements and on resolutions being indicative of free enterprise in action.

MANY RECOMMENDATIONS

One of the recommendations approved requested that medical care for the needy be provided by insurance purchased from private insurance companies rather than medicare being provided through a government operated national health scheme.

He said the meeting also urged that Dominion and Provincial governments stay out of the same taxation fields and asked that legislation be provided to enable municipalities to license transient door-to-door subscription salesmen.

Mr. Wishart offered his congratulations to Jack Drysdale of Belleville on his election as president of the Ontario Chamber.

In turn Mr. Drysdale noted the interest the Ontario Chamber during the next year would be the importance of productivity in all lines of business, and urged more activity on the part of the local Chambers in the provincial organization.

He said if the local Chambers had a problem of province wide interest the Ontario Chamber could help them.

Words of welcome was extended by President Wishart to Peter Kvarda, charter president of the Belleville Junior Chamber of Commerce and to Robert Lanning, president of the manufacturers' section.

WATCH DISCUSSED

What the Chamber might do in promoting Belleville during the International Plowing Match to be held north of Belleville this fall was briefly discussed by the members.

Secretary Earl Dickenson said this matter had already been discussed and details will be presented at the next meeting.

Don Barrett chairman of the traffic committee said he felt the plowing match presented a big opportunity for the Chamber to publicize Belleville.

"There will be close to 100,000 people attend the match and they will either be knock, or boosters of Belleville. We want them to be boosters," he said.

Kinsmen Pool Will Be Opened Early in June

The Kinsmen's community swimming pool on East Dundas Street will be opening on the first weekend in June it was announced today by Kinsman Norm Eyre, chairman of the club's swimming pool committee.

A number of activities are planned for the coming summer under the direction of pool manager Doug Paton. These will include a free swimming for the retarded children of the Quinte district, free non-swimmer instruction groups and free swimming for one-hour in the mornings as well as the competitions and water shows which gained popularity when introduced last season.

Special classes for mothers and preschool children are scheduled and Mr. Paton has expressed his hope that many mothers will take advantage of these classes in the interest of water safety for their children.

Until the end of the school year the pool is available during the day for swimming instruction for children as well as the regular hour before school, evenings and weekends.

Much work has been done through the efforts of the city face-lifting the pool and refurbishing the building's interior. By the fall or by early next Spring it is hoped to install a new diving board and sand-blast and paint the pool. This work cannot be done immediately stated Kinman president Frank Huson explained, due to the heavy expenditure involved and the club wishes to maintain a reserve build during the summer in the event that any major breakdown in the equipment should occur.

PRICES UNCHANGED

With the pool operating out of the red during the last season for the first time in eight years a financially successful season is anticipated for the coming summer and despite rising costs, the admission price is to remain the same.

Persons interested in life saving courses before the summer gets underway are asked to contact the pool manager, Mr. Paton, as quickly as possible. Instruction and examinations for the swimming awards offered by the YMCA, the Red Cross and the Royal Life Saving Society are also to be carried out as well, if there are prospects, private swimming lessons.

An experienced staff will be on hand with a number of last year's staff members again serving as well as highly qualified new people. Head guard will be John Peoples with Ginny Dickenson as head girls' and women's guard assistal by Pat Featherstone. Bob Normand will again be in charge of the checking facilities.

Allore Family Has Retired From Hotel Life, Belvedere Sold to Niagara Falls Man

The Allore family of Belleville has retired after 61 years in the hotel business.

Walter Allore announced Thursday that he has sold the 40-room Hotel Belvedere to Jack Hollyoake, former owner of the Niagara Falls, Ont. Venetian Hotel.

Mr. Allore, whose parents entered the hotel business at Foxboro in 1900, has sold out to do "a little travelling while I can."

Mr. Hollyoake, Second World War RCAF bomber and ferry command pilot, now is at the helm of the hotel's operations. His wife, Helen, and three children are expected to arrive soon from Port Credit.

"The story of the Allores and their life in the hotel business goes back to the turn of the century when Mr. Allore's father, Felix (Phil), operated a store at Stoco with his brother.

"I was about three years old when we bought our first hotel," Mr. Allore recalled in an interview. "That was the Allore Hotel at Foxboro. After buying the hotel, my father changed its name to the New Allore. In those days, if you took in $4 or $5 a day you were one of you were doing well. Meals were 25 cents and I got $3 a week to stay at a hotel, with a bed and all the food you could eat thrown in. I have always lived in a hotel."

CAME TO BELLEVILLE IN 1909

Felix Allore and his wife, Lavina, operated the New Moira until 1909 when they came to Belleville and bought the Victoria Hotel which then was located in the building on Front St. recently vacated by the Victoria and Grey Trust Company, immediately opposite the Intelligencer.

"When we first came to Belleville", said Mr. Allore, "there were 16 hotels. There now are seven, but those seven provide good, steady, year-round employment for upwards of 200 people."

The Allores operated the Victoria until 1916 when they acquired the Queen's Hotel with Thomas P. J. Power as landlord. The building on Front St. recently vacated by the Victoria and Grey Trust Company, immediately opposite the Intelligencer.

Mr. Allore was educated at the old Belleville High School before BCVS (Arts) and at St. Michael's Academy. Later he attended Queen's and Toronto. He is a member of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, a 4th degree Knights of Columbus, a member of the Legion and the Country Club. His hobbies are fishing and golfing.

MORE TO TORONTO

Mr. Hollyoake, the new owner of the Belvedere, was born in Toronto. He's married and has twin boys, Dale and David, aged 6 and a one-year-old daughter.

What prompted him to decide to buy the Belvedere?

"I had looked quite a number of hotels and I thought the Belvedere was well kept and in good condition," he said. "Besides, I liked the type of operation the Allores had been doing here."

Mr. Hollyoake, one-time salesman before turning hotel owner at Niagara Falls, says he likes associating with the yelling salesmen — and plenty stop over in Belleville.

During his Second World War service with the RCAF, he took a three-month bombing course at Mountain View. Later he piloted bombers to various theatres of war and also flew a total of operations in B-25 Mitchell light bombers out of England over Belgium, France and Germany.

Just after peace was declared, he was engaged in flying communications between Moscow and London when top-level talks were being held by the Allies in the Russian capital.

Mr. Hollyoake is a member of Rameses Shrine and the Niagara Falls Masonic Lodge. He is interested in hunting, fishing and boating.

Trusts Merger Made to Match Montreal Firms

OTTAWA (CP) — Service charges made by trust companies in Canada are highly competitive and are closely regulated in Ontario by the Provincial Government, Sen. William Brunt (PC, Ontario) said in the Senate Thursday.

He gave this reply to Sen. Austin (L, New Brunswick) who asked whether the proposed amalgamation of Toronto General Trusts Co with the Canada Permanent Trust Co. would result in economics that might reduce service charges.

Sen. Brunt said the new company, the Canada Permanent Toronto General Trust, will be based in Toronto, with assets under administration of $915,000,000. One of the reasons for the amalgamation, he said, is to make economies and create a trust company in Toronto that can compete, in the eyes of foreign businessmen, with two large trust companies based in Montreal.

37 Electric Blasting Caps Soon Recovered

The finding of 37 live electric blasting caps which had been lost from a truck in the Stanley Park Drive area, created a possible serious accident last evening.

The blasting caps were turned over to city police who located the contractor. A check revealed that all missing caps had been found in the one place.

The danger of children finding blasting caps was emphasized by police who stated the highly explosive caps can in some instances be detonated by the heat from a person's hand.

Steady Stream Of Trains Rolls Down Pinnacle

"We've had a continual stream of trains going up and down Pinnacle Street since last night", police reported this morning.

Until the double track main line at Trenton is restored, all CNR passenger trains and many of the freights are being re-routed over the CPR between Belleville and Brighton.

Some of the freights are being re-routed by way of Lindsay, it was stated.

Annual Inspection Is Held For Quinte Sea Cadet Corps

"A pleasure to inspect this corps," was the opinion of words used by Commander Gordon J. Manson, C.D., R.C.N., when he made his official entry as inspecting officer in the log of Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Quinte" on the occasion of the annual inspection yesterday evening.

In addressing the officers and cadets following the inspection, he stressed the value of a good education in his remarks to the cadets. He urged them to carry their formal education as far past grade 12 or 13 as possible, no matter what they hoped to do at the present. Any thought of leaving school early to get a job or join one of the services should be discouraged in favor of better preparing oneself to be a good citizen and useful individual through getting the best possible education, he urged.

The inspecting officer complimented the members of the guard for being especially well turned out and for doing a good job. The enthusiasm of the cadets in the displays was favorably commented on also.

During his inspection of the guard and the ship's company, Commander Manson took time for a personal word with each of the cadets and showed a keen interest in the lads' progress both in Sea Cadets and in school. During his inspection of the various displays which the cadets put on the inspecting officer again took the opportunity of questioning each member of a display on his training and interests.

The displays, which were held on the drill deck of the armouries following the ceremonial part of the inspection, gave the near-100 spectators a chance to observe the cadets participating in a precision drill armed party, a bends and hitches class, a sea rescue operation and a communications exercise. The latter consisted of a dinghy ready for sailing by a group of cadets also caught the eye of the spectators. A demonstration of volley firing by four of the cadet officers was held on the firing range as well.

Following the displays three presentations were made. The first, Cadet award signs presented to Leading Cadet Glenn Camelford by Commander Manson. Ordinary Cadet Hillier Halvorsen received the J. G. Donovan Trophy for the best new entry cadet during the year. The Guthridge Marksmanship Shield was presented to Able Cadet Manley Sly and Ordinary Cadet Wilfred Hood, who had scored a 197 out of a possible 200 points during the year's shooting activities of the corps.

Accompanying the inspecting officer was Lt.-Commander J. Jeffries, CD, RCN, Ontario Area Officer, and Comm. Officer R. Bracken, CD, assistant area officer. Lt.-Commander Jeffries was making his final visit to the corps prior to his retirement from the RCN, following which he will be accepting a position as public relations director with the Ivory Lace Company of Canada.

Following the inspection program the Sea Cadets were served refreshments on the main deck while "Quinte's" acting commanding officer, Chaplain H. A. C. Mandin, received the inspecting party and guests. A large number of visiting officers from the Sea Cadet Corps in Picton and Trenton as well as from the local Navy League Cadet Corps were present.

Y Building Workers Report Encouraging Progress, Total Donations to Date $111,999

Y.M.C.A. Building Campaign workers Thursday night reported total subscriptions to date of $111,999, nearly double the amount reported on Monday night. William S. Wills, general chairman, who presided at the report meeting, stated "We have gained good returns for our night. They show that our workers have been putting extra effort into their job. The effort has been rewarded by fine support from the business and esteemed citizens and firms of our city".

Mr. Wills went on to warn his teams that they should not let the holiday weekend slow them down unduly. The next report, he reminded them, will be held on Tuesday, and it will mark half-way in the three week campaign.

Thursday's results showed G. Locklin's team holding top spot with subscriptions totaling $925; R. C. Wilkes' division was high with $1,975; and George McKiernan's section pulled out in front with $5,526. Advance gifts teams reported $63,450 for the day.

Individual "Quota Busters" recognized were Arthur Aikin, Stan. Barbour, Fred Bradley, Fred Ethier, Al Fewtrell, H. T. Floyd, Jack Hartwick, Harold Lockyer, Dpug Soatt and Earl Vernan.

Interesting statements were made by Mrs. W. H. Finkle and Mrs. Thompson, paying tributes to the work of Belleville Y.M.C.A. through the years. Mrs. Finkle reported a subscription sent to her by a lady, now living outside Belleville, whose father had been an active worker in the campaign fifty years ago which contributed the funds for the present building now outgrown and out worn.

Mr. Thompson told of his own personal association, lonely and a stranger, in the Y.M.C.A. program he pursued, which took him to their hearts and enabled him to pay his membership dues at a rate of fifty cents a week. The activities broadened his outlook and multiplied his skills. In return, as a young man, he assumed a responsible position in the Y.M.C.A. to help young people.

Mr. Thompson organized the group of young men who later became Belleville Y.M.C.A.'s Y's Men's Club, which to this day renders continuous service to the Y.M.C.A. members. Later he became president of the international association of Y's Men's Clubs, where he formes life-long friendships. That', commented Mr. Thompson, "is what Belleville Y.M.C.A. did for a youngster from this country".

Bill Dewberry, president of the Boys' Hi-Y Club, with twenty-five members presented as a challenge to Belleville which he said the boys would pay by money they would earn by various means on jobs. They, he said, was to show that his club of teen-age boys appreciated the place the Y.M.C.A. plays in their lives, and the leadership given them by their mentor Stanley Barbour.

$25,000 GIFT

Don Williams, chairman of advance gifts, announced a gift of $25,000 from a Belleville manufacturing firm; showing the confidence of business men in the Y.M.C.A. program with youth.

Rev. L. Arthur Page, rector of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Anglican Church, was chapiain for the meeting. Vern Weir, programs' chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Thompson.

Group Captain Retires

Howard Gerald Radway, 19, of Crofton, 17 miles northwest of Picton, is escorted back into Prince Edward County jail, Picton, by chief turnkey Fred Howes following his apprehension late Thursday afternoon. Radway was charged that he had stripped down to his trousers in an attempt to elude police in the waters of the Bay of Quinte near Point Anne. He took to the water when a $7,000 cabin cruiser he stole from Jack Hartwick at Picton Bay ran out of gas. Radway had escaped Wednesday from Picton jail where he was awaiting transfer to Guelph Reformatory to serve a year's sentence for car theft.

Picton Jail Escapee Caught In Bay of Quinte Marsh

PICTON — A 19-year-old youth who escaped from Prince Edward County jail here Wednesday, was apprehended by Belleville OPP officers in a marsh on the Bay of Quinte, four miles east of Belleville, late Thursday afternoon.

Howard Gerald Radway of Crofton, 17 miles northwest of here, was the object of an extensive land-and-water manhunt after Mrs. Jack Hartwick of Picton discovered the family's new $7,000 mahogany cabin cruiser was missing from a boathouse on their property at Picton Bay.

R.C.A.F. and private planes searched the waters of the Bay of Quinte and adjoining bays and rivers and the cruiser was finally spotted near Point Anne. Police followed its course up the bay towards Belleville. When the boat ran out of gas, Radway stripped off his shirt and shoes, plunged into the icy water and swam ashore where he was captured.

Provincial Police from Belleville and Picton had surrounded the area and the escapee was apprehended by Constable Ivan Tinkess who was patrolling the bay shore west from Point Anne. The two met in the swamp area along the bay.

Police said Radway had swum about 100 yards to shore when the stolen cabin cruiser ran out of gasoline.

He was returned to the Picton jail and will later be transferred to Guelph reformatory. Radway received a year's sentence for car theft in police court here on May 10th. He made his escape from the jail late Wednesday afternoon, when he left the dining room to go to the washroom and walked out an unlocked outer door to freedom.

Mrs. Hartwick discovered the family cruiser was missing after a neighbor, Thomas Learie, called at her home about 10.30 a.m., to report his small row-boat missing. Mrs. Hartwick called her husband, who is president of Quinte Milk Products at Wellington, and he suggested she check their boathouse. Although the doors were locked and the motor ignition key had been removed, police believe Radway took the smaller boat and then crawled under the bayside doors to gain entry. The Hartwicks had been out in the boat Wednesday evening and returning about dark. They believe the youth watched them from a wooded area near their home.

Kennedy and Diefenbaker

President John F. Kennedy of the United States, on his Ottawa visit, asked Canada to shoulder a share of the burden of a program of economic aid to Latin American countries.

The President was doubly assured of a sympathetic hearing in his appeal, for the Prime Minister had just recently gone on record, in an interview in the magazine U.S. News and World Report, as believing that the threat of Communism can best be countered in the Western Hemisphere by raising living standards. This is not the first time Mr. Diefenbaker has talked in this vein, nor is he the first, or only, statesman of the West to express such a conviction.

Indeed, this is a theory which has gained such wide acceptance that it was somewhat of a shock to read recently a contrary opinion. The Wall Street Journal took issue with the contention. The poor, it argued, have always been with us, but Communism is a recent phenomenon. Even today, there are many areas where people are desperately poor, but the threat of Communism is small or non-existent. Communism, the Journal argued, is the product of agitation, not of poverty, and therefore cannot be prevented by eliminating poverty. Communist agitators take any and every grievance and twist it to their purpose.

The Journal may have a point, but surely it is evident that the existence of extreme poverty places a powerful weapon in the hands of Communist agitators and its elimination, by virtue of itself freely extended by capitalist powers, would serve to throw doubt on one of the main themes of the Marxian theory.

It needs to be added, though, that foreign aid is not an automatic safeguard against Communism and that, if it is to have this effect, it can only do so if it is extended without strings being attached. The U.S. has learned, to its sorrow, that friends cannot be purchased. Put another way, economic assistance to the Latin American countries will do most to prevent the growth of Communism if it is extended in such a manner that its objective does not appear to be the checking of the growth of Russian influence in these lands.

An observation which Prime Minister Diefenbaker made in his interview with U.S. News and World Report is a model: "We're naturally concerned about this matter (the danger of Russia gaining a foothold in the Western Hemisphere as in Cuba)", he said. Then he added: "It's not for us to prescribe how other nations should conduct their internal affairs."

It would be well if President Kennedy and his administration could learn that lesson. In this connection, it is interesting to note observations made by "Scrutator" in the London Sunday Times. "Europeans", he wrote, "are accustomed to reverses — . . . Of the major Western nations, only the United States of America is unfamiliar with this sort of experience."

But because the West may be on the defensive at present does not mean that the tide of history is necessarily with the Communists. Many of us would say that the direction of this tide depends on how the West acts—whether, for instance, the democracies embrace wholeheartedly Prime Minister Diefenbaker's idea that the best way to check Communism is not with guns but with butter—for those who need it most. Perhaps, this is just another way of paraphrasing what President Kennedy had in mind when he recently declared: "The tide of history is not on those (the Communists) — or on ours. For history is made by people and it will move in the direction that strong and determined and courageous men compel it."

This view of history, as being the product of great men, is of course diametrically opposed to the Marxian theory, which regards history as the product of the interplay of economic forces. President Kennedy's view is the old orthodox approach to history; even amongst those who are not Marxians, events have, in recent years, forced recognition of the fact that political and economic conditions are more often the cause, than the result, of the rise of great leaders. But, as is so often the case, the truth probably lies somewhere between the extremes, between the old theory of history as 'the story of the works of great leaders and the new version of leaders as the product of mass movements set in motion by economic conditions. If this be so, the future will depend on how strong and determined and courageous—and clear-thinking —men chart the policies of nations to make the tide of history work to their advantage. That tide does exist and it is clear to all but the wilfully blind—it is a tide in which the have-not peoples are demanding a fairer share of the world's wealth. That side will win their minds which best helps them realise this understandable and justifiable goal.

Disclosure Duty of Press

"To persons in duties with endless independence and responsibility with the utmost public advantage, the press can enter into no close or binding alliances save with the statement of the day . . . — The Times of London, Feb. 8 1853.

Any selection of the world's best newspapers and newspaper opinion today would include The New York Times and its brilliant Washington correspondent, James (Scotty) Reston.

It is a measure of newspaper and news service failure, then, when even the revered Mr. Reston and his newspaper publish boast of news they've withheld — news which, as it turned out, might have changed the course of world history. In Mr. Reston's speech to 800 journalists at the Missouri University of Journalism, he dealt with President-Kennedy's open appeal for voluntary censorship of news to protect national interest.

His speech was both incisive and disappointing. It dramatized the fork in the road that looms for press freedoms in the U.S.

On one hand, Mr. Reston said the press did not reveal enough about preparations for the Cuban invasion. Agreed. He went farther, suggesting: "This most disastrous operation would have occurred had we done more."

But turning the coin over, Mr. Reston disclosed that the New York Times staff knew enough about the plans and the spring over the Soviet rise and never told the reader.

It was just a year ago this month that Summit and disarmament hopes were dashed by the shooting down of the U-2 by the Soviets. Would Mr. Reston disclose the paper's silence—for security reasons—were beneficial to U.S. interest at that time?

What worried us most about Mr. Reston's narrative of press freedom and subservience was this remark:

"During the week when the president was faced with the critical problem of bringing about a decision on the only sanction the U.S. had was intervention, Congressional leaders were opposed to the use of troops.

"There is the problem. Do you bring out the point and publish it and let the Russians know? I say you do not publish."

"I say you do not publish."

In the mouth of a lesser journalist this would be shocking. This creed would not be surprising. It reflects the accelerated identification of the press as an arm of the state. Carried to its conclusion, however, it must toll the dissolution of, or even the pretext of operation of, a free press.

Compare Mr. Reston's 1961 philosophy with the classic journalistic creed and lasting principles defined over a century ago by The Times of London.

At that time, Lord Derby rebuked newspapers for what he considered gross irresponsibility in its coverage and comment on foreign affairs. The Times had outspokenly criticized the character of Louis-Napoleon.

Lord Derby, still not prime minister, asked: "If in these days the press aspires to exercise the influence of statesmen the press should remember that they are not free from the corresponding responsibility of statesmen and that it is incumbent on them, as a sacred duty, to maintain that tone of moderation and respect, even in expressing their opinions on foreign affairs, which would be required of every man who pretends to guide public opinion."

In reply, The Times did more than defend itself. It enunciated a body of principle which — even though The Times itself has sometimes ignored it— stands in eloquent relief from today's record of government handouts.

It said, in part:

"The first duty of the press is to obtain the earliest and most correct intelligence of the events of the time, and to lay it, by disclosing them, to make them the common property of the nation.

"The statesman collects his information secretly, and for secret means, he keeps back even the current intelligence of the day with ludicrous precautions until diplomacy is beaten in the race, ridiculously.

"The press lives by disclosure; whatever passes into its keeping becomes a part of the knowledge which forms the times; it is daily and forever spreading its information before the tribunal of public opinion—and investigating, if possible, the march of events — standing upon the breach between the present and the future, and extending its survey to the horizon of the whole field.

"The duty of the journalist is the same as that of the historian—to seek the truth and above all things, and to present to the reader truth and things as statecraft would wish them to know but the truth as far as he can ascertain it.

"We cannot admit that a newspaper's purpose is to share the labors of statesmanship or that it is bound by the same limitations, the same duties, the same liabilities as those of the Ministers of the Crown.

"The purpose and duties of the two powers are consequently separate, generally independent, sometimes absolutely opposite.

"The dignity and freedom of the press are transmitted from the moment it accepts as ancillary power to the state. Its duties with entire independence, and using to the utmost public advantage, the press can enter into no close or binding alliances save with the statement of the day, nor can it consent to the permanent interests to the convenience of the ephemeral power of any government."

How far have today's newspapers drifted from this creed.

Bellerville's leading Tower of Pisa, the tilted lighthouse, which for many years has stood on guard at the entrance to the local harbor and which has been the object of much comment by strangers using the bay bridge or road, is no more. On Thursday the crew of the tug Scout, "Crewville," with this week has been pulling down the lighthouse and built approximately sixty years ago. Substantially contracted with a framework of heavy pine timbers, the lighthouse was built with a two-inch lumber shell, a layer of heavy building paper covered by one inch siding, and finally shingled. Every board in the structure was of first grade pine. Today a new harbor light guards the entrance to the Government Dock. The coal oil lamp which has burned steadily throughout the nights for the past sixty summers, has been replaced by an up-to-date electric fixture, placed on the west end of the dock-house roof.

More Privacy For Public Men Needed

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Despite the well-known (and comically frequent) sensitivity of the press to criticism of its own activities, I think it would help commit a little quiet treason to my trade today, and suggest that the President and Mrs. Kennedy be given a little of the privacy due to devoted crazy.

Not long ago, press photographers were denied the right to take pictures of the President being off. I think this is a right they could easily do without at all jeopardizing our precious freedom of the press.

There is a clearly distinguishable line. It seems to me, between stories and pictures in the public interest and those which merely take the mask of childish and vulgar curiosity. I recognize that human interest is a standard ingredient in pictures of the Presidential family — but there comes a point when the interest definitely reaches the subhuman level.

After the President's pictures is much like another. One shot of the President sitting in church is like another. One photograph of Caroline running across the lawn is like a dozen other.

What the President's press secretary ought to do is to assemble the first family for a strenuous day of pictures — a mile routine, standard, sentimental, human interest shots for a whole year.

These could include swinging off the first one, playing ball, tucking an ice cream cone, sitting in a favorite seat and whatever other little domestic particles the running camera-bugs could get their spots dozens of these intimate family pictures should be made every once again and in every light.

Then, when President Kennedy wants to take a morning at the golf course, the newspaper and magazine staff will have a readymade photo of the President's normal recreation at spare time. No need to interrupt golf with the constant trooping out to the fairways for a shot that looks exactly like all other golf shots.

I do not mean to single out the photographers for any opprobrium. They are acting under orders, and it is the orders that are so often foolish and unnecessary. For, after all, what make public figures "human" among your good health

Nicking Top off a Sty Is Job for a Physician

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have been pestered too often with sties. I am 36. What causes them? Would you write about them?" — R.J.

A sty on the eye! You picked the right word — pestered.

What is a sty? Infection of small glands in the skin of the eyelid, usually from the staphylococcus germ — that pesky germ which so frequently lurks on the skin, in the nose, etc., often without doing any harm or making its presence known until it succeeds in establishing an infection.

In a word, a sty is sort of a boil on the eyelid. Not as big as boils often get in other areas, perhaps, but painful, and essentially the same sort of thing.

Sties usually start with the appearance of a small red pimple, usually on the edge of the lid. This means that the staph germ has worked its way into one of the tiny glands near the skin at that point, and in its microscopic way has built a colony. It is going on between the germ as they multiply, and the protective cells of your body.

In time the sty swells until it is as tender as can be — the accurate word is pressure known as "sore as a boil" — and presently "comes to a head" and breaks.

This relieves the pressure, and the pain subsides. However, that the matter that escapes, there are germs which are still active and looking for trouble. Some of them find other tiny glands in which to establish, and that's how "a crop of sties" occurs.

Why, when and how the original infection starts is not very clear. Doubtless some people are more resistant to the germ than others.

Sometimes you probably would find, if we could get a complete history of your health, that the first sty began its dirty work when the individual's resistance is down — from not getting enough sleep, not eating properly, being debilitated by infection or illness elsewhere, or from some other factor that we can't identify. Why do some people get one disease, and others some other one?

But let's not waste time just now on things we don't wholly understand. The point is that we can help control the daily causes of sties.

Keep yourself up to par in general health. Eat right; live right.

Next, hot compresses may hasten the formation of a head; that's true, but head then can be nicked. It reduces the painful pressure. But since it also permits escape of some germs, have this nick, or tiny puncture, made by your doctor. He can see what he's doing better than you can. He's used to procedures used to block the germ-carrying fluid. He can use antibiotic salves or other medications to suppress the germs. Definitely I do not recommend trying to do this yourself, or having a friend or relative try it.

What you can do to advantage is to avoid rubbing or touching your eyes. Touch the face as little as possible until the trouble is entirely over. As an added precaution, be doubly careful about washing your hands thoroughly, for it doesn't seem to require very many of the staph germs to start another sty — and then a succession of them.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What causes dropsy? Is there a cure? My drinking has become regular — ages have any effect on it? — Mrs. H. I."

"Dropsy" is a general term meaning the accumulation of fluid in the body tissues (also called edema) in the body cavities such as the abdomen.

Most frequent causes are heart, kidney, or liver trouble.

Dropsy often can be controlled — after the cause is determined. Whatever the cause, alcoholic beverages may — and I think they usually — be unusually — have an unfavorable effect.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

RECOGNIZE YOUR OWN LUCK

We will never understand how very well until we recognize that it isn't something that is given to us without money and without price."

Luck is something that you have to earn by the sweat of your bread.

I have never heard a person spoken of as lucky without smiling to myself. And I have never heard a person so spoken of well, I am of the opinion that he is a worker."

For work is in reality the tree that bears the fruit of luck

Don't waste your time because the spontaneous things they do — and the most impressive of a crew of reporters, camera men and TV technicians ruins the spontaneity and kills off the very qualities the occasion was supposed to capture.

It is a truism that public figures voluntarily give up the right to much of their privacy when they step into the limelight. But it is equally true that pursuing them up hill and down dale, through the most trivial activities, only serves to delaminate their personal reactions to such publicity, and like all excesses, quickly becomes self-defeating.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A most interesting gentleman sat next to me at the lunch counter yesterday.

"I see," he said, munching his Swiss cheese and ham on rye, "that the Russians are the wealthy. It used to be Rich, Anybody can be wealthy nowadays, with a little luck, or a little crookedness. I have been thinking about aristocracy lately. And I have come to the conclusion that the aristocracy of our generation are those who have given away their radios and turned in their TV for what they could get."

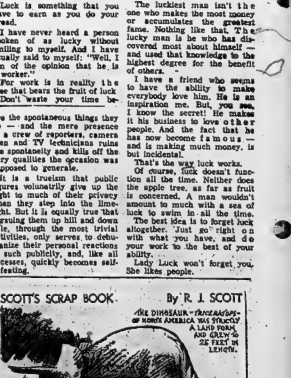
"Well," I said, "I still turn it on for the news, at certain times."

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS.

GUIDANCE

St. Paul was required on one occasion to appear as a prisoner before King Agrippa and his wife Queen Bernice. He recalled the circumstances which had led up to his conversion. Christ had appeared to Paul in a vision as he was on the road from Jerusalem to Damascus. Paul's description of the profound vision ends with the stirring declaration "Whereupon, Oh King Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision." (Acts 26:19).



Visions have not ceased. The validity of objective visions today is far too lengthy a subject to be discussed here. But the inner vision, the illumination, the intuition — this type of vision is as real today as it has ever been.

We can be quite sure that God did not go away and leave the world after He had created it. Likewise we can be sure that after He had created our souls He did not forsake us. We can have just as definite and profound guidance today as had the saints of old. The Holy Spirit is God's presence in the world guiding men into the ways of all truth.

If you are anxious about any event of life, do not hesitate to bring it before the Lord in prayer. You will be guided, illuminated, just as believing and faithful people have always been. The next move is always up to you. Don't be disobedient to the heavenly vision—to God's unfailing guidance.

Advisory Board for Blind Holds Annual Meet to Elect Officers, Receive Reports

By GLADYS WARD

There was a time when the streets had many mendicants, but there are no blind beggars in Canada today. The change from the blind person with the tin cup to the blind person of today has been phenomenal and the transition has been brought about by the courage of the blind people themselves and the friends, such as yourselves, who have helped to make the blind person self-supporting and self-respecting Mr. A. W. Sparks, Supervisor of Field Services for the Ontario Division of the Canadian Institute for the Blind, told the members of Hastings County Advisory Board for the Blind at their annual dinner in Christ Church on Thursday evening.

An excellent dinner was served by the ladies of Christ Church W.A. Seated at the head table were: Miss Virginia Philpott; Warden of Hastings County, Harleigh Hamilton; Assistant Field Secretary, Tom Ferguson; Assistant Field Wishart; N. Sprague, Trenton; Field Secretary P. I. Timmins; Archdeacon J. R. Creegan; Miss Friar, resident councellor; Chairman Col. Everett Hicks-man and Mr. Sparks.

The chairman of the board, Mr. Fairman presided, and expressed his appreciation of the whole-hearted support he had received during the year from members of the board and the field secretaries.

Mr. Hughes contributed two word numbers, "Friend of Mine" and "Because," which he dedicted to the president of the White Cane Club, Mildred Rushlow, who is to be married soon.

Miss Rushlow explained the activities of the White Cane Club and thanked the members of the board for their interest.

Warden Hamilton brought greetings from the county council, congratulating the board on the work they had done, and assuring them that they would always receive support from the council as finances permitted.

EXPRESSES SYMPATHY

Alderman George Wishart explained that he was not officially delegated as a representative from Council, but expressed the sympathy of council for the objectives of the work.

Speaking for the Kiwanis Club Mr. Floyd said the club was glad to provide a meeting place for the White Cane club at the Centre, where some major renovations had been done, and others were in progress. The club strongly endorsed the work of C.N.I.B.

Mrs. Conan, President of the Kiwanis Queens spoke briefly of her association with the White Cane Club. Greetings were given from the Rotary club and the Lions' club.

In her annual report Secretary Mrs. G. Wishart traced the growth of the Board from its inception in 1939 with fifteen members to its present state with membership doubled. The board is represented by two governors for the Bay of Quinte-St. Lawrence residents in Kingston. The Field secretaries report the board meetings and recommend for specific needs. The Board has representation on the Belleville United Appeal committee, and they report fine co-operation from C.N.I.B. as one of the agencies. By agreement the budget for this appeal is a set proportion of the annual actual cost for Hastings County with a regular escalator clause to allow for expansion patterns.

Mr. N. Sprague of Trenton spoke of the work of the Lions club in that town, who were chiefly interested in eyesight conservation, and provided examinations, operations, or glasses as needed. Mr. Sprague announced that Mrs. Kiwanis club had provided transportation for eye services.

Mr. Wiley brought greetings from Batawa and spoke of their interest in the C.N.I.B. work.

Miss Myrtle Peck, welfare convener, had visited twenty-three ladies and given gifts to them at Christmas. Miss Peck paid tribute to Mrs. Harold Seldon and Mrs. Harry Rollins who had given invaluable assistance at Christmas, through the year.

Mrs. G. Wishart read reports from Miss Lucy Hancock and Marmora. The report from Deseronto was given by Mrs. Donald Dawson from Tyrabone by Mrs. M. J. Waller; from Stirling by Mrs. L. Harold; from Shannonville, Mrs. R. H. Harrington. Mrs. C.J.P. Porritt from Mrs. R. J. Forster gave a review of the welfare work and visual survey in Trenton.

Miss Virginia Philpott, home teacher to the blind, explained that her work was in the homes of sightless people to teach crafts, leatherwork, basket making, chair caning or other things the blind person was interested in learning. Her work covers six counties. In addition to the teacher had twenty-two pupils last year, with one taking a course of intensive training in Kingston, and several being taught in groups. Miss Philpott spoke for support of the Blindcraft shop in Kingston where they sell things made by the home makers such as baskets, dolls and purses. Profits are returned from the blind and sold at no profit. Some items made in Peterboro were sold at a small profit which helped to operate the shop. A church group in Canaanoque had had a Blindcraft booth at their bazaar which had proved a successful undertaking.

REPORT IS GIVEN

Mr. Don Ferguson gave a comprehensive report of his work as field secretary. There are 121 registered blind in Yeo County, five pre-school children are getting assistance and two are attending school in Brantford. He and Mrs. Timmins had been many miles to visit all the blind, to discuss problems and give eye services. Many had taken advantage of the talking books and the library services. Seventeen radios were on loan; five persons were being trained for employment; seven people were in residence. Travel concessions had been secured by 17, and free bus passes from the Belleville transit commission had been used by twenty-nine. Eye examinations, glasses, treatments, and transportation expenses had been given to 79 blind people.

Field secretary P. I. Timmins in his report spoke of the outstanding work of the year of the visual surveys conducted in Tweed and Madoc. Fourteen hundred children had had their eyes examined. Seventy-nine children had received eye service care, and 150 parents had been made aware that their children had defective vision. In this connection no direct charge has been made for the services of Miss Dupuis. Mr. Timmins paid tribute to the Lions Club for its eye conservation program and to the Kinsmen Club and Kiwanis Club for their assistance. The speaker also described Miss Philpott's home classes for teaching Braille to the parents of blind children.

In his address, Mr. A. W. Sparks mentioned that he had had his baptism in the work for the blind in Belleville, and recalled those years of struggle. The blind have been given a new lease on life in becoming an asset to the community and not a liability," the speaker continued. The attitude of the sighted is the crutch that work covers six counties. In work covers six counties. In addition to the teacher had twenty-two pupils last year, with one taking a course of intensive training in Kingston, and several being taught in groups. Miss Philpott spoke for support of the Blindcraft shop in Kingston where they sell things made by the home makers such as baskets, dolls and purses. Profits are returned from the blind and sold at no profit. Some items made in Peterboro were sold at a small profit which helped to operate the shop. Field secretary P. I. Timmins in his report spoke of the outstanding work of the year of the visual surveys conducted in Tweed and Madoc. Fourteen hundred children had had their eyes examined. Seventy-nine children had received eye service care, and 150 parents had great disappointment of the blind. A new property of eighteen acres has been secured at St. Joseph's Lake in Muskoka, which will be the one and only camp in the world designed purposely for blind people. There will be a sandy beach and nature trails with guide paths. The main large house with a fireplace will have a dining room where the finest foods will be served. There will be individual cabins, electrically heated, screened porches, and deluxe plus Toronto resorts. The home teachers will be there to give instruction in crafts to those who wish it, because it is realized that recreation is the first step to rehabilitation. We are spreading our services so the blind will be able to lead full satisfactory lives.

CAREFUL IN CHOICE

"We have been careful in the choice of members for the Advisory and Boards in the Province, and many of the members continue with the board for years. The blind staff members are chosen carefully. They are people who have struggled up the ladder of success and they stand out as examples of perseverance.

"I speak on behalf of all the blind you serve, we appreciate all you do for us. The first conquest of blindness is with the spirit. At first comes paralysis of thought, the anxious questioning starts, and follows the same pattern. The first question is, "What's happened to me?" Then, "What will I do now?" and then, "Who wants me, now I am blind?"

"The most dreadful thing in the world it is to have the feeling that you are not wanted. The fear of darkness is an instinct of nature. You have created the environment that has kindled a new light, and we have learned how to use the four remaining senses to fill up the absence of the one lost. Your faith in us, and our courage as blind people, have enabled us to walk as decent persons.

"If we join hands we can look forward to brighter horizons as a team, with kind thoughts as one brother to another. While the whole world has gone mentally blind, here is an example of co-operation with 24,000 blind in Canada working through you, to self respect."

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. M. C. Ward, and appreciation was expressed by Dr. H. E. Welch.

A resolution of appreciation was read by Mr. N. Sprague to the many people who had contributed assistance to the blind in this area, including service clubs, and honorary officials Drs. J. H. Forrester, A. C. Locke and J. M. Walcott.

Only Half Americans Show To Get Cuban Exit Permits

HAVANA (CP)—Only 47 of 91 Americans scheduled for repatriation to the United States from Cuba today turned up at the Swiss Embassy Thursday to collect their exit permits and buy airline tickets.

The first flight in the repatriation scheme involving U.S. citizens in Cuba is scheduled to leave Havana airport for Miami this afternoon.

A Swiss spokesman expressed surprise that only a little more than half of those slated for repatriation were at the embassy.

The 91 were among some 400 U.S., citizens who responded to an embassy-sponsored newspaper advertisement asking Americans who wished to leave Cuba to advise the embassy.

The Swiss embassy has been handling U.S. affairs here since Washington broke diplomatic relations with Cuba early this year.

Meanwhile, hope was fading that four American news correspondents wishing to leave Cuba would get the necessary permission from the Cuban government in time for today's flight.

TWO ARE AP

They are Harold Milks and Robert Berrelles of The Associated Press, Mrs. Ruby Hart Phillips of the New York Times and Martin Houseman of United Press International.

They are unable to buy tickets because their names were not on the list supplied to the government by the Swiss embassy.

The Swiss appealed directly to Foreign Minister Raul Roa on behalf of the correspondents and said they obtained the promise to expedite their application.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Thirty-eight Roman Catholic nuns arrived Thursday from Cuba. They said they had been divested in Cuba of virtually all their possessions except their clothing.

Arriving with them on a Pan American flight were 46 other refugees, all Cubans.

Most of the nuns are Cubans. Others are Spanish and Dominican. One, Jane Woodlock, 79, is English.

"They took our house and our furniture," said one of the sisters. "Worse yet, they took our freedom. They took away our right to teach freely, and our right to organize schools.

"They did not force us to leave, but under the circumstances we did not wish to stay."

The nuns are of the Order of the Apostolate of the Sacred Heart, founded 33 years ago in Cuba.

Bowling Notes

On Wednesday evening the members of the women's section of the Lan Bowling Club held a pot-luck supper and the election of officers at the club house with a large number in attendance. Mrs. Elzie Humphreys, the retiring president, chaired the meeting and thanked all for the support and co-operation that had been given her during her term of office.

The nominating committee of Mrs. Hazel Boyle and Mrs. Jessie Hunter brought in a slate of officers which was unanimously adopted by the members. Mrs. Mildred Smith was the choice of the membership for president and this enthusiastic lady will be an efficient head of the section. Mrs. Joan Weldon was elected first vice-president with Mrs. Agne Avery next in line. Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon is again the secretary with Mrs. Geneva Muir also re-elected as treasurer.

Mrs. Jessie Hunter will have charge of tournaments while Mrs. Hazel Boyle will look after the Thursday games with Mrs. Phyllis Graham in charge of the evening games. The house convener is Mrs. Erma Jackman with Mrs. Grace Clapp as press reporter. The Sunshine secretary is Mrs. Irene Trudeau while Mrs. Lil Mazerolle heads the telephone committee.

This is a strong slate of officers and will be hard to beat guide the women's section to a successful year on the green.

VALUED VITAMINS

One serving of squash or carrots will provide sufficient vitamin A for one day.

Plan Another Science Fair In Schools

Plans are under way for a second Bay of Quinte District Science Fair. The one held last February was so successful that local and district high school students will again have the opportunity in 1962 of preparing and entering exhibits to compete for the various over-all and category awards which will be available through the courtesy of a number of local organizations.

The over-all winner will again qualify to have the expenses paid to send his exhibit to the Ontario Science Fair. The contest is open to any secondary school student in grades 9 to 13.

As yet the date of the 1962 fair has not been set, but entry forms, which will be available in September, will have to be submitted by December 1st. Further information about the fair may be obtained from either the chairman, Ralph Ellis, or the secretary, Glenn Shaver, at B.C.I.V.S.

Art Assoc. Discusses Canadian Art

The Art Appreciation Group of the Belleville Art Association met in the Corby Public Library to discuss the current National Gallery exhibit on contemporary Canadian Art. This exhibit has been obtained by the local association through the Art Institute of Ontario.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Lewis Andrews, Mrs. R. S. Dinnon, and Mrs. H. S. Robbins conducted the seminar.

The 21 panels show the growth of Canadian art from 1900 - 1960. They are exceptionally well chosen and editorial depicting the roots and the influences that shaped Canadian painters; the Post Impressionists, who helped them go beyond mere representational forms; the awareness of the Canadian landscape that revolutionized their color; the eternal pursuit of truth and reality that goes beyond appearances and reality and makes the artist one with nature, a creator.

In judging a work of art, the viewer, must respect the artist's intentions. One experiences a work of art through understanding and contemplation and so enjoys it, whether at a visual, an emotional, a memorial or intellectual level. "This enjoyment, at best, is a gift, and is the purpose of painting".

THE TEEN-AGER HOLDS COURT

The other evening, while having an informal supper with friends, I was interested in the comments of their two teen-age daughters. Jokingly, I suggested them to write down the things they liked, and the things they didn't. The "dids" were well balanced the "likes!" Here are some of their comments:

Don't likes: (The indented comments are mine.)

1. "Being hurried-hassled by teen-ager, who finds fault with everything and everything."

A young person who takes this critical attitude is actually insecure herself. To fight this she will criticize others, and only attain unpopularity by doing so. If she would only learn to be herself, naturally and thoughtful of others, this stigma would change.

2. "People who have no source of conversation other than 'I'."

Those who learn early in life that the key they use "I" the more people will be atracted to them, have attained an attribute almost beyond price for future contacts.

3. "Teen-agers who are indifferent to all school activities. They join in nothing — social, athletic or otherwise. They look down their noses at those of us who do try to be a part of the school spirit."

Let them look! Ignore any barbed remarks aimed your way. Sooner or later they will learn that they are left out of everything. In self defense they will mend their ways!

4. "The boys we call 'rebels' — complete with black leather jackets, long, greasy hair and a 'poor-mi'underst'ood-me' attitude. They make flip remarks to the girls as they walk by. They cause trouble in the classroom by being rude to the teacher. They are just plain horrible and we avoid them like the plague."

It's too bad that there 'ca'n be a special school for these characters to separate them from decent, right - thinking teeners. Their smart-alcky actions make them disgusting bores. I suppose they think it's smart to do everything a gentleman doesn't do. Don't worry. They will learn the hard way.

5. "The parents who persist in downgrading their children's activities, when around other adults."

The parents of teen-agers are very thoughtless when they assume this attitude. Why he'n't they realize that their activities mean as much to the teen-ager as their own activities do to them? Parents who take this course should wake up and remember their own teen-age days!

I've run out of space! Next week we will take up the things my teenagers liked!

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question — Recently you discussed engagements. There is one point you did not cover, whether it is proper for the groom, or his family, to chip in on the wedding reception. My understanding is that it is all right for them to do so if the bride's family can't afford a big, expensive celebration, We are having quite a discussion about this. Some say I am entirely wrong, others that I am right. What is your answer to this? — Mrs; C. S., Kingwood, N. J.

Answer — That you are completely wrong! It is the prerogative of the bride's family to entertain in any way they see fit, or can afford. The family of the bridegroom, or he himself, should never, under any circumstances, assume any of the expenses surrounding the reception. To do so, even if people didn't know about it, except within the two families, would be completely out of line and in very bad taste. It just isn't done, that's all, and never should be.

Readers' Friday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

NOTE:

On April 31st I asked our readers for a recipe for Ginger Marmalade for Mrs. G. M. G. To date I have received two recipes.

GINGER MARMALADE:

(Courtesy M.E.B. of Sifathclair, Manitoba)

Three pounds cooking apples one quart water, sugar (see below), 4 to 12 ounces preserved ginger (4 thick) and dry apples carefully. Cut in thick slices without coring or peeling. Put slices in the water and let simmer gently till fruit is well cooked. Strain through jelly bag. Allow to drip several hours. When all the juice is drained, weigh juice and allow one pound sugar for each one pound juice. Add ginger cut in small pieces. Bring to boil and boil quickly for 8 to 10 minutes. Put in jars when a little sets on a cold plate.

GINGER PRESERVE:

Wash green ginger roots and soak them in cold water for 1 hour. Cover with fresh water, bring to a boil and boil for 5 minutes. Drain, again cover with fresh, cold water, bring to a boil, and boil for 5 minutes, then boil the ginger until it is tender. Cool in cold water for about 1 hour. Drain the ginger roots and put them in a syrup made by combining 2 cups of sugar and 1 cup water for every pound of ginger roots. Bring the syrup to a boil, boil for 6 minutes then let the ginger stand in the syrup overnight. In the morning drain off the syrup, bring it to a boil, and boil for 10 minutes. Pour the syrup over the ginger and let stand for 2 days. Bring syrup and ginger roots to a boil, cook for 5 minutes, and let stand, covered, for 2 to 3 days to plump. By this time the ginger roots should be tender, clear and bright, and the syrup very thick. Pack the ginger into hot jars and heat the syrup to the boiling point. Pour the syrup over the ginger, seal the jars and store in a dark, cool spot.

QUESTION:

. . . I have a new electric stove. I made a pineapple upside down cake using a cake mix. It was in the oven 90 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. but it was still not baked in the centre, and was hard on outside. Is there any solution? Eileen S.

FRIDAY

Apple Juice; Eleanor's Macaroni and Cheese (see Wednesday); Generous Tossed Salad; Rhubarb Custard Pie; Coffee. .

ANSWER

This is a common difficulty. The solution to the problem is to have the pineapple and syrup mix in bottom of pan but before batter is spread over top. Put prepared pan with bottom mixture in oven to have it at boiling point before batter is spread over. Thus batter starts to bake at once and does not have to wait while filling is warmed by oven heat.

How to Prevent Moisture Damage to Your Home

Condensation is at a maximum in new homes. When your home was built, many gallons of water went into materials such as concrete, plaster, tile work and even some types of paint. This water is still lodged within the walls — especially basement walls — and its gradual evaporation contributes to a higher moisture content in the air.

Provide ventilation wherever possible, but do not try to accelerate the normal drying-out process in a new home. Overheating high warming temperatures will only tend to cause uneven drying which will exaggerate the effects of normal shrinkage and can permanently damage lumber and millwork in a new house.

DAMPNESS DOESN'T ALWAYS MEAN LEAKAGE

The presence of water on basement walls sometimes leads the homeowner to conclude that the water is coming through the walls from the outside. Most frequently, however, dampness in basements is the result of the condensation of warm moist air on the relatively cool surface of the inside basement walls.

It is an easy matter to determine whether simple condensation is the cause of dampness in your basement. If cold water pipes "sweat", it's condensation. For a positive test, place a small mirror on the basement wall. If it becomes foggy and damp after a few hours' exposure to basement air, condensation is present and the solution lies in better air circulation.

To ensure adequate ventilation, basement windows should not be kept closed during damp, muggy weather and opened on clear, dry days.

MUCH STRESS ON FOUNDATION

Foundation or basement walls are subject to a wide variety of stresses and strains. The base of a wall, being in the ground, maintains a fairly constant temperature. The top portion, however, extends out of the ground and is subject to extreme temperature changes from summer heat to winter cold, which cause concrete and other masonry to expand and contract.

The nature of the soil upon which the foundation is placed might cause slight settlement, which would cause additional stresses.

A combination of these forces may cause some minor cracks to appear. It is important for the home owner to understand that these surface cracks do not affect the strength of the wall in any way, and it is unnecessary to repair them except for a "touch-up" action to prevent moisture from causing damage to his home.

MOISTURE PRODUCTION

Automatic humidifiers installed in heating plants or unvented gas-burning hot water heaters can cause high humidity in basement areas. Constant use of humidifier equipment or portions of your foundations is another source of moisture vapor. In many cases this situation can be corrected by improved ventilation and humidity control.

When condensation is not the culprit, check carefully outside your house. Make sure the soil surrounding the house is banked properly to carry water away from the foundation. Check your drainpipes to see that they're working properly and are not clogged by foreign matters such as leaves. The rainwater coming out of them should flow away from the house — not sink immediately into the ground. Concrete splash blocks are helpful to ensure proper drainage.

In cases where there is a definite seepage through the basement wall, it can be arrested — if it is not too severe — by the application of portland cement paint.

Here are some ways you can control condensation in your home:

(1) Install exhaust fans in kitchen, bath and laundry to carry off excessive humidity.

(2) Open windows in laundry rooms while washing and drying clothes.

(3) Open windows in bathroom when showering or washing clothes.

(4) Ventilate crawl spaces and cover exposed earth with a vapor barrier of roll roofing or polyethylene film.

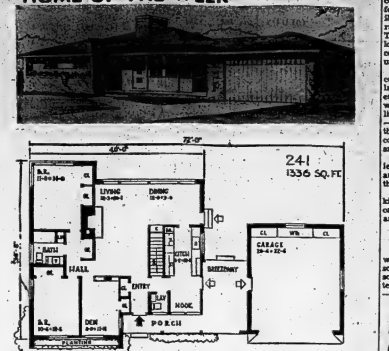
(5) Install attic louvre ventilators to circulate air, thus reducing water vapor.

(6) Repair roof leaks to keep water out of the house.

(7) Maintain proper drainage around building to keep moisture vapor from rising in the home.

(8) Vent equipment such as water and space heaters and clothes dryers.

(9) Some warm air furnaces stone or stucco — is in itself have humidifiers to raise moisture content in the air to a healthy level during winter. If excessive humidity develops, turn the humidifier off to prevent build-up of water vapor.



(10) Check walls for outside water seepage, and repair all places where water may enter.

(11) Install storm windows. This reduces condensation by raising the temperature of the inside window surfaces.

Moisture within the walls of a house can result in stained plaster, rotted wood, rusted metal and ruined interior wall paint. After removing the cause of condensation within the house — unrecirculated warm and moist air — a good wall paint will help in resisting the inroads of moisture. It is well to remember that no type of exterior surface — wood, brick, stone o rstucco — is in itself impervious to the attacks of moisture. These surfaces can be protected by coating of paint specially preserved for the purpose and available at paint and hardware stores.

Every home owner should be alert to the tell-tale signs of condensation and take prompt action to prevent moisture from causing damage to his home.

Dream Kitchen

The homemaker who yearns for a functional "dream" kitchen can turn her dream into happy reality—and without making a nightmare out of the family budget. The basic requirements: a good working knowledge of what is available on today's markets, and a little careful planning.

Frigidaire kitchen design experts point out that whether you're planning a kitchen in a brand new house or remodeling an old one, the job has been simplified, thanks to new design concepts in equipment and materials.

To help guide homemakers, these experts have designed a bright new idea kitchen for 1960, a kitchen which incorporates the very latest ideas in appliances, cabinetry, material, decor and arrangement. It is lighthearted, gay kitchen, full of happy colors and a feeling of spaciousness even though the design breathes efficiency and compactness.

Heart of the kitchen is an in-line baking, food preparation, cleanup and refrigerated storage center, all contained in a space of less than 12 feet.

The fully automatic oven is the built-in variety, at convenient waist height for easy loading. For everyday use, the door swings down in the conventional manner. For cleaning, release the door and it swings down 180 degrees, completely out of the way.

The 13-cubic-foot frostless refrigerator-freezer at the opposite end of the counter eliminates messy defrosting. Frost never forms, not even in the freezer section.

A countertop between the oven and refrigerator-freezer contains a sink and built-in food mixing center. Below is a large capacity undercounter dishwasher, a food waste disposer and scientifically designed cabinet storage. There are more storage cabinets overhead.

Highlight of the kitchen area is a cooking island, which seems to "float" on stylish metal stems. A compact electric cooking top, complete with four heating units, makes possible this design. The built-in range is only 3½ inches high. Two drawers for utensils are located just below the floating counter. Overhead is a hood of unique design.

Separated from the cooking center by a mesh screen, the laundry is a marvel of convenience. The washer and dryer will launder everything from lingerie to rolled wool clothes —all automatically. Opposite the laundry is the dining area complete with storage cabinets and contemporary furniture.

The overall decor is of a variety of colors, and the appliances range from satin chrome through turquoise and pink.

For the young at heart, this kitchen features cabinetry that can be purchased unfinished and all ready to assemble.

Concrete Brick And Block Make Repairs Simple

Some types of simple home renovation and repair are easy for the "do-it-yourself" expert or novice with a little advance planning including proper selection of materials.

Among the simplest to use are concrete products, which include not only the familiar concrete brick and block, but a multitude of precast and prestressed products, concrete pipe and concrete specialties.

Knowledge of these products can often save time and energy. Complete precast step units, for instance, come in several sizes and styles, and are safe and enduring. Many come with built-in stair treads to prevent slipping.

One inventive home owner used a section of precast concrete pipe as an underpass for children under a busy side road.

Use was also made recently of a split prestressed concrete beam as a simple footbridge over a stream. It will last for years with no maintenance or replacement costs.

Barbecues and refuse burners are often built with a few concrete bricks and blocks. They can be bonded together with mortar for permanence, or simply stacked on top of each other and rearranged at will.

MANY DECORATIVE USES

Concrete brick in colors make an attractive flower bed edging and the hollow cores of concrete block filled with earth make natural planter boxes. Precast concrete patio slabs are easy to lay and easy to replace. They come in several colors and designs.

Concrete breezeways or carports can be built with concrete block or brick, and new solar screen pierced blocks can make a handsome addition to any home. They fit in with any architectural style.

Concrete block imbedded in the earth can make good steps. Precast interlocking retaining walls can prevent loss of precious soil, and stop unsightly erosion.

For the more advanced "do-it-yourself" enthusiast, a one or two-car garage or a backyard concrete block swimming pool are more challenging projects. Plans for both, and help in construction are available from concrete products manufacturers and cement companies.

VARY PATTERN FOR TEXTURE

An easy way to get effective results with a concrete structure is to project a few of the blocks from the surface on inch or two. The projecting block can form an interesting pattern, or can be spotted at random in the wall. Another method of adding interest is to omit a few of the blocks, leaving spaces in the wall structure, again either at random or forming a pattern.

Concrete block can also be laid up in novel patterns — stack bond with units exactly on top of one another; on end; the familiar running bond; and in several other patterns. Varying the pattern often makes a striking difference in the finished appearance of the wall.

Colors can be combined in concrete brick, either with contrasting colors or complementary shades. The colors run from rich, deep hues to delicate pastel shades. Color is added to the mortar can lend further interest.

An endless variety of shapes and sizes challenges the home owner's ingenuity to find still more and different uses for this versatile material.

Canadian Garden Service

By Gordon Lindsay Smith

Here we are in the merry month of May and some of us haven't a seed sown in the garden yet, or hardly any, and perhaps we had hoped to start planting a month ago. But there is no need to panic. There is still lots of time for gardening in any part of Canada. As a matter of fact, as any old gardener will confirm, far more planting is done too soon than too late. Most seeds will not germinate until air and soil really start to warm up and some of the tender things will freeze or rot if we put them in too soon. For most flowers and all vegetables it is far more important to keep on planting, a fortnight or so apart right up to July than it is to rush sowing in April.

Even if for some reason we can't make a start until June or later, there is still time for quite a display of bloom and some fine meals of the very tenderest vegetables. But in these very late plantings, it is important to hurry things along with some quick-acting commercial fertilizer high in nitrogen and for long season things like tomatoes, cabbage, zinnias, marigolds and so on it is advisable to use started plants rather than seeds. But there will be plenty of time to discuss these late started gardens in future articles. All that the writer is trying to do right now is to assure any normally late starters and those who have experienced a backward spring is that May is not a bit too late to commence gardening. In fact, in many parts of the country, it is impossible to start any earlier.

Fortunate is the gardener with perfect soil. Such finds are rare, especially where the sub-soil from the basement of the new house has been dumped over the front and rear of the lot. Good garden soil, however, is not difficult to make although it does take a bit of time. Even the hardest clay can be opened up and made rich and friable as the experts say, and the poorest and driest sand can be improved even more easily.

For both types, clay or sand, the same general treatment is necessary. We must add humus. This is simply vegetable material like manure, grass and weed clippings, straw, peat moss, leaves, compost or anything else that will rot. Dug in well this will soon open up clay or bind and hold sand so it more retentive of moisture. Regular cultivation, too will help. It lets in air and breaks up the heavy lumps. But the main thing is to dig in all the vegetable material or humus we can get our hands on. Nothing should be thrown away or burned that will rot down and

Home Owners Are Adding Bathrooms

In the growing family, lack of privacy and irritating washup priorities can emphasize the need for more bathroom space. An unprofessional view of the home may fail to uncover available space for an additional room. But the plumbing contractor, with his years of experience in these matters, can often utilize an area under the stairs or adapt a closet which, with the right fixtures, can be another bathroom or powder room.

In adding a new bathroom or modernizing an old one, the question of "right fixtures" is an important one. Today there are many products readily available which can fit the exact space and decor requirements of any house. There are fixtures for the large bathroom and for the smaller room. fixtures especially suitable for adults and others for children. Style and color variations are numerous as are the very important factors of durability, quality and brand names.

CORNER TUB FAVORED

The corner bathtub has long been a favorite in remodeling schemes where existing wall structures are left intact. The free finished side of the corner fixture makes it adaptable to tubs that extend beyond tile length.

Many modern designs are now available in corner models. One example is the recessed or introverted Contour bathtub which features a spacious nonsymmetrical bathing area.

The decorating possibilities with the corner model are very attractive. The free end of the bathtub can be equipped with a towel ladder emphasizing the towel colors used in the bathroom scheme.

More popular modernization idea for the house without a basement is the combination bath-utility room. Modern, compact fixtures make it possible to have a streamlined installation for laundry and bath facilities in an area approximately 9 x 8 feet.

Along one wall you can have a 5-foot recess Contour tub, which adds to the utility of the bathroom with it handy ledges for easier cleaning and sitting space for mother while bathing her children.

TILE DIVIDER

A tile divider can separate the tub from smashing and drying equipment, which come in compact models for this kind of installation. The tile divider can house the piping for the tub and the washer-dryer.

On the opposite wall twin lavatories can be installed.

"Open Look" is created by the new 5-foot Contour bathtub, which provides more bathing room in its asymetrical design and gives the bathroom a spacious appearance by eliminating one end wall. American-Standard.

CONVERT BREEZEWAY

A breezeway or carport can be easily converted to a new living area in your home. When enclosing with Thermopane insulating glass, it becomes a year-round sun porch.

SAFETY IN SHARPNESS

The sharpest cutting edges are the safest. Dull tools are more apt to slip and gouge, and require more pressure, which is an added hazard. Hone edges frequently on a clean oilstone.

USE CORRECT TOOL

When applying adhesives to wall or floor before laying tiles, use the notched spreaders recommended by manufacturers. Avoid applying too little or too much.

CLEAN WINDOWS

To prevent below - ground basement windows from being splashed with mud and dirt in heavy rainstorms, dig out three or four inches of soil and replace with an equivalent amount of clean gravel.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Alfred B. — I never get any new clothes.

Mrs. P. B. — Our budget requires the hand-me-down system.

* * *

Alfred B. — I'm nine years old and I have a brother, Joe, who's 10. I have a kid brother, too, but now I want to tell you about me and Joe.

He gets everything new and I have to wear his old stuff. Even his Cub Scout uniform got passed down to me. Next week Mom's taking him into town for a yellow raincoat. That means I'll get his old black one.

I hope I grow taller than he is. Then, even if he's older he'll have to take my old clothes. But I'd like one new thing now.

Mrs. P. B. — Our boys are "stepladder" kids, 7, 9, and 10, and all growing fast. We can't afford to outfit each one each season from head to toe. So we had to decide whether to get each a few cheap things frequently or to buy expensive top-quality garments for Joe and then pass them along.

It's not as bad as Alfie says although I admit he hasn't ever had a new flannel suit. But he gets his own shoes, of course.

And once in a while he selects his own outfits and hat.

I wish clothes weren't so important to him.

* * *

The Council — It may not be "clothes" of his own that Alfred is steamed up about so much as identity. He finds it hard to play Alfie in Joe's clothes.

On the other hand, we can understand. Mrs. B.'s problem and summit a few suggestions for solving it in ways less painful to Alfie's ego:

How about father-and-son match mates? When hand-me-down time rolls 'round for Alfie, Dad's loud Hawaiian sport shirt can match his 'ex-Joe's though it is). Dad, we assume, has stopped growing, vertically anyway. So Alfie has the prestige of a me-'n-Dad outfit.

From another mother we learn the trick of labelling clothes by milestones reached, rather than by the name of their first wearer. Thus she painted the words: "Kindergarten Raincoat" across the back of a slicker, and as each kid reached kindergarten age, he was proud to don it.

Mrs. B. might refer to the "Five-foot Bathrobe" instead of "Joe's old bathrob," and hold it in reserve for whoever reaches 5 foot next.

Then there are garments of a "fits all sizes" nature, such as scarves, knit caps and socks. Here Mrs. B. might make a point of buying the new ones for Alfie and having hand-me-up a few for Joe, to vary things.

Finally, by showing Alfie that the savings made possible by the share-the-wear campaign in the B. family can pay for a few new things for him in the non-apparel line — books, game goldfish, etc. — Mrs. B. can assure him of his first-run status in the family despite his second-run appearances.

Clothes don't make the man, or boy. But they can make him unhappy when they make him invisible.

FORMALLY COMPLAIN

Home disclosed to Thursday night's session that the right-wing Laotian delegation had submitted a formal complaint that the leftists were violating the cease-fire. He said the control commission—made up of India, Canada and Poland—could submit a report on the alleged violations.

Meanwhile, the pro-Communist Pathet Lao delegation used the conference as a platform for new attacks on the United States.

Phao Phoumi Vongvichit, leader of the delegation, charged that the United States was threatening the peace in Laos and that American military personnel and Thai and South Vietnamese troops were helping the "rebel" forces of the right-wing government.

Indian Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon, meanwhile, suggested setting up study groups to examine the East-West proposals for a settlement of the Laotian problem.

Before the conference resumed today, Menon told reporters that prospects for a neutral Laos "are favorable."

All factions so far had spoken "moderately," and all spheres were no rise in international tension. The conference could be reached shortly on the future status of the Buddhist kingdom.

CNR PRESIDENT

Conservative govern m e n t decided to add five new directors to the CNR board, it left his reappointment standing open.

Mr. Gordon has been in and out lately, however, that Mr. Gordon will be confirmed again in the post he took on a year ago—a date, he once confessed to MPs, "that is engraved in my heart."

In recent days in the Commons, several MPs have voiced criticism of Mr. Gordon and the way he conducted the publicly owned railway.

They have talked of "dispersing" him. Or of "shelving" him.

In the Commons Thursday night Jack H. Horner (PC—Acadia) compared Mr. Gordon to a "fine horse" a demoralized, losing ball team.

"They are always firing coaches to improve the morale and get the winning spirit back in the team," he said.

"I think this applies to the CNR. We must fire the coach to improve the morale of the team."

Havana Is Calm, Castro's Regime Much Stronger

By JACK REST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HAVANA (CP) — A month after the abortive rebel invasion of Cuba—a fiasco which has had world-wide repercussions—residents of the Cuban capital appear to be going about their business calmly.

From all appearances, Havana, Cuba's largest city, is calm and relaxed today, it was gripped by tension during the invasion days.

The streets and sidewalks are bustling with traffic and people who look cheerful.

Despite shortages of certain foods and commodities such as soap, shops generally seem well stocked.

But the government continues to warn people of the danger of another attack on Cuba.

BOOSTS MORALE

A constant reminder is the armed militiamen and soldiers seen everywhere. Sandbag emplacements are at the entrance of all important buildings and are spotted at other points throughout the city.

From all outward appearances, Castro's government has been immensely strengthened by his victory over the heavily-equipped invasion force—a victory which people here picture as a glorious triumph for the Cuban revolution.

There is a rush among young people to join the militia and voluntary teachers' groups—the latter are engaged in a country-wide campaign against illiteracy. By the end of the year, the government hopes to have trained about 2,000 peasants to read and write.

Patience Is Wearing Thin In France With Settlers of European Origin in Algiers

Alan Harvey, Canadian Press Bureau chief in London and a close student of French affairs for many years, has spent the last two weeks in France. The following article by him appeared on the Algerian peace talks opener in Evian, France, Saturday.

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PARIS (CP) — Metropolitan Frenchmen call them the "pieds noirs"—black feet—and there is usually a bullish sneer.

Patience is wearing thin in France with the 1,000,000 settlers of European origin whose determination to keep Algeria French puts a shadow over the Franco - Moslem negotiations opening in Evian, France, Saturday.

The settlers won't be represented directly but the Paris delegation headed by Louis Joxe and the representatives of the Algerian Provisional Government (FLN) will be uneasily aware of the menace on the other side of the Mediterranean.

Throughout 6½ years of war, the thing unyielding attitude of the pieds noirs—the name derives from a particularly dark grape grown in Algeria — has been a central factor.

Now that French President de Gaulle has publicly acknowledged future Moslem sovereignty in a land where Arabs outnumber Europeans 10 to 1, the settlers are in a mood of dark frustration.

Why do they take it so hard? What kind of people are they?

HAVE MIXED BLOOD

They are highly emotional, a product of French, Spanish, Maltese and Italian blood mingled on the Barbary coast. They possessed of a Mediterranean temperament tending to extremes of exuberance and depression.

They all call themselves French but some have never seen the "homeland." One survey estimated that only 11 per cent of the settlers are of French descent.

Mostly, they do not like Arabs.

Some outside observers feel the colons have had it good for too long. The best land was owned by the European settlers. Not much has been done over the decades to develop industry to provide work for the constantly increasing Moslem population.

The pieds noirs have some legitimate grievances. When de Gaulle was propelled to power by the conflict revolt of May 13, 1958, he told them: "Je vous ai compris" (I have understood you).

But in a series of gradually changing attitudes, de Gaulle evolved a liberal solution for Algeria, without troubling to explain to the Europeans in any clear fashion why such a policy was necessary.

NERVES ARE RAGGED

The nerves of the settlers have been fully tried by a long and cruel war that has produced violence on both sides. It is the process of defending themselves against the rebels they try to liquidate that settlers say is crushing them. They are really fighting against Communism, that produced the concession of holidays with pay, a large section of Algeria has been terrified that it might happen again.

Communism is public, once a year-Communist, now an ardent supporter of "Algeria Francaise." Behind the leaders, the loudest stalls still propounding the view that independence for Algeria will ultimately mean Soviet bases in North Africa. His opponents say that the continuation of the war in Algeria is the surest way to bring about that result, now that both Russia and Communist China have come to the aid of Ho Chi Minh in the Pl.O.

A real adversary has emerged in the forms of a "secret" army called the OAS (Organization de l'Armee Secrete). It represents the settlers and its leaders include high-ranking ex-army farmers, exponents of clandestine warfare right-wing political groups and, some people say, recruits from Israel and Germany.

INCLUDES TERRORISTS

L'Express, a Paris newspaper that has opposed the Algerian war tooth and nail, says the "new men" from Israel include terrorists expelled from the Stern Gang and Irgun Zwai Leumi, terrorist arms of the nations that flourished during the Palestine war.

The OAS is dangerous. It enjoys the active or tacit support of most of the European population of Algeria. It has helped some of those in flight from French justice and it plays a big part in the series of plastic-bomb attacks on suspected persons of known liberal views.

The OAS appears to be against the OAS. Its main hope appears to be in staving off as long as possible a negotiated peace between France and the FLN leaders.

Labor Members Called on To Shun Hotel

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto District Labor Council Thursday night called for emergency legislation outlawing strikebreaking after the Royal York hotel announced its success with strikebreakers for strikers.

The council urged the Ontario Federation of Labor to seek strong legislation outlawing strikebreakery and called on the Canadian Labor Congress to have all its members shun the hotel.

As the strike entered its 20th day, the gulf between management and strikers widened. Angus MacKinnon, manager of the hotel, sent a telegram hinting that most of the 1,200 strikers have already lost their jobs.

The telegram replied to a union proposal for renewed negotiations Wednesday. Local 299 of the Hotel and Club Employees Union (CLC) made a bid for talks after 200 strikebreakers were reported running the 1,600-room hotel smoothly.

The manager said the hotel would resume negotiations only if the union announced that the strikers would return as jobs become available, with seniority erased.

A. R. Johnstone, Canadian vice-president of the union, said the telegram has turned enthusiasm for strikers into dedicated strikers.

We will ask our people in various cities in Canada and the United States to use their influence to bring about cancellation of banquets and conventions away from the Royal York," Mr. Johnstone said.

The striking employees want a basically hourly wage increase over three years, but the hotel has refused to offer more than 9%.

Premier Frost told a press conference he would not interfere in the strike.

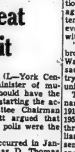
Mr. Frost said he has lived in the hotel for about 20 years and considers himself a good friend of the staff and management. The labor department could not help either, he added, unless both sides were willing to negotiate sincerely.

Controller Allan Phillips of Toronto strode through picket lines for the second time in 24 hours and aroused strong criticism from organized labor. He was a luncheon guest at a convention.

Regt. Against Any Separation

MONTREAL (CP)—Veterans of Quebec's Royal 22nd Regiment spoke out Thursday night against any separatist movement advocated by three Quebec organizations.

The Artic du Royal 22E Regiment passed a resolution condemning "separatist agitation against this group of malcontents which aims at destroying everything we have built up with so many sacrifices."



"English Canadians are our brothers," said Second World War veteran Paul Aubut. "We have fought for our country and now we intend to keep it united."

The Amicale protested "in the name of all our war veterans of 1914-18-39-45 and Korea (1951-53)" against the activities of three separatist parties—Le Ralliement Lauretienne, le Rassemblement pour l'Independance National and the Action Socialiste pour l'Independence du Quebec.

Said Aubut "These people are traitors. We represent 10,000 veterans and we're fighting."

ATTACH NO BLAME

BRANTFORD (CP) — The death of four - year - old Edna Kensington, drowned over by creamery truck April 17, was accidental, a coroner's jury decided Thursday. No blame was attached to the driver of the truck, Donald J. Robicheau, 20, of London.

"I don't mind you painting my throat, but I insist on choosing the color."

Two Engineers Have Developed Cheap Engine

KINGSTON (CP)—Two engineers have developed a cheaply made and operated free-piston engine and have made a licensing agreement with Canadian manufacture with Ingersoll Machine and Tool Company.

Agrees at a press conference here made for manufacture in the United States with a major U.S. firm which was not identified.

The developers, James S. Campbell, chairman of the mechanical engineering department at Queen's University, and Anton Braun, former Queen's researcher, have set up the Free Piston Development Company for designing, developing, licensing and consulting.

First order is expected to come from the federal government for three or four boat engines.

The engine has no crankshaft, connecting rods, valve mechanism or flywheel. Without a drive mechanism, and therefore without vibration, the developers say foundations can be substantially reduced. Another advantage for a lower price than standard diesels.

Units may be added for additional power and a user can expand one unit while another is in use.

Toronto Man Given Year For Bigamy

TORONTO (CP) — Dominic Pascaio di Dio, 22, was sentenced Thursday to a year in jail after a court learned his marriage constituted two wives as well as three marriage girls.

Di Dio, who has two young children, pleaded guilty to bigamy in marrying Carole White, 18. He went through a form of marriage with the girl in Rochester last month after she became pregnant.

"I did n't know about his past," she told the court in her plea to save her family name."

Mr. Wishart Spence said Di Dio's parents had brought them back to his home.

Di Dio said Miss White was a prostitute and coerced his wife into becoming one after threatening to expose him to police.

Miss White said Di Dio insisted she solicit men and said: "He told me I should be nice and talked into becoming prostitute.

"This is the most flagrant case of bigamy I have ever heard," said Magistrate Harold Addison. "I strongly suggest the Crown prefer charges of extortion against you for living off the avails of prostitution and procuring women for immoral purposes."

Coup Indicates Revolution Against Rhee Did Not Go Far Enough for Koreans

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Coup in South Korea indicates the revolution against President Syngman Rhee 12 months ago did not go far enough or was enough to satisfy the unhappy Koreans.

The multitude of problems facing the country, and the swaying loyalties of many in government led to predictions at the time that Premier John Chang could not eradicate corruption and poverty with as much speed as he had expected.

Many now doubt that the leaders of the bloodless military coup that took over this week can succeed where Chang failed.

The Korean army has lined up behind the leader of the coup, Lt.-Gen. Do Yung Chang, despite pressure from the United States and United Nations to support the elected government of the ailing Chang, despite Gen. Chang's call for the strengthening of South Korean ties with the U.S., would antagonize.

But the most real problem in South Korea is widespread poverty. Food shortages this year were aggravated by the fact that nearly 500,000 refugees left their autumn rice through drought. Millions are seeking public relief and reports say thousands are living entirely on roots and herbs.

With such widespread discontent, it remains a question whether the new power in South Korea will be effective in bringing order. It may bring only a temporary respite.

Financial and political ions have continued to cast the country into chaos and unreliable majority has made its task difficult. Relations with the U.S. have been a major cause of unrest among South Koreans and many also contend that too many officials of the old regime still hold office.

The government was accused of turning the country into an American colony by signing an agreement under which the U.S. has control over the spending of the more than $300,000,000 it gives annually in aid. This represents more than 80 per cent of the government budget.

The pact grants all U.S. civilian personnel in Korea privileges of diplomatic immunity and exemption from taxes. The Koreans also are up with army the U.S. agreement with Japanese which allows American troops may be tried by Japanese courts and would like a similar arrangement.

Kennedy Facing Deskload Of Problems After Return

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy returned to a deskload of White House problems Thursday, completing a two-day state visit to Ottawa which he described as "extremely worthwhile."

In his first presidential venture outside the U.S., Kennedy didn't appear to have picked up any major Canadian problems. But his advisers said he didn't want more empty - handed, either.

The president was reported to have been interested in the common ground he found in talks with Prime Minister Diefenbaker on the urgent need to strengthen the North Atlantic alliance.

Even more encouraging, he found a common approach with Diefenbaker on the Laotian issue and on the critical need of providing effective machinery to make sure a neutral Laos is loosed from Communist control, particularly from Communist pressures.

There was a feeling among American aides, after the president's talks with the prime minister, that Canada would not take any sudden action to recognize Communist China, even though the country has pursued a policy of peaceful coexistence.

Kennedy's visit also generated much goodwill for Diefenbaker among diplomats on finding he had received appeal outside the United States and in the midst of his personal charm is exportable. Even more so was that of Mrs. Kennedy.

Mrs. Kennedy didn't get any firm pledges from the Canadian leader on what the president considers the most important aims in Canada — pleading for an increase in Canadian foreign aid and getting assistance from Canada in helping Laotian leaders to peaceful coexistence against poverty and insecurity.

Kennedy failed to make his pitch in his first speech before the Canadian Parliament. American diplomats now will be watching to see what the general Canadian reaction will be.

However, there is no great hope that Canada will take any immediate initiative either on foreign aid increases or on the president's plea to the U.N.-Organization of American States.

Methods Used to Unseat Councillors Cause Split

TORONTO (CP) — All meetings of municipal councils should be open to the press and public except in special circumstances, Ontario's select committee on municipal law decided Thursday.

But the nine-member committee, studying the Ontario Municipal Act and related statutes, was undecided as to the best procedure for seeing that the public interest was protected.

The Municipal Act calls for all ordinary meetings of councils to be open, but councils can move into committee of the whole any time and exclude the public.

All members agreed there were times when council had to conduct some business in private, such as meetings to discuss dismissal of an official or purchase of property.

The committee was split also on whose responsibility it was to initiate proceedings to unseat a councillor. Under the Municipal Act, a ratepayer must sue by a judge when he questions a member's right to a seat on council.

Vernon Singer (L—York Centre) said the ministers of municipal affairs should have the responsibility of starting the action but Committee Chairman Wallie E. Beckett argued that the voter at the polls were the best jury.

Land deeds occured in January, said Thomas D. Thomas (PC—Oshawa), a councillor would have another 11 months to continue the damage.

Earlier, the committee was told that the draft of a new Municipal Act will soon be presented to the cabinet.

Roderick Lewis, chief election officer, said he will recommend that the "tick" mark be used for marking ballots in provincial elections. He said voters had to be made as easy and convenient as possible for the election and most spoiled ballots were caused by the use of checks marks instead of an "x".

Under the proposed change, both the check mark and the "x" would be used.

The committee decided to have a close look at the possibility of reducing the number of names on municipal voting lists, extending voting hours past 7 p.m., and having polls placed in all hospitals.

Several members suggested abolishing the title of reeve and calling the head of all municipalities the mayor. They said thought should be given also to abolishing the title of either councillor or alderman.

The committee will likely present an interim report to the legislature this fall, but a full study of the municipal statutes is expected to require a number of years.

"Maybe, but too young for you," Ted told him. "Just wait seven years."

"Why wait? What happens then?" asked Larry.

Travel Speed Will Be Taken Into Consideration in Pay For Stewards, Stewardesses

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal conciliation board has recommended that TCA stewards and stewardesses should be paid not only for the work they do but also for the speed at which they travel.

A majority report by the board Thursday introduced the principle in an effort to settle a dispute between the publicly-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines and 800 flight attendants seeking additional pay at the rate of 25 minutes extra credit on flights for the speed at which they travel.

Two members of the three-man board approved the principle of speed being considered mingled on the amount. They recommended pay at the rate of 10 minutes per hour extra credit on the jet flights and five minutes on the turboprops.

The report also recommended a five-per-cent across-the-board increase. The attendants had asked 15 per cent.

Labor Minister Starr Thursday made public the recommendation for a modified decreases in the report signed by Hon. Mr. Justice Andre Montpetit of Montreal and Toronto nominee Robert E. Morrow of Montreal who dissented both on major issues.

In his report Mr. Morrow said the introduction of jet aircraft did not deteriorate working conditions in the light of all factors.

He said the smoother and quieter operation of the faster planes, "would tend to decrease fatigue."

The chairman and Mr. Crowe said they could not logically exempt the section that the increased number of trips with the faster plane "must increase the proportion of total working time to paid flight hours, including credits," when compared to the work done in the pistol-driven aircraft.

In Montreal, TCA said it was "unable to accept" the jet-speed principle but the Flight Attendants Association had no immediate comment.

The company says that if the clause were put into effect a stewardess would be working 72 hour and 50 minutes a month — the maximum allowable under the recommendation — would earn $311 monthly compared with $429 paid monthly by the three major United States airlines.

Under present agreements, flight attendants work a maximum of 85 hours monthly—with extra pay for any hours flown over 70.

They are paid up to $430 monthly for an average of 75 hours flying time on domestic flights with the additional $40 monthly for overseas flights.

Striking Stevedores Will Return to Work in Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — Striking stevedores here decided Thursday to return to work.

The strikers, who had tied up foreign shipping here since last Friday, were lured back to their job with the promise Thursday that running the affairs of Local 1-824 of the International Longshoremen's Association will be turned over to the rank-and-file membership.

It took an outside official to calm the local's rank-and - file who walked out — among other things, their objections to a new system of assigning jobs.

Patrick Sullivan of Buffalo, president of the Great Lakes region secretary-treasurer, heard 24 hefty grievances in three-hour meeting Thursday and, besides the decision to return to work today there also was a resolution.

The local members will abide by the union's constitution, even if the four boards tied up yesterday by the man who charged them with contravening labor legislation are expelled from the union.

The local will be taken from trusteeship as soon as elections are held June 13 the local will be put under trusteeship in March because, International Vice-President Bernard Doherty said, the men did not have enough interest to govern their own affairs.

Local President Peter Campbell and Vice - President Allan Rideout, who resigned rather than sit on a tribunal trying the four men, will be reinstated and be eligible for nominations in the elections.

The position of business agent, now held by George Fortunan, who the men blamed for their troubles, will also be voted on at the elections (Fortunan was is held June 4, the local members elected to the post eight years ago and was reappointed by Doherty when the local was placed in trusteeship).

A meeting will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. in the local administration of the gang hiring hall. Doherty had complained that under the present system some gangs got more work than others and that men were hired on a first-come-first-serve basis.

The four men charged with counselling an illegal strike — John Kane, his brother Robert, George Oldfield and William Cox — will be tried on charges, awards, from which position they were suspended after the charges were laid.

But the fate of the four men still remained in the air for Doherty laid the charges after he tried to persuade the strikers to go off the walkout and he got beaten up.

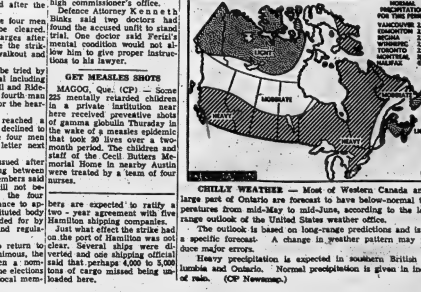
The four are to be tried by a four - man tribunal including Doherty but Campbell and Rideout resigned from it because they refused to show up for the hearing.

Doherty said he reached a verdict alone but he declined to say what it is provided for by the union's rules and regulations.

The men's vote to return to work today was unanimous, the statement said. When a nomination meeting for the elections

Not Mentally Fit to Stand Trial, Ruling

OTTAWA (CP)—The 35-year-old Yugoslavian immigrant accused of murdering a fellow countryman of Indian diplomat K. Gopalan Nair was found mentally fit to stand trial, Magistrate Glenn E. Strike was told Thursday in Ottawa police court.



But despite the psychiatrists' finding the accused will not set June 8 as the tentative date for preliminary hearing of the charge against Peter Ferial.

Ferial was arrested April 19, the date that Mr. Nair, 41, was slain at his desk in the Indian high commissioner's office.

Defence counsel Gerald Hinks said two doctors had found the accused unfit to stand trial. One doctor said Ferial's mental condition would not allow him to give proper instructions to his lawyer.

Guided Missile Research Helps Scientist Seeking To Detect Breast Cancer

By ALEXANDER FARRELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Research on guided missiles has given Montreal scientists new hope of hitting its target — a reliable early diagnosis of breast cancer.

Medical science puts much stress on the need for early detection of cancer. In fact, doctors say, if the cancer is not found early, there is no hope of cure.

The trouble is," says Dr. Ray M. Lawson, a surgeon at the Notre Dame Hospital, "that we really haven't a dependable early diagnostic test for cancer."

Dr. Lawson has been working on this problem for the last five years, trying to confirm his theory that a heat picture taken by surface cantact can be detected at a stage early enough for really effective treatment.

"Up to now we have been handicapped by inadequate equipment."

Next month he plans to begin a new approach with equipment designed to map the whole surface of the human body and detect the slightest variations in body temperature.

SEEKS CANCER CURE

With the knowledge that malignant tumors in the body give off more heat than normal cells, Dr. Ray N. Lawson of Montreal's Notre Dame Hospital hopes to develop a method of early detection of breast cancer.

Dr. Lawson has been working on this problem for the last five years, trying to confirm his theory that a heat picture taken by surface cantact can be detected at a stage early enough for really effective treatment.

"Up to now we have been handicapped by inadequate equipment."

Next month he plans to begin a new approach with equipment designed to map the whole surface of the human body and detect the slightest variations in body temperature.

THE DETECTING MISSILES

The principle of the new machine, being built by the Radiation Instrument Company of Chicago and bought with a $25,500 research grant Dr. Lawson received from the National Cancer Institute of Canada, is the same as that of a missile guided to its target by a heat-seeking device.

He said the machine incorporates knowledge gained in the U.S. missile research program and recently released from the category of official secrets.

A human body gives off heat from every part, unless its temperature happens to be absolute zero, and malignant tumors give off more than normal cells. Dr. Lawson said such tumors growing on or near the outer layer of skin are, in effect, "hot spots on the surface."

The problem was to detect these spots as soon as they began to get warmer than their healthy surroundings; in other words, to discover a malignancy when there was still time to nip it in the bud.

Breast cancer, Dr. Lawson said, is one of the most common forms of malignant tumor appearing on the surface of the human body.

It strikes one woman in every 25 after the age of 40, he said, and four out of five cases eventually prove fatal.

The only way doctors could detect it in an early stage was by feeling lumps on the body.

"It would seem that even this is not always exactly an early sign. By the time you can feel the lump it is already too late in one out of every two cases. The cancer has begun to spread."

He described the machine he plans to use as similar in size, shape and appearance to a floor - model radiophonograph.

"You might say a ghost between one of those things and an x-ray machine."

It would pick up the heat waves radiating from the body and produce an infra-red image in 40 to 45 seconds. The infrared beam carrying the heat waves would pass through a detector cell capable of amplifying temperature variations 100,000,000 times.

"That ought to be enough to detect the most subtle change in heat generation by any body cell."

Dr. Lawson said the project may not only produce a useful diagnostic test for breast cancer but may also lead to the development of a technique for giving material doses which have anti-cancer effects. Combinations of drugs could be tested to see whether they were actually destroying the tumor.

Dr. Lawson said it speculate how soon the project might produce results. "We shall have to use this technique on at least 1,000 patients before we can hope to know."

In addition to his research work, Dr. Lawson, who is also former Ontario Heutenant-governor Ross Lawson, serves on the regular surgical staff of the Royal Victoria and lectures in surgery at McGill University.

Sunday School Lesson

Work Is a Sacred Trust

By ROY L. SMITH

In an attempt to interpret the scriptures relative to industrial problems of the modern day it must be remembered that they were written for a people who lived in the midst of a strictly individualistic society. It is true that there were guilds of craftsmen in the New Testament times, and some of these were organized for the protection of their rights and privileges, but the basic principles of unionism, as they are recognized and accepted today, were not developed in countries, were unknown.

Paul, the biblical writer, therefore, addresses his remarks to the tax man, he is talking to a boss, and not to a class. But the principles which he lays down are so applicable to classes as to individuals. And it becomes the duty of the Church, if it is to continue true to the scriptures, to address itself to labor as well as to the employers.

AN IMPORTANT DISTINCTION

Before modern world it is necessary to draw a careful line of distinction between the lazy man and the unemployed. There are literally hundreds of millions of the people of the world who are living in misery, ignorance and helplessness through no fault of their own.

It is easy, for example, for a well-fed American to say, "Let 'em stew in their own juice," when he is asked to assist in the relief of the victims of famine distant parts of the earth. He cannot see that if those beggars were willing to work for a living they wouldn't need to go hungry. But the economic problems are that the hungry of the world, with no more than occasional exceptions, already the hardest people to employ.

It would be difficult to find here anywhere on this earth that world a man who has do the people of India, and in spite of their dogged efforts, long hours, and patient persistance they share in the lowest caloric intake of any people on the globe. Certainly India's problems do not originate in indolence.

GOD APPROVED WORKINGMAN

When Jesus presented himself before John the Baptist, seeking baptism, He was the carpenter from Nazareth. He had never preached a sermon, worked a miracle, held a parable, or addressed a multitude. When the Holy Spirit descended on Him it was as a workman in whom I am well pleased," he was speaking as a workman and not of a glorified Christ.

It is impossible to believe that any of the apostles ordination would have been heaped upon Him if He had ever skipped His work, neglected His responsibility, or loafed on the job. If the Christian ideal of life make it necessary for one man to build houses and another man to preach sermons, it also expects the same inner integrity of both the builder and the other. Any work by which a man earns a living for himself and his family is a sacred trust. Any reluctance to do one's best, or any attempt to make up a poor workmanship is a surrender to the temptation to dishonesty.

WORK TELLS ON US

It has been said that "money talks," and that is true — every penny talks about its author. But so many other things also talk about us.

The scripture in this week's lesson says that the sluggard's (lazy man's) house is built "on high heaven about him which is also true. Just as our front yard talks about us, the unpainted church building has a great deal to say about the sincerity of the congregation that worships therein, and that a dirty carpet in the house of God declares that the worshippers are guilty of a certain form of hypocrisy.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 21: "THE IMPORTANCE OF DILIGENCE." 1 Kings 4: 29-34; Proverbs 6: 6-9; 10: 26; 12: 24; 13: 4; 22: 29; Ecclesiastes 2: 22-23; 2 Thessalonians 3: 6-13.

It is easy to cover up our failures with words, but smooth words never atone for rough work. The person who cannot be trusted to tell the truth in his daily, or to keep his promises.

Every man's work is actually, his confession of faith.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A sports columnist once wrote that anybody who would categorize Tommy Gorman as a "promoter" would do him a shocking injustice. "He's the unchallenged champion of all entertainment promoters in Canada."

Those words were recalled with the death in Ottawa this week of "Tay Pay." He was a colorful, effervescent man whose tongue and typewriter and keen business acumen opened doors for him on the promotion end of hockey, baseball, horse racing and even figure skating.

He pounded typewriters for the Ottawa Citizen and the old Montreal Herald as sports editor and writer, and produced highly - imaginative copy, but the money wasn't there. And that was no place for Tommy.

The typewriter was a handy gadget. There was the time, back in 1934, when he was managing Chicago Black Hawks and the team arrived in Montreal for a game.

NEVER A MISFIT

Paul Thompson, Hawk left-winger, looked up from a newspaper he was reading in the lobby of a downtown hotel and remarked to Gorman:

"They certainly like you in this town. This story on the sports page says that you're a genius and one of the greatest hockey managers in the history of the game."

"Not surprising at all," said Tommy. "After all, I wrote that particular story myself."

The story that old-timers like best to recall is the time he went to New York in 1925 to manage the old New York Americans for Tex Rickard. That's when he showed the big city boys a few promotional gimmicks.

He wrote stories for the New York papers about a full-blooded Indian who could really scorch the ice. The not-so-dumb Americans, who knew nothing about hockey, gobbled it all up and Tommy really let his imagination run wild.

Before the opening game he had a couple of simulacrums parked outside the 49th Street entrance of Madison Square Garden. And, Tommy explained, because a lot of blood likely would be spilled.

GOT RESULTS

The house was jammed, the doubleheaders weren't needed and his Indian was a flop.

Andy O'Brien, sports editor of Weekend Magazine, provides an interesting anecdote concerning Gorman and Bax O'Meara, now of the Montreal Star, who then was sports editor of the Ottawa Journal. That was in 1920. Gorman was sports editor of The Citizen and they were asked to promote a Labor Day sports show for some working - men's benefit fund.

O'Meara suggested they invite the mayor of Ottawa. That was okay with Gorman, but why stop there? The Prince of Wales—now the Duke of Windsor—was touring Canada at the time and Gorman wrote the person in charge of the tour suggesting it would fit in with the Prince's democratic reputation if he attended the event.

The Prince attended, the show was a colossal success and after it was over the directors gave Gorman and O'Meara $750 each.

"Just how long has this sports promoting business been going on?" asked Gorman.

He used his $750, borrowed another $300 and bought a half-interest in the Ottawa Senators hockey team. Five years later he sold his share for $35,000 plus and controlling interest in the almost - defunct Connaught Park Jockey Club, and Tommy was in business.

A couple of months ago, while in Toronto for a television show, he said he was writing a book. It will be finished in time and should make interesting reading.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Attendance and betting dropped sharply on the second night of harness racing at the Western Fair Raceway Thursday night, probably as a result of heavy rain before the start.

West Seeding Held Up Three Weeks by Rain

OTTAWA (CP)—Prairie seeding operations have been held up by three weeks of rain and cold weather but could become general this week—with few exceptions — if the weather improves, the bureau of statistics said Wednesday.

The bureau's survey, based on reports received from field correspondents up to Tuesday night, found full-scale seeding operations in almost all parts of Canada were awaiting better weather.

Less than half the spring seeding has been completed in most Ontario counties. An exception is the Essex and Kent county acreages seeded by the first week of April, before wet weather began.

Ticket Sales Said up In the West

EDMONTON (CP) — Four of the five clubs which make up the Western Football Conference reported Thursday that season ticket sales are running ahead of figures for the same period last year.

Calgary Stampeders, the only club to hold the line on ticket sales for the new season, said sales are down from 1960 and 1959. Other clubs increased expenses involved in the new interlocking schedule with the Big Four.

Jim Finks, general manager of the Stampeders, said the lower sale this year is 'one of those things that will pick up.' He said the situation may have something to do with the late hockey season and income tax time.

Reporting improvement in sales were Winnipeg Blue Bombers, British Columbia Lions, Edmonton Eskimos and Saskatchewan Roughriders.

LEXTON ARRESTED

PHILADELPHIA (AP) Charles (Sonny) Lixton, 23-year-old top contender for Floyd Patterson's heavyweight boxing title, was arrested on a concern-bunching charge Wednesday but was discharged at a special hearing four hours later. TORONTO (CP) — The Royal York Hotel strike has let him be reunited a father and son after a separation of 30 years.

Wilhelm came to Toronto seven years ago but could not trace his father until he saw a picture of pickers at the hotel. Among them was Otto Kehnel, a Royal York employee for 11 years.

San Juan Moves to Charleston

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Those wandering Marlins — from Miami to San Juan to Charleston, W. Va. — try again tonight to find a home and make it stick when they play their first International League game under Charleston colors against Jersey City.

The erstwhile San Juan team, which played in Miami last year, and was transferred Wednesday from Puerto Rico, moves into an area which last year supported an American Association club that went defunct when the AA became a six-team league this season.

However, the city has given the Marlins a $1 a year rental plus all the concession money for its 5,000-plus capacity ball park. And the fans will have a team to support that is only one-half game out of first place in the E.

The rest of the league, in which Jersey City beat Columbus 8-3 in the only game played Thursday night, also feels it will benefit economically. The biggest reason given for the club's transfer from the Caribbean was the already-existing network of air travel and the corresponding decrease in visiting club's share of gate receipts because of low attendance.

League president Tommy Richardson said the Cuban crisis has ensured economic success on the Puerto Rican economy and that most of the people would not afford the admission prices.

Jersey City took advantage of three errors for three unearned runs and added four more runs against loser Tom Parsons.

"Nashua Blue"

New Preakness Entry

BALTIMORE (AP) — Nashua Blue made a surprise bop into the 85th Preakness lineup Thursday, joining Carry Back and seven other colts for Maryland's great three-year-old classic at Pimlico.

Trainer Lloyd Murray suddenly advised Maryland Jockey Club officials that Nashua Blue would be flown from Boston to Baltimore for Saturday's $150,000-added race. Nashua Blue is owned by the Boncrist farm of Christopher J. Devine, Wall Street broker who lives in New Jersey.

Carry Back, the come - from-behind darling of the two-buck bettors, is the 6 to 5 favorite for the mile and three-sixteenths Preakness.

Fred W. Hooper's Crozier, who looked like the Kentucky Derby winner until Carry Back charged past him for a three-quarter length victory, is the 3-2 second choice.

Others in the expected field are Dr. Miller, Globemaster, Sherluck, Hitting Away, Crimson Fury, and Orleans Dogs.

Three Tournaments

Golf's Biggest Rhubarb

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—It may take the state department, the governor of Tennessee and officials of the Memphis Open to unravel golf's biggest rhubarb of the spring.

Three tournaments are listed for June 1-4. They are the International Cup matches at San Juan, Puerto Rico, involving 34 countries, the Professional Golfers Association co - sponsored $30,000 Memphis Open and the PGA - unapproved $15,000 Pro-Amateur at Odessa, Tex. The Puerto Rico matches are sponsored by the International Golf Association.

"The conflict involves more than 20 players," J. Edwin Carter, PGA tournament director, said Thursday.

"Arnold Palmar, (U.S. Open champion), Gary Player (Masters champion from South Africa) and Stan Leonard (who is to represent Canada in San Juan) needed permission from both the PGA and Memphis Open officials to play in the cup matches.

"Mark Vorder Bruegge, president of the Colonial Country Club of Memphis, appeared before the PGA executive committee last Tuesday in Hollywood, Fla., and made a formal protest on conflict of date. He requested that the contract between the PGA and Memphis Open officials be lived up to to the spirit and letter."

What does this mean?

"It means," said Carter, "that the golfers involved are subject to six months' suspension from PGA play plus a $500 fine if they play in a tournament other than the Memphis Open two weeks from today. . .

"Player, Palmer, Doug Sanders, Don January, Billy Maxwell, Bob Rosburg, Bo Winniger, Ernie Vossler, Dave Hill and Leonard are among those who need both PGA and Memphis permission to play either in San Juan or Odessa.

Pitched Ball Kills 9-Year-Old

TEMPLE CITY, Calif. (AP) Barry Babcock, nine-year-old little leaguer who "loved baseball more than anything in life," was killed by a ball that struck him on the chest.

He was hit by a pitched ball —a slow curve, said Al Millham, the plate umpire.

The game in this Los Angeles suburb Wednesday night was Barry's third as left fielder in his first season of little league ball.

His father, Jack Babcock, a sales representative, thought the wind was just knocked out of the boy.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The 1961 softball season start here on Monday with the shock troops of Bob Temple's champion Belleville and the Cobourg Merchants providing the opening hostilities.

And just in case you haven't heard, the game gets under way at the Fair Grounds at three o'clock Monday afternoon instead of 8.15 p.m. as formerly scheduled.

It seems the softball ladies want to play time ball with the boys of the Point Anne Fire Brigade and city organizations who plan fireworks shows on Monday night. Right nice gesture.

Glancing over the rosters of the Bobcats, Merchants and the Picton Walts, and presuming Joyce's Real Estate and the RCAF will come up with comparable clubs, it looks like this year's run for the softball roses will be one of the toughest in years.

Incidentally, the Picton squad under rear admiral Walt Fraser and the RCAF get their baptism of fire on Tuesday when they tangle with the Trenton Flyboys at the Trenton town diamond starting 8.15. Joyce's go into inaugural action on Thursday when they play host to the RCAF at the Fair Grounds at 8.15.

Monday afternoon's game should see some real-hot action between the arch-enemies, the Bobcats and Cobourg.

It's rather hard for Manse Robert Temple to take his mind off that beautiful little bobsitten he became the proud pop of a short time ago, but he did take time out to predict that his Cats will be in there when the bugles are ready to sound the cease fire.

Monday's inaugural could very well be a renewal of the mound battles between the Cobourg aces, Sleepy Dawys and Iron-Man Rudy Campbell, and any one of the Temple trio of Bobby Hunter, Bobby Green and a highly-rated newcomer, Jim Morton, formerly of Trenton.

The Cat pitchers have been going well in the grapefruit sessions and any one of them could get the starting assignment.

Temple has the odd reliable, perhaps not so old at that, Earl Counter, doing the Yogi Berra duty, while regulating the infield will be James Fields on first, Floyd Crawford at second, Dougie Hall at short and Johnny Reichelor on the hot corner.

In the outer gardens are Ted Belcher, hardmuncied throwin basketball, "Weiner" Brown, Flori Geegan and Davy Jones. And at bead will be Paul Russell and Jean Paul Lamirande.

It looks like one of the better-balanced Bobcat squads with a tight infield and anything but a rookie outfield.

The Cobourgers shape up like a pretty fair squad, too, with a lot of familiar names on the roster. As was mentioned "Ole Sleepy" and Rudy Campbell head the mound corps with Jim Hart at first, Gary Sharp at second, Dick Turpin at short and a veteran, Leo Boles at third. Then there's Billy Mills, Scotty McSporran and others, together with some newcomers who make the Merchants a team to be respected.

And along baseball lines the Belleville Kenmore play their return exhibition tilt with the Merrilton youngsters here Sunday afternoon starting 2.30, and open the Lakeshore Intermediate League in Orono Monday afternoon, starting 3.00.

The Commercial Softball League has just submitted a 66-game schedule which gets under way Tuesday next with Point Anne meeting Trudeaus at the Alemite Field. All games will start at 6.30.

The six-team league composed of Point Anne, Trudeau Motors, Lightfoot Construction, Doug's Food Service, Rollins Construction and Bishop's Seeds, is a tight, compact affair with a schedule that calls for a maximum of games.

The clubs play five games one week and six another with doubleheaders teamed in. The calibre of softball is good and provides an outlet for those players unable to make the district league squads. City squads will use the Alemite and Prince Charles diamonds while Point Anne will naturally use its own.

Unfortunately with the Commercial League squads playing five and six games a week, it will be impossible for this newspaper to cover them. Night softball and baseball, between meets and other activities and the sports staff at the moment will take up most of the available time.

This newspaper was unfairly criticised by some members of the Commercial Softball League executive of a year ago. At that the league was given twice the publicity it received through other outlets, but it appeared the mention of a score via air waves called for a half-column of type in the newspapers, according to the critics.

This year, at least, until the midsummer, it is entirely up to team managers and coaches or other officials. They are requested to leave score-books or score-cards at the Thomas Tobacco Store. Otherwise, telephoned information.

Some people think members of a newspaper sports staff are not entitled to a night or a weekend off. This year it will be different.

Drop 1-0 Decision

By ED WELLS
Associated Press Staff Writer

From the very start this has been a strange season in the American League, newly expanded to 10 teams. These new oddities are piled into the record Thursday:

1. Reliever Ryne Duren tied a major league record and became the first American League pitcher in 46 years to strike out four batters in one inning—but because of it he was charged with his third defeat as Chicago White Sox beat Los Angeles Angels 2-0.

2. The slugging Detroit Tigers, after partially ripping apart sprawling Memorial Stadium in Baltimore, managed just four hits in cozy Fenway Park at Boston and suffered their first shutout of the season, 1-0.

3. Lefthanded hitter Mary Throneberry dropped to eighth in the batting order against southpaw starter Jim Kaat, drove in all of Kansas City's runs, threw with a homer, in a 4-3 victory over Minnesota Twins.

STANDINGS SHIFT

These were the only games played in the majors Thursday, but they shifted the standings a bit. The Tigers' loss shaved their lead over the idle New York Yankees to 4½ games. And Kansas City moved into the first division, .500 while dropping the Twins into a third-place tie with Cleveland. Washington at Baltimore was postponed because of cold weather.

No games were scheduled in the National League.

Duren, the ex-Yankee fireballer, hit the record book and took the loss in the seventh inning at Los Angeles when the Sox broke a 4-4 tie and scored a pair of unearned runs. The loss was the Angels' seventh in a row.

Duren struck out Minnie Minoso leading off the seventh, then fanned Roy Sievers, who reached first when the third strike got past catcher Del Rice for a passed ball. Jim Landis' triple broke the tie, and after J. C. Martin struck out, Landis came in on a single by Sherman Lollar before Duren whiffed Tommy Agosolio.

Four National League pitchers had struck out four men in one inning previously, but Duren was only the third to do it in the AL. Waller Johnson of Washington Senators did it in 1911 and Guy Morton of Cleveland in 1916.

RICE PEPPERS FENCE

Rice had given the Angels a 2-0 lead in the second with a two-run homer off Sox starter Billy Pierce. And he came close to belting a second homer, off winning reliever Frank Baumann, in the fifth—a towering drive hit the top rail of the fence and dropped back for a double.

The Tigers, after walloping 42 hits for 25 runs in three games at Baltimore, managed nothing but singles off long Gene Conley. The ex-Phillies righthander, who had lost three in a row, walked just two and struck out nine in his first complete game in the American League.

Boston scored the only run off Jim Bunning on a single by Pete Runnels and a double by Don Buddin.

Throneberry blasted his fifth home run of the season in the second inning off Kaat. Then he sent home the clincher in the eighth with a single off reliever Ed Palmquist.

Ray Herbert won with his first complete game of the year. He allowed seven hits, one a home run by Bob Allison.

SETS RECORD

TORONTO (CP) — Steve Baker, 13, Grade 11 student at suburban New Toronto High School, set a Canadian interscholastic javelin throw record of 209 feet in the annual Toronto District Interscholastic Athletic Association track and field finals Thursday. He bettered his own mark of 197 feet 2½ inches set last Wednesday in a trial preliminary. Toronto's Richview Collegiate won the meet championship.

Duke Keats Winning Big Battle

VICTORIA, (CP)—When Gordon Keats was six, the kids on his block in North Bay, Ont., nicknamed him the Iron Duke, which was a warship of the period.

Even at that tender age, Keats had earned the respect of his buddies for being able to dish out bruising bodychecks.

He became more adept to the art as he grew older. So adept in fact, that Gordon (Duke) Keats, now 56, is a member of hockey's Hall of Fame.

For a while last week it appeared the Iron Duke was sinking. After a winter of suffering from arthritis, he was sent to hospital when his condition was complicated by internal hemorrhaging.

Keats' condition is listed as good now, bearing out his contention that his best victories came when people thought he was down for the count.

PLAYED IN TORONTO

Born in Montreal, Keats learned his hockey in North Bay and signed his first professional contract with Toronto Blue Shirts of the defunct National Hockey Association in 1914.

After army service during the First World War, Keats played for Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada League, earning a reputation as a clever and tough competitor with a temper that commanded respect. He moved to Boston of the National League in 1926 and later played with Detroit and Chicago.

His association with professional hockey ended in 1932 after he had returned to Edmonton but he coached minor teams in Alberta and Saskatchewan before retiring from hockey and moving here.

A shipyards worker before he entered hospital, Keats is not impressed with the current National League talent.

"I watched the last Stanley Cup playoff. You could pick out the stars on the fingers of one hand. In the old days everyone of the playoff was a star or he wouldn't have been there."

RIDERS SIGN GUARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Hanson (Bull) Churchwell, 23, of the University of Mississippi, has been signed by Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four Football League, it was announced here today.

CBC Boss Requests Big Four Meet

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet has suggested that representatives of each club in the Big Four Football Union meet him to discuss the future of Canadian football as it pertains to television.

By the future, Mr. Ouimet said he means from 1963 on because the CBC, outbid by privately owned CFTO-TV Toronto for telecasting rights to Big Four games for this year and next, is out of the eastern pro football picture until then.

The CBC president made his proposal to Joe Wright, president of Toronto Argonauts, in a letter, dated May 1 and made public Thursday.

Mr. Ouimet said neither the Big Four nor John Bassett, publisher of the Toronto Telegram, which owns a majority ownership in CFTO, TV, should be surprised if "Mr. Bassett's gamble" in successfully bidding for eastern TV rights "does not pay off completely."

The CBC had put a great deal of money and effort into promoting public interest in football from coast to coast with the hope it would become a national sport like hockey. The Grey Cup game's present status had been "accomplished only because a national network was willing to spend the time, money and effort to promote such an interest."

HAVE LOST RIGHTS

"Now, at a time when the football clubs are embarking on an interlocking schedule between east and west—and this at a time when a truly national network is needed to cover football more than ever—we find that we have lost the rights to Big Four coverage."

(A CBC source said the question of TV coverage of interlocking games of the Big Four and the Western Interprovincial Union remains undecided. The football clubs themselves would have to agree on coverage arrangements, and since the CBC owns TV rights for the west and CFTO-TV Toronto those for the east, there would ultimately have to be some arrangement between the two TV facilities.)

Mr. Ouimet said in his letter he did not wish to indulge in "crying over spilt milk" attitude.

"But I do most sincerely believe that in the long-range interests of the public, the football clubs and television broadcasters that it would be most beneficial if we could arrange to meet even informally with you (Mr. Wright) and your colleagues to discuss the future."

Copies of the letter were sent to the presidents of the other three Big Four clubs.

In a statement in Toronto, John Bassett, president of CFTO-TV, said "I don't know what he (Mr. Ouimet) means when he says the football conference and I should not be surprised if what he calls our 'gamble' does not pay off completely.

"The football games will be fully sponsored and CFTO will get two and good part of the cost of football whereas the CBC never got more than one.

First, that would be the televising of actual games.

The second would be a half-hour weekly program collected from highlights made up of edited tapes of most dramatic moments on the previous week's games.

The third would be a full hour tape broadcast in certain geographical areas of a previous week's game.

"As to the interlocking schedules," Mr. Bassett said, "I wrote to Mr. Jim Coleman of the Calgary team confirming that as far as CFTO is concerned the CBC could pick up the interlocking games played in the east and send them back to viewers in Western Canada without according to CFTO the same privilege.

"Even this offer was refused."

"Wiener's" Homer Did It

Bobcats Shade Braves

KINGSTON (Special) — Belleville Bobcats made a Sterling debut in the Kingston Amateur Softball Association here last night.

Wayne (Weiner) Brown slammed a three-run homer in the top of the ninth inning to give Bobcats a 7-6 nod over Smart's Braves.

Bobcats made a tremendous comeback after atrocious fielding put them behind 6-1 in the fourth inning. The Kingston team held a 6-3 lead going into the eighth.

Singles by Ted Batchelor, Bob Shuster and Earl Conrad loaded the bases for Belleville in the eighth inning and Bob Green slapped a hard grounder to short which was booted to centre field by Shortstop Tom Pettitt allowing two runs to score.

In the ninth coach Bob Tenpie, pressed into action for the first time in six years, dropped a Texas leaguer over first base which landed just inside the foul line.

Batchelor added a single and set the stage for Joe Brown's mighty swat.

Both teams were then set down by relief pitcher Hunter as he fanned the first three men to face him.

Hunter earned the win and the loser was Rod Stewart who went the distance for Smart's.

Bobby Green started for Belleville and was limited to three innings. He faced four men in the fourth inning but failed to get a batter out. Brown

Eight-Team Circuit

Inter-County Baseball

By LEN TAYLOR

Armchair managers are having a tough time picking a winner in the Inter-County Baseball Association senior series which gets under way tonight at Picton.

Eight teams are entered in the league and there may be some fast shuffling after the first game or two. But Napanee Stadium seems to be the most powerful. But Hamilton, which was fire in the loop at the first of last season, slumped badly at the half-way mark and they are dangerous late in the stretch, can't be discounted.

Kitchener - Waterloo Panthers could become the Cinderella of the circuit using almost entirely home-grown talent. They are short in the pitching department but have the best-looking staff in the league in Harry Fratus and Charlie Mann. Art Ellis is showing a good deal predicted for 18 - year - old second baseman Ron Sargent.

Guelph Merchants, third in last year's race, will work under a new management. A group headed by former mayor Dave Hastings has taken over and named Alfie King, former Guelph player, as manager.

Merchants are beating the bushes for a catcher after releasing first veteran Art O'Connor. Guelph will still be powerful at the plate with men like Dan (Thumper) Jackson who hit .347 last season and slammed out 21 homers.

Listowel Legionaires, a second year club, are counting on six imports to bolster the lineup and three arrive Sunday for a workout.

Dan Peholsky and Pete Craig, backbone of Listowel's mound staff are back for another season.

Galt Terriers, fifth last year, are making a determined bid to challenge the leaders this season. They've hired Nelvin Hutsel as playing coach - school education instructor at North Carolina State University and former pro player, to replace Jack Hoy as manager.

Galt also has the nucleus of a rugged club with hurler Jock Marshall, hot-hitting batsman Ron Boomer, keystone sacker Wray Upper and outfielder Bob Brain. The latter is a threat for the ball-and clubs — London Diamonds and St. Thomas Elgin. London is just recovering from a player strike that resulted in the walkout of manager - pitcher Russ Evon.

Their defensively but powerful at bat, London still has 1960 hitting champ Stan (Gabby) Anderson, Don McLennan, Jerry Wilson and pitcher Harry Egan.

Elgins have a new manager in Bob Pirie and are shopping for three good imports. Returning are catcher Ted Rogal, infielder Don Sargent and Fred Kelso and pitcher Al Dorsey.

All eight teams will operate on a share - the - wealth basis. Hastings has taken over and aried club last season.

Imports are limited according to need, a rule that restricts Brantford to only one, though manager Geordy Carruth is claiming Len Dziuk should not be considered an import because he lives in Brantford.

Kitchener - Waterloo, St. Thomas, London, and Guelph swing into action Monday following Sunday's opener. Galt and Listowel don't start their part of the 36-game schedule until June 3.

Lacrosse

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ontario Lacrosse Association Thursday officially opened the senior and junior season of last year's Mann Cup champion Peterborough Petes were upset by Brampton Excelsiors 8-4.

In other senior A action, St. Catharines Athletics edged Niagara Falls Sookies 11-10 in a free-scoring affair which sent to players to hospital.

Junior A action started in Whitby as the defending Eastern Canada champion Whitby Redwings flashed to a 7-3 win over Long Branch Castrollites in a fast, closely contested game. James Gladstone, Canada's first Indian senator, represented the prime minister at the official season opening of Canada's national game in Port Credit.

The senator brought messages of good will and promised to encourage the game throughout Canada. It was the first lacrosse contest he ever watched.

SLOWED THEM

The Port Credit game was a good display for the Senator. Rugged checking by the Easterners slowed the Sailors fast running play and gave Brampton the lead which they never lost the game.

Bob Dobbie pitched up four goals for Brampton with singles going to Bobby Ashbee, Wayne Thompson, Bert Naylor and Bill Carstaior.

For the losers, Bob Hanna, playing his first Port Credit game, scored a hat-trick, with George Apsell, Bill Allen and Pete Ruse all scoring singles.

In Long Branch, a bitter season battle developed just before the midway mark and after four separate clashes, Athletics' playing coach Norm Corcoran employed the tactics to close a forehead gash.

Frank Benedict, a diminutive Scobie, suffered a broken nose in the scuffle with Corcoran. But Smith of Falls, a Sailor season battle developed just before the midway mark and after four separate clashes, Athletics' playing coach Norm Corcoran employed the tactics to close a forehead gash.

PACES ATTACK

In Whitby, Gord Holliday paced the Redwings' attack with a hat-trick and John Davis added two. Ken Ross and Lorne Campbell each scored one. Ed Hutzel and Don Belgrave scored for the losers.

Whitby built up a 6-0 lead in the first period and matched goals with the losers in the second to lead 11-6 with Long Branch scoring the lone goal of the final period.

Senior action continues Wednesday as Brampton meets Brooklin Ellicrests in Whitby. Junior action resumes tonight as Fergus visits Hastings in a four-point game.

Lemmon Picks Crew From Line

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)— Jim Lemmon, a fellow who thinks he oarsman right out of the registration line at the University of California, is establishing another great crew tradition.

Cal's Golden Bears, Navy and Cornell are the only undefeated varsity crews in the nation.

Lemmon, 6', is in his second season at Cal's boat coach after 12 years as an assistant to the legendary who drove three Olympics to six tries. The Bears captured the Intercollegiate Rowing Association Regatta on Lake Conodoga at Syracuse, N.Y., last year.

How does Lemmon pick his oarsmen?

Right off the registration lines," he declares. "Hardly anyone has ever rowed competitively before they come to college. I look for long, lean guys who aren't afraid of competition — kids who stand about 6-foot-6 and weigh about 200 lbs.

"Then we learn if they're interested in the competitive pressure. There isn't anything that's more of a team sport than rowing. Crew doesn't recruit individuals—that they're a crew.

"Once you're bit by the bug you're never the same again."

Bro. Combos For Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions may start the Western CFL ball Conference season with two brother combinations.

The team announced Thursday it has signed two promising Edmonton rookies from Ontario for tryout contracts.

Defensive end Don Plumley, 185-pound, 22-year-old defensive halfback obtained from Hamilton Tiger Cats and Myro Matuschak, 215-pound, six - foot - two tackle, 23-year-old fullback from Timmins.

The Lions now have the brother team of Don and Bruce Claridge from Vancouver.

Plumley played two years of intermediate football and three years of intercollegiate ball at Queen's University. He was recommended de-the Lions by Juan Sheridan, Queen's coach.

Matuschak was the most valuable player in the Northern Ontario High School Football Association in 1956-57. He attended Colorado College where he played linebacker.

Roxanne Arlen Has Problem, She Is Called 'The Wiggle'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Roxanne Arlen (36-22-36) had this problem

Her walk as seen while departing drew the most attention in films. This led to her being titled The Wiggle.

One film followed another and she saw no future as an actress. If she was always photographed walking away from the camera. So when she had the chance to do a Broadway play for Leland Hayward, she grabbed it. It was Who Was that Lady I saw You With?

"For my entrance — this will kill you—I walked on the stage backward," she recalls. "How do you like that? I was doing the same thing I had been doing in pictures — and for two cents a week."

Again the buildup as the wiggle. It was beginning to get to her. Especially since her family in Dallas read it was somewhat aghast.

"My mother is a school teacher and my father is an attorney," says Roxanne. "They didn't exactly approve."

It got to the point that she was consulted a psychiatrist in New York. After three months, she arrived at the conclusion If I wiggle, I wiggle.

"I was trying to be something I wasn't and it made me miserable," she says. "I like to be the centre of attraction. I like to be whistled at. It's fun to have boys like me. Why should I fight it?"

FIGHTS NO MORE

She fought it no more. When she wangled an interview with Lee Strasberg, the actor's studio man, she declined the beatnik attire of his disciples.

"I put on three times the amount of makeup, I would wear in a movie," she says. "I wore a tight dress and I borrowed my mother's fur to wear around my neck. When I went in, there were some well-known actresses in the room, all in sweaters and capri pants with stringy hair.

"To my surprise, Mr. Strasberg was delighted."

Roxanne studied with him and then returned to Hollywood for another string of sexpot roles. "It's hard work," she insists. "People don't realize how much art there is in Marilyn Monroe's acting. You have to draw a line between being cheap and being lovable."

'MUSIC MAKERS' GUEST

15-Yr.-Old More Interested In His Horse Than Girls

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Jockey Avelino Gomez won four consecutive races at Old Woodbine Thursday. The 31-year-old Cuban now has won 30 races in 10 days.

Gomez won the fourth on Early Mischief; the fifth on Resink Beatty; the sixth on Manor Hill and the featured seventh on Count Page. He gave Count Page a good ride in the Grand Bend Purse to win by slightly more than a length. Our Sirdar finished second while Foxy Phil was third.

Count Page, paid $4.40, $2.90 and $2.30.

The daily double of Maid Worth and Bull Pine paid a modest $27.70. But there was a real surprise when a triple bet of $142.80 was posted after the fifth race. Beatnik Betty was the winner of the race while Happy Chat, finished second.

Astrological Forecast

Saturday, May 20

BY CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: This is the day when every sort of a chance is present to bring your most special qualities and gifts to the attention of whomever can help you make them a success. You can have a happy time this Saturday in entertainment or romantic ways, also. Be sure to think out what you can do for more creative expressions.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — This can be a particularly happy Saturday if you get together with congenials at the sports and recreations that most please. Get out tonight to some fine social affair where you meet worthwhile and intelligent personalities.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) —Important you handle all home and family affairs wisely now so that you have greater harmony and security in that important sphere of your existence. P.M. Entertain those with whom there is fine rapport and real devotion.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Get shopping done early. Then look into your bills and investments and hit upon some fine constructive idea that will increase abundance greatly. P.M. Contact friends of means you have not seen in some time. Discuss affairs with them.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You have the tendency to put altogether to much time on the trivia and forget about important affairs. Reverse the procedure now and start a big upswing in your future activities. You are capable of commanding a large income.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — A fine day to express your wonderful ideas to the right people and stop hiding your light under a bushel as the saying goes. Be cheerful, less forceful with everyone and get their co-operation and enthusiasm for your aims. Grow.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) —Every chance is yours now to plan the future very intelligently so that you know real abundance. Then tonight impress everyone with your fine flair for living graciously and being a good fellow. Develop a sense of humor.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — You can have a fine time with good friends today, but you must make the effort to contact them early. If you are generous and devoted, much that is of value, aid, can flow into your life.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —This is an ideal day to handle any civic duties wisely that you have accepted of late or to take whatever important steps are necessary to further your career. Go out in the evening with good friends where the food is excellent. Have fun.

Sagittaries (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — You are filled with inspirational ideas of a most constructive nature that it would be well to jot them down on paper so that you can put them in operation later. Work on those that are most pressing P.M. Make fine new contacts.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — This can be a very productive day if you collect what is owed you and pay the bills that are important right now. Get all statements in order, too. P.M. Fine for romance, but be most kind and generous with loved one.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Get together with associates informally and cement better relations through an attitude of sincere co-operation and by not being so independent. Take them out to dinner in the evening and combine business with pleasure.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) —You have every opportunity presented and devoted, much now to brighten and tone up your abode so that it is warm with color and beauty. Strive for comfort, too. Then get out into the garden, take care of pets, get wardrobe in order, etc. Improve health in P.M.

If your child is born today . . . he, or she, will be a most intelligent youngster and full of vitality, so be very sure you accord as fine an education as your purse allows. But it is important you do not pressure or criticize your progress and be staunchly helpful. Then the chart becomes very promising and there is every indication of tremendous success here. Either a political or educational profession should be followed for greatest happiness.

CHILDREN FOR ADOPTION

TED, DANNY and SUSAN are appealing youngsters of 8, 5, and 3 but they bear the mark of fear, so often the result of a very unsettled home life. Their mother is unmarried and, while she does love them, hold up their confidence in her and their trust, believes they can have a happier childhood and grow up to be useful adults. The two younger children have normal health, but Ted has a slight heart murmur which does not affect his activities. Ted is of attractive appearance, slight in build, brown-haired and brown-eyed. He is very bright at school, but reports indicate that at least part of his trouble is due to his unsettled life so far. We know that each of these children has potentialities, but they can be developed only in a home of their own. Will you make it your business to provide a greater challenge? Enquiries are invited from Protestant couples, write:

and imposed stringent censorship.

Lt.-Gen. Do Yung Chang, chief of the military junta that seized power in a 62-hour revolt, expressed confidence that the U.S. government — despite its local representatives' opposition to the coup—"will co-operate with us and support us more positively than ever before."

The 38-year-old general did not give any names, but most were believed socialists with left leanings. The Communist party is outlawed in this country of 23,000,000.

PURGING STARTED

Chang said deposed Premier John Chang and his cabinet ministers were at their homes under house arrest. They will be subjected to severe punishment, he said, "if any serious crimes by them are uncovered."

In Washington, Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles said the "U.S. can hardly cheer at the upsetting of a constitutional government" but that he was not sure the new regime could be recognized.

As censorship was broadened, Korean radio stations were ordered to quit relaying the Voice of America's twice-a-day news programs in the Korean language. The order was to keep any criticism of the military government from the people.

News published by censors. Foreign correspondents so far were able to file only censored reports without interference, but photo shipments were censored.

SETS GOALS

Gen. Chang said economic reform is one of the primary objectives of his revolution, but said more time is needed before he can announce any economic measures.

As a first step to better the living conditions, he said the junta plans to release as much government-owned rice as possible for the poor and food-short farmers.

He refused to set a time limit for the life of military rule, but said he would do his best to keep it short.

NOWLAN IN HOSPITAL

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister Nowlan is in hospital for "examination and observation," his office said Wednesday. The minister was not feeling well over the weekend, the office said, saw his doctor Tuesday and was sent to hospital in an effort to determine the cause of his illness.

SCIENCE FICTION

almost entirely confined to the reactor building.

Dr. Laurence said the source of his information that radiation was detected in upper New York State was a story in the Saturday Weekly April 29, 1961.

Dr. Laurence said the phrases used in the Toronto weekly magazine "in the same way as those used in Astounding Science Fiction in a story in April, 1954, on the NRX reactor accident. There was no question, he added, that the original source of Mr. Boyd's statement was Astounding Science Fiction.

Dr. Laurence said this discovery was made by a member of the staff of Atomic Energy of Canada who keeps a sharp eye on stories written about Canada's nuclear energy program.

Mr. Boyd contends that the Canadian approach to economic nuclear power would not be money besides posing a safety problem, Dr. Laurence said Canada study a system he proposes.

Mr. Boyd advocates that helium gas and graphite be used in place of heavy water and the fuel be enriched uranium carbide.

Jurists, Police Lack Training Parley Is Told

TORONTO (CP) — A judge and a police chief spoke Thursday at the Canadian Congress of Corrections on lack of training among jurists and policemen and a panel discussed what to do with new delinquency.

Judge Hugh C. Arrell, of Weaverth County's Juvenile and family court in Hamilton, said Canada's family courts have been given an inferior status and are often presided over by judges untrained in law.

He urged that the provincial government take over financial responsibility of these courts and promote broader scope and competence.

Metropolitan Toronto Police Chief James Mackey discussed lack of qualification among Ontario's 8,000 law enforcers, saying that only half of them had training in police work before beginning.

Chief Mackey said he hopes this situation will change with the opening next year of a new police college at Aylmer.

S. W. Main of Woodstock, a supervisor of probation officer, told a panel on alternatives to imprisonment that probation is preferable in the case of maladjusted sex offenders.

KEEP OUT OF PRISON

He said it keeps offenders out of the homosexual environment of prisons, which he defined as a society of odd sex roles. It is more acceptable to the offender should not be jeopardized his job as a result of his punishment and is far more economical administratively.

Dr. Richard Ball, discussing the drinking driver, said treatment such as voluntary centralism—effectively used in Norway and Denmark — criticized as other method, the administration of horsewhip and rubber unnatural compulsions.

This, he said, is a dangerous practice which can produce unpredictable side effects. There was also injustice between treatment might induce cancer.

Chief Mackey blamed parents and parking for a increase among the public to disrespect policemen. He said during a panel discussion the public reports the multitudes of parking tags and summonses police have to hand out in large cities.

Parents, he said, can engender poor attitudes in their children if they themselves act as if they were trying to 'beat' the law.

BLAMES ATTITUDE

Superintendent H. S. Cooper of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in Ottawa said he blames the poor attitude towards authority is partly due to a general lowering of moral standards.

Police Chief L. G. Lawrence of Hamilton argued it is the adult, not the youth, who now shows a greater lack of respect. Police visits to schools and programs with youth are winning young people over, he maintained.

F. W. Carabine, national parole service supervisor, told the panel on alternatives to imprisonment the chief opponents of prison reforms are often prisoners. He said changes in routine disturb the prisoners' adaption to their imprisonment.

A. M. Kirkpatrick, executive director of the John Howard Society of Ontario, was re-elected chairman of the association.

SOUTH AFRICA

Ready to result in clashes with the police.

More than 900 Negroes were rounded up by police Wednesday in a drive against "the idler elements"—the biggest number of Negroes arrested for failing to carry identity cards or related offenses since 1,500 persons were detained in the emergency last year.

The multi-racial Liberal party, headed by au thor Alan Paton, announced it was sending letters to thousands of employers asking them to use their influence to ensure that the demonstrations are peaceful.

BUT GUNS

But many whites continued to take no chances and acted for self-defence. The citizens' rush for guns continued with more than 1,000 reported sold so far this month in Durban, a demand estimated at 30 times greater than normal.

The Rand Daily Mail reported that a Ku Klux Klan is at work in Cape Town, trying to frighten colored (mixed blood) political leaders out of participating in the municipal protest.

The Negroes themselves are demanding voting rights and a share in the government for all non-whites as their price for "co-operation" with the new republic to be proclaimed by Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's white supremacy government.

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Tips on allergies, mad-dog shots and poisons.

CHILDHOOD ALLERGIES

The child is generally known as any tired, irritable, pallid, has circles under his eyes and nasal congestion.

A victim of some allergy, four Tennessee doctors concluded from studies of 30 allergic youngsters. Other possible causes, such as anemia, must not be ruled out, but if allergy is responsible, the trouble invariably can be pinpointed and then corrected or prevented.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Potent new drugs have revolutionized the outlook in high blood pressure, known medically as hypertension. Ten years ago, only five per cent of cases could be controlled, but today 95 per cent are controllable, and that avoids dangerous complications of heart, kidney or brain damage.

Even mild cases of hypertension should be treated, experts cautioned at a recent symposium.

Be especially alert, they suggest, if your family has a history of elevated blood pressure. If one parent had it, a child has a 50-50 chance of developing hypertension. If both parents suffered from it, the child's chances of escaping it are only one in 10.

If a snake bites, forget the old drive about applying a tourniquet and taking a shot of whisky, Texas physicians say.

Their advice: Inject antivenom and antibiotics as quickly as possible, put the victim to rest in bed, and don't give him any alcohol.

Curious children are likely to eat or drink anything, including medicines and cleaning fluid, a team of Syracuse, N.Y., physicians reports in the Pediatrics Journal.

These poisonous kids are likely to be highly active, often in homes where both parents work.

Modern drugs can control epileptic seizures now in 60 to 80 per cent of patients, and "socially, such a patient should not be looked upon as being different from any other person, and he should be treated so," says Dr. Alex J. Arieff, neurologist - psychiatrist at Northwestern University medical school.

Parents he said, can engender poor attitudes in their children if they themselves act as if they were trying to 'beat' the law.

BLAMES ATTITUDE

Superintendent H. S. Cooper of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in Ottawa said he blames the poor attitude towards authority is partly due to a general lowering of moral standards.

Police Chief L. G. Lawrence of Hamilton argued it is the adult, not the youth, who now shows a greater lack of respect. Police visits to schools and programs with youth are winning young people over, he maintained.

F. W. Carabine, national parole service supervisor, told the panel on alternatives to imprisonment the chief opponents of prison reforms are often prisoners. He said changes in routine disturb the prisoners' adaption to their imprisonment.

A. M. Kirkpatrick, executive director of the John Howard Society of Ontario, was re-elected chairman of the association.

SEVIGNY BURIED

QUEBEC (CP) — Albert Sevigny, former chief justice of Quebec Superior Court and one of the oldest members of the Canadian Privy Council, was buried Wednesday in St. Isidore's St. Charles Cemetery, Mr. Sevigny, father of Associate Defence Minister Pierre Sevigny, died Sunday at 80.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

He's Really Retired

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My husband retired six months ago and unless he changes I'll be in an asylum—or the modern equivalent—in another six months.

We had always made plans for travel and fun together when he retired, but now that he has it's just plain hell. We are not rich, but we have enough to live comfortably and have some trips, but he has just crawled into a shell and won't come out.

He hasn't any interest in anything but news broadcasts, won't read or watch television or go anywhere. He says his life is over and he might as well die as have nothing to do.

I find myself going on up too and next I'll be talking to myself. What on earth am I to do?—SPELLBOUND.

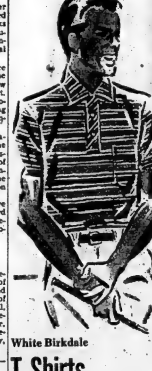
DEAR SPELLBOUND:—Go without him, just for once. No reason why you should get claustrophobia.

To many people, retirement comes as a shock, even if they think they have prepared for it. To change from the busy routines of a full-time job and suddenly come to a full stop is not easy.

The first reaction is to feel not needed, useless — dead!

Since you are his link with life, and he won't react to your prodding, show him! Go away for a few days, and visit a friend, leaving things in order and some plans and provisions for his meals. Tell him you intend to make the most of his leisure. That life is for living. Then go!

Maybe by the time you get back, refreshed, he'll be having second thoughts. Solitude does this to people.



(Doris Clark will be glad to help you with your problems. Write to her care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

French Order Algerian Truce As Talks Start

But Rebels and Colons Busy With Bombs, Guns

EVIAN-LES-BAINS — France and the Algerian rebels opened peace talks today and the de Gaulle government made two side conciliatory gestures:

1. French forces in Algeria were ordered to cease all "offensive operations against the rebels they have been fighting for almost seven years.

2. Algerian rebel cabinets Ahmed ben Bella was flown from a fortress prison on the Ile d'Aix to a site closer to the peace talks in the Lake Geneva resort city.

Paris said in cease-fire orders would remain in effect one month and would then be reconsidered in the light of developments at the peace talks.

In Algeria and Paris, city streets were busy with the bombings and gunfire of both European settlers opposed to the peace negotiations and Algerian rebels agitating against them.

Nearly 30,000 troops and riot police guarded the streets of Algiers after a night of violence in which 28 bombs and grenades exploded.

The only reported casualties in Algiers were injured by a grenade hurled in the street of Bab-el-Oued, Algiers worker section.

To the west, the city of Oran was under curfew in the wake of a savage battle in the centre of the city Friday night between Moslems which left European settlers.

Ben Bella was taken off the island in the Bay of Biscay by helicopter along with his companions Hocine Ait Ahmed and Mohamed Khidder. All three had been seized in 1956 when their Moroccan airliner en route to Tunisia was intercepted by French fighter planes over the Mediterranean and forced to land at Algiers.

The improved conditions ordered for the three men will allow them to make contact with the rebel delegation in Geneva by telephone.

The long awaited peace negotiations opened here in a secluded hotel guarded by hundreds of armed policemen.

52 Americans Leave Cuba In Air Lift

By JACK DENT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HAVANA (CP)—A plane carrying 52 Americans flew to Idaho Falls, Idaho, Saturday night, launching a repatriation plan for United States citizens in Cuba.

Aboard the chartered Pan American DC-6 flight were the last four U.S. journalists in Cuba—Harold Milks, Caribbean chief for The Associated Press; AP reporter Robert Berrelles; Mrs. Ruby Hart Phillips of the New York Times, and Bert Mc-Houseman of United Press International.

There were no incidents as the American's boarded the flight at Havana airport.

Among the crowd at Rancho Boyeros Airport to see them off were Swiss Ambassador Walter Bosshi; Gaston Jacard, Swiss attache who is in charge of American affairs in Cuba, and Belgian Ambassador Louis Couvreur.

The repatriation plan was arranged by the Swiss with the Cuban foreign ministry. Switzerland has been handling U.S. affairs in Cuba since the rupture of Cuban - American relations early last year.

Among those on the flight were six Roman Catholic priests.

About 400 Americans had responded to a Swiss Embassy-sponsored newspaper advertisement asking U.S. citizens desiring to leave Cuba to report to the embassy.

PEARSON CLAIMS CANADA SHOULD JOIN THE OAS

Says Govt. Fails In Responsibilities

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson lashed out at the government Friday night for failing in its hemispheric responsibilities and called for immediate Canadian membership in the Organization of American States.

Opening a week - long tour of the four ridings in which by-elections have been called for June 26, he told a rally of 400 in this St. Lawrence River town that Canada has a vital role to play in mediating Latin American differences.

But it was useless for Canada even to suggest conciliation a Latin American nation was prepared to take its place because other nations of the hemisphere is OAS.

"Since 1945 Canada has made a great contribution to peace in the world," he said. "Now we must make an equal contribution in the Western hemisphere.

"Establishment of a Communist regime in Cuba was a serious menace to the continent. But Canada's attitude in regard should be through collective measures, not intervention by any individual nation.

Canada's attitude should be that I am not interested in Cuba must come through the OAS.

Top Liberals Map Strategy To Force Crime Commission

TORONTO (CP) — The five top figures in the Ontario Liberal party's battle for a royal commission on the province's crime situation met Friday, apparently to map future strategy in the light of a motion that's paid one of them by the two senior provincial police officials.

OPP Commissioner Wilfred Clark and Assistant Commissioner Wilford Franks flew to Sudbury Thursday to demand of Elmer Sopha, Liberal member for the Sudbury area, information he has on bribery among law enforcement officers.

Mr. Sopha said Friday he refused to give the two more any information on an official basis but offered to speak "off the record." He said they refused the offer.

Meeting before the Liberals held their conference in Liberal Leader Lorne Kennedy's Sarnia Park office, Attorney - General Roberts in a statement described Mr. Sopha act like "a good citizen," and disclose to police information he has of the alleged bribery.

Mr. Roberts made the statement following a one-hour meeting with Commissioner Clark and senior officials of his department.

He said Mr. Sopha told the two police officials he had never claimed to have possessed "legal" evidence.

If Mr. Sopha has any evidence, his refusal to disclose it to these two top officials is not the act of a good citizen, to say nothing of him being an elected representative," Mr. Roberts said.

"Mr. Sopha has no evidence—and he's a lawyer and knows what evidence is—then he is guilty of spreading of a lie of a gossip rumors without foundation . . ."

Mr. Roberts said the Liberal MLA told the two men he intended to discuss the situation with the Conservative party.

Present for the Liberal conference besides Mr. Sopha were Mr. Wintermeyer, Vernon Singer, Liberal member for York South, and lawyers Stanley Hogg and Thomas O'Neill of Toronto, who have been sponsors of a resolution at a recent convention of the Ontario Liberal Association.

South Korean Junta Arrests Cabinet Ministers, Generals

SEOUL (AP) — Bowing to pleas of rebel generals, President Po Sun Yun today withdrew his resignation and submission to give South Korea's new military regime constitutional status.

The 63-year-old elder statesman announced that he has agreed to stay on as the civilian figurehead chief-of-state to avoid a "vacuum" in governmental functions.

Foreign diplomats are accredited to the president and United States officials take the view that remaining in office would make recognition of the new regime unnecessary.

The president announced withdrawal of his resignation at a press conference flanked by the two leaders of the ruling Junta Gen. Chang Do Yung and, who named himself premier and defence minister, and Maj.-Gen. Yong Hi Pak.

The 38-year-old Gen. Chang in the 94 - year - old leader stepped at eight past Friday.

In lightning raids during the night South Korea's military rulers jailed yesterday the deposed premier John Chang's cabinet and generals who refused to back Thursday's coup.

The 61-year - old ousted premier talked himself into the arrest. He defied military police trying to take him to prison and demanded that a warrant be produced signed by Junta leader, Gen. Chang.

U.S. Gen. Carter Magruder, the supreme United Nations commander in Korea, has demanded that South Korean military leaders who engineered the overthrowing the elected government return immediately to their barracks.

An authoritative source also disclosed today that Washington is pressuring the ruling military junta — or what's left of it — to accept reforms acceptable to him.

Sources close to Magruder said the U.S. commander fears that while use of troops in the city has ended the fighting here South Korea's defences against Communist North Korea, it unthe United Nations command has exercised since the Korean War in 1950.

The new military regime decreed strict anti - Communist measures against the activities of the Communists and their sympathizers. It says it is a clear and present danger to the nation's security."

The Communist activity is outlawed in South Korea. The measures are similar to those vainly sought by the ousted government and led to the bloody revolution.

"Tightening its grip on the capital, the junta fired chiefs of Seoul Mayor Sang Don Kim, replacing him with Brig.-Gen. Choi Hong, one of the five engineers of the coup.

Diplomatic sources said six unco-operative generals were in custody. There were unverified reports 15 or more were in jail.

Navy Man Says Joint Chiefs Did Not Plan Cuba Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. naval officer, angered by efforts to blame senior military chiefs for a new communist, said today: "No military man in his right mind would have approved the plans that were followed.

The officer, who cannot be identified, is well acquainted with the navy's member of the joint chiefs of staff, Admiral Arleigh Burke.

In general, the officer's opinion coincided with that reported to have been expressed privately by former president Eisenhower.

What angered the navy officer into speaking was the statement by Senator Kefauver, D-Tennessee Democrat, that "we simply need a new chairman and members" of the joint chiefs.

Kefauver's comment came after Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, chairman of the joint chiefs, testified Thursday in closed session before the Senate Latin American affairs subcommittee.

There have been reports that Kefauver blames the army chief of staff, Gen. Maxwell Taylor, for the anti-Castro Cuban invasion, which failed miserably.

The officer said he was "sick" efforts to pin the blame for the Cuban fiasco on the military and the full story should be told.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara has forbidden members of the joint chiefs to defend themselves in public or even to explain publicly the role of the military in the Cuban operation.

Eisenhower, at a meeting with Republican leaders at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm Friday, was reported to have wondered aloud if their joint chiefs had been consulted at all in advance about the invasion.

Burke is said to have observed that some of the details of the invasion were inconceivable to any military planner.

In any case, the navy officer said, the invasion "was a carefully staff the Cuban invasion;" that is, they did not participate in the actual planning.

Further, he added, "the joint chiefs had no responsibility contingent upon the complete accuracy of the information supplied by the Central Intelligence Agency."

Of the CIA information, he said, "predicted a mass uprising in support of the invasion forces.

"If this information proved correct," he continued, "the invasion force would be met by the United States would have to support the invasion with sea and air power."

In the end, he reported, "the plans that were followed were changed and the joint chiefs were opposed to some of the changes. No military man in his right mind would have approved the plans that were carried out."

The April 17 invasion was carried out by about 1,200 men, ill - equipped and without air cover save for a few Second World War B-26 bombers. They were opposed by some 30,000 regular troops armed with tanks and protected overhead by American-built jet trainers.

At one point it seemed clear that the navy was prepared to

SASK. RIDING LEGISLATED OUT OF EXISTENCE

Riding Boundaries Remain Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal constituency of Humboldt-Melfort in Saskatchewan was legislated out of existence Friday.

It became Humboldt-Melfort-Tisdale. And it changed its name—for that

It became Humboldt-Melfort-Tisdale.

The change in name—for that is all it was, since riding boundaries remain unchanged—was done in 25 minutes as the Commons gave swift approval in all stages to a private member's bill by Reynold Rapp, the Conservative MP who represents the riding.

Mr. Rapp said the new name will distinguish between the town of Tisdale.

His measure got full support from the Liberals—even though J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista-Twillingate) observed that the town was settled by a member of the Ukrainian Labor Farmer Series all, he said—from Ontario's Norfolk County.

H. E. Partridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said the town of Wasa, where most of the people "are not of the same Anglo-Saxon complexion" as Mr. Rapp, should also be considered. Mrs. Howard (CCF—Skeena) tried to achieve this through an amendment that was ruled out of order.

A few minutes earlier Mr. Rapp had seen one of his own bills defeated on a voice vote.

WOULD REMOVE BROWNE

It sought to remove from the solicitor-general from the federal cabinet, the present incumbent is Hon William J. Browne, Newfoundland's representative in the cabinet.

Mr. Howard's bill would have posed two alternatives: Either the government would have to appoint a solicitor-general who was not an MP, or if it chose an appointee who was an MP he would have to serve without a cabinet salary — now $17,000, in addition to each member's annual indemnity of $10,000.

The solicitor - general has been a member of the cabinet since 1917 when Sir Robert Borden appointed Arthur Meighen —later Prime Minister Meighen — to the post. Incidentally, Mr. Meighen had been in the Borden ministry—but not the cabinet.

The solicitor-general acts as adviser to the minister of justice in his role as attorney-general of Canada. Among his duties are the assessment of cases for cabinet study and recommendations on commutations of death sentences. Former duties of a solicitor-general in connection with parole are handled by the National Parole Board.

One Shot Fired by Iran Policeman Changed Political Picture There

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—A single pistol shot has changed the political picture in Iran.

The shot quickly brought down the government, closed the parliament and ended any chance of a reform campaign.

What newspapers call "Iran's white revolution" began May 2 when 60,000 teachers, dismayed by the failure of Iraq to survive on salaries as low as $25 a month, went on strike for higher pay.

Only 4,000 teachers equated quietly in the sun outside parliament, a police officer fired point-blank into the crowd. One teacher was killed and the revolution was under way.

Newspapers, under government pressure, at first ignored the incident. Then they turned to the streets shouting "police brutality."

The teachers' plight won sympathy of the general public and a wave of indignation swept Iran.

Echoes of the short revertheated into the royal palace.

"The shah," one informed source said, "was scared out of his wits."

The Iranian public, 30,000,000 strong, was in an ugly mood.

Adding to the discontent, and probably the main complaint of all, was the skyrocketing cost of living in Tehran, where prices have more than doubled in a few years while wages stayed put.

Four months after year's mismanagement, was reported in appalling shape despite $280,000,000 in foreign aid since 1957 and roughly $100,000,000 in petroleum revenues.

Premier Sharif Emani's government was ousted by the shah in May 1960 and was followed the shooting.

The new Iran was appointed Dr. Ali Amini, a suave aristocrat and onetime ambassador who for years had been plotting for free elections, efficiency and a crackdown on corruption.

Amini promised the teachers a raise and declared open war on corruption.

Four army generals were jailed and Amini pledged scores of civilian arrests.

Students of the situation say one cause of rampant low-level corruption is that civil servants' pay is so low some must rob the till to survive.

K-K Meeting May Be Only First of Series

Nikita May Invite JFK to Visit Russia

LONDON (AP) — The world hoped today the Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting in Austria two weeks from now would ease international tension. There was caution about expecting momentous results.

"It's the Vienna walk," said the London Daily Sketch over a cartoon showing the U.S. president and the Soviet premier dancing together.

Indian philosopher - statesman, Vice-President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, said the future of mankind is at stake in these cruel times.

"One of our ancient scriptures tells us that when danger is near, salvation also is near," he said at the New Delhi banquet speech that put the moral support of his neutral nation behind the coming meeting.

He spoke at a state dinner given by Vice-President Johnson.

Foreign Secretary Lord Home of Britain told reporters that he met Kennedy in a salutary atmosphere. "I think all of us we hope very much that good will come out of this meeting."

Kennedy is in Paris en route for talks with Prime Minister Macmillan in London together with Khrushchev June 3-4.

There was no direct comment from French Premier Charles de Gaulle. Kennedy will meet de Gaulle in Paris after he goes direct from these talks to see Macmillan.

The government posts bureau in Bonn said West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer welcomes the meeting.

Britain's press unreservedly applauded the meeting.

Grandmother Threatened In Gananoque

GANANOQUE (CP)—Councilling grandmother Mrs. James Lee, who proposed a tax break for owners who let their property deteriorate into slums, said Friday she has been threatened by embarrassed neighbors.

Mrs. Lee, a member of the town council Tuesday that deterioration of property in her area was the reason for her. She suggested that instead of increasing the assessment of areas who make improvements, council should levy a fine on those who allow their property to slide.

But it was not until she took a photographer on a tour of the depressed areas Friday that she had any success.

"They called me up and threatened me with everything," she said. "They even followed me to my daughter's house and threatened me there."

Councillor Gordon Lunman said Mrs. Lee's strange a person should be fined for throwing paper in the street, but is not fined for throwing a dark yard with trash."

Mrs. Grove claimed friends who expected $8,000 for the sale of their house could only raise $6,000—"because there's some rotten apples in the barrel who have dressed down the whole street."

Dave Moore's Trail Rangers Plan Reunion

More than thirty members of the Bridge St. United Church Trail Ranger and Tuxis boys, which flourished during the 1930's in that church under the leadership of Mr. Dave W. Moore, are expected to attend, Wednesday evening, a reunion which has been planned for this weekend in this city. Everything has been made ready for a fine weekend get together.

Many Belleville citizens well remember Mr. Moore who now lives retired with his wife in Port Arthur. A few weeks ago his only son passed away and it was at that time that a few of the members of the group still living in Belleville decided to arrange a little weekend gathering. Frank Foley was appointed as chairman, John Randle as secretary, Gerald Hyde as treasurer and Doug McIntosh as chairman of reservations. From a list of 35 boys who were members of the group at one time or another, John Randle successfully traced thirty-two addresses. This proved to be a task of monumental proportions as during the intervening twenty-five years they have scattered to points as far afield as Whitehorse in the Yukon, Western Canada and South America. However, all have been notified and many have signified their intention of attending or have forwarded letters or telegrams of greeting to Mr. Moore.

A Saturday evening banquet has been arranged at the Pilot Quinte followed by a dancing party in the same Hotel. On Sunday morning the entire group will attend Bridge St. United Church by body and will be the courtesy of the Board of Stewards. The minister, the guest preacher will be the Rev. Douglas Lattimer, pastor of St. Paul's United Church, Trenton-bridge, Ontario and the only minister who has ever entered the ministry as his life's work. Flowers will adorn the church pulpit in memory of the late members of the group who have passed away. A buffet luncheon will be served at the home of Frank and Dorothy Foley, following church services for all present. Mr. and Mrs. Moore will then have the remainder of their time here in the city available for visiting their many friends. It is planned to make suitable presentations to Mr. and Mrs. Moore as permanent reminders of the reunion. Anyone wishing to be included in the visiting list being prepared for the Moores' new home should contact Frank Foley or any other committee member.

Police Plan Close Check On Highways

Ontario Provincial Police traffic officers will be out in full force over the Victoria Day holiday weekend to check on traffic violators.

In this way, police hope to minimize as far as possible the dangers of serious traffic accidents. Commissioner K. M. McDougall, head of No. 9 headquarters at Belleville, said all cars and trucks personnel would be on duty throughout the holiday.

At the same time Inspector McDougall pleaded for the cooperation of Belleville district motorists in observing traffic regulations.

"It is only by receiving the co-operation of the motorists that we can hope to avoid serious highway accidents," he said.

Railway Officials Unable To Give Damage Estimate

Canadian National Railways officials at Belleville stated to day they hope to have one line of their mainline double track back in operation soon following Thursday night's derailment at Frankford which saw 34 freight cars leave the track and pile up close to 1,000 feet of track.

Officials said they hoped one of the tracks would be back in operation on Sunday, but admitted that it would be some time before all of the wrecked cars were cleared away.

Clearing of the wreckage is continuing around the clock as sections crews have been brought in from both east and west of Belleville to assist.

At this time it is expected that auxiliary crews would start as soon to remove the four wrecked cars which plunged from the Trent Canal bridge, effectively blocking the canal.

Railway officials say it is still too early to estimate the extent of the damage caused by the derailment.

NO ESTIMATE MADE

"We haven't even begun to estimate the damage," stated Mr. R. A. Wilson, local CNR superintendent, when he was at the moment is that the line should be open by Sunday.

Mr. Wilson said many of the 34 derailed cars would be complete write-offs, with the remaining into the total loss would be considered carried in the wrecked cars.

Meanwhile, until the mainline is back in operation through CNR trains are still being re-routed between Belleville and Napanee because of the derailment scene at Trenton.

A lengthy discussion followed concerning futufe meetings and the future activities of service teachers and parents to the benefit of all. Opinions were many and varied, and it was decided to continue this very successful meeting at the next meeting.

Another topic of considerable interest was the possible transfer of several children to Our Lady of Fatima School in September. The May meeting of St. Joseph's P.T.A. was held in the school under the chairmanship of the vice-president, Mr. Paul Fleming. The opening prayer was opened with prayer led by Reports were given by the secretary and the treasurer, and two thank-you notes were read.

Mrs. Beirne and Mrs. Sharland volunteered to work in this auxiliary and find additional members.

Sister Mary Noreen advised that a set of dishes had been donated to the school by Mr. Robert Mercier. These would be a fine addition to the library of books, suitable for grade 8 students.

There was considerable discussion on the proposed picnic to be held in June. Mrs. Beirne suggested that because of the tremendous success of the work entailed in the official picnic of previous years, that for this event the picnic should be more of a parish get-together without the usual great number of planned activities and prizes. This idea met with interest and support, it was moved by Mr. Muldoon, seconded by Mr. Koenders that the executive choose the date and place for the event. Mrs. E. J. Barrett offered her services as general convener.

The slate of officers for the coming year was presented by chairman of the nominating committee, Mr. V. Muldoon.

The new executive includes: president, Paul Fleming, vice-president, Gordon Thurgett; sec.-secretary, Mrs. E. J. Barrett; corr. secretary, Mrs. Doug Bone; treasurer, Pat Metchior.

IN MEMORIAM

LYONS. — In loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away May 20th, 1956.
He is gone, but not forgotten,
And, as dawns another year,
Memories of him come crowding,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Time may change and years may come and go,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they do not know the sorrow,
That lies within the heart concealed.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife and family.

LYONS. — In loving memory of my father, Mr. W. J. Lyons, who passed away May 20th, 1956.
God knew that you were suffering,
That the time had come to climb;
So He closed your weary eyelids,
And whispered, "Peace be thine."
The happy home we once enjoyed,
Is filled with memory still,
And there is left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Laura and son-in-law George.

MOUNTNEY. — In loving memory of my dear brother, Arnold, who passed away May 21st, 1958.
I have kept your memory, dear brother,
To remember, nor whole life through,
But the sweetest will linger forever.
As I treasure the image of you.
—Lovingly remembered by sister Ethel.

MOUNTNEY. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Arnold, who passed away May 21st, 1958.
My soul, now that you were taken
Without an last goodbye,
Rest in our hearts you linger
Where memories never die.
God saw the road was lonely,
Dreaming us close to His side,
He took the dearest one up to heaven.
Forever with Him to abide.
—Lovingly remembered by his mother.

PARKS. — In loving memory of our son, Wilbur, who passed away May 20th, 1956.
Time flies, years roll on fast,
They don't seem much, but they are a long time.
Three little words true and tender
Are ever dear, always
Remembered and remembered-ed by wife, family and grandchildren.

Stamp-Orama

By AL MacDONALD

Collectors looking for something different to collect, may well consider, Canadian First Flight Covers. No group of airmail covers, in my opinion, has more collectors appeal. The covers are historical and each one marks a mile - stone of achievement in aviation, and postal service expansion.

Almost all First Flight Covers, have neat attractive cachets, that give the particulars of the Flight, concisely and pictorially. (See illustration) Best of all, the covers are inexpensive and can very often be purchased for what the collector would have to pay for a used copy of the stamp on the cover.

In 1948, St. Vincent, along with other Crown Colonies had a set of two stamps issued to commemorate the Silver Wedding of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. The set consisted of a 1-2d scarlet and a £1 black stamp. Unfortunately a shipment of the £1 black stamps was lost in transit to the Colony, and rather than risk having some dishonest person or persons sell them to collectors, the stamps were declared invalid, and all stocks, other than those lost were destroyed.

The £1 black stamp was immediately replaced by a stamp of the same value and design printed in purple.

The souvenir sheet of the London International Stamp Exhibition issued in July 1960 is an interesting novelty. The sheet has reproductions of six-well-known printing errors, all in the colors as issued. Included in the six is the Canada Seaway stamp with centre inverted. The famous U.S.A. 24c airmail with inverted centre is also reproduced. The stamps reproduced, it seems, would have an accumulative value of more than $28,000 so buying one of these sheets is about as close as the average collector will ever come to possessing one of these rarities.

Canada coil stamps in pairs make a nice addition to the Canadian collection. Jump pairs of the coils make an even nicer one. These can be collected on our coil stamps issued from 1935 to date. One stamp of the pair is either higher or lower than the other Price wise they are still within the reach of most collectors.

Topical collectors interested in automobiles on stamps will have a regular field day with the new set from Monaco that is being issued to publicize the fiftieth anniversary of the Monte Carlo Automobile Rally, and consists of a 1fr. large diamond shaped stamp showing models of a 1911 and 1961 automobile, and 14 smaller stamps each picturing an antique auto of the period 1894 to 1912.

Should you like to be a specialist? If so, then why not try the early typographed issues of Australia. This offers an excellent and inexpensive field for specialization. Left about every type of variety can be found, these include: Re-entries, double frames, cracked plates, retouches, hair lines, double surfaces, offsets, watermark varieties, shades galore and many others.

The low values can still be bought in bundles of one hundred for next to nothing.

Australian postal history is readily available, and a low cost but detailed catalogue is issued regularly. There is also an active specialists society, so all-in-all, you will find just about every type of hobby activity to form a good specialized collection.

showing a creditable balance in their favor.

Several members attended the Bellville and district pot luck supper held in Eastminster United Church. The party at Corby's recreation rooms netted the news group committee nice amount, which will be used for camping equipment.

Mrs. Furmidge thanked the ladies who helped make this party a success, financially and socially.

The president gave a good report of the conference she attended at Campbellford. Mrs. Helen Holgate is Sunshine convenor, and would appreciate members informing her of sick cases in the group so that she may attend to them.

After the meeting a tasty lunch was served and a film on "Safety for Cubs and Scouts" was enjoyed.

Our thanks to Mrs. George Shorey, press reporter for Canniffon-Corbyville group, for this report.

Pakistani Says Hospitality Unique Here

TRENTON — Guest speaker at Thursday night's meeting of the Kiwanis Club was Bimal Chatterjee of Pakistan, who is employed in the efficiency department of the Bata Shoe Company.

Mr. Chatterjee said that Canadian hospitality is "unique." He said that he felt he was well prepared to judge as he had travelled in Europe, Asia and Africa.

However, said Mr. Chatterjee, the people of the eastern countries do not, on the whole, appreciate what the United States and Canada have done to assist them. He said that while the governments of the countries are on friendly terms with the Canadian and U.S. governments, there was a lack of "individual understanding" which led to eastern people regarding assistance from western countries as a sort of "insurance" against the establishment of Communism.

He appealed to the members of the club to do what they could to bring about greater understanding between the peoples by standing between the people of both countries, and suggested that the children of the Kiwanians could be encouraged to become pen-friends with children to correspond with children in eastern countries. He also extended a personal invitation to the members to visit him when he returns to Pakistan to continue his work.

Mr. Chatterjee was introduced by Jack Burrows and thanked by vice-president Howard Aziz.

Manager MacAllister stated that a host of other players have been trying out for all positions on the team and all will be given a chance to prove themselves under fire before final selections are made. Included among the glove men competing for infield positions are Ed Gerrard, J. Alexander, Ron Smith, Roger Drake, Bugs MacDonald and Bob Carscadden. Several top-notch ball hawks have been practising for duty in the outfield pastures, including John Hughes, Leroy Wannamaker, Don Cole, L. Mowat and E. Jesse.

Trenton High School

By SANDY BROWN

During last week, classes were shortened, ending at 3 p.m. This enabled all those participating in Air Cadet Day to practise drill out on the sports field. On Thursday Wing Cmdr. E. M. Butcher, senior personnel staff officer of RCAF Air Transport Command, inspected 173 Squadron, Two flights of girl Air Cadets participated.

Final examination schedules have been posted throughout the school. Exams will commence on June 9th and run until the end of the month. All those who have been loafing had better buckle down to some hard work right now.

The "Aquamarine Ball" was a decided success. The gym was crowded to capacity as students, teachers and guests danced to the excellent music of the Starlighters. Two welcome lions gave the dancers the idea that they were indeed "20,000 leagues under the sea." The highlight of the evening was the crowning of the Queen of the Ball - - - Marie Leavy.

THE TATTLER

And now for the gossip — it has been suggested that last names might help some of the Ed Sullivan fans know just who my "victims" are. My apologies to John Little. The rest know their names well.

Didn't Brent Tilson look proud when Sally was crowned Queen of the Ball?

What is it in Omemee that interests F. Johnson so?

Hubert Campbell has given up racing girls and has taken to cars instead. What changed his mind?

Can it really be true that Mr. Gagne had the measles?

Will Betty Caverly and Bob Rupert ever make up?

Bonnie Urquart was telling us all about the big, dark-haired hunk of masculinity we saw her with recently. Hum.

Confidential to Mr. "X" — Sorry we printed your name last week.

Why was Barbara Barbour so anxious to go to Ottawa last week? Could the initials Dick or J.A. have anything to do with it?

That's all for now.

RCAF Assoc. Officers Named

WINNIPEG (CP) — The RCAF Association Friday adopted a resolution urging all provincial departments of education to include in their school curricula "a study of the Communist threat to our way of life."

The association, at its annual convention, expressed "concern and alarm at the apparent apathy of a large section of the Canadian population in the grave seriousness of the tremendous threat posed by Communist ideology to our democratic principles and freedom."

Leonard N. Baldock of Windsor was re-elected president.

Other officers include Air Vice-Marshal F. C. Wait, Ottawa, first vice-president; Group Capt. Stefan M. Smuk, Ottawa, vice-chairman.

NIGHT CROAKERS

ST. ALBANS, England (CP) — About 300 noisy frogs had to be evicted from a fish pond. Nearby residents complained they were being kept awake by the frogs' midnight mating calls.

Lionel Train, CNR Despatcher, Retires, 50 Years of Service

About 150 friends and coworkers gathered at the Club Canara yesterday evening to pay honor to Lionel the "Big" Train on the occasion of his retirement from the Canadian National Railways following a half century of service.

Born in Kingston 68 years ago, "The Big" Train, as his friends are won't to call him, joined the CNR as an assistant agent in 1911. Shortly after this he was promoted to operator and agent and, in 1917, became a train despatcher. In 1927 he became an assistant chief despatcher, followed by his advancement to chief despatcher for the Belleville division in 1937, serving in this capacity up to his retirement at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

In introducing the guest of honor, Alex Wilson, operations manager at Belleville, noted that the banquet was being held in a building which Mr. Train had been instrumental in bringing into being, the CNRA Club building.

A number of CNR executives who had worked "with not for," as W. J. Rupert, operations manager of the London division emphasized, Mr. Train during their career in the company were on hand to express their appreciation of his work and guidance.

Much mention was made of the assistance, direction and advice which Mr. Train was always ready to give those working with and under him and of his ability to recognize talent in a person and recommend that man for advancement.

MANY PAY COMPLIMENTS

Amongst those paying these heartfelt compliments to the guest of honor were C. J. Campbell, superintendent of transportation at Toronto; J. A. Lomas, superintendent of transportation at Belleville; C. E. Goodenough, assistant superintendent at Port Huron, Michigan, who also brought the best wishes of a number of Mr. Train's friends in the Detroit and Battle Creek divisions; W. E. Tate, general superintendent of transportation at Toronto; E. Morton, retired assistant superintendent from Toronto; J. Smyth, superintendent at Oshawa; C. E. Shaver, operations manager at Toronto; J. J. Robertson, building master at Toronto; and Newt. Thompson, retired chief clerk from Belleville.

Following the presentation of some gifts for himself and Mrs. Train, who was unfortunately absent because of a forthcoming operation, Mr. Train thanked all those present and absent, who had given him their co-operation at all levels and in all departments during his 50 years of service with the CNR. He noted that at the time he was first employed with the railway the going wage rate was $30 a month with no assigned days off.

He expressed his thanks to those whom he had served under for the practical education which he had received from them and urged those whom he was leaving behind to carry on co-operatively to keep the CNR operating as efficiently as possible to keep her "in the black."

Gold Teeth in the Gift Horse's Mouth

What was the first city in the world to suffer the fate of the result of the unique properties of uranium?

If you say Hiroshima in 1945 you are wrong. It was Paris—in 1918. The Germans used an uranium-steel alloy to line the barrel of "Big Bertha," the mammoth cannon which hurled 300-pound shells 75 to 80 miles into the French capital.

Today, though, the "future" of uranium is linked not with war but with peace.

"Barring the calamity of another world war, or an imminent threat of one, there is small possibility of the requirement of uranium for military purposes remaining at its present level," said William M. Gilchrist, president of the Crown corporation, Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd., at a meeting of the Canadian Nuclear Association in Toronto on Wednesday. The U.S., he says, will have large stockpiles of nuclear weapons when current contracts with Canadian mines are complete.

In this appraisal, Mr. Gilchrist appears to us to be half-right. The imminent threat of war might produce additional business for Canadian mines—but war would not. Our civilization would have been wrecked long before delivery could be made, perhaps even before orders could be placed. The future of the uranium industry, is thus irrevocably wedded to the peaceful use of this metal.

"I am supremely confident as to the long range outlook for uranium," said Mr. Gilchrist, and thinking men will echo his sentiments, always provided we can escape a nuclear holocaust. If there not an ever-mounting demand for more of this world's goods, from a rapidly multiplying world population? And are there not our other power resources being rapidly depleted, so rapidly, indeed, that a historian like Arnold Toynbee predicts that the U.S. and countries which aspire to consume goods at the prevailing rate in that nation will have to eventually accept a lower standard of living? In circumstances like this, uranium as a nuclear fuel will eventually be essential.

But Mr. Gilchrist is not confining his hopes for uranium's future to its use in nuclear power plants. Eldorado's research and development division has under study possible non-nuclear uses, and it was in this connection that Mr. Gilchrist called the attention of his audience to Germany's use of an uranium-steel alloy in "Big Bertha." Though uranium was discovered in 1789, for 170 years it was rare and costly. "No one ever dreamed until very recent times that it would become relatively abundant at a cost in keeping with widespread industrial application." Today, though, there are in Canada "millions of tons of uranium ore in known deposits and untold millions still to be discovered" and other lands also have abundant supplies of this metal. Thus research in alloys of uranium with steel—which started over sixty years ago with the first patent being granted in France in 1897—has been stepped up and "a few days ago Algoma Steel Corp. ran its first commercial-size heat of uranium steel at its Sault Ste. Marie mill—the first in the world."

While "it became clear that the use of uranium in alloys, and especially as an additive to steel, offered the best possibility for non-nuclear use of significant amounts of uranium," "it may take scores or even hundreds of uses to build up tonnages equal to those we enjoyed under the U.S. and United Kingdom nuclear contracts." "In most instances," said Mr. Gilchrist, "the uranium added to each ton of steel ranges from eight ounces to two pounds" and no other non-nuclear use "to date seems to indicate a potential requirement equal to that of the steel industry." "That is why we have to keep looking for a wide variety of uses."

That is why, too, Mr. Gilchrist refers to "the hard reality of a waiting period of perhaps ten years or longer before the requirements of nuclear reactors and of new-found industrial applications will demand production on anything like the scale attained in 1958 and 1959."

But he sees the uranium industry as one of Canada's big assets—"nearly two billion dollars poured into our economy from abroad," "a fully integrated uranium industry with all its assets written off and solid cash reserves in the till," large deposits of ore and "a battalion of the world's top scientists, technical and production specialists to keep Canada in the forefront of uranium development."

"These are the kind of gold teeth I hope our critics will see when they gaze in the mouth of our uranium gift horse," said Mr. Gilchrist, words which should cheer folks up Bancroft way as they echo his assertion that "notwithstanding the possibility of a few tough years ahead of us, there is plenty of life in the old horse yet."

Fly-Swatter Blow Costly

Elzévier - Wiarton Record

It is an interesting fact of history that Prince's prowess in Algeria began 134 years ago, with the stroke of a fly-swatter. Pierre Deval, consul of King Charles X of France, had been summoned to the office of Dey Hussein, ruler of Algeria. An argument ensued over payment for Algerian wheat which had been accepted by the French army.

One of Deval's remarks irritated the Dey to such an extent that he slapped the French diplomat with a fly-swatter. That night Deval wrote to Paris that he had been attacked without provocation and recommended severe measures to avenge this insult to a representative of the French crown.

The reply was quick. First, the French navy inaugurated a three-year blockade of the port of Algiers, and then the French army invaded with 37,000 troops. The city of Algiers surrendered to Admiral De Bourmont after Hussein was exiled to Naples with his 110-woman harem and 1,500 soldiers-of-fortune from Algeria.

French supremacy was maintained by garrisons in the cities of Oran, Algiers, Bougie and Bona, guarded by the Foreign Legion-general. Resistance by the natives smouldered. It centred around a religious leader, Emir Abd-El-Kader, who declared a holy war against France. It took 10 years and thousands of French lives to subdue him. In 1847, to consolidate her conquests, France adopted a policy of colonization.

Some 40,000 French settlers were brought to Algeria. They were the original "colons" of many of today's white Algerians trace their ancestry back to these pioneers, and they feel that Algeria is an integral part of France. Those who colonized branded as "right extremists," vigorously oppose President de Gaulle's policies of self-determination for Algeria.

Pay Cash If Possible

JKitchener - Waterloo Record

Credit buying has a rightful place in our economy. But, like so many other good things, it can be overdone.

Hillel Black of New York, author of the book, "Buy Now," gave statistics recently to back up his claims that millions of Canadians and Americans literally are living on-the-cuff and that trying to stop one step ahead of the bill collectors.

He said he wasn't opposed to the idea of buying on credit. But he did object to people being deceived in the matter of finance charges which accompany such purchases. He claimed that in instance after instance more profit was realized on finance charges than on the sale of the merchandise itself.

Mr. Black had this sound advice to offer: "Pay cash when ever possible."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The poet, Lord Byron, called angling "that solitary vice" and it is solitary no more. To find a little solitude in which to fish is now a matter of difficulty for man as for the poor. Since the introduction of motor car, the outboard engine and the aircraft, the proportion of the population that can discover the joys of angling has blown out like a balloon. In Lord Byron's day he was amused to see, here and there, a solitary figure haunted by a stream, or perhaps wading and casting; and it irked the noble poet. In his poem Don Juan he made a nasty crack at anglers.

"And angling, too, that solitary vice,
Whatever Izaak Walton sings or says;
The quaint, old, cruel cox comb in his gullet
Should have a hook, and line, and sinker pull'd."

Well, Don Juan to his hobby could be sure. But throughout no more solitary figures to be seen in most of the width and length of Canada. By car on every road, by outboard on every stream and lake by aircraft into what was conceived by our parents to be a never-to-be-conquered hinterland, the anglers are swarming. And the tackle business has risen to be one of the major industries along with cosmetics and the pulp and paper industry.

For solitude nowadays, one must stay at home.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DON'T BE A HOARDER

One of the problems that plagued the home front during World War Two was the hoarder. At a time of many inevitable shortages, some unpatriotic people made the situation even worse by grabbing and hiding a year-or-so's supply of items that other citizens were trying to do without. Sometimes in the long run, some of the hoarders were stuck; either the supplies they had saved went bad and had to be thrown out, or else at the end they were left with large quantities of things which were plentiful at normal prices.

We may well laugh at the discomfiture of such wartime hoarders, but there is another kind of hoarder whose situation is not laughable at all, but pitiable or even tragic. The world is full of people who are hoarding up their lives, afraid to live tomorrow. "Sometime in the future" they are going to fulfill the desire of their hearts; in the meantime, they are just going through the motions of life. They are going to have a good time later on.

The tragedy of such lives is that "sometime in the future" never comes for so many people. They do not know it, but it is "later on" right now for them. They have waited in vain for joy they will never have.

Don't be a hoarder — live now. The secret of happiness is not hoarding but giving. "God so loved that he gave . . ."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 20th, 1941.

In order to procure what is claimed to be the best harness racing card ever presented on Belleville tracks, directors of the Belleville Fair Board, at a special meeting last night, set aside a substantial sum of money for this purpose. A special committee consisting of Dr. H. W. Tessaut, Dr. H. P. Weisbanks, Jack Lafferty, and Adam Palmer, was appointed with full powers to act, to take charge of this phase of entertainment at the fall exhibition.

Eighteen members of the 1941 graduating class of the School of Nursing, Belleville General Hospital, received diplomas at the annual graduation exercises held Thursday evening in the Collegiate Auditorium. They had the privilege of being addressed by one of Canada's outstanding women in public life, Mrs. H. P. Plumtre of Toronto, honorary director of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, who left with her hearers a message of challenge and inspiration as they go out into the world, as they enter a great profession.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Women Teachers' Federation was held at the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday, May 7th. Miss Pearl Campbell of the staff of Queen Victoria School, was presented with a gold membership pin honor of her recent appointment to the presidency of the Women Teachers' Federation for the Province of Ontario.

Mr. E. J. Cowain, formerly of Tweed, has purchased a gold mine near Marmora which is said to be very rich. Samples sent to Montreal show that the precious metal exists in considerable quantities.

The Sons of England will attend the morning service in the Bridge Street Church on Sunday morning.

According to Inspector H. J. Clarke's report to the Board of Education, there are 1617 pupils attending the public schools in this city, which is an increase of 102 over last year and the largest in the history of the city. There are thirty-six qualified teachers on the staff.

In a baseball match this evening between Queen Mary School and St. Michael's School the former team won, the score being 13 to 10. The following composed the teams: Queen Mary's School — Oliphant, Stark, Weir, Andrews, Gardiner, Smith and Linfield. Mere Growth Not Enough

London Economist

Latin America is one big part of the world where the poor still grow poorer. As the numbers multiply and the cost of living jerks up, more people have less to share.

This is not necessarily relative poverty. Latin America's wealthy people at the bottom it makes very little difference whether their country's economy is running, jumping or standing still in Mexico, for instance, after 10 years of economic expansion, only a tenth of the population was substantially better off; 70 percent remained much as they had been, and the fifth at the bottom were worse off than ever.

President Kennedy summed up the situation in March when he presented to the U.S. Congress the principles of his "alliance for progress" to assist the Latin republics in their social development "Economic growth without social progress lets the great majority of the people remain in poverty while a privileged few reap the benefits of rising national output."

Mr. Kennedy has struck to the heart of Latin America's troubles, But two questions are still to be answered. Is the U.S. administration prepared to accept the consequences of its advice if the consequences extend to say, expropriation certain American companies? Second, have the Latin American governments the intention of responding seriously? Or do they hope to bluff their way through?

Letter To The Editor

Soldier's Tribute To Padre Goforth

Editor,

Ontario Intelligencer:

The sudden death of H/Lt. Col. Fred Goforth, MC, has shocked his former comrades.

"We're not as one who loses his fellow-men" was Ben Ashem's plea in Leigh Hunt's poem. In like circumstances Captain Goforth (as he was widely remembered) need have said nothing. His entire life was a living manifestation that he did, indeed, love his fellowmen:

Just as a few are blessed with a gift for creating great music or painting, Fred Goforth had a talent. His was of a rarer sort. It was an invisible power that emanated from him enabling him to draw forth the good in men. When he stood amongst a group of soldiers each felt better, just happy and exhilarating that his worthiness had been increased and, oddly enough, this feeling seemed to extend to the enemy or his comrades standing near him. Contempt or irritation towards others disappeared. I believe most people knew Goforth had that power. When he was talking to us or merely in the same room with us, we felt better. We respected him better. Our respect for each other heightened. Even his fellow staff lost their fear and the boasters ceased to boast.

I like recalling those services on the hillside at Piedemonte Cassino, sometimes Sicily or even Jew, we forgot our relations against the war when Captain Goforth's blessing and sincerity and eloquence.

They often say of a man "He was one in a million." It is not trite but quite apt to Fred Goforth, in connection with Fred Goforth.

The Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment was uniquely blessed in having such a man as chaplain during those eventful days in Italy.

Armchair Students

Guelph Mercury

Guelph high school students may find that they are over-worked, but they accomplish more than their United States cousins in a shorter time.

This is the message which two Lansdale, Pa., high school students brought home after spending a month in Flint, Michigan, high school as part of an exchange visit program sponsored by the two cities.

The students in the Michigan school, when asked to introduce themselves more in their classroom work, than do the Ontario students, "Here at Flint schools" attributed this to the fact that they are given a chance to express themselves in the classroom. The Michigan high school students have more freedom, by, but do not command the respect from their teachers they do in the Ontario schools.

They are all armchair students in the Ontario schools the reason being that the students are not encouraged to make notes so they don't need a desk. No doubt armchairs are cheaper than desks, so the boards of education save money in their school costs. In the week that the two London students attended the St. Clair school they saw a few students taking notes, but many were undertaking such activities as they reclined in their armchairs.

The St. Clair students were found to be more friendly than the students in the London school and went out of their way to say "hello" as they passed fellow-students, on the street. The girls also didn't appear to be as self-conscious for a fashion show, as they made their way to the stage in their dressed "casual like," the London students say, while the boys did the same.

Just what progress lets the great majority of the people remain in poverty while a privileged few reap the benefits of rising national output is a big question.

To Your Good Health

It Is Possible to Correct A Painful 'Hamme Toe'

By Joseph G. Molner M.D

"Dear Dr. Molner: One of my feet is rather crippled and has been most of my life. I am 58, and on one toe that is drawn up the joint hits the shoe. Therefore a corn has been formed there, and at times gets awfully sore.

"I've been able to control the pain by trimming or by using corn removers, but during the past year it has gotten more sore and gets red or puffed looking. Is this anything to be concerned about or is it just a result of a real sore corn?" — Mrs. M. O."

This is probably a "hamme toe." But I haven't seen it, and there's one thing I won't do in this column, and that's to prescribe about things I haven't seen. I positively refuse to give a diagnosis by mail. Maybe I could be right 99 per cent of the time, but I might be wrong in the other 10 per cent, or five per cent or two percent or one-half per cent. You, of course, understand why I'm trying to be careful.

With that qualification, let's go on. A "hammertoe" is something that usually occurs in the second toe, but can be in some other toe.

Sometimes hammer toe starts in childhood. Sometimes it starts after adult age has been reached. Shoes that don't fit properly are the most frequent cause. So far as I know hammer toe doesn't occur in people who go barefoot all their lives.

Shoes are a wonderful invention, but shoes sometimes create problems. Feet are not all the same shape. Neither are shoes. So let's agree that sometimes the wrong shoe is chosen for a foot. It should be changed, but it does.

Then there isn't quite enough length for the toe that sticks out farthest, the toe is bent a little.

The upper part of the toe rubs against the shoe and callus, or corn, or thickened place in the skin, develops. If there is sufficient pressure, the bursa, or sac on the joint of the toe, is irritated. Then fluid develops and it accumulates under the callus or corn, or whole-toe-callus. (The turned down tip of the toe may get sore, too.)

If the bend in the toes has become considerably fixed, no mere change to shoes that fit properly won't undo the damage that has been done. The toe has become used to being bent, and it stays bent.

Sometimes, especially when the patient is young, the trouble can be solved by helping the toe so it lies flat. This should first be done by a doctor, or else by a podiatrist (trained in foot troubles). After the doctor shows how to do the taping, you can usually do it yourself.

In stubborn cases it's too late for taping, and surgery is necessary. By "surgery" I don't mean hitting off the toe or any part of it. But surgical measures permit the toe to be flat again.

The "hammer toe" is not anything to be worried or frightened about. But it hurts, and it's a nuisance, and it can be corrected.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have arthritis in my knees. Would I aggravate it by taking a hot bath an hour or so before I leave for work?" Mrs. M. A."

No. Hot baths and hot packs often ease the pain and stiffness considerably, and won't aggravate the condition. Aspirin is the form of medicine taken before you leave for work, may help a lot.

Good Health Dubious Aim?

Windsor Star

Most people have had experiences of saying a thing they didn't really mean, or of saying things in such a way as to leave a meaning other intended. This can be most embarrassing.

An example occurred at the Ontario Chamber of Commerce convention. Dr. Samuel J. Sellers of St. Catherines was speaking of health problems and said:

"The public must be reminded that if medicine is to be maintained for the optimum purpose of securing health for people, then serious consideration must be given to the social problem of doctor-patient ratio which 'good health' really depends."

All will be startled by the phrase "dubious purpose of securing health for people" in a civilized society could regard the securing of good health as a "dubious purpose." Certainly no member of the medical profession or of the public so. It wouldn't be regarded in that way even in the most primitive society.

Dr. Sabia's statement, therefore is incredible. He just couldn't have meant it. Yet it is odd that in the prepared text of his speech.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE HIGHEST ART

We hear so much of art. But what is art? And what is the highest form of art?

Lafcadio Hearn said that "unselfishness ought to be the real test of the very highest kind of art."

Why do I stop and fondle and smell the flowers in front of my pet pansies this spring time? Why do I look into the eyes of the mutest and best of natural thrills, like streaks of color reflected, light up my brain?

Why do I understand the song of the brook, and stand for minutes to enjoy some small bird as a little throat trembles and vibrates with happy song?

Are we not all — to a greater or less degree — appreciators of the highest art when we do such things?

Do we not come away from such experiences richer in heart and with a feeling of thankfulness to God that we did not feel before?

I remember watching an actor one evening. It seemed to me that from beginning to end in his role, he did not utter one false note. He was so much at one with the part that he was almost all art. It not this art, then some touch of all that we are in the all that had never been?

And when we have done this thing extremely well — better than we have ever done it before, with no thought of selfish gain — have we not played upon the "harp of the highest art?"

Has not someone written that what this old world needs is just the "art of being kind!"? Isn't he also, fulfilling the highest art who appreciates?

A Lift For Living

Faith and Worship Precede Inspiration for Good Life

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

How inspiration lifts us — The late James Francis Cooke, former editor of "Etude" once asked Victor Herbert where he got so many of his melodies. The composer replied that many of them came in his dreams and he woke up singing and whistling them.

I personally cannot claim sleep as the birthplace of many brilliant ideas. But I have gone to bed with a problem on my mind and awakened with a new insight. "I imagine you have, also.

You see, our minds are not little self-starting, self-sustaining machines. There are times when even ordinary morals get inspirations. Something seems to break in upon the familiar tenor of though. New insights, new flashes of truth come as if from a higher wisdom.

These flashes of inspiration strikes us partly because of something alive in the atmosphere around us and partly because of something charged up within us. We live in contact with One who "is able to do, exceeding abundantly" above all that we ask or think according to the power that worketh in us." All of us have moments when we are inspired by that power to words and deeds above our ordinary selves.

Now, of course, men may be fooled in this matter of inspiration. A person may think he is hearing the voice of God when he is listening only to his own ego. If we would be sure of that inspiration from God we must test it. The test of divine revelation is whether it finds the human heart at its deepest levels and stirs it to creative goodness. It was the application of this test which caused Coleridge to conclude that the Bible was the word of God. He said, "The words of the Bible find me at greater depths of my being than any other book does." The words which found Coleridge still waken us.

We cannot give a good definition of inspiration. But I think of the old sailor who was asked by his little grandson, "What is the wind?" He answered, "I can't tell you, but I know how to hoist a sail.

Here are a few suggestions for hoisting the sail to catch the inspiration needed in this day of doldrums over Cuba, the Congo, Laos and other trouble spots.

1. Read some devotional literature. A leading educator told a crowd of bankers that the present reading rate of Americans is not quite two books per person per year. On the world scale Lenin's writings now outsell the Bible.

2. Worship. A famous American writer relates how he once complained to his father about compulsory chapel attendance at college. He though it a waste of time. The father, a professor on the campus, replied that when a person is turning grindstone every moment counts, but when one is making a life, it is the inspired moments which count.

3. Take time to catch the spirit of God. Isaiah's words still work "They who wait for the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings like eagles, they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint."

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

By HARRIET STEVENS

In a small article on New Zealand speech, we learned that at one time, there were different idiomatic terms in various parts of the small island. Some had stemmed from the Scottish influence, some from the Cockney settlers and most from the native Maori. Now, their idioms are fairly regular over the islands but still distinctive.

Thinking about our Canadian speech, it seems that we are a plain and flat and colorless lot that so observers tell us. Even in other matters, that we have not discovered our identity for ourselves and are not trying too hard to do so. We are told we are dull and stodgy; most likely it is true.

This is a shame when we have such a diverse heritage, the mingling of Indian, the colorful French and the imaginative Celt among all the others. If we can find a wonderful list of distinctive place names was a wonderful note long ago in an article in the Imperial Oil Review. More recently a Government Travel Bureau uses these distinctive names as attractions. Plus Plon and Riceere du Loup we now take quite for granted as we do Moose Jaw and Medicine Hat.

UNUSUAL NAMES

From the Maritimes comes the largest list of unusual names. School children in New Brunswick chant, "Little L'Etete and Big L'Etang, Passamaquoddy and Grand Manan." These are islands and fairly easy to pronounce, but one must have a Maritimer to give you the rhythm of most names.

On the whole our speech is fairly uniform across the country, but hoosers again go mostly to the Maritimers for recognizable accents. Our newest province, of course, gives us a wealth of names, stories, accents and individuality. The fact that it is distinct and one of the first settlements by people from the British Isles has kept the speech colorful, while the hard, vigorous life has added many new aspects.

The Maritimes again give us our provincial nicknames — Bluenose, Herring-choker and Spud-islander — also our most distinctive accent and turn of phrase. To a person with a very acute ear, there are shades of accent from which one can determine the origin. The Ottawa Valley accent comes to mind: this is Irish in origin with the peculiar Irish sound in words as marry and carry.

Newfoundland and Outy people in Ontario can often be told from their speech. We suppose that is why we have such variations in the use of a phrase or an emphasis in many districts. Then we translated speech to a Trenton man recently, he said "How do you get to Toronto? When we answered, "hotel," with the accent on the second syllable, he replied, "There are. You do not come originally from this district, for we say 'hotel' with the accent on the first syllable."

OTHER SPEECH HABITS

Ordinarily, when the name of a man who has the title 'Sir' is spoken, the rhythm or accent falls on the given and surnames with the 'Sir' kept light, such as Sir Winston Churchill. However, when a 'Bellevillian says Sir Mackenzie Bowell, he places the stress very definitely on the 'Sir,' even with a slight pause before continuing the name.

In a conversation a few weeks ago with a lady who has come here from the States, she says the locutions we say "Not too badly," when asked how we are, instead of "very well" as she has found more usual in other places. Inevitably, she also mentioned "down town."

There is someone in Belleville who says the phrase "down street" is distinctly Belleville. If it is, it spread to other parts long ago, for it was always used in Morrisburg and villages along the St. Lawrence many years ago.

It may be it is all a case of "You like tomayioes and I like tomahioes."

WHITEMAN — KING

A lovely double-ring wedding was solemnized on Saturday, May 6, at 2.00 p.m. in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, by Rev. C. Howerman, when Yvonne Irma King, of Harold, Ont., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd King, was united in marriage to Ronald Keith Whiteman of Stirling, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whiteman. Beautiful white gladioli and yellow Shasta chrysanthemums, mingled with ferns, adorned the chancel and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

The bridal table was appropriately appointed in the traditional manner, with its centrepiece, the three-tier wedding cake and the flowers of the bridal attendants.

For travelling to the northern United States, Mrs. Whiteman donned a navy blue suit with matching floral print blouse with veil sprinkled with matching seed pearls, in fingertip length, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations, blush roses and white stephanotis.

Her maid of honor was Miss Marjorie McArton, of Stirling. Her dress was pale green lace with silk organza with softly draped bodice and bouffant skirt, with matching headdress and shoes.

The senior bridesmaids were Miss Mildred Morton, of Harold, Ontario, and Miss Marjorie Wellington, of Stirling, who were gowned in identical pale-blue organza, with matching headdresses. The junior bridesmaid, Miss Barbara Callow, of Ameliasburg, was also gowned similarly in pale-green organza, with matching headdress, and accessories. All carried nosegays of white and blue mums centred with pink rose roses.

Little Debbie Tryon, of Belleville, was a demure and sweet flower girl in her pure white silk organza frock with floral headpiece, and carrying a basket of aqua and yellow mums.

Mr. Robert Philp, of Stirling, attended the bridegroom and Messrs. Lloyd King, brother of the bridegroom, of Stirling and Murray Whiteman, of Belleville, also brother of the bridegroom, ushered in the guests.

Master Randy Whiteman, of Stirling, was ring-bearer.

Following the ceremony, the reception, was held at the I.O.O.F. Hall in Stirling, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore a pure silk organza sheath, gown in mauve over printed silk with mauve hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, who was also in mauve printed silk with beige duster, matching accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Borscht Belt Supports Sumptuous Resort Menus

By Shirley and Bob Stone

When it comes to unique traditions, few resort areas in the world can match New York's fabled Catskill Mountains. Despite the warm hominess of the hotels here, a tenderfoot who doesn't understand the specific customs can feel as lost as the regulars feel comfortable.

Even the area's nickname of "Borscht Belt" has a private significance. Borscht, a violet-hued soup of beets and sour cream, is a daily menu staple and is symbolic of the hour in which dairy foods are held by the city dwellers who frequent the place. As all city dwellers know, cottage cheese, sour cream and milk taste wonderfully different in the country.

For half a century food has been the dominant attraction at the hotels (bars are strikingly empty even at cocktail time) and in night clubs, soft drinks outnumber hard ones on the tables). The American plan probably originated here, and most of the hotels cater to the relish of satisfying guests gastronomically that there are no checkers in the kitchen, both because the quality of the food is taken very seriously and because a guest may order anything or everything on the menu without restriction.

Even menus are only suggestive. Typical one shows 12 kinds of fish for breakfast and there are others if you can think of them. Certain dishes such as blintzes (cottage cheese crepes), potato pancakes and the ubiquitous borscht are always available. Dinners usually offer half a dozen appetizers, three soups, a between courses "sweet" New Yorker, call an entree, seven hot vegetables and another half dozen desserts.

Naturally enough, dining rooms are the headquarters of social activity. Reservations are chosen for their ability to sing up-front and seat them with due regard to their status. Table assignments, as on ocean liners, have as practical significance. Celebrities have been known to change hotels because they felt decrease by the location of their table, and stenographers have been fired because there were too few of the dining room and next door to support a waiter, much less a busboy. Single people are usually placed at big tables near the front of the dining room and next to the great centre aisle so they may move easily and be seen. Families are relegated to corners where the kids can't disturb too many other guests. Convention groups, who always bring noise, are assigned to the back of the room. Celebrities get spots where they can be greeted by passing guests, as just above or below the steps to the super room, and anyone who wants to stare has to break his stride awkwardly and turn his head. Anyone who doesn't fit by he decides against the risk of stumbling.

Staff members often are chosen with less regard for professional qualifications than for other potential. Many a college student has come to the mountains married a public guest and returned as a paying customer for three years as a bride. The light of management desperate for the personality shortage of bachelors. And if a pretty waitress catches the eye of a bachelor guest, more than the vacationing sloppiest at his table, management philosophically decides that the guest is always right.

Snob appeal is another consideration. Jimmy Demarest is the son of Mr. Buster Crabbe is swimming pro at the Concord in Kiamesha Lake. Mike Souchak's father is a linkman and so less a personage than Florence Chadwick gives lessons at Grossinger's pool. None of them are around very much, however.

So many bright names of show business had Sid Caesar, Merman, Milton Berle, Robert Merrill, Eddie Fisher (the list is almost endless) — got their starts as staff entertainers here, that the area's job is considered by aspirants a sure ticket to success and most are willing to work for their borscht alone.

Staff entertainers are a breed peculiar to the Catskills. Since the worst thing that can happen at a summer resort is rain, their greatest challenge is to keep guests smiling on such days. Jokes, games and all sorts of artificially created fun are the "rage" in fact, known as "tumulters" and the brash style of the Series and the Gay Adamses can be traced directly to their backgrounds.

Perhaps the most unusual aspect is the utter lack of class distinction. Unlike nearly all other resort areas, the hotels here do not cater only to those of wealth. They are, in fact, the best. Wide ranges of accommodations, from dormitories and bungalows to all available at most hotels, and it is not unusual to find secretaries who has saved her husband-bunting money to rub the be-minked shoulder of the banker's wife in the lobby.

After all, it's quite likely the boss met his wife here when she was a secretary.

THE DESIRE ACCOMPLISHED

"I adore Emma . . . If my night continues as good as it is, one day I shall be a great artist."—George du Maurier in "The Du Mauriers" by Daphne du Maurier.

The wheel-of-fortune that enabled Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree's dream (A theatre of his own) to come true has given a furious spin by the production of one play named "Trilby."

This was based on the novel by George du Maurier and produced at the Haymarket Theatre in London Oct. 30, 1895, to become the greatest financial success of Tree's career. It was repeatedly revived. The public loved it, for it possessed meaning in terms of its generation. And it made a fortune as a play for both the author and producer. As a novel it brought great wealth to its writer.

Who, then, was George du Maurier, the famous author?

In the next century, his own granddaughter, Daphne du Maurier, would write about him and his family in a volume published in 1936, two years before the publication of her own most successful novel, "Rebbeca."

Daphne reveals how her English grandmother married her impoverished French, nobleman, grandfather. How the couple eloped to make ends meet to support their three children, George, Eugene and Isobel. How the family lived alternately in France and England sometimes, while the father, unfitted for any profession, though he loved to sing, dabbled in science and inventions. How George in his own teens, out of love for his father, worked in a hated science laboratory in London, when his fingers ached to sketch and paint. How Eugene entered the French army, while Isobel became a governess, and a close friend of a lovely young girl named Emma Wightwick, with whom George later fell in love.

On the death of the father, George returned to Paris to study painting. Here, days of gay student life would remain in memory. Later he went to Belgium to continue his art study, only to discover he was losing the sight of an eye. So he went to Dusseldorf, Germany, to become a specialist, and thus saved the sight of the other eye. He was joined by his mother and sister, gave up hope of ever becoming a painter, but was urged on by his best friend, Tom Armstrong to return with him to London where "I can get you introductions" to do pen sketches for Punch magazine.

In the end, George did return to London. He shared a studio with the famous-to-be James Whistler, and after he submitted sketches, was eventually introduced to Mark Lemon, editor of Punch. In time Mr. Lemon, who became very fond of this talented lad with one eye, hinted that if George's work kept improving he should fill the next vacancy on the staff of Punch.

Such encouragement was all that was needed to give him the confidence that not only enabled him to marry his beloved Emma, but to strive to become the great artist, who reflected the spirit of the Victorian age, amusingly yet lightly, with his satirizing pencil, for the pages of Punch.

Then 49-year-old memories of student days in Paris and Belgium began to sift and float in his mind. He wrote them down in novel form — to find himself famous and wealthy at the age of 60! Success meant that never would his children, or children's children, need know the dire poverty that once shadowed the days of his parents so cruelly. A dream and desire fully accomplished.

Gerald, youngest of the children of George and Emma, at once as a youth acted in his father's play, produced by Mr. Tree, for four pounds a week. He, too ,lost his heart to the theatre and lived to fulfill a great desire to become a producer — one of London's greatest. But his parents died before he met and married (at one time he was engaged to Ethel Barrymore) the lovely Muriel Beaumont, with whom he lived happily with their three daughters, Angela, Daphne and Jeanne until his death in the mid-thirties.

How fitting that Sir Herbert Tree, Sir George and Sir Gerald du Maurier, whose lives were so entwined, should lie in peace in the same churchyard of the parish church of Hampstead, England; where souls were sweetened by accurate mercifull desires.

"Hampstead is in our veins, I feel that very strongly," says Angela, the eldest daughter of Gerald, of whom more shall be told next week.

Hillcrest H-S Assoc. Names 1961-2 Officers

The Hillcrest Home and School Association held its annual meeting for the season on May 16th in the school auditorium, with Mr. R. Dryden, the president in the chair, and Miss Farnsworth presiding at the piano.

New business was discussed and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. D. Taylor.

A presentation was made to Mr. R. Schamerhorn by Mr. Dryden for his co-operation during the past year.

Mr. Moorcroft's topic was the "Senior School Program," since all grade 7-8 pupils of the Hillcrest area will attend King George School he went on to explain the rotary system which is carried on over in that school. This topic was of more importance and interest to all parents. Mr. Moorcroft answered several questions.

At the close of the meeting, sing-song was enjoyed with Mrs. A. Williams presiding at the piano.

Lunch was served by the mothers of Mrs. Williams' and Mr. Marner's rooms.

MODERN MANNERS

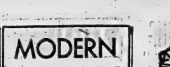
FINGERS ON FORBIT

During the warm months ahead, certain foods are consumed more often than during the cold, wintry months—which, thank goodness, are behind us!

These foods always seem to cause difficulty when it comes to eating them with a semblance of dignity.

First, and most troublesome, seems to be lettuce. Some feel that to use a knife to cut large pieces of lettuce, which may be placed under the salad on your plate, is to be extremely unconventional. Regardless of this fact, I feel that a knife should always be used, unless someone has been thoughtful enough to shred the lettuce into pieces that can be handled with a fork without disaster. It is common sense, to cut large pieces that can be handled with a fork without disaster. It is common to cut large pieces with a knife — to avoid having them land in your lap, or that of your neighbor, or, even worse, in the middle of the table.

First in the controversy of "finger foods" is the corn on the cob. Some say it is perfectly proper to eat it with the fingers. I do not agree, unless you do it with only yourself for company. Reason? Is there anything more unsightly than to see someone holding a dripping piece of a squeaky high in the air, with head tilted back so that it may be fed into his mouth? Perish the thought! Use a fork. Don't make a spectacle of yourself.



Under "the use the fork" heading also comes chicken legs and chop bones. If alone — or with just the family, and they don't mind — go to it. In public, refrain from the satisfaction received from gnawing on a bone. Remember the effect it may have on others.

Some foods can be eaten only with the fingers. It's impossible to manage them any other way. Olives, radishes, potato chips, shoestring potatoes and celery, to list a few. Corn on the cob really belongs in this category, because I defy anyone to use the little handles that are sometimes served without having them slip from the corn — thereby spreading butter dripping, and the ear itself, all over you and everything else.

Of course, circumstances do control your eating habits to some extent. When on a picnic or when attending a backyard cook-out, the bars can be let down a little — but make sure it's not too much. Always guard against eating in a manner that is unsightly to others, no matter where you are!

Question — When you receive an invitation to a garden party, is it necessary to answer it, even though no reply is asked for? — Mrs. R. S. St. Joseph, Mo.

Answer — No acknowledgement is expected, unless the invitation specifically asks that one be sent. A garden party comes under the heading of a reception, or an "At Home," and the procedure, as outlined above, is the same in both these cases.

Mrs. G. C. — I think he should let Harry take care of our garden.

Mr. G. C. — He's too old. We need a landscape contractor-for-hire.

Mrs. G. C. — We have a small estate, with lawns, hedges and bushes to be looked after. Besides that, there are flowerbeds and a hothouse.

There's a wonderful gentleman I know, who lives alone and is known for his green thumb and his special tricks with soil and seeds. He'd love to rent his house and move into our caretaker's quarters. He feels he can take complete charge of our grounds.

I believe he can. He's made a showplace of his own little garden, even though he's not a professional. But he's 73 and my husband pays no.

Mr. G. C. — Look, I think the world of Harry and I only hope I have half his vigor when I'm his age. But it's heavy work. We have a rolling lawn, a few rock gardens and a lily pond, in addition to the swimming pool and tennis court.

Harry's fine on flowers and vegetable patch. But I need the services of a professional landscaping and maintenance engineer, I have a power mower, but I'd rather contract with a firm which can handle the whole job with efficiency and mechanized aids.

It's more than a one-man job, even one young man.

The Council — If Mr. C.'s flowers are anything like Harry's, they'd agree with Mrs. C. and ask for Harry. Just as a matter of animate, given a choice, would choose the human touch over the mechanical.

We certainly hope Harry gets the job and the home and the joy of employment at age 72, applauding.

QUESTION:

My husband is going fishing early in June for one week. There will be 8 in the party. Now my problem is this, what amount of supplies etc., they will require. Please send me some suggestions etc. that would help me to make up a week's menu for 8 big-eating fellows . . . Mrs. M. K.

Dinner Menus

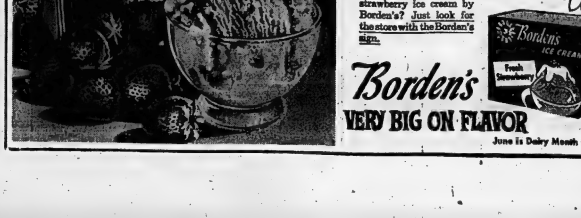
SATURDAY

Minced Collops on Toast (see Wednesday); Baked Jacket Potatoes; Buttered Broccoli; Salad of Tomato, Cauliflowerets, Cucumber, and Leaf Lettuce with Italian Dressing; Baked Spy Apples with Top Milk; Tea.

ANSWER:

By lucky chance, the girl who helps me with my typing work has a husband who went on a fishing trip for the same number of days and she suggested that she made: For each man for each week about one pound smoked back bacon and one dozen eggs and one pound butter. Twenty or twenty-five loaves of bread would be sufficient. A large jar of cheese spread and a large block of old Cheddar cheese was very popular. Also send along one or two boxes of pancake mix. I would suggest one jar white flour and one of buckwheat flour and a couple of tins of fish and nut loaves (which keep well) for them to slice for a snack. Also include some fruit along eight oranges for each man. Also include some 32-oz. cans of fruit such as pears and peaches. My husband roasted a large joint of beef which the men sliced and heated in canned mushroom gravy. Also s'send along (if they have a refrigerator in the cottage) a whole roasted loin of pork or a cooked smoked ham and some smoked wieners. Send along canned peas and beans and pork and beans. Also send a good supply of spreds and apples and a head cabbage. Some canned meats for making sandwiches are popular such as canned corned beef and spam. There should be plenty of tea towels and bags. Also include sugar and canned and powdered milk, and some margarine for frying the fish that they will catch. My secretary suggests that the men would enjoy pickles and relish and marmalade too. Best of luck.



QUESTION:

. . . I have a problem with some of my cakes and that is tunnels throughout the cake from top to bottom. Texture otherwise is good but they sometimes almost look as bad as Swiss cheese. Can you tell me why? . . . Mrs. D. L.

ANSWER:

The causes of coarse-grained or tunnelled butter cakes may be one of the following: 1) Too much leavening. 2) Insufficient creaming of shortening. Use of too soft shortening. 4) Use of wrong kind of flour. Use flour called for. 5) Oven too slow. Could any of these have been the cause of your trouble? Try the cake again observing all the rules. If you do not produce a perfect cake, write again and I will give you another recipe.

Masterpiece From Sacrifice

By ALMA MASON

The other day I again came across the inspiring story recently told of the origin of Albrecht Durer's beautiful etching of the Praying Hands. I would like to renew and refresh it in memory.

The dry point etching, as well known to us all, depicts a pair of gnarled, work-worn hands raised in supplication.

When Durer was young, he and another artist were inseparable friends, sharing the little they had, their goods they had. Finally, finding themselves in deplorable circumstances, they agreed that one should engage in manual labor to contribute to their financial support while the other continued his study of art.

They were equally talented. Durer's friend was the elder. He insisted that Albrecht be the first to continue his artistic career.

Durer eventually made a place for himself in the world of brilliant artists and found himself in a position to give his devoted friend a similar career. When his friend returned to his studies, his heart-breaking discovery was made; for years of rough labor had severely damaged his hands, leaving the joints swollen and the fingers stiff. He could no longer make the fine, intricate brush strokes required of an artist. With a sorrowful heart Durer relinquished his long-treasured dream.

Durer grieved over the plight of his friend. He could never forget that the other's great sacrifice has made his own wonderful success. Inspired with gratitude, he drew the hands of his faithful friend, the best fingers and protruding veins telling their own story of unselfish love given in the cause of friendship. He drew the hands as he had often seen them, raised in persistent prayer for his own success.

Cast aside in the cons of every successful career, there is usually to be unearthed a ruby-red rose of sacrifice. There are thousands of unsung heroes and heroines who have patiently supported the ladder of fame for a dear one, only to slip into obscurity.

Man is not often aware of these stepping stone lives, but He who sees and knows all has chronicled such devoted and magnificent self-effacement on the path stretching to eternity.

I gave my gift to you, dear, I watched it thrive and grow; Then, through my own unselfish love I learned to truly know That God sees each man's earthly dream, Sees each poor haunting goal And bends the will to sacrifice To mold and shape the soul.

Rest Brings Blues

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My husband has been put on a long enforced rest for a heart condition. He lies around in bed in the mornings. He watches television. He goes for a walk. He reads.

At first this was fine for him. He enjoyed the release from heavy schedules of desk work and from being dog tired all the time. But now he seems to get even more tired from doing nothing. I don't think he is improving because he is so depressed.

What can I do?—DOTTIE.

DEAR DOTTIE:—Give him something to do. Idleness pails and the real vital satisfactions come from being a part of things.

Could you organize his resting routine and set aside part of his day for tasks the doctor can O.K.? Typical tasks might be one or two hours at an absorbing hobby. A study of sales techniques—if he is a salesman. A refresher course about typewriters or radios—if he repairs them. Or accountancy—if that fits. Such pursuits would be his beginning of a comeback.

What have you been trying to get done for a long time? He could plan with you to remodel the living-room, if it needs it. Or he could become a landscape gardener and read up on new designs for rock gardens, or barbecues. Then he could implement the ideas he likes or supervise the job.

Occupational therapists are wonderful at helping folk through this wearying time of convalescence. To reach one call your general hospital.

DEAR DORIS:—You have helped so many and I am sure that you can help me also. It is not a big social problem, but I don't know where to find the answer, if not by writing to you.

I am getting married in July. The problem is what kind of gloves my bridesmaids will be wearing. Their gowns are made of light blue lace with blue taffeta, the sleeves are short. Should they wear short or long gloves and what color and material?

What about the bride: take off her gloves? For the reception or not at all? The gloves don't have any fingers.—MISS T. A.

DEAR MISS T. A.:—If this is a morning wedding in the summer time, and the gowns have short sleeves, the bride's counselor advises short plain gloves in a light-weight nylon material. They may be light blue like the gowns, or they may be white. (A formal evening wedding, with sleeveless gowns, would call for long gloves).

If the bride's gloves are merely long shafts leaving the ring finger available, they do not need to be removed at all. If there are holes for the fingers, it might still be awkward to put the ring on. In this case the bridesmaid helps the bride to remove her glove at this point in the ceremony, and holds the bouquet.

To make the handclasp easier in the receiving line, the hand part may be tucked back into the long sleeves of the gloves. If the palm and fingers are mostly out anyway, just leave things as they are.

DEAR DORIS:—When do you think a girl should start wearing lipstick? I have been stalling my daughter off for the last two years, but now she has turned 15. She brings up the subject repeatedly. My husband thinks she is far too young, but I am tempted to give in.—MRS. X.

* * *

DEAR MRS. X:—She should wear lipstick when the others do. Nothing can hurt, at 15, like being different. The gang is what counts.

You won't keep her from harm by keeping her mousy and unattractive. These are her years to mix. Just set limits on how she mixes and where. Practice makes perfect, and at 21 you want a winner, don't you?

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I have been married six years and have seven children (two pairs of twins). We are a Protestant, hard working family who just manage to make ends meet.

My husband wants more children but I am opposed to the idea. What should I do?—MOTHER HUBBARD.

DEAR MOTHER HUBBARD:—For this day and age, seven is a large family. Even institutions for children are scaling down so that each little girl or boy gets a fair share of attention and affection. It is no longer good enough just to feed and clothe.

The size of your family should depend on your health, your income and your ability to cope with kids. This is a tall order when "We are seven."

I would suggest that you talk with your family doctor and he in turn with your husband. I would also suggest a visit to your Children's Aid Society, at 63 West Moira Street, Belleville. Their worker there will help you and your husband to arrive at a decision satisfactory to both of you.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—Could you please explain what one has to do to become a master of social work?—STUDENT.

DEAR STUDENT:—Entrance requirements are a B.A. degree or its equivalent.

The course consists of a minimum of two years at a recognized school of social work, and an additional summer term for a research project which is reported in thesis occupying anywhere from about 50 to 200 pages.

There are several schools of social work affiliated with universities across Canada. Developments in the field of the social sciences have been tremendous in recent years. The course is a stiff one, but worth what it takes if you find you have a consuming interest in people and the way their minds work, and want to help.

* * *

(Doris Clark will be glad to help you with your problems. Write to her care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Capacity Audience Attends Presentation of Awards to Stars of Festival of Praise

By MRS. PERCY MacCULLEN

STIRLING: St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, was filled to capacity on Wednesday evening, May 17, for the stars of the Festival concert.

The stage was tastefully arranged with two baskets of cut flowers and a flowering plant. The various trophies and shields were displayed at the base of the platform.

Relatives and friends from Belleville, Trenton, Frankford, Stirling, and the surrounding area gathered to hear the gold award contestants and the three-hour program was an exceptionally fine one.

Rev. J. Hommersen, pastor of St. Paul's United Church, was master of ceremonies. He cordially welcomed the large audience and complimented all the contestants on their endeavors even though they did not all win first place. He also expressed grateful appreciation to the adjudicator, Mr. H. William Hawke, Gananoque, "For a professional job well done," and for his ability to put the contestants at ease. The gold awards were presented by the pastor as the contestants completed their numbers on the program.

UNION CHOIR

The opening number was a selection by St. Paul's junior choir with 23 voices and they rendered "Glorious Things of Thee Are Spoken," with Mrs. Harold West as accompanist. At the close Mr. Robert Patterson, Trenton, presented Shield to the pianist and director. Mrs. Dave Duffin was also given an award for her assistance each Sunday. This junior choir includes a selection each week. Their mark at the festival was 89.

Mrs. H. Keefer presented the Keefer Trophy to Mrs. West for the senior United Church boys' choir. Their mark was 88.

Group one was centred around the younger contestants and was as follows: Janet "Holy Spirit Hear Us"; Kathy "Holy Spirit Hear Us"; Kathy Reid, Frankford, vocal solo, "Summer Suns Are Glowing"; Jane Bush, St. Paul's, Stirling, vocal solo, "Pleasant Are Thy Courts Above"; Sheila Armstrong, Trenton, and soloists Psalm 100; Bruce Woodcock, Stirling, piano solo, "The Little Clock"; Kathy Swanson, Trenton, piano solo, "Sonata in C"; Linda Dafoe, Frankford, piano selection, "Calypso Boy"; Judith McAdam, Mount Pleasant-Rawdon, vocal solo, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is"; Barry Fraser, Belleville, vocal solo, "O Lord of Heaven"; Larry Sweigard, Trenton, vocal solo, "I Vow to Thee My Country."

King Street United Church teenage ensemble sang, "My Task" with their director, Mr. Roy Kendall, as accompanist. The girls had received a mark of 89 at the adjudications. The Marjorie Golhard Trophy awarded for outstanding teenage choral work was presented by Mrs. C. V. Wilkins to Mr. Kendall and the girls.

der the Cuban failure and the erosion of the Western position in Laos.

Khrushchev had been presented with the opportunity of accepting a personal contact by Kennedy's Feb. 22 message delivered in Siberia. This message had talked of the possibility of a later get - together, although it placed major emphasis on the use of normal diplomatic channels.

Officials said Kennedy consulted the major allies, found a favorable response, and decided that his Paris-trip would make it convenient for a meeting with Khrushchev to take place in a neutral country.

Although members of the Senate and the House of Representatives generally were favorable to the decision to go into the meeting with Khrushchev, there was a great deal of caution and even concern expressed in Washington.

Diplomatic observers remarked that if Khrushchev and Kennedy did not like each other, then relations between the two governments might suddenly be brought to a head with effects that would be world-wide. The disposition, however, was to keep fingers crossed and hope that a lessening of tensions would result from some straight talking.

Illegitimate Births Here Far Below Ontario Average

Belleville and Hastings county are far below the Ontario and national average for illegitimate births, members of the local Children's Aid Society were told at their May meeting on Thursday.

Society director Mr. Bruce M. Kerr noted that a release by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics indicated that one out of every 10 children in Ontario was born out of wedlock.

"The incidences of births out of wedlock in this area is far, far below the national level," he said.

President of the Belleville Society, Mrs. James H. Forrester, presided over the meeting.

In her opening remarks, Mrs. Forrester congratulated Mrs. Edward E. Follwell on her recent appointment to the board of directors of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies. Mrs. Follwell will serve a three-year term.

COMMITTEE BUSY

Dr. S. C. Rose, chairman of a recently-appointed committee to prepare a policy around the provision of child protection services, reported that his committee had already held one meeting and that various materials essential to a proper study of the field had been ordered. It had been decided to invite certain lay persons in the area to participate in the study and preparation of a policy which will be then submitted to the board.

Mrs. E. E. Follwell stated that as chairman of the foster parents activity committee, and with the assistance of Miss Betty Ann Malzar and Miss Enid Miller of the child care staff, she has arranged for a meeting of foster parents on the evening of May 29. A film will be shown, followed by an informal discussion and a buffet luncheon. Mrs. Follwell said that the committee plans to hold other meetings in the fall.

REPORT GIVEN

Mrs. Forrester and Mrs. G. S. Wonnacott, who represented the Society at the annual conference of Ontario Children's Aid Societies at Toronto early in the month, reported on the meeting. Approximately 600 delegates from all parts of Ontario attended and a number of resolutions were passed. They dealt with such matters as a request to the province of Ontario to provide local municipalities with financial and technical assistance for slum clearance and a further request that the present laws affecting zoning and maintenance of old housing be effectively enforced and reviewed to protect children and their families from excessive cost, overcrowding and the deterioration of housing.

A third resolution requested that allowances under the General Welfare Assistance Act of Ontario be made on a basis of actual family need rather than legislative ceilings. Still another resolution requested an amendment to the Child Welfare Act of Ontario whereby the province would assume financial responsibility for all children born out of wedlock as is the case in a number of other provinces of the Dominion.

In speaking of this resolution, Mr. Kerr stated that such an amendment would not only effect a substantial savings to local municipalities insofar as the maintenance of children is concerned, it would also relieve the municipality of the considerable legal cost involved in determining residences.

The final resolution dealt with a request to the attorney general and minister of public welfare to take the necessary steps to make it legal for a judge of a Family Court to issue an application for an order of wardship in respect of a child whose parents refuse to provide medical treatment when such is recommended by a medical practitioner.

Bernard W. Hurley, treasurer, that the Society was meeting with considerable success in its efforts to place the financing of protection and other family services on a business-like basis. He said the Hastings County had already agreed to enter into an agreement with the Society and that favorable consideration was being given to proposed method of assessing costs by Belleville and Trenton. A similar agreement is already in force between the federal government and the Society and provides for services to the Indian people of the Tyendinaga Reserve.

The president thanked Reeve J. N. Brown of Bancroft, for his presentation to the Hastings County Council and his interest in the work of the society.

Mr. Kerr said there were 175 children in the ward care of the society at the end of April. He said that the society was operating well within its budget and that the accumulated deficit which has presented such a problem over the past five years was being slowly recovered.

He reported the children to be in good health and that no major sickness or illnesses had occurred within the last month. Five children had been admitted, two by emergency care. Seven, all of whom had been legally adopted, were discharged. While there were no placements in adoption, Mr. Kerr stated that several had been placed early in May as a result of activity undertaken in April. The society has a number of Roman Catholic children for adoption but very few Protestant children of an adoptable age and, at present time and no infants or pre-school children.

Mr. Linton Reed reported that permission to hold the regular meetings will be granted in the Belleville Public Library had been granted at a recent meeting of the Library Board. The president, Mrs. Forrester, thanked Mr. Reed for his assistance and noted that with impending alterations in the Bridge street United Church it would be necessary for the board to have a new meeting place. Henceforth all meetings will be held at the Belleville Public Library.

support the anti-Castro forces if Washington gave the go-ahead.

During and immediately after the invasion, the navy had powerful fleet units in the Caribbean—far more than would have been needed merely to defend the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

This force included the supercarrier Independence, which carries 75 jet-armed Crusaders, fighter planes which can travel at twice the speed of sound.

In addition, there were 3,000 marines organized into two battalion landing teams, within striking distance of the invasion beachhead at Cochinos Bay.

As late as April 20 there were enough jet aircraft at Guantanamo Bay, including a marine fighter squadron for close ground support, to make mincemeat of Castro's tanks and artillery and sudden decision to bombard him with bombs.

After the hearing Thursday, Senator Francis Case, South Dakota Republican, observed: "I am flabbergasted that the military reputation of the United States could be laid on the line by persons not in the military."

While Case did not elaborate, he apparently had reference to the role of the Central Intelligence Agency in the planning of the invasion.

President Kennedy has said he assumed full responsibility for the Cuban operation.

FRENCH ORDER

Joxe opened the talks by stating the French view on Algeria's future, including President de Gaulle's proposal for an independent country in close association with France.

The placid atmosphere of this alpine resort town was in sharp contrast with Algeria where right-wing extremists launched bombing attacks in major centres to protest the opening of the peace parley.

Krim, twice sentenced to death in his absence by the French, crossed the lake in the leading helicopter and for the first time set foot on the soil of metropolitan France.

The talks originally were due to open April 7 but were put off after the Algerian National Liberation Front (military arm of the provisional government) objected to French plans to hold parallel meetings with a rival nationalist movement.

WAR CORP HEAVY

The Algerian War, which began Nov. 1, 1954, has cost nearly 250,000 lives, and tied down the bulk of the French army in the North African territory.

The delicacy of the negotiations was emphasized by a last-minute change in arrival procedure this morning.

A spokesman said both French and Algerian envoys now will use the same door entering the hotel.

It was originally intended that the French would use what is normally the main entrance and the Algerians a door facing the helicopter strip. This entrance had been specially altered to make it as imposing as the main door.

Yankees Blow Another To Hot Tribe

Good Hit No Pitch

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

When New York Yankees can't win with hot bats, there has to be something wrong. And there is. The starting pitchers are shaky and the bullpen is bare.

The defending American League champs now have scored seven runs in each of two consecutive games — but they've lost them both, barely holding on to second place after three times blowing leads in a 9-7 loss at Cleveland Friday night. The Indians wrapped it up with a five-run eighth inning against three Yank relievers.

Manager Ralph Houk hasn't had a complete game from his staff in 13 starts. Andthe bullpen bunch has lost four while the Yanks have dropped eight of their last 11 decisions since holding a share of first place with Detroit Tigers two weeks ago.

Detroit, idled by cold weather at Boston, regained a five-game bulge as the Yankees lost their third in a row Friday night. Cleveland and Minnesota Twins, who walloped Kansas City 11-1, remained in a tie for third place, also five games behind Detroit and within .004 percentage points of New York.

LA WON AT LAST

Baltimore defeated Washington 4-2, and Los Angeles Angels, after 10 big seven straight, swept a twi-night doubleheader from Chicago White Sox 4-3 and 3-0.

The Yankees backed starter Bob Turley and Luis Arroyo, the first of five relievers, with home runs by Roger Maris, Yogi Berra and Charlie Lopez at Cleveland and had a 7-4 lead going into the eighth. Then the Indians came up with four consecutive hits, the fourth a tying two-run single by Chuck Essegian off losing reliever Tex Clevenger (3-2). The deciding run was forced home when Jim Coates hit Woody Held with a pitch with the bases loaded.

Vic Power, who had three of Cleveland's 13 hits, closed the scoring by scoring home as the Indians beat the Yanks for the first time in 11 decisions. Barry Latman (4-0) won it in relief.

DOSBEK HOMERED

The Twins blasted Kansas City's winning streak at five games as Dan Dobbek belted a pair of home runs, the first a grand slam that snapped it up in a six-run third inning against Ed Rakow (0-1). Don Mincher also homered for the Twins while southpaw Jack Kralick won his fourth against one defeat, with a seven-hit job.

Baltimore, after losing five in a row, replaced Kansas City in fifth place while ending the Senators' winning streat on five. The Birds did it with a three-run eighth inning — and they got 'em all without a hit, scoring the three on six walks by loser Tom Sturdivant (3-3) and relievers Dave Sisler and Marty Dorian. Hoyt Wilhelm (5-1) won it with two hitless innings of relief.

The Angels won the opener on home runs by Steve Bilko and Gene Leek, with Leek's shot breaking a 3-3 tie in the sixth against reliever Russ Kemmerer (0-2). Right hander Jerry Casale, who had lost 12 in a row, threw this year, was the winner. Ryne Duren, once the Yankees' bullpen pride, saved both games for the Angels, who took the nightcap on Earl Averill's two-run homer in the third off Bob Shaw (3-2). Duren pitched 1 2-3 innings of hitless relief in the opener, then nailed the second game for Ken McBridge (3-2) with two innings of no-hit, shutout relief.

Charleston Drops First, Leafs Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I hope we can win some games, draw some fans and have some fun," observed first baseman George Crowe before Charleston's new baseball team, late of San Juan, took the field Friday night against Jersey City.

A short time later, Charleston had lost its first International League contest 5-4 in 10 innings to Jersey City. A crowd of 2,006 saw the defeat, and Crowe didn't have much fun.

The game at Charleston actually got under way in about the same manner in which the International League came to town this week — in a hurry. League president Tommy Richardson made a brief talk and introduced the players.

Mayor John Shanklin said a few words, then strode to the mound to make the traditional first-ball toss to catcher Tim McCarver. The game began without the playing of the Star Spangled Banner because the public address system wasn't working properly.

Jersey City won it in the 10th when Danny Krevitz singled Andres Acosta home with the winning run after home runs had Jim Pendleton and Borrego Alvarez in the scoreless 4-4 Charleston lead and sent the game into extra innings.

In other games, league-leading Columbus beat Richmond 6-4 in another pitching duel — a free-for - all; Rochester's Art Quirk blanked Toronto 5-0 with a one - hitter, and Syracuse whipped Buffalo 7-2.

The Columbus-Richmond melee was touched off when Jets' catcher Don Leppert tripled in the first inning, then tried his score on a wide pitch which got away from Virginians' catcher Bill Shantz.

Richmond pitcher Gary Blaylock hustled in to cover the plate, tagged the speeding Leppert out, then gave a twist at the runner after the close play. Other players poured onto the field and exchanged punches before order was restored. Blaylock and Leppert were ejected.

Quirk, a 23-year-old southpaw, won his first IL game by setting down the Leafs except for a clean, sharp single by Toronto outfielder Lou Johnson in the fifth inning.

Close Preakness Finish

'Carry Back' Is Slight Favorite

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — Perfect track conditions and weather prevailed today for the 86th running of what promises to be one of the most exciting Preakness races, with nine colts scrapping for gold and glory.

Jack Price, trainer of favored Carry Back, may have described the end of the 1 3-16-mile race when he said:

"I hope it's a five-horse blanket finish and that Carry Back's nose is in front."

Carry Back has made a habit of getting just enough in front after a mad rush that leaves trailers with their hearts in their mouths. His tingling finishes have put him in the lead for the 1961 championship for three-year-olds.

His success in five out of eight major races this season is the more intriguing because of his humble background. An original investment of $700, the son of Saggy has put $512,868 in the pockets of owner Mrs. Katherine Price and he will be shooting for another $126,200 as first prize in the Preakness.

The bulk of his earnings this year has come at the expense of Crozier, who will be taking another crack at him. Carry Back beat Crozier in two $100,000 races in Florida and then in the $125,000 Kentucky Derby May 6.

Eddie Parke, who trains Crozier for Fred W. Hooper, refuses to view the Preakness as only a match with Carry Back.

"You have to watch all of them," he advised.

He meant Dr. Miller, Sherluck, Gleaming, Hi Lilly, Away, Crimson Fury, Nashua and Orleans Dogs. "Their owners aren't putting up $1,500 to race for nothing," Parke reasoned.

When the betting is over, the favorite figures to swing at Carry Back close to an even-money favorite, followed by Crozier. After them, it's a toss-up among Globemaster, Sherluck and Dr. Miller.

L. P. Sasse's Globemaster, an $80,000 baby, defeated Carry Back in the Bay Meadows April 22 and wound up sixth in the Kentucky Derby after leading early.

The nine colts will start at 6:45 p.m. EDT and the race will be carried on television and radio.

Orioles Buy Wings' Hyde, Dropo Out

BALTIMORE (AP) — In a move to bolster their sagging pitching staff, Baltimore Orioles of the American League purchased Dick Hyde from Rochester Red Wings of the International League Friday night.

To make room for the submarine-throwing veteran, the Baltimore gave veteran first baseman Walt Dropo his unconditional release.

CAMPBELL SAVES FIVE

CALSHOT, England (AP) — World water speed champion Donald Campbell rescued five people Friday night when their flying boat crash - landed at Southampton. Campbell, who set the world water speed record of 248.62 miles an hour in 1958, sped to the scene in his motor cruiser when the flying boat suddenly came down during a test flight.

Shave Lead to Two Dodgers Shade Giants

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers defeated San Francisco 8-7 Friday night, shaving the Giants' National League lead to two games while picking a virtual second-place tie with Cincinnati. The Reds defeated Milwaukee 3 - 2 and Philadelphia dropped Pittsburgh 4-1. Chicago Cubs defeated St. Louis Cardinals 10 behind the seven-hit pitching of Glen Hobbie.

Cincinnati is the official runner-up at the moment, by .002 percentage points over Los Angeles.

An infield hit by Maury Wills and a double by Wally Moon gave the Dodgers the deciding run in the ninth inning against losing reliever Billy O'Dell (1-2). Johnny Roseboro had stapped a four-run eighth for the Dodgers, giving them the lead with a three-run homer that made it 7-4.

Starter Juan Marichal blanked the Dodgers on three hits for five innings, then gave up a three-run homer by rookie Willie Kirkland in the fifth. The Giants bounced back in the seventh when Harvey Kuenn's three-run double broke a 3-3 tie. Kuenn drove in the Giants' last run with a bases - loaded single in the ninth off winning reliever Don Perranoski (2-0).

WIN THE CLOSE ONES

It was the seventh victory in nine one-run decisions for the Dodgers. And it was only the fourth defeat in 12 one-run decisions for the Giants, who had won their last five games.

Frank Reds, once easy pickings for the Braves and righthander Lew Burdette, beat Milwaukee for the fourth time in four tries this season behind the five-hit pitching of Jim O'Toole (4-3). The young lefty shut out the Braves after a third inning homer by Frank Bolling, who had three hits. A two-run homer by Gene Freese put it for Cincinnati in the fourth and Gus Bell's sixth-inning homer put it away. Both runs were off Bardette (3-2).

Jim Woods' first homer of the year broke a 1-1 tie and triggered a two-run fifth inning for the last - place Phils. Pirate righthander Bob Friend (4-4) took his fourth in a row. Art Mahaffey (4-4) was the winning pitcher, although he gave up a home run to Roberto Clemente.

SUN AIDS THE CUBS

The Cubs scored in the first inning on a single and two Ernie Banks' two-out pop - up that dropped for a double when Card shortstop Daryl Spencer lost it in the sun. Chicago managed just two more hits off loser Ray Sadecki (2-3). It was the 10th major league shutout for Hobbie (2-4).

St. Louis now has lost five in a row, the last three by one run, but owner August Busch gave manager Solly Hemus and general manager Bing Devine a vote of confidence—a supposed pat on the back which usually turns out to be a kiss of death in major league managerial circles.

WINS REEVE PURSE

TORONTO (CP) — Rococo Rogue, a three-year - old colt owned by the Arjay Stable of Toronto won the featured Port Reeve Purse at Old Woodbine Friday. Rococo Rogue paid $30.60, $13.50 and $5.10 as he ran one mile in 1:36.6 over a muddy track. The daily double paid $23.90 when Royal Bolero and Mrs. Cesford won the first two races. The quinella of Beauvalon and Noble Roman in the sixth race paid $43.30.

Moyer Defeats Willie Jennings

CENTRALIA, Wash. (AP)—Denny Moyer of Portland, Ore. scored a technical knockout over Willie Jennings Friday night at 2:8 of the second round of their scheduled 10-round middleweight bout.

Moyer, ninth-ranked, had little trouble with the comparative unknown from Seattle.

Moyer weighed 164 and Jennings 159.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A bunch of the boys were talking it up at the Fish and Game Club pow-wow the other night and the subject, naturally, was fish and fishing. In this particular case Mr. Pickerel came up for discussion.

They talked of the Bay of Quinte, the Trent River and Hay Bay, of productive lakes and streams in the northern part of the district.

One of the group who hails from up Sudbury way smiled, shook his head and murmured, "Gentlemen, if you want real pickerel fishing try the French River. You ain't seen nuthin' until you have fished these waters."

Backing up his story was one in the Sudbury Star the other day which recounted the experiences of one of the paper's sportswriters who hooked a pickerel that just missed the ten-pound mark.

Wrote the scribe: "If you want to catch nice fish, French River is still one of the best sports in this area. But if you're not sure where to go contact Rocco D'Angelo, well known member of the Sudbury Curling Club."

LA WON AT LAST

When I was the one of the Sportswriters and Sportscasters' Association annual golfing jaunts to French River a few years back, one of the Indians I found lurking behind a tree told me the pickerel were so big up there they could upset a canoe.

Which is almost as good as the story told me in Ottawa years about the size of the muskies which used to roll down the Ottawa River. They were so big the lumberjacks rode them like logs and steered them into "port" with paovles.

Anyway D'Angelo took the scribe to a pickerel spot and the writer tossed out a copper Canadian Warbler. In no time his big pickerel was hooked and in twenty-five minutes was boated.

Rocco, the story goes, has caught big pickerel in the "River" district, one of them weighing over eleven pounds. Mrs. Archie Massey of Creighton, who runs the beautiful Cove Lodge, also remembers a 13-pound plus pickerel being caught in the area.

If you want to get to Pine Cove, one of the starting points for a safari into this fine fishing area, just go down Highway 69 until you hit the French River resort area road on your left and drive straight up before coming to the Pine Cove sign, then turn right.

Mrs. Massie recalls a 32-pound muskie and another only four pounds lighter being caught in these waters. Also great northern pike which hit the 30-pound mark and smallmouths that nudged the eight-pound notch on the scale.

Like any other popular fishing spot, the French River has its mythical piscatorial giant. This one is a muskie which, popular opinion believes, will tip the scales at 72 pounds.

The usual yellcat stories go the rounds, one of them being that one fisherman ran smack into the muskie with his boat and nearly stove a hole in the bow. Not the muskie's.

It seems the big guy is an affable cuss and often swims to the Pine Cove Lodge and parks under a bridge. Mrs. Massey and D'Angelo say they have seen him several times.

Said Rocco: "It's funny. There would be people around the lodge and suddenly the old musky would come around and everybody would start running like mad for fishing equipment.

"They've tried everything on him, lures, spinners, minnows and what not," said D'Angelo, "but he just swims around and doesn't care at all. Won't even look at the stuff."

This old timer is running second to the Moby Dick of the northern areas, a huge pike, reported to weigh in the vicinity of 100 pounds.

As for me I'll settle for a neat five-pounder any day of the week, and leave the giants to the giant-killers.

No Grey Cup Video for The "Sticks"

TORONTO (CP) — Informed sources said Friday that CFTO-TV, Toronto, has taken up its option on television rights for Eastern Canada for the 1961 Grey Cup game.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has first option on Grey Cup television rights for Western Canada.

Syd Halter of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Football Council, said: "I cannot confirm nor deny the report."

It is understood CFTO TV paid $100,000 for its Grey Cup rights and that the CBC will pay about $50,000 for its option for Western Canada.

Harness Racing Bits

By Phil Stewart

With the approach of the May holiday weekend Ontario sees the opening of what should prove to be the biggest season of harness racing in the history of the sport in the province. The addition of night racing after the long struggle involved with the Ontario government's evil doubletaxes proves a boon to the sport. The opening of many one day meets and fairs and in the Jockey Club in the province's 2700 Old Woodbine. Harness men look for a vast and rapid growth in the sport in the province both in quality and quality of racing and in the number of horses involved.

This growth has already started as evidenced by the spectacular card-opening meet under the lights at London, Ont. An opening night crowd of close to 3,000 poured $41,836 through the mutuals and witnessed a card of four excellent double heats. One horse of interest to Quinte district fans, racing for opening night was "Chips Dillard" who it will be remembered Mr. Macmillan of Peterborough, "Chips Dillard" was trotted in the $2,000 event for a purse of $600 divided. The times recorded included a 2.04 3-4 mark in the 3-4 and a slowest in 2.18 2-5 by "Baron Adams" and "Marlene R" respectively.

With Connaught Park undercover this Saturday the public-ed that horses from central Ontario had quite a night with Peterboro's Adams of Wyndover finishing in the first three with Dodds, Marlene R" and "Tim Star" both of whom have raced in Belleville. Allan Percy won a nice trip with "Coronation Brook" while Gordon Wilson, Colville, Ont. horseman's pup's grand old mare "Becky Jane Volo" to a win.

The biggest news for Quinte district fans will be the fact that night racing will be in order for the Belleville meets with an 8.00 p.m. post time scheduled for each day. The following four meets will be pre, senided for June 17, July 8 and 22 and Aug. 5 which are each 2 weeks apart. The combine-tion of the lights, the excellent betting stand and the prospect of the same high calibre racing of other years should induce district fans to make this another successful racing season in the history of Belleville.

SETS SPEED MARK

CHARLOTTE N.C. (AP)—Little Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Va., set an unofficial world record for a 1½ - mile race track Friday by touring the Charlotte Motor Speedway in 136.226 miles an hour. Driving a 1961 Pontiac, Weatherly beat the existing record of 136.054 miles an hour.

Summer Sports Make Debut

The week of May 12 (the Queen's birthday holiday) ushers in what should be a banner season in summer sports.

For the first time in years the fine diamond facilities, old and new, of the Fair Grounds will be utilized by both baseball and softball teams of the upper and lower brackets.

The bracket teams of the Belleville District Softball League and Kenmore of the Lakeshore Intermediate Baseball League will use the "old" diamond and the Hatter, as will the Belleville entry in the South Hastings League.

The new diamonds will be "mostly" with action all summer with games from the minor diamond associations.

A brand new sports innovation will be inaugurated under the lights with the Quinte Driving and Riding Club holding its first meet on Saturday, May 27, starting at eight o'clock sharp.

Actually the Belleville Kenmores will start the Fair Grounds summer ball rolling tomorrow afternoon when they meet the Hamilton Perpetuals in an exhibition tilt starting at 2.30.

The Belleville District Softball League ushers in its 1961 season Monday with the Bakerettes meeting the Coborg Merchants in a scheduled fixture starting at three o'clock. On Tuesday Plaion is at RCAF and Wednesday Bobcats go to Plaion.

The Kenmore play their first scheduled game in the Lakeshore League, Monday afternoon, meeting Orono on the latter's diamond, starting at 2.30.

The Commercial Softball League also gets under way next week with Point Anne playing Trudeaus at the Alemite Field, Tuesday evening at 6.30 and Lightfoot Construcions meeting Doug's Food Service at the Alemite, same time Wednesday.

Monday night there are brilliant... fireworks displays at Point Anne and Wellington. Over the weekend the lawn bowling set in their opening activities.

If the promised warm weather materializes there'll be picnic and fishing parties and speaking of picnics and fun, why not try the Shannonville Speedway Parkland where nine best Dick Barrows efforts down pit for the family with his ex-Inaris. You'll like it.

The golf course will be out to the Bay of Quinte Country Club over the week-end and new, of the Belleville ladies' Cup qualifying round, a mixed two-ball tournament, scheduled for Sunday, May 28. This will be followed by a dinner. The Ladies' Cup qualifying round is scheduled for Saturday, May 27.

Next weekend the South Hastings League ushers in its 1961 season Monday with the Shannonville Canadians' Reed playing Belleville and Latta clashing with Foxboro, all games starting at 6.45.

So there it is. Tight lines, no-hitters, hole-in-one, home runs, and a fine weekend no matter what you do.

The rest is in the hands of the weatherman.

"Beard" Rolls Over And...

"Big Splasher" Misses

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Ivan Kalmikoff looked up from a prone position, saw 240 pounds of human avalanche crashing down on him, rolled over and became, the "little man who wasn't there."

And Man Mountain Campbell was denied his "Big Splasher" for the kill, omeleted his big frame all over the mat, bounced off the ropes, hit Kalmikoff, Ivan and Nikita, won the fall and main bout.

So the people today looked good for Man Mountain and his tag team partner, popular Tony Marino. They had survived the mascara treatment, favorite weapon of the "Beards" and the big Bear Mountain, Kentucky, giant was on his way to a third-fall win and victory when his luck ran out.

The young Italiano wrestler, the idol of the fans here, again at last night's wrestlers' out of the tough Siberian tovarich-es and the occasional made a four-man circus out of the show.

But he ran foul of a Russian backbreaker administered by Ivan after 11 minutes of the first fall and that was that.

However he got that one back in short order in the second fall packaging Nikita nonchalantly effectively in a "Boston Crab" hold that had the younger "Beard" yelping for big Splasher. That took about three minutes.

The Man Mountain had beer-hugged Ivan pretty well into submission in the third fall and had the tough Russian flatter than a day-old flounder. He decided to apply the "Splasher" treatment, took off like a B-27 and crashed.

Ivan rolled out from under to over and on top of the counter-smite Bear-cat from Katatuck and the show folded.

Big Tom (The Emperor) Jones proved too much for the third Kalmikoff edition, the original Karol. The former 290-pound Ottawa Rough Rider, had things pretty well his own way with his powerful height, massive frame and hard skull.

Karol got the big negro out of the ring for possible skull-duggery, but met with a series of "coco-bunks" that ended in defeat. The "Emperor" skulled his smaller opponent into submission and crawled back into the ring in time to get the nod.

But what nearly stole the show was the match between Stan Stasiuk and Farmer Boy Townsend. Now there was a bout that hasn't been staged here in a couple of years.

The two big boys pushed, smashed, punched, threw and whaled away at each other for a 15-minute stanza and had the fans in an uproar. It was uproarious action from gong-to-gong, a dilly to say the least.

It was announced that Whipper Billy Watson will be in the main bout next Friday.

◆ MONTREAL (CP) — New York Rangers were granted permission Friday to reopen negotiations with Doug Harvey and the veteran all - star defenceman of Montreal Canadiens said he's ready to listen to anything the Rangers brass have to say.

Harvey talked with executives of the Rangers in New York last weekend regarding an offer for him to become playing coach — with permission of the Canadians management — He turned down the offer three days later.

Now, on request of the Rangers, Canadiens have granted permission for a further conference between Harvey and the New York management.

"I feel I owe it to them because they treated me so well in the first talks wit hthem," said Harvey who is 36.

"However, I'd be just as happy to play in Montreal again next season — if they want me.

"There are many things that made me decide against taking the job, but mostly it's because I feel I'm not finished as a player yet. The money isn't the thing."

Harvey was unhappy with several points of the original offer. He didn't like the idea of having a man "unknown" to him behind the bench as playing-coach of a assistant. The Rangers had planned to pot Emil Francis, former coach of the Guelph Juniors, there.

WANTS LONG CONTRACT

Harvey also didn't like the idea of a two - year contract. He wanted a longer term stipulated.

He said the Rangers offered him $35,000 annually. He has received last season with Canadiens.

Should Harvey and the Rangers come to terms, then Canadiens will make trade with the New York club.

Selke indicated last week that he would like to keep Harvey's coaching chances, should Habitants' present coach Toe Blake be relieved of his duties.

Harvey said he and Harvey had reached agreement on everything except for the bonus clauses pertaining to the team's showing. "There was no money problem," he continued.

The statement attributed to Harvey that he wanted a longer contract than two years also surprised the Rangers general manager. Harvey never mentioned this to him, he said.

"I don't believe in this history of hockey players ever been a longer term than two years," Patrick said, "although I couldn't check it."

Junior Coaches Comment

This Pro-Amateur Farce

TORONTO (CP) — Canada would not be able to compete in world amateur hockey if Junior Ontario Hockey Association teams are ruled out of competition for the Memorial Cup, the president of the Peterborough Petes said Friday.

Doug Foster was commenting on a statement by Sam Pollock, general manager of the Eastern Professional Hockey League champion Hull - Ottawa Canadiens, who said earlier Friday in Pembroke that Junior A teams "are definitely professionals and the real amateur teams in Canada should not be forced to compete with them."

Foster countered:

"If junior hockey as we know it today is classified as professional the prospect of Canada competing in world amateur hockey is an impossibility."

Ken Globel, owner of the Hamilton Red Wings, said:

"After carefully analyzing Mr. Pollock's statement I see no merit in it at all. Junior A teams are 901 in my opinion professional."

Toronto Marlboro coach Turk Broda said the statement was "silly, because all amateur teams are semi-professional. If you receive money for playing you're semi-professional."

AWARD SHOW

FOREST CONSERVATION PROGRAMS ON CJBQ RADIO

Forest Conservation Week has been proclaimed by the Canadian Forestry Association for May 20-27th. Celebrated annually, this special week serves to draw public attention to the importance of Canada's forests. The Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker wrote: "In view of the great significance of our forest and forest industries in the national economy, forest fire losses are a matter of increasing concern and I fully endorse the Canadian Forestry Association's program to ensure that due care will be exercised by all who have occasion to go into the woods, for business or pleasure."

Next Week CJBQ RADIO has planned an extensive series of special programs and features dealing with Forest Conservation.

Tom Hookings, well-known CJBQ personality, produced on location at the Department of Lands and Forests in Tweed several interesting and unusual programs with the different division heads. Such topics as tree planting, the organization of the forest fire protection system, the Department's fish stocking program, and timber management will be covered.

The work of the Moira Conservation Authority will also be dealt with in other special broadcasts produced and arranged by Mr. Michael Chubb.

PEARSON CLAIMS TOP LIBERALS

most of them small farming villages where he chatted with street - corner crowds, of 15 to 100 people or met with groups of children.

One high point came at Delta, a village of 300, where he met Lester B. Pearson, an eight - year - old schoolboy whose former father named him for the Liberal leader. The two L. B. Pearsons shook hands, talked about the poor weather and exchanged compliments on their how ties.

Bands met the Liberal motorcade at two points and the Brockville rally was preceded by a pipe band parade down the main street.

The Liberal Candidate is John Matheson, a 43 - year - old Brockville lawyer and disabled veteran of the Second World War.

The riding formerly was held by Hayden Stanbury, a Progressive Conservative, who died in May.

URGES LIBERAL VOTE

Mr. Pearson geared today's campaigning to a low pressure approach, urging small street-corner gatherings to vote for the Liberal candidate as a protest against the broken promises of the Diefenbaker government.

He shook hundreds of hands, patted scores of youngsters on the head and wandered into hardware stores and five-and-dime shops with the "I'm Lester Pearson and I'd like to meet you" introduction.

The day began in Smiths Falls where Mr. Pearson's motorcade assembled and moved to Toledo, a tobacco growing city of 200, where rain drove the welcoming crowd of 65 school children and 25 adults into a township hall.

At Athens (pop. 1,700) he told a group of high school students about the importance of a college education and accused the ruling of his world travels as a Canadian diplomat and later external affairs minister.

The sidewalk reception at Delta included a welcoming banner made by two students. About 75 village residents, attracted by search music from a loudspeaker, applauded the Liberal chief's brief address and then came forward for a round of handshakes.

A coffee and sandwiches reception in the Roman Catholic Women's League Hall at Westport drew 100, best adult turnout of the day, as Mr. and Mrs. Pearson attack the government.

He said the Liberal party is building up "good year and good policies with good young men behind them."

Judy LaMarsh member of Parliament for Niagara Falls, said Liberals across Canada are looking to Leeds to show the country the Liberalism is once again on the move.

CLINTON ST. STREET

The Gananoque town band headed a parade into that resort centre 30 miles east of here and a crowd of 90 men and women clustered on the main street to listen to Mr. Pearson's short talk. He urged Leeds voters to "put this country back on the road to progress."

Mr. Pearson strolled into Peter Leclair's barber shop and shook hands with a half dozen customers, including two in the barber chairs.

As Mr. Pearson left, the barber came out of the shop and ripped a Conservative campaign banner off his front window, bringing a hearty laugh from Mr. Pearson.

TH. GOLDEN YEARS

A Man Who Should Know Claims Wife Is The Key to Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

"Dear Mr. Golden Years:

"I am one year and 10 months out into Indian Country, approaching 67, and clutching my pension.

"I am also working, at about the best retirement job there is. But that is the last chapter of my story. I want to tell you, or somebody who can pass it on to others, the story of what can happen to an average business man when he retires to spend the leisure years of his life at home.

"I retired at 65 after perhaps a year and a half of planning what I would do. The house was paid for. There was a bit over $6,000 in the savings account.

"I didn't really want to do anything. I didn't have to. Not just because there was enough money. There was nothing at home I wanted to get away from. I liked my wife. My wife liked me. We each thought the other was good company. For 44 years of marriage we had thought so.

"And my wife wanted me to come home. She said she would take care of me better than the company would.

"So, for a year and a half I juggled a few retirement plans. Then I decided this was a lot of exertion. And I glided up to the pension party feeling fine.

RETURNED TO HOME

"Mama and I took an auto trip. Had some gay conversation about there being no more Mondays in our lives, and made our way back home after 16 days of motels. (After six nights in six motels you've had it.)

"Mama returned to her household routine — and it was a specialized routine that had evolved in her life after the last of the children left home nearly 15 years ago.

"She made the beds at 9.15 every morning (which was one cup of coffee after I left for work). She cleaned the carpets, took out the garbage, changed the towels, washed the dishes and watered the flowers after that (which was while no husband was in the way). She went to market, had her soup, took her nap and had her bath all in accordance with her specialized routine (still while no husband was around).

"Does any man nearing retirement ever realize what disorder he is going to bring to a wife's life when he comes home? Most husbands don't really know what their wives do all day. Nor does any man ever understand that his desire to sleep late in the morning, to put on a gay hat and go for a walk after breakfast, to watch a baseball game on TV at nap time will do violence to a routine that has become second nature to his wife?

"I tried. My wife tried. But the compatibility that had flourished when I had been absent ten hours of the daytime withered away. Two big feet that had to be told to move every morning for the vacuum cleaner, and ash trays that heretofore had stayed clean from eight to six became symbols of frustration in our home.

WENT JOB HUNTING

"I went back to town to hunt a job.

"Through my church, I came in to contact with a research organization which did all sorts of surveys for magazines, stores and manufacturers of consumer products. Many of these surveys were made by pushing door bells with a questionnaire, or speaking with housewives on the phone.

"I asked for and obtained a job with the organization as a part-time surveyor and still have it. Normally I work five days a week, from four to six hours a day. I can take off a day or a week. On the other hand if I choose I can work up to 50 hours or so a week. I'm paid by the hour.

"For a retirement job, as I said earlier, it is about the best there is — freedom, enough contact with people to bring home stories at night.

"But with a second chance at retirement I would play it differently. At about age 63 I would start cultivating a double-headed way of life — Mama and me. This would involve the basic chores of existence, such as eating, sweeping, sleeping and laundry. We would do these as a team.

"It would involve cultural pursuits. We would cultivate similar tastes in music, movies, TV, books and all the rest.

"It would involve, most importantly of all, a joint effort to accomplish something with our leisure. Probably aome-thing that pays, like jointly operating a small store; jointly raising them, parakeets or ponies; jointly developing a flower business.

"My wife and I would operate as one person, together in everything. There really is no other way. A man is sentenced to his wife, and vice versa, when he retires. When the man tries to continue the old pattern, which is to get another job for the children, he merely delays the inevitable.

Yours Truly,
Mr. Social Insecurity."

Garden Notes

Helpful Hints on Rose Culture

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Here are some pointers on rose culture. The practical gardeners prescription in short hand is F.D.M.W., feed, dust, mulch, water. Each is as important as the other. No one operation will insure success. Taken together they will go a long way in bringing you the perfect roses you hope to grow.

Early in the spring all roses should receive their first feeding. Hybrid teas, Polyanthas and Floribundas need one heaping tablespoonful of complete plant food for each plant, or one pound to each 25 square feet of bed area, early in the spring. Hybrid Perpetuals, a climbing and shrub roses need one cupful of complete plant food to each plant. A second feeding should follow immediately after bloom. Work with fertilizer in lightly within four inches of the stock.

FEEDING HINTS

Hybrid teas should have a third feeding in July. This type of feeding should be discontinued for the year for all roses after these have been given. If you are using a water soluable plant food this can be given at ten day interval through the growing season. Use half pound high analysis food to 800 square feet of bed, applied through a hose line metering attachment or applicator.

Pest control has been greatly simplified with the introduction of the new multiple sprays and dusts which control all fungus and insect pests attacking roses including Mildew and red spider. A good program of spraying or dusting every two weeks to keep the roses in good condition through the growing season and going into the winter dormant season. Healthy vigorous plants withstand the rigors of winter much better than those weakened by insect, disease, or starvation.

A three to four inch mulch of old sawdust, peat moss, cobs peat, compost or similar material prevents baking, extends rainfall and keep the roots cool.

Frequent watering is necessary. Give a deep thorough soaking once a week if the weather is dry. See that the plants have a thorough soaking before the freeze up in fall.

Have the fall Winds of winter continue to rob the plants of moisture even when the temperatures drop below freezing and it is this lack of moisture that often kills plants rather than the low temperatures.

POINTS ON PLANTING

Six points on planting a rose. If you buy, or receive an order of roses and it is not possible to plant them at once dig a trench and lay the plants on their side. Cover with soil. This will prevent the roots and stocks from drying out. Before planting soak the roots in water over night but not more than twenty four hours.

Dig the hole two feet wide and two feet deep. Mix a slow acting fertilizer, bone meal, or cow manure into the soil under the roots. Fill in with soil which has a good quantity of humus such as peat or compost. Be sure the roots are spread out in their natural position unless it is a potted rose. These should not have their roots disturbed.

Have the soil half filled in before watering the roots. Really soak the soil. Allow water to drain away then fill in to surface level. Cover plant with burlap, mulf or plastic for a few days to give the roots a chance to get settled and take over.

Racial Tension Kept In Control By State Militia

Cameraman, Soundman Beaten in Race Rioting

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)— Police today announced the arrest of a man accused of beating an NBC cameraman and a soundman in the outbreak of racial violence that put this city in the Deep South under martial law.

Roving bands of white youths, bomb threats and reports of new attempts at racially integrated "Freedom" rides caused a tense day and night in this Alabama capital city, ruled by the National Guardsmen and a firm hand.

The Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) said it was trying to make bus reservations for another Freedom Ride. Such a trip Saturday touched off the bloody riot and led to Sunday's attempted mob assault on a Negro church.

Assistant Police Chief P. Holcombe said a man identified as Claude Henley, 37, of Montgomery, was jailed and then released under $200 bond on charges of attacking NBC cameraman Murrey Light and soundman H. W. Riser.

Police Chief Sullivan admitted being in the crowd, but refused to say whether he participated in the beatings.

WERE BEATEN

A mob jerked cameras from newsmen's hands and beat Light and Riser before savagely attacking nearly two dozen white and Negro Freedom Riders just after they stepped off a bus in the downtown Greyhound Station Sunday.

Also beaten was John Seigenthaler, an assistant to Attorney General Robert Kennedy. Seigenthaler had come here at President Kennedy's emissary to ask Governor John Patterson to guarantee the safety of the Freedom Riders.

Monday, five previously arrested persons were fined from $25 to $100 each for failing to obey officers at the bus station riot. Police said the five did not take out bond.

National Guardsmen, who patrol the city streets under Governor Patterson's order of martial law, Monday night questioned their guard at the Greyhound bus station to keep away from possible youths.

STAY HIDDEN

Integration leaders, including Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. of Atlanta and national CORE director James Farmer, kept in seclusion Monday, after a lengthy siege in a Negro church where protection by National Guard and state patrolmen.

National Guardsmen during the night dispersed a relatively growing groups of white youths who gathered in small numbers about half a block from the heavily guarded Greyhound station.

Guardsmen, on foot, on jeep, or on foot in squads with fixed bayonets, patrolled the area. Only a police aided, but the hundreds of federal marshals ordered here by Attorney General Kennedy were no longer on the streets.

The marshals, who kept the Sunday night mob at bay at the Greyhound Station, were pulled till state patrolmen and guardsmen arrived, were withdrawn

Victoria Day Fireworks Displays Are Not All Just Harmless Fun

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Victoria Day, 1961, was many fire chiefs' idea of a good holiday.

For most of them it provided the first serious long weekend of the year—a chance to open the summer cottage, or take off on a camping trip.

Fireworks displays were held in most larger cities, and in many small communities from Parliament Hill and the provincial legislatures.

Police at Hamilton Monday night tried to disperse a mob of 2,000 persons on the beach. The crowd responded by pelting the 30-odd officers and a police dog with fireworks.

The same group of celebrants set fire to the first of a clothing shop and turned the intersection nearest the shop into a maze of flames by setting fire to a gasoline-soaked car tire and throwing this full of burning gasoline into the street.

Traffic at the busy intersection was tied up for an hour. No arrests were made.

COMMONS GETS NO ANSWER ON FATE OF GORDON

CNR President

Subject of Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Is the government preparing to guillotine the railroad career of CNR President Donald Gordon?

The Commons got no answer Monday after hours of opposition quizzing.

J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista-Twillingate) suggested the government is waiting for passage of, its capital punishment bill to decide about Mr. Gordon.

"They can't really make up their minds whether to hang him or give him a life sentence," he said.

All that Transport Minister Balcer would say was this:

"I must say that personally I have always had extremely good relations with Mr. Gordon. He has co-operated during the time I have been the minister and personally I am satisfied with his work."

Mr. Balcer became transport minister last October. Since then, Progressive Conservative back-benchers, led by Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur), have criticized Mr. Gordon's head.

Under persistent opposition pressure, Mr. Balcer declined to say whether Mr. Gordon will be re-appointed CNR president. His term expired last Sept. 30 but he has been kept on from day to day since.

The subject came up during questioning of the estimates of $1 given third and final reading to the $1,000,000 expenditure of the CNR board of directors to 12 from seven.

Mr. Pickersgill wondered whether the bill was a device to get rid of Mr. Gordon.

If the government didn't want Mr. Gordon, why didn't it sack him? If it did, why not give him the support to run the railroad properly?

Paul Martin (L—Essex East) said the government couldn't ignore the matter. Mr. Gordon. It must concur in them and thus the CNR president or defend him forcefully.

Mr. Martin said lack of confidence in public servants was nothing new for the Conservatives. Attacks on Bank of Canada Governor James Coyne of the Bank of Canada would have prompted Finance Minister Fleming to defence or repudiation.

The Liberals, opposing the enlargement of the CNR board of Atlanta and national CORE director James Farmer, kept in seclusion Monday, after a lengthy siege in a Negro church where protection by National Guard and state patrolmen.

Castro Threatens To Withdraw Former Offer

HAVANA (CP) — Premier Fidel Castro threatened Monday to withdraw his prisoners for - tractors offer unless the United States accepts the no change as a means of indemnifying Cuba for damage done in the recent rebel invasion.

Castro told the Cuban news agency Prensa Latina that the proposed arrangement must not be considered simply an exchange.

"If they continue to view as an exchange what should be an indemnification for material damage caused Cuba, the revolutionary government will proceed to cancel negotiations," Castro declared.

Castro offered last week to free the 1,200 prisoners taken in the U.S.-led invasion of the Coerinos Bay April 17 for 500 bulldozers and tractors. Today, he sent a delegation of 10 prisoners to the U.S. to initiate the exchange talk.

While continuing to talk in terms of tractors, Castro today said that as an alternative to his proposal Cuba is prepared to exchange the captives for an equal number of political prisoners, who he said are being held in the U.S.

Without amplifying, Castro declared that they include American, Puerto Ricans, Guatemalans, Nicaraguans and self-Fascist Spaniards.

If this offer, was accepted Cuba would be prepared to announce all material indemnification. "It's up to Mr. (President) Kennedy," Castro declared.

On the prisoners-for-tractors deal, the Cuban Premier said his government is willing to negotiate with representatives of Kennedy, with a committee of American legislators or with a group of leading citizens.

Noting that Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt has taken an interest in the exchange proposal, Castro said she would be welcome to come to Cuba to discuss it. The Cuban government would not, however, negotiate with Jose Miro Cardona, a "so-called government-in-exile."

Castro termed Cardona's group an instrument of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Parliament At a Glance

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Monday, May 22, 1961

Liberal MPs demanded that Transport Minister Balcer come to the defence of CNR President Donald Gordon or concur in attacks on him by back - bench Conservatives.

Mr. Balcer said he is personally satisfied with Mr. Gordon's work but did not say whether he would be continue in his post.

The Commons gave third and final reading to a government bill increasing the CNR's board of directors to 12 from seven.

The House also gave second reading—approval in principle—to the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act and to a series of technical amendments to the Canada Shipping Act.

Frank Howard (CCF—Skeena) said Canadian Marconi Company, in which Canadian Pacific Ltd. has a controlling interest, is going against the Bill of Rights.

Geneva Parley Split 3 Ways On How to Enforce Truce

GENEVA (CP)—The international conference on Laos prepared today to chart its future course after a week of opening statements that showed the delegates deeply divided on the best way to supervise neutrality in the Southeast Asian Kingdom.

The conference must now decide whether to (1) split up in study committees, (2) go on debating points at issue in full sessions, or (3) recess until after the June 8 meetings in Geneva of President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

The countries at the conference table are split roughly three ways. Most of the Communist bloc and those for the CPR presidency or defend him forcefully.

Mr. Martin said lack of defence for public servants was nothing new for the Conservatives. Attacks on Bank of Canada Governor James Coyne of the Bank of Canada would have prompted Finance Minister Fleming to defence or repudiation.

The Communist-bloc wants to limit the commission's activities and subject it to veto of just about everybody concerned. The West wants to extend its operations to every corner of the jungle kingdom and eliminate any veto restrictions.

The chairman of the commission that also includes Poland and Canada, favors a middle position that would allow a veto but permit the Geneva majority and minority reports. Neutral Burma and Cambodia support the Indian stand.

The commission "was originally established by the 1954 Geneva conference that ended the Indochina war and brought Laos independence. After operating for four years—never effectively but nonetheless it was. The rebels refused to allow ICC truce teams into the territory they controlled and the royal government charged Polish members of the commission were Communist spies.

The current crisis brought revival of the commission. Both leaders are back in Laos but have been marking time until the delegates here spell out their functions and powers.

Tractors-Prisoners Trade Under Fire in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—Charges and demands threatening the tractors-for-prisoners trade today from two sides—the U.S. Congress and Fidel Castro.

State Secretary Dean Rusk was faced with congressional opposition to the proposed exchange and with the administration approves the private of floria to exchange earthmoving equipment for the freedom of 1,200 Cuban invasion prisoners.

Heated speeches in which Cuban Prime Minister Castro's proposal for such an exchange was described as a "ransom" and "bargain" or an "inhuman monster" kept the Senate in session until early evening Monday.

From Cuba came word that Castro threatens to break off the negotiations.

"If the insults of Mr. Kennedy's agents continue and to jeopardize the indemnification Cuba demands," said an official Cuban radio commentator, "then all discussion will be stopped and the prisoners' fate (prisoners) will have to face the revolutionary tribunals for the Cuban people."

Castro has been infuriated by the United States calling the proposal an exchange. He insists it is indemnification for damage caused by the invasion.

Exchange or indemnification, U.S. authorities ended a week Monday.

Senator Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat who is chairman of the Senate Latin-American subcommittee, asked Rusk to announce soon "what the position of our government is."

Morse called it "a dangerous thing to countenance" voluntary committees whose operations are bound to have "repercussions on our foreign policy."

Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem., Ark.) chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, said he didn't believe the government "should lend itself to that kind of a blackmail operation."

Senator Homer Capehart (Rep. Ind.) said that if sponsors of the fund - raising drive are acting without President Kennedy's authority they "are playing the fool."

The government has officially remained aloof from the negotiations.

Senator Styles Bridges (Rep. N.H.) asked "How much more humiliation and contempt must we suffer from the Communist dictator?

"Not since the days of Hitler when the infamous Eichmann offered to trade on an even basis, one for one truck, has the civilized world been confronted with such a heinous barter."

"His (Castro's) only purpose will be to kill American boys and why's going to trade truck-tors for them?"

The fund-raising committee—composed of labor leader Walter P. Reuther, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of a former president, and Milton Eisenhower, brother of the former president—met with a delegation of the 1,200 prisoners. The prisoners were paroled by Castro to fly to the United States to try to negotiate the deal.

Reuther announced afterward that his group had agreed to supply the tractors provided Castro meets certain conditions. The trade may cost as much as $17,000,000.

56 FATALITIES ACROSS CANADA DURING HOLIDAY

Traffic Mishaps Take 36 Lives

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

As the Victoria Day weekend came to an end, accidents on road, river and lake, including suicides and murders, pushed national fatality figures steadily up to predicted tolls.

The cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press showed that from 6 p. m. local times Friday to Monday midnight at least 56 persons were killed—36 of them on highways.

The reported traffic toll fell just short of the Canadian Highway Safety Council's predicted 40. Late reports could send it over the mark.

Drownings accounted for 14 deaths. Five fire deaths were reported, and one person was electrocuted.

Ontario reported 23 accidental deaths, 22 on the roads and one drowning.

Other provincial totals with traffic deaths bracketed:

Manitoba 10 (5); Quebec 8 (4); Nova Scotia 4 (2); Saskatchewan 4 (0); Alberta 4 (1); British Columbia 4 (2); New Brunswick 1 (0). Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick reported no fatal accidents. The figures do not include natural

Texas Brothers Win Proxy Battle, Rule $6 Billion Financial Empire

BALTIMORE (AP)—The epic battle of millionaires" for control of the $6,000,000,000 financial empire ruled by Allegheny Corporation ends today with a victory for the Murchison Brothers.

Never before had a proxy fight been waged for such stakes.

All that remained was formal announcement of the margin in yesterday's proxy rolled up over vanquished management forces led by Allan Kirby, out going chairman.

Counting disputed proxies, it was reported to top 800,000. Disregarding them, it was still well over 500,000, informed sources said.

Unanswered, however, was this question:

By winning the battle, did John D. Murchison, 39, and Clint, 37, win the war?

Paradoxically, the outcome left Kirby, rich and proud, owning nearly 35 per cent of Allegheny's 2,844,970 common shares, a holding larger than that of the corporation's new rulers and their associates combined.

In the lexicon of poker, Kirby was "looking down the throats" of the victors. The best indication was that he would bide his time, spurning the Murchisons' expected offer of representation on the board.

Kirby, 68, reputed to be worth $100,000,000 in a Work worth 5-and-10-cent store inheritance, refused at the May 11 three-recessed session of Alleghany's May 1 annual meeting.

The count of proxies was finished late last evening.

The dissident Texans whose father, fabulous oilman and investor Clint Murchison Sr., once was a Kirby business ally, swept all nine directorships on the seven elected by common stock votes and the two chosen by preferred shareholders, Benjamin Buttrick Odell Jr. and Edmund Cabot.

The Murchison forces planned to assemble in New York Wednesday to take over officially, probably by installing an interim crew of new corporate officers.

Allegany controls the $2,500,000 New York Central Railroad and investors Diversified Services Inc., $1,700,000 Minneapolis-based investment company complex.

In addition, it has multi-million dollar holdings in the Baltimore and Ohio and Missouri Pacific railroads, Webb and Knapp Incorporated, giant New York realty firm, and Transamerica Corporation, an insurance holding company.

Junta Disbands 15 Political Parties In Korea

U.S. Voices Deep Concern Over Move

SEOUL (Reuters) — South Korea's 15 political parties were disbanded today by the ruling military junta and the United States voiced deep concern over the move.

Disbanded along with the political parties were 238 social organizations. Only charitable religious and other non-political groups were exempted by a junta decree, effective today.

The disbanding was another step in the consolidation of power by the military junta which overthrew the government of Premier John Chang last week.

The U.S. Embassy here announced its opposition to abolition of political parties.

"Any step suppressing free government process and which makes more difficult the restoration of civilian government is a matter of deep concern," an embassy spokesman said.

Political parties covered by the decree included the pro-democratic party and the Liberal party of former president Syngman Rhee.

Rhee's party in fact ceased to exist after last year's student-led revolution but it was not officially disbanded under Chang's administration.

The abolition left the military junta with complete control of South Korea. Shortly after the junta announced that circumstances permitted, it would hand back power to a civilian administration.

Meanwhile, the junta reaffirmed the appointments of the four armed forces chiefs, originally appointed by the Chang administration.

47 Charged With Breaking Martial Law

SEOUL (Reuters)—The first trial of the new South Korean military junta's campaign to clean up social vice opened today with 47 men and women charged with dancing in competition ballroom.

The prosecution accused the 24 men and 23 women of breaking the martial law prohibiting assemblies. It also said 16 of the defendants were married and were at the dance hall without the knowledge of their husbands.

Truckers Want Part of Subsidy

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Trucking Association Monday urged that the government's $20,000,000-a-year "rail back-subsidy" be extended to freight rates paid to shippers whenever competition exists.

The suggestion was made by Canadian Trucking Associations president Ian Sinclair before committee on railways, canals and telegraph lines. He was speaking as an amendment to government legislation extending the subsidy. Bill 193 — Freight Rates Reduction Act for up to another year.

The group, which speaks for about 85 per cent of the "for-hire" trucking industry, objects to the rate subsidy as unfair and discriminatory.

The association is suggested that where competition could be proven to exist the subsidy would go directly to the shipper, rather than to the railways, so that the shipper could then choose whichever form of transport he wanted.

The committee plans to meet Wednesday afternoon to continue its study of the subsidy legislation.

Duchess Says She and Duke Still Happy

NEW YORK (AP)—The Duchess of Windsor looked back on 24 years of married life with a word of advice to those she said still hope for her marriage to break up.

"Give up hope, because David and I are happy and have been happy for 24 years and that's the way it will continue to be."

The duchess for whose love King Edward VIII abdicated, offered the advice in the last of two articles, published in the June issue of McCall's Magazine.

"Surely, if ever there was a marriage that started off inauspiciously, resented and vilified, with many hopes and probably prayers for its failure, it was ours," she said.

With a man of greater stature than the Duke, she wrote, "I freely admit I would have been whipped long ago by the insults that were hurled our way."

WRYLY ANSWERED

The duchess, who with the duke will observe their 36th wedding anniversary June 3, made these other observations about her husband and their years together:

"When we were first married I thought I would not possibly be on time."

"I must remember that the matter of money and its management were foreign to my upbringing. He attends to all our finances."

"On the subject of vacations: I think the woman should go where her husband wants to go."

"In all the years of our marriage, not once—not once, mind you—has the duke said a cross word to me."

"The only obstacles that have made our marriage a nightmare have been those good by throwing us together continuously and continually.

On Monday evening, Holloway St. Drilled Church, A.O.T.S men's club held its final meeting of the season. This was a visitors night, and numerous guests were present.

Following dinner and a singsong, Ron Jones and Elgin Moynes conducted an inspiring devotional period. Their remarks concerned the fact that everyone has something to offer to God, depending on where one's talents lie.

Real Benedik introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Earl Dickboehler, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Dickboehler gave an interesting talk on the function of committees and committee chairmen in an organization, and his remarks were well worth noting.

Sgt. at arms for the evening was the Rev. C. W. Coleman, and the song-leader was Garry Dobbs and members are reminded that the next regular meeting will be in September. New members will be welcome.

WILL STAND BY

Byron White, deputy assistant attorney - general, who came here to head the federal force, said the marshals would stay here as long as necessary to protect civil rights, particularly the rights of free speech and assembly, and interstate travel in safety.

Alabama's congressional delegate in Washington protested to the President's office that the department is composed of Malcolm Turnbull as city engineer and Mayo Heiatsu as deputy engineer.

It is merely using money provided in the budget for summer engineering help for another purpose, Postal City Manager J. H. Reynolds.

New Engineer For Department Will Be Hired

The city public works engineering staff is shortly to be increased to three fully qualified members with the expected hiring of an assistant engineer.

In former years it has been the practice to augment the engineering staff with engineering students during the summer months, but this year it has been decided to hire a fully qualified engineer to act as assistant.

Currently the city engineering department is composed of Malcolm Turnbull as city engineer and Mayo Heiatsu as deputy engineer.

Report Shows Attempts Made To Supply Water

TRENTON — Recently, Jim Page, manager of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission, searching for old records, came across a report on the earliest attempts to provide the town with an adequate water supply compiled by Canon Armstrong. Mr. Armstrong was the father of Reg Armstrong of Trenton and the grandfather of Norman Armstrong, the principals of the Armstrong Travel Service.

Up until 1880, the only piped water in Trenton was supplied by running water through a series of tamarac logs into water barrels placed at strategic points along the sidewalk near the Church of England property on Queen Street. The source of the water was a natural spring area on this property.

The line of logs and gravity system was owned by John O'Rourke and the land leased by him from the Church of England rector, Canon Bleasdall.

Upon the death of Canon Bleasdall, Rev. F. W. Armstrong became the rector of the church. He had limited surveying and engineering previous to entering the ministry and saw the water system as a means to adding to the church revenue. He built a cement reservoir and laid down a line of iron pipes. The mains were two-and-a-half inch. Smaller pipes were run into homes in the lower part of the town. A pump was installed for greater efficiency. Later the vestry of St. George's Church entered into an agreement with Mr. Armstrong and A. W. Bleasdell.

In 1895 a reservoir was built on the mountain and the Trenton Water Works Company formed, with principals Armstrong, Hawley, Bentley and Whittier.

The new company ran pipes into various parts of town and across the river to east Trenton.

Difficulties were encountered when the reservoir excavated near the spring and formed a water company of his own.

Town officials held meetings to try to iron out the contention between the two factions. After a series of law suits, the two companies were amalgamated and later the Trenton Water Works Company merged with the Trenton Electric and Water Company.

Town Briefs

Trenton police report one of the quietest weekends on record as far as accidents are concerned, in spite of a steady flow of traffic through the town. On Saturday, Dundas St. West, in the vicinity of the post office was "flowing with milk" when the brakes on a truck failed and the vehicle struck the rear end of a milk wagon. Damage to the truck and wagon was set $85, including milk bottle breakage. A downpour prevented the startled horse from running away.

Monday night, Trenton firemen staged a mammoth fireworks display on Mount Pelton. Thousands of children, of all ages, turned out to "oooh and "aaah" at the display. Members of Trenton Boy Scout troops directed traffic, preventing tie-ups which have been experienced by motorists other years.

Missing since the fire at the Canada Creosoting Company's fire are one fireman's coat, No. 14, and one fireman's helmet, No. 4. Anyone with any knowledge concerning the whereabouts of these articles may contact the fire stations at Trenton or Batawa.

This is Community Planning Week in Trenton. Residence are invited to view displays of projected town development in Canterbury Hall, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings 7.30 p.m. — 10 p.m.

Trenton firemen were called to a fire, originating in a firecracker prank in a Bay Street lane, last night. The fire, which might have been a serious if it had not been noticed and reported soon after it started, was quickly subdued by the firemen.

Falls From Boat

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — David Edward Grayson, 20, of Virginiatown was drowned near here Monday after falling from the bands of two would-be rescuers.

Cockayne, a native of Leeds, England, had been pulled from the water by two companions but fell off the boat. His body was recovered from a skindiver 20 yards from shore.

Virginiatown is about 20 miles east of here.

Low Interest Loans to Vets Are Suggested

TRENTON—At the recent meeting of the Trenton RCAF Association, a resolution, presented by Trenton Wing, 413 met with the overwhelming approval of the convention. The resolution proposed that the benevolent funds of the three services be used in part to provide low interest loans to recognized vierans' groups to allow them to obtain the down payment on a limited dividend housing project for their unhoused members. To illustrate, if such a group as the Trenton Legion branch should wish to build an apartment unit for rental to pensioners, Central Mortgage and Housing would provide $45,000 on a $50,000 project while the special fund would provide a low interest loan of $5,000. As the three services have $9,000,000 in their benevolent funds it was felt that this would be a good way to help veterans who have paid into the funds over the years.

Commenting on the resolution, national first vice-president Phil F. Connell of Halifax said that he felt that this was one of the most important resolutions ever considered by the association.

The Ontario group of 55 delegates left Downsview airport on Wednesday May 17 and returned on Sunday. Over 300 delegates from across Canada were at the convention. The delegates were entertained at the Officers' Mess at RCAF Station, Winnipeg by Air Vice-Marshal Curtis and on Wednesday night.

The Trenton and Belleville delegates attended a discussion on Air Cadets and the Trenton representative was the first information given out at this meeting. Trenton helped in the Trenton wing as it hopes to sponsor a new cadet squadron in Trenton in the fall.

April Traffic Toll Heavy In 4 Counties

Highway traffic accidents took a heavy toll in the Belleville provincial police headquarters district during the month of April.

During the month there were four persons killed in four separate accidents. In all there were 102 reported accidents with 47 persons being injured. There were two multiple death accidents, both occurring in the Kingston and Napanee areas.

The No. 9 Belleville police district takes in the four counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac.

During the month provincial police made 3,581 highway checks, issued 1,382 warnings, and laid 277 charges for traffic violations.

Eighty eight motorists were charged with speeding; there were four drunk drivers and 11 charged with impaired driving.

Traffic Heavy, Accidents Few

Despite the heavy stream of traffic which flowed through the district, the immediate Belleville area escaped with but a few minor accidents over the Victoria Day holiday weekend.

City police reported a very quiet weekend, while provincial police have investigated but two minor accidents since Friday night. There were no injuries and property damage was below the one hundred dollar below $100 in the other.

Today Provincial Police Inspector A. McDougall expressed his appreciation for the co-operation of the motoring public in driving safely over the holiday weekend.

"There wasn't a serious accident in the entire No. 9 district," stated the inspector. "This despite the fact traffic was probably the heaviest so far this year."

EDGAR (RCAF)—Corporal F. A. "Dave" Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Davidson, R.R. 1, Roslin, Ontario, was awarded the Canadian Forces Decoration for 12 years meritorious service in the RCAF.

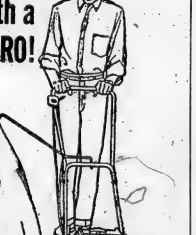
The announcement and presentation was made by Wing Commander J. H. Dempster, AFC, CD, Commanding Officer, RCAF Station Edgar.

Dave first enlisted in the Royal Canadian Navy in October 1943 and was actively engaged in convoy and mine sweeping duties on the North Atlantic, until he took his release in November 1945.

Prior to joining the RCAF in March 1952 he resided in Chatham, N.B., where he married the former Leona Richard, also of Chatham, N.B.

The Davidson's now have two children and reside in permanent married quarters at RCAF Station Edgar.

Nine Men Die In Rocket Fuel Plant Blast



CUMBERLAND, Md. (AP)—Investigators today picked through the ruins of two buildings at a rocket fuel plant for clues to the cause of an explosion that killed nine workmen and injured six.

The charred and dismembered bodies were recovered after a seven-hour fire touched off by the blast had burned out the buildings.

There was no official estimate of the damage. Col. Joseph Bailey, Ballistics Laboratory, operated by Hercules Powder Company of Wilmington, Del. for the navy. One observer described the explosion crater as "a big black hole in the ground."

The laboratory is at Rocket Center, W. Va., just across the Potomac River from Cumberland, Md. It makes solid fuel which has been used in the third and last stages of rockets flying satellites into space.

Must Wait for Impact

It will be some days at least, and possibly weeks or even months, before we will learn the full impact on Canadian policies of the visit of President Kennedy to Ottawa. One cannot help but be struck, though, by the extremely careful wording of the joint communique issued by the President and Prime Minister Diefenbaker, particularly in reference to Cuba.

"They were in accord that the alignment of a regime in the western hemisphere with Communist leadership abroad was a matter for serious concern, threatening as it did the peaceful and democratic evolution of the Latin American peoples," the communique said. "The prime minister assured the president of Canada's continued and increasing interest in inter-American affairs."

This is one of those statements which is open to many interpretations. It provides an impression of an accord, while leaving citizens of both countries free to infer that there will be no drastic change in the attitudes already taken by their respective governments — and these attitudes have been widely divergent. Moreover, each side can, if it wishes, read assurances into the message.

A concession to Canadian opinion is the reference to alignment "with Communist leadership abroad." These are virtually the same words which President Kennedy used in his proclamation of the so-called Kennedy Doctrine, but the plain inference then was that the U.S. felt itself free to discourage any country in this hemisphere establishing a Communist government. The repetition of the reference to Communists "abroad" without any accompanying reservation of the assertion of the right of the U.S. to safeguard its security in any manner it sees fit, takes the sting out of this stand and no longer suggests that the U.S. reserves the right to decide what form of government action in the western hemisphere shall choose. The question that goes unanswered is which impression is the correct one, this new one or the original.

For citizens of the U.S., there is re-assurance in Diefenbaker's "serious concern" over foreign Communist infiltration — but by avoiding the mention of Cuba the Prime Minister also successfully avoided going on the record as to whether he does, or does not, regard Cuba as aligned with Communism abroad.

In one respect, we can be almost certain that the communique was much too optimistic. "The peaceful and democratic evolution of the Latin American peoples" is an admirable objective — but is almost certain to prove unattainable. On a continent where palace revolutions have been commonplaces for decades, it is folly to expect that the transfer of political power and the more equable distribution of wealth will be everywhere achieved by peaceful methods. Some revolutions — and possibly bloody ones — are inevitable. What is not inevitable is that these revolutions will be controlled by Communists. That Communists will participate in them we can take for granted. What must be avoided is an automatic assumption that mere participation is synonymous with control. Such an assumption is made, force of circumstances will almost certainly convert a possibly completely false assessment of the situation into the truth. One may reasonably hope that, despite the reference to "evolution" and the failure to mention even the possibility of "revolution," the fact is understood and appreciated in Ottawa. It is not so certain that we have any reasonable grounds to suppose that Prime Minister Diefenbaker was able to get President Kennedy to accept this viewpoint.

Restore Old Cistern

The Jews, entering into the Promised Land for the third time in the long history of their race, have made considerable progress in their efforts to transform it into a land flowing with milk and honey. In the reclamation of the desert, they have utilized many modern machines and methods. We now, however, have a reminder that, in the ancient world too, there were people who knew how to make the most of the least.

At Beit Awwa, a small isolated village on the Jordan-Israeli border, thirty men have been laboring for two months to finish a cistern to catch the last of the spring rains and store this precious water for the dry months ahead. The cistern is not a new project. Instead an old Roman cistern is being cleaned out, the accumulation of the centuries. Plastering and concreting the cistern, which is almost thirty feet deep and still wider across, will provide space to store enough water to last the village's thousand inhabitants for two years. Nor is this cistern the first from another age to be restored to its original condition and put to its original use. In drought-plagued Jordan many cisterns built by the Romans are being repaired and used once again.

Strictly Personal

Fiction Now Lacks Vitality

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In the current issue of "Partisan Review," Mary McCarthy has contributed an interesting article on writers in modern fiction. She makes the point that most novels written in the last 30 years do not contain characters that "live."

I am pleased to have my own feelings confirmed by so acute a highbrow as Miss McCarthy. For a long time I have grimly tackled modern fiction with the popular variety, and have come away with a sense of disappointment.

With all his faults and excesses, for instance, Dickens was able to create characters who came alive — and who stay alive with a kind of immortality. Even if, as is doubtless, the operative word in the previous sentence is "create."

For I have the distinct impression that modern writers of fiction are not creators — and, here again, I am not referring to people who merely make no pretensions to reality. Today's writers are analyzers, delvers and diggers, working with almost microscopic precision on their subjects. But their subjects, alas, rarely become objects that move freely with lives of their own.

The act of creation is a mysterious one. Nobody really understands it, or how the creative artist. God, we are told, blended the breath of life, the quintessential spirit, into the first man; and it is not without meaning that the ancient Hebrew word for soul, "nephesh," and the Greek word, "psyche," both mean "breath" or "air". Creation is out of the air.

But most characters in modern fiction are contrivances, not creations. They are made out of heavy powderettes — sociology, psychology, economics and (very nearly) microbiology. The authors try laboriously to "get into" their characters, but in the end we are left with case studies and not with human persons.

Jacques Maritain, in a memorable book, speaks of "creative intuition." This is what seems to be lacking in so many novels and plays today; the intuition that is capable of creating a character who is independent of the author, who continues to live like Falstaff long after he has died in the work itself. (This is why, by the way, Queen Elizabeth urged Shakespeare to revive Falstaff in "The Merry Wives of Windsor"; it was inconceivable that the roguish knight should be dead.)

Perhaps modern man has become so theoretical that he cannot get out of himself. And perhaps a little learning in psychology, as in theology, is the most dangerous thing for the literary artist.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Our dramatists of stage, screen and the electronics bring their villains to too sudden an end. Bang goes the gat in the hand of the hero, two minutes before the end of the show. And flat in the dust lies the villain.

Flat in the dust after hours, days, weeks, years of villainy. It is too darned flat, that end. Villains should get hit in the end like the villains of months later, after a long, lingering illness.

As a matter of fact, that is the way most villains die in real life for several reasons. One reason is that heroes, being men of high character with little practise at pistol shooting owing to their work on the school board and talking up the collection at church are very good shots. They usually kill villains in the foot, not in the midriff.

But villains usually get arrested by a policeman, or sometimes by a shooting. The policeman walks up to them and says "You're under the looking for you!"

Then he takes them by the scruff of the neck and telephones for the wagon.

A villain usually has a long time to feel cheap, remembering all the people who must be laughing at him, caged like a rat in an iron pen, or dying slowly of gangrene in the foot.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TRASH ACCUMULATES QUICKLY

Indeed it does. Observe sometime what happens if you fail to empty your wastebaskets just one day. It seems inconceivable that handling the odds and ends of letter writing and wastepaper accumulated in a normal execution in many cities throughout the country.

What is true in the case of the wastepaper basket and scraps of paper is true also of your life and mine and the material which finally comes to clutter them up and make them quite disorderly.

It is the easiest thing in the world to fill the head with trash — trashy reading, daydreaming, resentful thoughts. It is easy to fill the life with trash of inconsequential action — complaining about there being nothing to do in hours of leisure, talking to people hour after hour about nothing at all, and watching "soap" operas filled with trash? There appears to be too much violence at times and occasionally programs which rub us a bit the wrong way, but on the whole many of us would feel that TV programming is better than we might have a right to expect.

And the movies — thanks to church influence — have cleaned up considerably in recent years.

Life is short for all of us and its moments very precious. Use them well. Trash accumulates quickly.

Making Nasty Sound Nice

Christian Science Monitor

The advertising copywriter's job is not to supply words with the trite and true seem bright and new; it does not abuse language in the imagination and a drain upon the thesaurus.

However, it does once there should be concern that advertising is becoming over originative — in the sense of abuse is real. This is the tendency to be too colorful about colors.

Take women's dresses, for instance. Exhibit A is a shirt shown in "Mauve Mist." Maybe he had in Spice Pink, Black Magic, or Cinnamon Tan. But whith spice? Saffron or red pepper? And how does Copenhagen Blue differ from Monlego Blue, a color in which the advertising house is available — if you don't want it in Canadian red, pink, white or variegated candlelight?

Then there is a coat in "Denim Blue." Presumably this is blue denim blue. But if that's the name of a color how long will it be before some advertiser feels obliged to sell denim Blue denim overalls?

Automobiles, precision machines though they are, receive the same kind of vague treatment when admen describe the enamel. What man is a Nile Green convertible be when the Nile is brown? And even more unfortunate are household objects are beginning to round like: Given-thy gown.

These flights of fancy are more acceptable than having a Bureau of Standards decimal number for every shade. But wouldn't some copywriter have to be a little bit daring and original by offering a product in simple old-fashioned colors?

Letters To The Editor

Yanks Showed Flag With Bomber Flight

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

President Kennedy's recent visit to Canada appears to have been masterfully designed to bring Canadians to the realities and specifically to make them realize that manifest destiny has marked Canada out to be the United States' "next friend". It was clear from Mr. Kennedy's remarks at Ottawa that the Americans are willing to overlook our carping criticisms of increasing U.S. domination of Canada providing that we are, willing to desist from such injudicious actions in the future and will demonstrate that we are prepared to accept the role envisaged for us in Washington without further nonsense.

To make the point even clearer the U.S. Strategic Air Command chose Wednesday, May 17th, while Mr. Kennedy was preparing to confer with Mr. Diefenbaker, to stage with a most impressive demonstration of U.S. airpower over Canadian soil, B-52 multi-jet hydrogen bombers crossed the northern border in force. Between 2:00 and 3:30 a.m. six of these mighty aircraft, flying at intervals of 10 to 15 minutes, passed over the Falgrave area 100 miles east of Toronto on a course which would appear to have taken them near Ottawa. This particular group, which I observed, flew at about 10,000 feet, an altitude for either training or operational flights — presumably so as to visual effects. Witnesses from the ground would not be too greatly reckoned by distance,

It is, of course, not known whether this or any other group carried their ordained weapons. However, it was also an extremely sobering display of Old Glory in the most modern and powerful "showing the flag".

It is to be hoped that Canadians will be deeply impressed by the over-all character of President Kennedy's visit, and that they will, indeed, soon come to their senses.

This Duchess Saved Winnie

New York Times

Because he is supposed to be in the House of Lords, the viscount is a retiring young man who calls himself Anthony Marlborough, who has been (figuratively) dragged from the House of Commons kicking and biting by the hair of the furniture. A gracious American-born lady, who lived a long time ago when she helped another politically ambitious young man with a similar name.

The American-born lady is Mme. Consuelo Vanderbilt Balsan, former Duchess of Marlborough. The young man whom she saved from the House of Lords for a considerable political life was Winston Churchill.

In 1895, the beautiful and very rich Consuelo Vanderbilt married the ninth Duke of Marlborough, and two children had been born to this marriage when the duke began to insist upon the duke's cousin, Winston Churchill, when the duke died.

In her book, "The Glitter and the Gold," Duchess Consuelo recalled her early encounters with Winston Churchill, who stood take some of the stuffiness out of Blenheim Palace, the Marlborough seat.

"I was glad to turn to Winston, a young red-headed boy a few years older than I. He struck me as ardent and vital and interested to have every intention of getting the most out of life, whether in sport, in love in advancing his politics."

Madame Balsan also recalled the grim view that her husband's mother, the Dowager Duchess of Marlborough, took of Winston Churchill as a possible Duke of Marlborough. It all came out at the first meeting of the young 4 American-born duchess and her formidable mother-in-law.

Madame Balsan wrote:

"Then, fixing her cold grey eyes on me she (the Dowager Duchess) continued, 'Your first duty is to have a son, because it will be intolerable to me to see that little upstart Winston become duke. Are you in a family way?'

"Feeling utterly crushed by my negligence in not having insured Winston's eclipse and depressed by the responsibilities she had heaped upon me, I was glad to take my leave."

An heir, the present and 10th Duke of Marlborough was born to the duke and duchess in 1897.

To Your Good Health

There Is no 'Correct' Blood Pressure for Humans

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is the significance of blood pressure which rises to 150 or 180 in a man in his early 20s? How ever, the pressure comes down again within an hour without medication.

"What causes this? What are the possibilities of developing hypertension in later years? Will medication control it or there will be no harmful effects? — Mrs. D. W., Jr."

I can't answer as specifically as you would like, because this sort of thing requires study of the individual's case.

It could be the result of some extreme nervous instability. Again, it could be physical, a tumor of the adrenal gland, resulting in an oversupply of adrenalin; a thyroid disorder; faulty development of the aorta, or large artery leading from the heart. Careful examination would either prove or disprove these causes.

A pressure of 150 or 180 is definitely abnormal for a man in his 20s, but not certain to be correct in wanting it investigated.

If the fault can be ascertained and corrected — fine. But if it cannot, periodic, short periods of high blood pressure continue, medication is in order to try to prevent or to help health. Widespread testing

Some sedatives might be effective, or one of the several drugs that are now available in recent years for controlling abnormal blood pressure.

On the basis of experience, I am opposed to the theory that there is any "correct" blood pressure for humans. However, it can vary from one individual to another.

People who merely fret about their blood pressure usually don't develop it. Instead they show by the fretting, to drive it even higher.

But those who, accurately informed that their blood pressure is "abnormally" high, actually do something about it, nothing wrong with relaxing, or are much more likely to do something.

And please remember this: Sometimes what you can do is think things out carefully and see if you can't teach yourself a new way of living, so you do your day's work as well as you can and stop fretting about it over matters that can't be helped.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I would like information of Fordyce's condition of the mucous membrane of the mouth. Is it incurable? — C. A. H."

Some of the sebaceous glands in the mucous membrane become clogged, and look like tiny white cysts on the surface of the membrane. That's all there is to treatment.

"Dear Dr. Molner: After a hospital examination and a number of tests, our doctor tells us my wife has histoplasmosis and there isn't much he can do for her. She coughs quite a bit, and her eyes hurt. We would like to know what causes this condition and what can be done about it. — C. C."

It's a fungus infection acquired by inhaling fungus spores that live in our soil, especially around chicken coops. There is no known treatment except guarding the patient's general programs have shown that it is a much more prevalent disease that thousands have it, in such mild form that there are no noticeable symptoms. The disease is most prevalent in the central areas around the Mississippi River and south of the Ohio River.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has been forced to go to bed every day for one hour — noon in-about 4 p.m., eats his big main meal, and then lies down for another hour nap before he goes back to work.

"I feel that I need that big nap first and eat afterward. I don't think it is good for him to lie down on a full stomach. Am I right? — Mrs. F. K."

Darned if I know why you object to a nap after a meal. Your husband comes home a hungry man and has his big dinner, he relaxes. That's entirely natural. It's a good thing to relax after eating, and let the body devote its energies to digestion. There is napping, after eating. It's helpful.

Barking Dog Inn

London Evening News

The owner of a pub in Winchester has trained his dog to eject customers at closing time. The dog begins barking promptly at 10.30 p.m., and pulls on the customers' coat or receiver-trant client.

"We don't mind this treatment," said the owner. "In fact they come from miles around just for the privilege of being put out by Kim."

RED BARNS

Just a few of the attractions of my youth were old red barns and old covered bridges. I loved red checkers designed tablecloths, the water trough for horses in the centre of the town, the dingy and fetid, Yes, the town band thrilled me with its many and varied selections. Now, if some such event occurs in New York City we are apt to become excited in advance as one of import.

As for old red barns, why not more poems on them? Especially in those with the hand and upper Maine and in many parts of New England. These are the painter's delight.

Australia's population is now reported as nearly 10,500,000. The distribution shows much the same pattern as in Canada; two states (New South Wales and Victoria) have some 8,850,000 people between them. Again as in Canada, there is no great rush to fill up the empty spaces of that vast land.

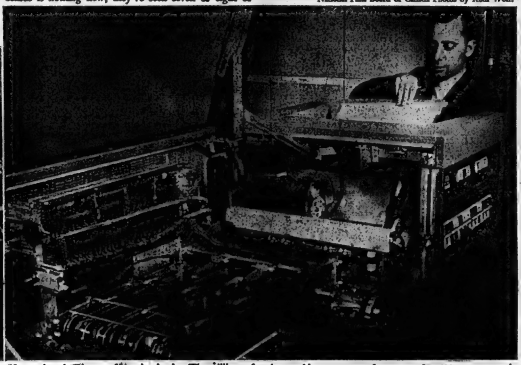
Census Taking from Coast to Coast

Canada Sits for her Portrait

Age? 89. Employment? Retired. M. E. Brennan is one of 800,000 Canadians currently receiving the Old Age Pension. Changes in the age-structure of a population have wide-reaching effects. The census will show the size of Canada's young labour force, the number of retired.

Married? Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lewis have been married for 60 years. Marital statistics have great interest when applied to specific areas. The young man from Halifax should heed the old advice and go west to Vancouver where single girls outnumber the men by three to two.

A nation is her people. To paint a portrait of a nation, one must know her people. A census is, first of all, millions of individual interviews. Here, at Carleton Lodge near Canada's capital, the picture begins. For these people, a census is nothing new; they've been seven or eight of Canada's nine since Confederation. Decisions based on census data will affect the lives of all Canadians for the next decade. These interviews, these people, provide the essential working sketches for the portrait of a nation.



National Film Board of Canada Photos by Rafi Wolf.

Employed last week? To Mrs. Catherine Cowan, 60 years a housewife, woman's work is never done. The ten questions on employment in the 1961 census will show which industries have expanded, which declined; hence, where likely areas of employment will exist in next decade.

Ethnic or cultural group? Thomas Mulligan has no trouble with this one. His, and another 18 million answers will add the colour to the nation's portrait. Canada is a land of many nationalities and wide cultural variety. The census will assess these varying contributions.

Here at last the picture of a nation begins. The millions of tiny sketches are sorted, analyzed, and finally united to form one vast mosaic of the Canadian people. This is the giant "brain" recently installed at the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Its electronic document "reader" — only one in the world — can scan documents for 600 persons each minute, converting them to dots on tape, which the computer files in its memory. Publishing of census results will begin late this year. By December, 1962, most of the nation's portrait will be finished.

Bowling Notes

A special meeting of the members of the Lawn Bowling Club has been called for the clubhouse on Wednesday evening to discuss several important items of business pertaining to the operation of the club. The meeting is called for eight o'clock and all the male members of the club are requested to be on hand and take part in the discussion of proposals that will be placed before the membership. The president, Bill VanTassel stated that the meeting would not be lengthy and there may be an opportunity to get in a short game before calling it a night.

The lawn bowling season was officially opened on Monday afternoon when a mixed jitney was played and more than fifty men and women turned up for the first day of play. To say the greens were in excellent condition would be putting it mildly. Mr. Mathews the greenskeeper has done a terrific job and the greens were fast and true. Some winter kill was experienced on the lower green but the grass has grown in and with a couple of days of sunshine after the past week of rain it should be in mid-summer condition.

A number of new and old bowlers who had quit the game for a couple of seasons were on hand for the jitney and the older bowlers showed that they had not lost their technique while the newer ones showed plenty of ability and will soon be heard from in the games that are ahead. For the first game of the season the bowling showed that the winter layoff had not affected the arms and eyes of the bowlers. Keen competition in both games was seen and some new faces were added to the list of prize winners. Despite the intermittent rain and sometimes hail, the bowlers thoroughly enjoyed their afternoon and their favorite pastime.

Eichmann Described as Supreme Authority Over Romanian Jewry

By THOMAS A. REEDY

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann was described in court today as the supreme authority over the Jews in Romania during the war, with more power even than the collaborating Antonescue government.

The prosecution produced documents showing the Gestapo officer, on trial for directing the Nazis' Jewish pogrom, dealt directly with Bucharest and often bypassed the Nazi foreign ministry.

July 26, 1942 was the black day for Romania's Jewry.

Orders flew out of Berlin to whip the pogrom up. Deportations to Auschwitz followed and many thousands also were shot in Romanian ghettos by roving bands of the Einsatz Kommandos — special action squads whose reports came to Eichmann's office "for Jewish affairs."

A widow gave an eyewitness account of the persecutions in Czernowitz, which lost almost its entire Jewish population of 70,000 through starvation, disease and the gas chamber.

Mrs. Perle Mark testified that her husband, the chief rabbi, was shot in a group of about 160, her father and mother were shot when they fell on a march through the streets to a hastily constructed ghetto and her brother and her son were deported.

Oriental Dressing

By VERA WINSTON

There's nothing obscure about the inspiration for this dress. It is quite Oriental in both design and print.

The damson fabric has a silky look about it and the print colors are mustard-yellow with a swirl print of red and green or persian blue with green and gold.

The semi-fitted dress zips in back and the skirt is divided into panel-like slits that disclose a solid tone underskirt.

WELLINGTON — The May meeting of the Wellington Home and School Association was held on Monday evening, May 15th, in the school auditorium with the president, Mr. Gibson in the chair. Mrs. Campbell was pianist. Twenty members answered the roll call.

The charter, which the president had received will be framed.

The attendance plaque which will be used in September, was shown to the members. Mr. Gibson thanked Mr. Sinclair for making the plaque and James Callow for making the letters for it.

SIX NEW MEMBERS

Six new members joined last month, Mrs. Bowerman, corresponding secretary read a letter from the Wellington Women's Institute with a request for $5 enclosed as a donation towards the H. and S. organization.

It was suggested by Mrs. Callow to plan for a "fun fair" to be held in the early spring.

Mrs. Blower read, "What If Your Child Fails", an article from the Chatelaine magazine, which was interesting.

Mrs. Shannon introduced the guest speaker, Miss Fortner, who had been with the health unit for six years. Miss Fortner gave seven helpful little things that parents should do for their children: first make sure they get plenty of rest; that they also get a good nights sleep so that they get a good breakfast and proper food at all times; that the child is able to dress himself, tie shoes and other personal things; disciplined at home before he attends school; Listen to what they have to say as they have a right to their own opinions on many things, complete pre - school medical forms and have teeth checked before he attends school; give the child understanding, assurance and love, a little praise goes a long way.

A film was shown, "One Or Every Street", this was about restored children and was most interesting.

Mrs. J. Rogers thanked Miss Fortner for her interesting talk. The next meeting will be held September 18th and an executive meeting, September 6th.

Women's Activities

Business was discussed. The sectional rally for the W.M.S. will be held on June 8 in Castleton United Church. Miss Margaret Halliday of Angola, will be the special speaker for the occasion.

Mrs. E. Bonisteel had charge of the program which opened with quiet music. Mrs. E. Bonisteel read a poem, "Mother." Mrs. Arnold Stickle read the Scripture reading, Luke 10:38-42 and Mrs. E. Bonisteel gave the meditation and prayer.

Miss Phyllis Sine gave a reading, "My Get Up and Go Has Got Up and Went." Mrs. Fred Charleswort contributed two small readings, "A Mother Speaks" and "A Tribute to Mother".

The meeting closed with prayer.

Everyday Main-Dish Casseroles

By Mary Moore

News of Peter's and Margaret's wedding is coming up tomorrow and Thursday.

Today I want to help you with easy and economical casserole dishes. I am thinking you may have some cold leftover meat from your holiday weekend meals. If so you could substitute it for the canned luncheon meat required in the first recipe today.

M-D Banquet Sponsored by C.G.I.T. Group

THOMASBURG — On Thursday evening the Thomasburg C.G.I.T. group entertained the mothers and the Explorers group, at a delightful "Mother and Daughter" banquet in the I.O.O.F. Hall at 6 p.m.

Over 80 guests partook of the delicious meal, at tables which were tastefully prepared by the girls.

Miss Jean Preston, president of the C.G.I.T., was toastmistress for the occasion.

After a few words of welcome she proposed the toast to the Queen, which was responded to by the singing of the National Anthem. The toast to the mothers was proposed by Miss Linda Vance and responded to by Mrs. David Calvert.

Miss Carol Cowden proposed the toast to the church, to which Mr. Dyson, pastor of Thomasburg United Church, replied.

Mrs. C. Hicks, Presbyterial secretary of the C.G.I.T. group; Mrs. D. Williams, Presbyterial secretary of the Explorers groups and Mr. E. E. Carter, Thomasburg Sunday School superintendent, all spoke briefly on their own particular branch of the work.

Miss Jean Holbert expressed the appreciation of the girls to the speakers and to all who had, in any way, contributed to the success of the banquet.

AFFILIATION SERVICE

An affiliation service with the church followed the speeches.

Mrs. Jack Morris, C.G.I.T. leader, addressed a few words of welcome to the guests and girls, followed by the singing of several hymns.

A discussion by the C.G.I.T. girls on "Mission Study" proved interesting.

Mrs. Hicks, Presbyterial secretary; Mrs. Freda Preston, president of Thomasburg W.M.S. and WA., and Mr. E. E. Carter, Sunday School superintendent, presented the badges and certificates to the girls in a special service.

The girls presented Mrs. Hicks with a gift of money for WASS work for which she graciously thanked the group.

A full report by the C.G.I.T. and Explorers groups on their activities during the past year was indeed a tribute to both the leaders and girls.

The Explorers group closed the meeting with worship service and benediction.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. U. D. — She sends back our gifts to the grandchildren.

June D. — Along with their gifts comes interference.

Mrs. U. D. — We are very hurt by what our daughter-in-law is doing. She will not let her children, our grandchildren, accept gifts from us. As a result the youngsters, who are 8 and 10, think we don't care for them.

The truth is we love all six of our grandchildren dearly, one as much as the other, and none is overlooked at Christmas, Easter or birthdays. Each get the same, no more, no less. But to avoid our gifts, June doesn't let the children come to our home on Christmas and sends back our Easter and birthday packages. She hides them from the kids.

We're trying to figure how to get around this unkindness.

June D. — They'll have to show their love in a much harder way then by buying expensive presents for the children, and that's by just being nice to us.

From the start my mother-in-law never liked me and, since our first child came a few months after our marriage, she treats hi mas though he were illegitimate. She picks on him, criticizes him and upsets him.

The gifts, we found, made things worse. They were an excuse for her to drop in and visit who kids weren't using the new stuff, or for my father-in-law to scold if a toy was scratched. Besides, we're in a low-income bracket and the fancy playthings were too rich for our blood.

My husband visits his parents. His sisters and I are better off this way.

The Council — As June indicates, there are many ways to show love. For Mrs. U. D. to send out, say, six shiny red bicycles to prove she feels equally loving toward each grandchild, is not the best way. A better way would be to forget out their needs and try to meet them, on an individual basis.

This ferreting would be difficult, however, when it comes to June who, frankly or not, feels hostile toward the in-laws. Instead, to her, means "interference." The chip on her shoulder is a block in the way of these generational problems. We suggest that she hew it down in fairness to her children who may some day resent her depriving them of support with their grandparents.

But to Grandma the word is Easy does it. True, it's more blessed to give than to receive. But it's also easier. Some people have a hard time accepting gifts, especially lavish ones with graces.

Try to see things from the parents' angle. Suppose they'd been saving up to buy a modest bike for their son, and along comes Grandma's balloon-tire, chromium job which makes Dad's best look like a pile of junk. Pleasure and pride, on the family level, may be punctured.

Also, some recipients see "Strings attached" to sumptuous gifts. June doesn't want to feel "bought" or obligated in any way. The best approach might be a few gifties visits, back and forth. Soon simple tokens, like a made-to-kindergarten pothelder or a box of note paper, might be exchanged. But most important will be the kindly talk, the smiles and the warm embraces.

Meanwhile, to keep things "equal," Mr. and Mrs. D. might put the money they would have spent for expensive gifts into a special bank accounts for June's children to present to them as an opportune milestone. And Mrs. U. can concentrate upon the one gift she will not mind having returned — a sincere compliment!

Women's Role In Business Is Stressed

MONTREAL (CP) — Yvette Rousseau, president of the Montreal Women's Chamber of Commerce, says salesmanship should be placed on preparing women for business careers.

A program has been organized by her group to encourage women to train for administrative posts in business. The role of the manager in small and medium - sized enterprises will be stressed, along with the fundamentals of law.

"With the developing and growing importance of our country, man is forced to give more and more time to studying international problems, to organizing international business, and to arranging international relations," Mrs. Rousseau said.

"But life must go on in domestic enterprises. It is evident that women's role in business is of prime importance."

She urged that families and schools be told what careers are available for women and that adequate training courses be arranged.

Woman's Work Never Done When Working With Aphids

FREDERICTON (CP) — A woman's work is never done—especially if she's an automologist working with aphids.

Dr. M. Zilan MacGillivray, one of Canada's foremost authorities on the insects that live on sap of the plants they infest, says:

"Practically every plant known is host to at least one kind of aphid and some have several. No one knows how many kinds of aphid exist, because new ones are being discovered all the time. Most of them have different reactions to many factors and there is no end to aphid research."

Dr. MacGillivray, who has degrees from the University of New Brunswick, Michigan and Leiden University in The Netherlands, has more than 10,000 slides and 250 aphid specimens in her laboratory at the Fredericton research station of the federal department of agriculture.

"Aphids are beautiful," she says, but only when they are projected singly in color on a screen. She conceded that most women find them repulsive when clustered on flowers and plants.

"Actually, the damage they do by themselves is insignificant beside the secondary trouble they cause. Aphids are easily disposed of. But they transmit many kinds of plant virus and viruses are the hardest things in the world to combat."

Handsome Plaid Dress

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Lightweight worsted in a Glen plaid pattern is the choice for an attractive street dress. The design looks casual enough but includes some interesting dressmaker detail.

For instance, from dropped shoulder to waist, the seaming converges only to emerge in puffed detail at the hips.

The skirt tapers to a narrow line and the separate, darker gray belt buckles in back.

Needs Vocation Advice

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—There are articles in magazines about people who manage by discussion to get their problems worked out, but who does one go to? Theoretically to the doctor the minister, but in a small locality they are not always adequate.

Teaching bothers me (regardless of the fact I would like to be a good one). Farming may be harder on my husband than teaching is on me. He cvretainly is not strong. Between us we have three children to educate.

I have a pass degree and a basic teaching certificate. I cnanot seem to think of anything I can safely branch into. My husband has started a small business and at present at least it will not support us.—M. J.

DEAR M. J.:—You haven't said why teaching bothers you. Nervous strain of handling many youngsters in a classroom? Difficulties in preparing the work? The load of work? It may be that you could tutor two or three, or use that educated mind of yours in some branch of business not too far away from home.

A vocational counsellor could help you to sort yourself out and find the right kind of a job. Most large cities have such resources, which may be located through the local department of education. A special trip to the city, and the expense of a full-scale evaluation, will be well worth the effort and money.

DEAR DORIS:—My sister has put up with a bullying husband for 10 years. He hates us to visit her, although outwardly polite, but upsets every meal with a row.

I know she is heartbroken but she tries to keep cheerful because of the two children, who are really showing the effects of an unhappy home in their bad tempers and frequent crying.

She could walk out tomorrow and I could take her in until she got straightened around. I can't stand to see her gradually demoralized.—SISTER SALLY.

DEAR SISTER SALLY:—What she does about it is for her to decide. Let her know you are standing by, but be realistic about how much you could help. Could you support her and two children for several months?

If she is really sunk, give her the courage to go to her minister or a social worker and talk it over. If there is any help for her marriage, they will help her find it. Either way she will need your loving interest, so don't let the bully keep you away.

DEAR DORIS:—We are two young teenage girls. The boys make dates to meet us after supper. When they meet us they talk about other girls we don't know.

Recently they have been standing us up and fooling around with this other girl we don't know. She is quite young and doesn't act her age. After this happened the other night, they had enough nerve to come and bother us when we were baby sitting.

At the dances they flip coins over who to dance with. When there is a group of us they pretend we aren't alive (they are shy), but when we are alone you would think we were the only two girls in the world.

What shall we do, as we like them very much?—TWO STUMPED FEMALES.

DEAR TWO:—You don't flip a coin about it if you really care with whom you dance.

Your cue is to be just as offhand as they are. Meet other boys in your school groups or church groups. Have fun with all of them and don't let anyone think you'll wait around on a street corner for him. Ladies just don't act this way.

(Doris Clark will be glad to help you with your problem. Write to her care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Explorers End Season With M-D Banquet

85-Year-Old Taught First Class in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — For 85-year-old Miss Josephine Dauphinee the opening of the new Oakridge School for Retarded Children here held special memories.

She was the teacher who conducted Vancouver's first class for "misfits" in the city's old Central High School which opened in 1911. Before she retired in 1941 she had advanced to teaching the teachers who taught the children.

Daughter of a sea captain of United Empire Loyalist stock, she was born in Petite Riviere, 25 miles from Liverpool, N.S., went to Truro Normal school and taught for nine years in Liverpool.

Later she trained as a nurse in Boston, nursed in Vancouver and then took up teaching again and was chosen to take the city's first class for retarded children. She recalls there were wash tubs in the classrooms in those days and the children had lunch together and were taught table manners.

KEEPS ACTIVE

Life has been busy for Miss Dauphinee since her retirement as supervisor of special classes.

The walls of her apartment show off some of the pictures she has painted to satisfy her creative urge.

"I make all my own clothes too, except suits," she said in an interview, "a smile lighting up her still-young face framed by curly white hair.

"I make my own hats too. Everyone thinks I have a new hat this year but it's seven years old. Last year I raised the crown and this year I just showed the crown up half an inch and put on fresh flowers."

Retirement does not mean just sitting home either. She has retained her connections with such organizations as the Business and Professional Women's Club, the Women's Canadian Club and the Vancouver Council of Women.

STARTS PUSHING

MISSION, B.C. (CP) — John Pecaud, 65, completed the first 50 miles of his 3,000-mile wheelbarrow-pushing marathon from Vancouver to Toronto Friday night and reported mechanical trouble. Pecaud hopes to arrive in Toronto for the opening of the Canadian National Exhibition Aug. 18.

QUESTION BOX

Question — I am anxious to have a lovely church wedding and to wear a white bridal gown. My friends tell me I should not do this because, when I was very young, I had a very unfortunate experience and have a daughter, born out of wedlock. My future husband, my relatives and close friends all know this and have forgiven me because of the circumstances surrounding my mistake. Would I be wrong, as my friends say, if I did have the wedding that I long for? There are many acquaintances and friends who do not know about my past and they will think it odd if I don't have a real wedding, white gown and all. What do you think? — Miss J. Bc, New York, N. Y.

Answer — I think it would be much more appropriate if you were to have a church wedding, but do not wear a bridal gown. It is the prerogative of the first-time bride to wear a white gown. Those who know of your unfortunate experience might criticize your choice. Why not follow the plan used in many informal weddings and wear a pastel-colored dress, with your attendants attired in a contrasting color? A veil should not be worn. Instead, you may wear either larger or small hat. Have your church wedding by all means — with reception following. If you wish, Just make the one concession of foregoing the bridal gown.

Question — In warm weather people seem to serve a fruit bowl, instead of dessert, more than they do in the winter. I always seem to get in trouble when confronted by fruit, such as grapes, apples, etc. These shouldn't be eaten with the fingers, when dining out but should be consumed with the help of a fruit knife and fork. How do you handle this without dropping things all over the place. And how do you get the seeds out of grapes? — Mrs. P. H. T., Hackensack, N. J.

Answer — It's really very simple. An apple or pear, for example, should be cut in half using both the knife and fork. It is easy to scrape out the core or cut around it, so you cut it into bite size pieces. Cut a grape in half, holding it with your left hand (a fork won't help here, for the grape is bound to slip away from it). Remove the seeds with the knife, still holding the grape. Never put the whole grape in your mouth and then either spit the seeds onto your plate or remove them from your mouth with the fork. Both of these procedures are most unsightly!

Question — My father died recently. He was a man of great prominence and we have had more than five hundred expressions of sympathy. Must a personal acknowledgment be written to each one, or may a card be engraved expressing the family's appreciation? — Miss S. T., Chicago, Ill.

Answer — In a case such as this, it is proper to have the engraved card. Under normal conditions, however, when the expressions of sympathy number under a hundred, a hand-written note is correct.

Question — I'm getting married next month and will have a matron of honor and two bridesmaids. Does a matron of honor have to have a partner? — Miss J.S., Edmonton, Alta.

Answer — The best man assumes this position. Your matron of honor precedes you down the church aisle to the altar, walking alone. After the ceremony, she returns up the aisle following you and your bridegroom, and the best man is her partner.

Question — Now that we are heading into summer, when so many weddings take place, there are a few questions I would like to ask. Your excellent column on how to answer a wedding invitation straightened me out on that, but I am still at sea about several other things. For example: Does a present have to be sent to the bride? If so, where is it sent and to whom addressed? What is placed in the card? If you take it with you to church and then the reception, do you present it when going through the receiving line? Where do you go when you finish greeting the bridal group in the line? How long do you stay at the reception? Do you make a point of saying goodbye and thanking the bride when you leave? Thanks so much for your help. I'm sorry to be so stupid! — Mrs. L. H. C., Detroit, Mich.

Answer — You are not stupid! Your questions are very sensible, and I shall answer them one by one. If you were invited only to the church, the old tradition was that no gift to the bride was expected. If asked to the reception, it was obligatory that one be sent. Today it has become more or less up to the individual as to whether or not he wishes to do so or not. Personally, I think it is a nice gesture to do so. The gift is addressed to the bride in her maiden name (remember she is not married yet) and is sent to her home.

The card may simply have your name engraved on it, or you may add a note of good wishes if you care to. If writing your name, be sure to give it in full. Never sign a card with "Mary and Jim." It should be "Mr. and Mrs. James Brown" to avoid confusion. A gift is never taken to the reception. It should always be sent ahead of time.

After greeting the bridal party in the receiving line, you go to the refreshment table, and then join those among the guests whom you may know. It is perfectly proper that you stay until after the bride cuts the cake. When leaving extend your thanks to the parents of the bride, if possible. Remember they are your hosts, not the bride.

Question — I am expecting to send a cheque, rather than a gift, to the daughter of a friend of mine, who is to be married. Do I make this cheque payable to her own finance, or what? Of course it is for both of them. — Mrs. R. H. T., Chicago, Ill.

Answer — The cheque should be made payable to the girl, alone. Gifts, or money, are always given to the bride, not to her fiance.

Question — The baby of a friend of mine died shortly after birth. She is, of course, heartbroken. She wanted me to write you and ask if she should return all the lovely gifts she has received. Several showers were given, and she has a big supply of baby clothes, blankets, etc. If she does return the gifts, should she write a note with each one, explaining why she is sending it back? — Mrs. M-D. S., Chicago, Ill.

Answer — I would strongly advise against returning any of the gifts. After a tragedy such as this, her friends would certainly not want her to endure the poignant sorrow that the return of each gift would bring. Much better to pack everything away and to look towards the future, when, under happier circumstances, she will be able to use them.

* * *

Question — I have been asked by an old school chum to serve as the matron of honor in June. I am now five months pregnant and am wondering if it would be proper for me to be in the wedding party? I would not want to embarrass her or anyone else, but I also don't want to say no if it would be all right for me to do this. Mrs. G. N., Toledo, Ohio.

Answer — While there is no real reason why you should not appear as your friend's attendant, it seems to me that it would be better not to do so. I'm sure she will understand if your not accepting the honor.

St. Joseph's C.W.L. Plans Future Events

The May meeting of St. Joseph's Catholic Womm's League was opened with prayer led by the president, Mrs. V. Muldoon.

The minutes were read and approved and correspondence reported by Mrs. Kelly. The treasury showed only a small balance after a successful year of finance with sports on League aims.

The president congratulated Mrs. Meagher and Mrs. Maund on their efficiency in the purchase of many needed articles with the proceeds of the sale of cook books.

Mrs. C. Murphy, membership convener, reminded the members that renewals were now due and reported a total membership last year of 189.

Mrs. J. Hanley, chairman of the citizenship committee, spoke of the forthcoming flag day to be held May 26th and 27th, sponsored by the Civic Action Committee of the Catholic parishes in Belleville. Seventeen ladies were required from St. Joseph's and headquarters in the Cancer Clinic on Pinnacle St.

The president thanked everyone who had helped to make the spring tea a success and a vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. M. Hanley who had donated the beautiful cake for the raffle.

Marathon bridge winners were announced by Mrs. Green. High score was achieved by Mrs. T. Kelly and Mrs. P. Halloran.

Mrs. Collyer reported on Brownie activities. There are 38 Brownies in one pack with a waiting list of 10. Another pack should be added, which means that more leaders are needed. Also it would be advisable to start a pack of Girl Guides as soon as possible so that Brownies going out could remain in parish activities.

Past and future visits to hospital patients and to the Home for the Aged were discussed by Mrs. Belrne and Mrs. Muldoon. May 22nd is the date of the next visit to the Home and visitors are always greatly appreciated.

The annual C.W.L. convention will take place in Kingston on June 18th and 19th. Delegates from St. Joseph's will be Mrs. Muldoon and Mrs. C. Murphy. However, other members were urged to attend as visiting delegates to the general session.

The fall bazaar will be held on October 25th with conveners Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. Kelly. Anyone interested in sewing and knitting for respective tables was asked to continue this project through the summer months to ensure a good supply.

The president, Mrs. Muldoon, announced that the June meeting would be postponed until the fourth Monday, June 26.

After adjournment of the meeting lunch was served under the direction of Mrs. Jury.

British Sure They Were Right in Recognizing Red China, Want Markets Back

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Despite some snubs and disagreements, the British today take the view that their diplomatic recognition of Communist China was right—and that the Peking regime belongs in the United Nations.

In the background, Britain is bidding for a bigger share of the China market, which her oldtime merchant adventurers used to dominate.

Britain recognized the Communist government 11 years ago. Today, in the official view, there are no regrets.

Lord Home, foreign secretary, told Parliament Feb. 8 the Red Chinese have smothered Tibet, resisted conciliation efforts and publicly proclaimed a belief in war.

But Lord Home added:

"The facts of international life require that Communist China should be seated in the United Nations."

PRESSURES STRONG

One of those facts, in Britain's view, is that the West cannot beat back the pressures expected to bring Peking into the world body.

Other pointers suggest Britain wants better relations with Red China. Strength has been given to the assignment of a colorful, 6-foot-2 diplomat, Malcolm Macdonald, who has served for years with great success in Asia—first governor, then ambassador in Peking.

Backed by most of her Commonwealth partners, Britain intends pressing the idea that Red China must be given a voice in future East-West talks to end the world arms race. And further, that China cannot be expected to co-operate in disarmament arrangements while she is outside the UN.

On the surface all this may suggest Britain takes a sunny view of Peking's readiness to work with non . . . Communist powers on the world's big problem.

In fact, the realistic British takes no such view.

They have publicly warned that Red China's rising military strength cannot be ignored by the West. London's argument goes this way:

Without any day-to-day restraints implied by UN membership, without the need to consider the ebb and flow of world opinion, Peking's obligation to behave is lessened.

And the more contacts the Chinese can develop with the non-Communist world, the less they will depend on Russia.

Britain's postwar Labor government recognized the Communist authorities in January, 1950, three months after China's first Red government was proclaimed at Peking.

But to this day, only partial relations exist.

The two countries are represented in each other's capitals by charges d'affaires instead of ambassadors, which British prefer.

British diplomats in China move around the cities and provinces with a degree of freedom unknown in other Communist areas—with ease. They freely entertain Chinese and they transact daily business with the government.

Trade with the Chinese envoy, Huan Hsiang, is far less active. Britain's exports to China are only a huge commercial stake in China estimated in 1950 at about $1,000,000,000 ended in 1952 most of the great British mercantile houses had to shut down.

Yet Commonwealth and Hong Kong trade with China has risen. In 1958-1960 it was about $280,000,000.

Britain's own trade with China last year formed only .7 per cent of this country's total foreign trade.

Government men estimate there is scope to double this volume—when and if the Communists resume normal trading.

Grand Banks Fishing Really Paying Off

By JAMES H. HUSSEY / Canadian Press Correspondent

BURIN, Nfld. (CP)—Draggers' fishermen sailing to the Grand Banks off Newfoundland south coast fishing settlement are making more money than they have in years.

They say that since the beginning of May they have been working under more favorable conditions, notably free dismissal of their catches which gives them more take - home pay.

Discharge of catch comes when the boat arrives from the fishing grounds. The fish is taken from the boat and placed in storage ready for processing by the shore workers.

In previous years the fishermen themselves paid the cost of discharge which often ran from $300 to $500 a man each season. Now it is being paid by the fish plant owners.

Other gains have been taking home as much as $132 for a few days fishing in the first months of this year. Last year some made only a little more than $2,000 for the entire season and were becoming dissatisfied.

36 IN FLEET

Plant and dragger owners made the concessions in order to keep the men from quitting fishing.

Most of the Newfoundland draggers carry 15 or 16 men and they operate during a season that runs from January to December with an average of 40 trips a year.

About 16 draggers operate from three plants on the Burin Peninsula.

Last winter was a stormy one but there were no casualties. The last fatal accident occurred in 1958 when Capt. Charles Wallers and his crew of 15 were lost when the Blue Wave sank during the second week in February.

That disaster was the only one involving total loss of crew since draggers started operating from Burin Peninsula ports about 16 years ago.

The three Burin Peninsula plants are at Fortune, Grand Bank and Burin. They are operated by Booth Fisheries (Canada) Ltd., Boscavista Cold Storage Company and Fishery Products Ltd., respectively.

Seven draggers operate out of Burin, four from Fortune and five from Grand Bank. The plants and boats have an average of about 1,200 employees although the figure may rise to 1,500 at the peak of the fishing season when inshore fishermen in small boats are out.

Cross-Canada Survey

Govt. Caught Between Rivals in Trade Stamp War Being Waged Across Nation

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A battle of giants over the use of trading stamps by grocers and provinces stakes running into millions of dollars annually, and rising steadily.

The controversy pits trading stamp companies and powerful retail outlets using stamps to boost sales—notably food store chains—against nearly a dozen national organizations which contend trading stamps are a sales gimmick that adds to the consumers' costs.

Caught in the middle are the federal and provincial governments for whom the multi-million - dollar trading stamp issue has become a headache.

BANNED IN PLACES

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows the issue is most lively in Ontario and Quebec, and to a lesser extent in Manitoba. In the Atlantic provinces stamps are used only on a small scale, not at all in Prince Edward Island. And they present no political issue in Nova Scotia.

British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan are the only provinces with legislation banning trading stamps. Trading stamps most used. But opposition to the Alberta and Saskatchewan legislation as ineffective because it may contravene the British North America Act reserved to the federal Parliament. They say the law is open to challenge as stamps is by federal legislation.

The British Columbia legislation has been effective in keeping out trading stamps but it has not yet been tested in the courts.

A charge laid under Alberta's legislation by the city of Edmonton on constitutional grounds, and by the provincial government is taking a second look at its stamp ban.

Saskatchewan's outlawing legislation has not yet been proclaimed in force, stamps are not being used in that province.

MAIN ARGUMENTS

Stamp companies and retailers using stamps say they boost sales without increasing consumer prices. They contend that if the public objected, it would not patronize the non-stamp stores.

Opponents—notably the Retail Merchants Association of Canada and the Canadian Association of Consumers—claim that stamps do increase consumer prices, and operate as a form of parasitic infection into the merchantile bloodstream. They argue that they should be outlawed by federal legislation.

The type of stamp most commonly in use has been ruled legal under the Criminal Code by the courts across Canada.

In a Dec. 19 decision the court upheld the legality of stamps issued by Loblaw Groceterias Co. of Manitoba, Limited and an independent Consumers' Alliance store in Winnipeg. The court said that stamps prohibited in Canada are specifically described in a way that that the Loblaw and IGA stamps do not fall within this prohibition.

Stamps of this type are used by Loblaw, IGA stores in all other provinces, and also by the Steinberg and Dower supermarket chains in Eastern Canada and a variety of small independent grocery and drug stations and even hairdressers.

Trading stamps are not used by Dominion Stores, the big chain or Canada Safeway Limited. These companies contend they offer lower prices instead of stamps. "It is cheaper."

BIG BUSINESS

Mrs. Mary Sim of Toronto, executive director of the Canadian Association of Stamp Companies, says about 12,000 merchants now use trading stamps. About 4,000,000 premiums valued at $10,000,000 were changed for stamps in 1960, and these figures are reflected in price by about 30 per cent in 1961.

Mrs. Sim said stamps help small retailers fight big chain stores. They were a natural solution for the retailer who could not afford a whole page of newspaper advertising.

But the Retail Merchants Association, the Canadian Association of Consumers, the Canadian Labor Congress and other opponents say stamps cost money to distribute and boost the price of consumer goods by two to three per cent. They argue that a third party—the stamp company—operates a highly profitable business at the expense of consumers.

LONGTIME ISSUE

The current controversy is nothing new. Stamps have been a live issue since 1905 when Parliament wrote a stiff section into the Criminal Code banning virtually all types of trading stamps. This section, however, was amended in 1954 to define types which are unlawful.

The Code outlawed in stamp plans spreading like wildfire. They say Parliament's intention in 1906 was to prohibit all stamp plans except those which allow manufacturers to exchange gifts for coupons.

Opponents argue that stamps today are in such wide circulation that they do in fact constitute a secondary form of currency, and that they are fraudulent in character because they do not offer something for nothing.

FEDERAL VIEW

Justice Minister Fulton on several occasions has said the federal government will act if it can be shown that stamp plans now in operation are of a type Parliament intended to ban as being criminal.

Mr. Fulton gave the Commons a vague hint last December that the government might be considering amendments to the Criminal Code dealing with trading stamps. Asked whether stamps now in use would be outlawed he said: "I cannot answer. I can give you that question is that the House speech because that there would be amendments to the Criminal Code during this session. When the bill is introduced, government policy in that regard will be indicated."

Frank Howard, CCF member for Skeena, has reintroduced a private bill to ban all forms of trading stamps. It will be debated later this session. A similar bill of his was defeated last session but did not come to a vote.

ALBERTA CASE

Alberta outlawed trading stamps in November, 1958, first province to do so. The step was taken through regulations under the Securities Trade and Businesses Act. In the summer of 1960 Edmonton grocer Joseph Keller started to issue stamps. He was prosecuted but the case failed in magistrate's court on grounds that the provincial ban contravened the Criminal Code.

The attorney - general did not appeal but the Alberta cabinet moved quickly to draw up a new code of business practices designed to keep trading stamps out of the province. Then the legislature this spring approved a bill which gives the cabinet "discretionary powers to act" in blocking business giveaway gimmicks. An Edmonton grocery store started issuing trading stamps in what is expected to end up as court test of the new code.

While the Saskatchewan ban is not yet proclaimed, it could be put into effect on short notice. Last year Lucky's Groceteria Company (Saskatchewan) Limited was charged under the Criminal Code for issuing trading stamps. A conviction registered in magistrate's court was reversed by the Court of Queen's Bench. The Saskatchewan attorney-general dropped an appeal, after the Supreme Court of Canada upheld the legality of stamps issued in Manitoba by Loblaw's and IGA.

The B.C. order - in - council banning stamps has not been put into effect in June, 1960, and no stamps are in use in the province.

Balichapori Home of Indian Luminous Plant

BOMBAY (CP)—The village of Balichapori in Assam state in northeast India has become a big attraction for scientists and the superstitious alike. They are all flocking there to see a mysterious luminous plant.

Soon after dusk the nine-foot-high plant is said to glow magnificently.

The chief minister of Assam state and other officials have visited Balichapori and declared it a "miracle of wonder." The chief minister took back samples of the leaves to his home.

The National Physical Laboratory in New Delhi, one of the country's leading scientific institutions, has started investigating the mystery.

Preliminary studies by Assam's scientists suggest the luminosity may be due to certain chemicals capable of emitting light at night.

There is also speculation in the press that radioactive contamination may have something to do with the luminosity. One theory advanced is that the luminous plant indicates rich oil-bearing strata beneath. Assam is one of the few areas in the country where oil-drilling operations have met with sizable success.

As far as the villages of the region are concerned the lighting-giant is just the work of some mysterious spirits. At night the peasants sound trumpets and beat drums to pacify the spirits.

So great has been the rush of visitors that Assam police authorities have had to arrange extra buses. Police guards have cordoned off the garden and the town is enjoying a business boom.

"We hope that the mystery lingers on," confessed the village head-man. "It has meant a new life for so many here."

Malagasy Republic Hopes To Become 'African Geneva' For Ironing Out Problems

By HORACE CASTELL

TANANARIVE (Reuters). The 10-month-old Malagasy Republic, set slap-bang in the Indian Ocean off Africa's southeastern coast, is emerging on the African political scene as what it hopes will be a special role.

Philibert Tsiranana, its president, said recently: "We should like to make our great island a sort of African Geneva, a neutral territory where many difficulties can be ironed out, quarrels settled, and agreements reached."

The island, one of the world's biggest, and particularly its capital, Tananarive, appears to have some unique qualifications for such duties.

Formerly known as Madagascar, this republic is the only place near Africa where Far East, Middle East, Africa and Europe have met, blended and formed a handsome, gracious, harmonious whole in a people who with pride call themselves Malgache.

The forefathers of these 5,000,000 people may have come from Indonesia or Borneo, or the black African coast, England or France or Portugal. But today they speak one basic language, Merina, and consider themselves one nation.

Madagascar, formerly a French possession, is about 250 miles from the African coast, opposite Mozambique. Its present dominant influences are Malayan-Polynesian, dating back to mass migrations from Southeast Asia five centuries ago.

The features of the coastal dwellers show traits of the Arab traders, Indian and Chinese merchants and European seamen who have been coming to these coasts for hundreds of years now. But the inhabitants of the high plateau along the centre of the island, including the capital, Tananarive, have distinctive Malayan - Polynesian features.

Though the Malgache does not feel actual brotherhood with the African, he does, however, feel a certain kinship. "And as such we shall always be willing to act as disinterested intermediaries in any dispute," says President Tsiranana.

The first experiment appears to have been successful.

Congolese leaders who held a "summit" meeting here early in March signed a series of resolutions that insured The Congo into a confederation and, in the opinion of experienced observers, went far towards solving the troubles of The Congo.

World cares and tensions, international intrigues and complications certainly seem remote from lovely Tananarive.

The city is built on twin hills on the 4,000-foot-high plateau in the heart of the island.

Its 80,000 inhabitants, Malgache, Chinese, Indians, a few Arabs, a large French community and a few other Europeans, live in pretty little houses cling-ing to green and brown cliffs. Steep, twisting stairs lead to steep, twisting roads. Everywhere, there are green patches and flowers.

In the long, wide valley between the hills turned into attractive plazas, there are gardens, a market and statue of Joan of Arc.

Under President Tsiranana, the Malagasy Republic has remained in the French Community and on the side of the West.

Opposition to the president's Social Democratic party appears, however, to be growing and in elections last September the Opposition Independence Congress of Madagascar (AKFM) emerged as the strongest party in Tananarive.

The Congress has socialist leanings and basically, like the dominant parties in most parts of black Africa today, stands for a form of "positive neutrality" between the world blocs.

Another big opposition party, the Christian Grouping of Madagascar (RCM), opposes Tsiranana largely because of what the RCM describes as his "too close ties with the French."

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

— By C.A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor, Income Tax Department

In our previous article we dealt with the status for tax purposes of taxpayers who were not separated by written agreement or court order. In such cases the taxpayer was treated as a married man living apart from his wife. His exemptions depended on his wife's income in the same manner as those who lived together.

In this article we will deal with deserted wives and husbands and outline what the claims are when either husband or wife is left with children to support. If the address of the deserting spouse is unknown and there are no children then only the single exemption of $1,000 applies.

On the other hand if one deserting spouse has left the other with children to support and the one that has the children receives no contribution from the other then the one with the children may claim the equivalent to married exemption, $1,000, or one child and the others as ordinary dependent children. If the taxpayer employs a full time servant or housekeeper to look after the children while at work, then the same rule of which the $1,000 exemption was claimed may be entered again for the child tax exemption allowed on the child.

The taxpayer should bear in mind that the only support we now support is received from the deserting spouse and his or her address is unknown. These claims apply equally to a husband or wife who has been deserted and left with children to support. You should attach a statement of paper to your return and give all the details.

Question — My husband deserted me over a year ago and left me with a one-year-old child to support. I hear he has left Canada. Do I claim $250 or $1,000 for the child. I am leave the child in a day nursery while I work.

Answer — You may claim $6,000 on the child. Day nursery expenses are not deductible and such nurseries do not qualify as housekeepers.

Question — My wife deserted me for another man and left me with two small children. I pay their board in a private home. What exemption may I claim?

Answer — Your exemption is $2,250. This is $1,000 on one child and $250 on the other. Full details should be filled on Page 2 of the return.

LULUABOURG, The Congo (CP)—If Lacoste lived in Caledonia he'd be a back-room politician.

Lacoste is a wheeler-dealer, a harmless con man, a comic Satan—and the life of the Canadian army signal detachment in this central Congolese city, the capital of Northern Kasai.

His name is really Liguanga, but the only time he becomes really angry is when someone calls him by that name instead of what he considers his more elegant adopted name. If he has a first name, he keeps it to himself.

Lacoste is cook for the 10-man signals detachment here. Hired as an ordinary laborer, he has come to be regarded as a paragon among Congolese "houseboys."

SON OF CHIEF

His tribunalar face—a distinctive feature of the Lulua tribe, of which Lacoste's father is a minor chief—can flash from engaging, ear-to-ear grin to austere aloofness within seconds. But his resemblance to other Luluas is only physical. Where the others are passive and shyly withdrawn, Lacoste has made his boldness a legend.

An order from one of the Canadians often brings the jaunty "Oui, chef!" yes dear, delivered with a saucy grin that makes them to take offence.

If a Congolese woman comes to the Canadian quarters with produce for sale, Lacoste will listen only briefly to her arguments about quality and price. Then he tells her bluntly "Shut up, madame" and it's up to her to figure out what he means.

His English vocabulary, to say the least, is unorthodox. It is small but effective. Politics will usually exhaust it, particularly when it comes to Baluba "King" Albert Kalonji or Katanga President Moise Tshombe, both despised by the Luluas.

TSHOMBE NO GOOD

In an often-repeated gag, one of the Canadians will tune the short-wave receiver to Radio Katanga in Elisabethville for the propaganda-style station identification.

A woman's voice intones in French: "Radio Independante, etat de Katanga, where President Tshombe and his people fight against communism . . ."

Lacoste charges from the kitchen and hollers at the radio: "Bah! Tshombe no good. You foul ball." Then because he knows it's a joke, he returns to the kitchen with a low, fiendish chuckle.

Lacoste can draw an incredible line between jokingly and particularly where tribal politics are concerned.

When the Luluas organized a mass demonstration outside United Nations headquarters last February, Lacoste asked Capt. Jean-Paul Brazeau of Montreal West, detachment liaison officer, for the day off. The only reason he would give was a mysterious "beaucoup de politiques" (lots of politics).

WITH ANTI-UN MOB

Brazeau recalled what followed.

"When I crossed the park, through the mob, to get to UN headquarters, there was Lacoste with the middle of the crowd, shaking his fist and yelling anti-UN slogans.

"Right afterwards, he came back to the quarters and cooked us the best supper for us."

Generally, he has the run of headquarters. Subject only to the discretion of three other Canadian soldiers, the Congolese workers. Under he's allowed to operate his own business. But he can also turn out a handsome meal for 30 from the tiny kitchen.

His food-hunting trips for the detachment are a story in themselves.

Travelling in the detachment's jeep with Sigmn. Jim MacFarlane of Smiths Falls, Ont., Lacoste will stand at the end of a hunter on a safari.

IMPRESSIVE MAN

He usually manages to get any outstanding personal matters taken care of along the way and by giving MacFarlane spurious directions to the markets.

Once arrived at a roadside stand, Lacoste must first don plastic-rimmed spectacles, carefully wiped, then adjust a jaunty peaked beret on his head and rub his hands. Finally he is ready to examine the produce.

If Lacoste has left an indelible impression on the Canadians, he has also been impressed by them.

When his wife gave birth to their fourth child recently, he named the boy Jean-Louis after Sgt. Jean-Louis Pelletier of Hull, Que., a former cipher sergeant at Luluabourg who had helped translate treasures for Lacoste's wife when she was ill.

Brazeau, who watches with hilarity the antics of his cook, figures that only once did he get the better of Lacoste.

Lacoste arrived late for work a few days. Brazeau made him work later in the afternoon.

"That was the last time he came late. He also knows his acumen, because he realized quickly that he'd reached the limit. What a man!"

Topics this week: Gorillas, mosquitoes and a star atlas.

GORILLA LORE

Gorillas lead a peaceful social life and beat their chest not in threat but just to let out emotional tensions. They sleep 15 hours a day, spend five more calling and hike about half a mile daily in search of food.

Most popular ideas about gorillas are in error, reports George Schaller, University of Wisconsin zoologist who spent 18 months in close observation of gorillas in The Congo.

These largest primates depend primarily on facial expressions and gestures to communicate among themselves, and use only a few sounds. They pout when sad.

MOSQUITO BAIT

Entomologists are experimenting to learn why mosquitoes bother some people, but not others, and just what attracts mosquitoes.

Answers aren't simple, but if found could lead to more effective repellents, or insecticides.

Mosquitoes vary in their preferences for human odors, says Aegypti, prefers body areas, while another, seeks taeniorhynchus, is lured more to the face than the hands. U.S. department of agriculture experimenters found.

STAR ATLAS

Using special sensing equipment, astronomers are preparing a new type of star atlas charting the infrared or heat radiation of known stars.

One purpose of the project is to determine the relation between a star's visible radiation and its infra-red radiation, which can be useful in developing systems for space navigation. Eastman Kodak company is preparing the atlas.

SEA DRIFTERS

Oceanographers long have used colored pop bottles, bailasted with wire to make them sink, to trace currents along the ocean bottom. Ultimately many are caught by fishermen's dredges, or are washed ashore.

Now the bottles are being replaced by brightly colored plastic drifters, shaped like mushrooms. They're expected to be more sensitive to slow currents, and more probably will be found and returned because of their yellow - and-orange color and the fact that fewer will break, says the Woods Hole (Mass.) Oceanographic Institution at Brislow of Picton.

California Doctor Taste Tests 1,500 Lots of Wine

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Maynard Amerine, a distinguished scholar with jet-colored hair and Madeira-colored eyes, has an unusual academic chore.

Each year he must taste test some 1,500 different lots of wine.

"But in the daytime — from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.—I never swallow any," he said gravely.

The tasting is one of the duties that fails to Dr. Amerine as director of the University of California's department of enology, or wine making.

The department operates its own small winery and 150 acres of vineyards stocked with more than 1,000 varieties of grapes. It also is pioneering in the development of automatic grape harvesting.

Its 50 students come from all parts of the world, including such famed wine centres as France, Germany and Portugal.

At the end of the year Dr. Amerine, who can easily identify 100 kinds of wine, expects his senior students to be able to classify by taste, color and aroma at least 25 of the popular wines of California and abroad.

NO SWALLOWING

The students don't get to drink the wine. They merely sit in cubicles and sniff and taste the samples — then expectorate them, as does a professional tester.

A course in wine making might sound like a collegiate boondoggle to the uninitiated. It isn't.

"We don't have the problem of the smart-alec student looking for a snap subject," said Dr. Amerine. "Before enrolling our students have to have 16 units of chemistry, eight units of physics and nine units of math, including calculus.

"These requirements are so stiff they eliminate all except the serious students, those really interested in finding a career in the wine industry."

To Dr. Amerine, this is more than a mere academic pursuit. To him the lore of wine is full of both poetry and romance.

"I who must have a rather — some- thing to remember," he re-

Farm Machinery Company Heads Study Languages

TORONTO (CP) — Massey-Ferguson Ltd. has sent a dozen of its senior executives back to school to learn foreign languages.

French conversation and a little Italian — isn't uncommon these days in the halls and lunch rooms of the farm implement firm's headquarters here. English is the native tongue of the men doing the talking.

The need for travelling members of the firm to speak foreign languages was recognized last November when President A. A. Thornbrough visited a newly acquired plant in Italy. Only the general manager and one other member of the firm's 600 workers could speak English.

Massey's senior men agreed there was a need to understand and speak the language if machinery was to be manufactured and sold in other countries. As the Western world's largest tractor maker, Massey-Ferguson has plants in nine countries and sells its products in 142.

The first French lessons for executives began in March and now two teachers spend up to six hours a day giving half-hour private lessons.

Last fall at a meeting of Massey dealers in Paris the chairman, W. E. Phillips, and Mr. Thornbrough each spoke for five minutes in French, said public relations director H. G. Kettle. "We're sure this helped create a warm feeling toward the company."

The executives extend the lessons to homework by taking home language records and books.

After the basics are learned, picking up technical terms may not be difficult for those who feel they need them, said Mr. Kettle.

marked, and added learnedly:

"In this respect wine is like an attractive woman. It must have something to stimulate the imagination.

"A memorable woman or a memorable wine must have a special intellectual quality — can either be really interesting."

Foreign Capital Top Dog In Canada's Resources, Manufacturing Industries

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Foreign capital, for years the dominant factor in some of Canada's key resource industries, now has become top dog in manufacturing too.

The change took place in 1958 when Canadian ownership of investment in this country's manufacturing industries slipped to a minority 49-per-cent share.

In that year, when total investment in manufacturing grew by $400,000,000, Canadian-owned investments increased by only $85,000,000 to their holdings in Canadian manufacturing and British investors added $50,000,000—nearly as much as the growth in Canadian investment.

These are some of the details of a recent report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics on changes in foreign ownership and control of Canadian industry in 1958.

OIL FOREIGN CONTROLLED

Foreign ownership of all capital investment in manufacturing increased to 51 per cent from 50 in that year. Three years earlier, in 1955, its share had been 47 per cent.

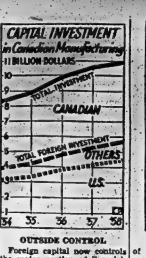
An even greater share—57 per cent—was controlled from outside Canada, compared with 53 per cent in 1955.

In two big resource industries, petroleum and mining, foreign control is considerably greater.

Foreigners controlled 75 per cent of the petroleum and natural gas industry in 1958, and American firms and investors controlled 69 per cent of it.

In mining and smelting, 80 per cent was under foreign control—51 per cent under U.S. control.

These proportions are greater than the actual foreign ownership of total capital investment in petroleum and natural gas, for example, the 75-per-cent control resulted from foreign ownership of 64 per cent of investment in the industry.



RAIL MAINLY CANADIAN

This situation is reversed in the railway industry, where foreigners owned 29 per cent of capital investment but controlled only two per cent of it.

In manufacturing industries, foreign control was concentrated in certain fields, notably the rubber, auto, electrical, chemical and transportation equipment industries.

The report showed that at the end of 1958 foreign control extended to more than 98 per cent of the rubber industry, 97 per cent of the auto and auto parts industry, 79 per cent of the electrical apparatus industry, 74 per cent of the chemical industry and 70 per cent of the transportation equipment industry.

However, Canadian control predominated in a number of other manufacturing fields. Primary iron and steel, for example, was 75-per-cent controlled in Canada. Canadians controlled 86 per cent of the beverages industry, 80 per cent of the textile industry and 58 per cent of the farm machinery industry.

OUTSIDE CONTROL

Foreign capital now controls the major portion of Canada's manufacturing industry.

The change occurred in 1938 when Canadian ownership of investment in manufacturing dropped to 49 per cent.

Most foreign capital comes from the United States. (CP Newsmap.)

WHERE THEY'RE OWNED — Graph shows how much of Canada's 10 main manufacturing industries is controlled outside Canada.

Heaviest control was in the rubber industry, 98 per cent controlled from outside Canada. Least was 14 per cent in beverages.

Figures are for 1958, last year for which figures are available. Total investment in each industry is shown in brackets. (CP Newsmap.)

Check Often To Keep Car In Top Shape

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

You don't have to be a mechanic or a handy man to do things which help keep your car in good condition. For instance, you can have the water and oil checked every time you stop for gas. And, there are many other simple but important inspections you can complete within a few minutes on Saturday morning.

You can start by checking the battery water level, and examining the posts and terminals for corrosion or looseness. While the hood is up, take a close look at the fan belt. It may be too slack, worn, frayed or glazed on the underside.

Check tire pressure at all wheels — and don't forget to include the all-important spare. And, how about tail lights and turn signals — both front and rear? You can't be sure they are all working properly unless they are tested occasionally.

• • •

H. Z. asks: "Must the water pump be lubricated often?"

(A) Check the lubrication chart in your manual, or ask a service station. Many pumps are factory-lubricated and sealed, and require no further attention.

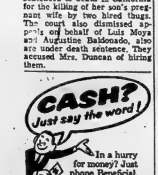
From T. W.: "All winter, although I drove to work every day, my car used no oil. Then, last weekend, I drove 115 miles upstate and back and it burned about two quarts. No one I've spoken to can explain this satisfactorily."

(A) In winter, dilution of oil by water and gasoline is greatest, especially when the car is only used for short runs. Such dilution keeps oil level at a misleading height. The level drops sharply, however, when the engine is finally driven hard enough to boil off the water and fuel in the oil.

• • •

M. A. writes: "Hope this question isn't too ridiculous for an answer. Does one or two motors operate the windshield wipers?"

(A) One only. There was a time, however, when each of the two wipers had its own motor.



• • •

V. Z. asks: "Is it true that lead compounds used in gasolines affect spark plugs?"

(A) More accurately, it's the tetraethyl lead in gasoline plus high speed engine operation which tends to cause this spark plug fouling.

DISMISSES APPEALS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court Monday dismissed an appeal by Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Duncan, 36, sentenced to death in California for the killing of her son's pregnant wife by two hired thugs. The court also dismissed appeals on behalf of Luis Moya and Augustine Baldonado, also are under death sentence. They accused Mrs. Duncan of hiring them.
